"His Check Came Back"

NOTHING undermines a man's credit more than to have that happen. Even tho an error, it's a signal that something is wrong with that man's finances. Folks hesitate to accept his check again. The notation "not sufficient funds" has given a black eye.

We dislike to return these checks, but we can't legally pay them with funds that belong to someone else. You know the money we have here isn't the bank's money—it's really the property of our depositors who have left it here for safe-keeping. We must be prepared to give it back to them when they ask for it.

Keep a liberal balance on deposit all the time. Then you'll know your check is always good.

Douglas MacLean In 'Hold That Lion'

In "Hold That Lion," Douglas MacLean breaks all the rules of big game hunting, and in doing so, furnishes sixty minutes of hilarious action and hair-raising thrills.

The smiling and irrepressible comedian has in his latest vehicle a story tailored to fit his own particular brand of film foolery, and he succeeds in extracting from it a maximum amount of fun and excitement.

The picture covers a lot of territory and keeps MacLean bouncing around, from the opening scene to the final flicker. The action starts in New York, where the girls are beautiful and unusually blonde, but winds up on the African veldt, where the lions are plentiful and unusually hungry.

As might be suspected, a girl is the romantic cause of MacLean's hectic activity. He first sees her in a New York office building, but she starts on a trip round-the-world before he can get acquainted. When he does catch up with her in Africa, the meeting proves to be somewhat inopportune, as he is minus his trousers at the moment. To hide his embarrassment MacLean dons a pair of Scotch kilts, but his laughable efforts to live up to his disguise only involve him in further complications.

But the crowning blow comes when he joins a "cat" hunting expedition and discovers that the cats are lions.

Constance Howard, a screen newcomer, is the pretty little blonde for whom MacLean braves the unsociable lions.

This picture will be shown on Saturday night, Oct. 15 at the Broadlands opera house.

Wedding of July 5 Secret Till Now

On July 5 last, Miss Madeline Vollborn, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Vollborn, of Arthur, was united in the bonds of marriage to Wm. S. Duncan of Chicago. The ceremony was solemnized in Evanston by Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist church of that city.

The above facts were kept secret until last Saturday, when the groom came to Arthur to claim his happy bride and carry her away to their cozy dove cote in Evanston. Their address will be 735 Hinman Ave., and they will be at home to their friends after October 15.

The bride is a charming and accomplished young woman and a favorite among the young people of the city. She is a graduate of the Burbank, California high school, and has had two years training at the University of Illinois.

The groom is a fine young man, a graduate of the University of Illinois, and an electrical engineer by profession, who is in the employ of Chicago Public Utilities Corporation.

Announcements of the wedding were placed in the mails Monday morning.—Arthur Graphic.

Mother and 5 Tots Abandoned

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 11—Supervisor J. C. Taylor, of Homer, was at the courthouse Monday with Mrs. Ethel B. Barnes and her five children, Eileen, 7; Alice May, 5; Edna Marie, 4; Arlin, Jr. 2; and Susie, 10 months.

When he had left, an information was on file in the county court charging the head of the family, Arlin Barnes with failure to support his children. According to Mrs. Barnes, he is living with a 16-year-old girl in Akron, Ohio.

Mrs. Barnes is absolutely penniless and cannot leave her children to work. During the summer they resided in several towns in the southern part of the state and finally, according to Mrs. Barnes, Barnes became infatuated with a 16-year-old girl and induced her to go to the home of his brother in Akron, O., and has since been working there. Mrs. Barnes and her five little children went to Broadlands where Barnes mother resides, but as she is living only with county assistance, she was unable to do anything for them. Their next move was to Homer where Mrs. Barnes parents Mr. and Mrs. Harold Downs, reside. Mr. and Mrs. Downs are thrifty, but have all they can do to care for themselves. Their home is small and there is not room enough for two families.

The children are almost without clothes. One of them appeared at the courthouse wearing an old pair of rubbers to keep his feet off the cold ground. All were clean, but ragged.

Start Cornstalk Harvest Monday

First harvesting of cornstalks by the Cellulose Products Co., Inc., which is soon to open a plant at Tilton, was started Monday. The site was a 250-acre field of sweet corn, just east of Hoopston, belonging to the Hoopston Canning Company. Harvesting operations probably will be continuous now until the season is over.

Six different ways of harvesting stalks are being tried out, under the supervision of engineers from the plant of the International Harvester company in an effort to determine the most economical system of gathering this raw material from the field.

Earl Harding, development manager, and Harvey Sconce, raw material manager, are on hand to watch the operations. Arrangements have been made with the Hoopston Canning company for the use of tractors, mules and other equipment in the harvesting of the stalks and delivery to the plant at Tilton, where 15 acres have been cleared for storage of baled stalks.

One of the machines being used at Hoopston is a new ensilage cutter, a modification of the machine which is used in eradication of the corn borer. The corn borer machine cuts the stalks and shreds it into tiny bits scattering the bits over the field. The modified machine, minus half of the cutter blades, leaves the pieces about four inches long and throws them into racks. They are transported to a baler press along the road and baled.

Harvesting operations are also to start during the week on the Sconce farm near Sidell.

The Cellulose company called a meeting of farmers in the Ross-ville vicinity Monday night, to explain the plan of purchasing stalks in the field.

Other meetings were scheduled as follows: Tuesday, Catlin; Wednesday, Fairmount; Thursday, Georgetown; Friday, Bismark.

Already 6,000 acres of stalk have been contracted for.

Negro Swallows Dice When Police Make Raid

Birmingham, Ala.—When police descended upon a group of negroes closely grouped around a blanket upon which lay many bills, they thought they were breaking up a dice game. But there were no dice. They searched the men and the room, but found nothing with which gambling might be done. The case was thrown out of court when the defense attorney demanded that the dice be procured. Afterward a grinning negro approached the lawyer and said: "Boss, I swallowed them dice. We always gets little ones that's easy to swallow. Police officials, informed, considered the installation of an X-ray machine.

Chloe and Her Clothes

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

THERE was no doubt that Chloe lacked taste in her choice of clothes. It's true, the lean wolf was prowling about her boarding-house door and poverty was no more conducive to exquisite clothes than it was to good taste in wine.

Still, all the rest of the boarders in the Bohemian group who occupied various rooms in Mrs. Everly's house, agreed that if Chloe could put up a better sartorial appearance, she would most probably land more engagements to sing.

Now among that rather odd but best-hearted group of artists, literary folk and the like, was one whose physical body was chained daily to an office stool in a bank.

It was big Tom Danvers who sighed most heavily as he watched the comings and goings of Chloe in her atrocious dresses and hats. In his mind he was seeing her in the most exquisite of frocks and designing one after the other—each one more lovely than the last.

Being on the best of terms with Mrs. Everly, Tom, in a wild moment of hope, consulted her about a scheme he had.

"Could you get some one to make a frock if I give you the design and material? I want to slip a present into that little Miss Chloe's room—anonymously, of course. You must help me. I know if she will just wear a gown I design she will have a heap of engagements before she knows it."

"Her clothes are awful," admitted Mrs. Everly and fell right into the scheme. "I have a cousin who will do the work. And I think I can talk Miss Chloe into accepting the gift. We'll tell her if she gets this big engagement, which I know she is after, that she can give us a big blow-out."

"I say, you're a peach!" exclaimed young Tom. "I believe if she wears one of my designs she will perhaps be on the road to success for herself as well as—well—I hope some day to give up bank-clerking and launch into artistic work."

"And good luck, my boy," said Mrs. Everly. "Who would sit on a hard bank stool when he could be designing ladies' costumes—I'd like to know?"

So Tom himself purchased the exact material his fancy saw on Chloe and the design he sketched was nothing so much as a cloudy vapor of gray.

And when the costume was made by Mrs. Everly's clever cousin, Tom was more than delighted.

The frock was taken to Chloe's room that evening and laid carefully on the bed. And when Chloe saw it her eyes widened and her lips smiled—she couldn't help admiring it.

It was Mrs. Everly who made up a nice yarn about its origin.

"My cousin had it designed for some actress or other who turned it down when she saw it. You must just be a good girl now and put it on and go down to that big manager. If he doesn't give you the part you want, well—my name's not Everly."

Chloe cried just a little—on the ample shoulder of her kind landlady. "You're too awfully, awfully kind," she quavered. "If I get the part I shall most certainly have your cousin design all my clothes and have her name in big letters on the program."

"You'll be leading us all to success," laughed Mrs. Everly, and in her heart rejoiced that the big Tom Danvers would share in this same success.

So, when Chloe walked out of the boarding house that sunny afternoon, she trod as if on air, for she was looking like a poem of beauty. The frock was a complete and wonderful success.

As she went into the manager's office the big man looked up and his eyes opened wide. Evidently some one had entered his office whom he was going to engage as his leading songster. He felt it in his bones. Anyone who could carry off a frock like that could do any stage justice, and he knew as well that Chloe possessed a voice.

The next evening in the boarding house there was a big party to celebrate Chloe's engagement. She had insisted on Mrs. Everly producing the cousin who had made the frock to which she attributed her success.

Tom Danvers, now that the moment of revelation drew near, became as shy as a great school boy.

Mrs. Everly dragged him forward. "My dear," she said softly into Chloe's ear, "do please be nice to him—he is the designer of that gown and he's suffering now from stage fright."

Chloe blushed, but her heart gave a joyful thump. Could anything so truly wonderful really have happened to her? Day by day she had thought of the big man who occupied the corner table in the dining room and each day had hoped, when her success came, to—well—to be able to join in with the others—just to get acquainted with him.

"Oh, you have all been so very good to me—I hardly know what to say, but I do thank you, and I want you, Mr. Danvers, to design all my costumes for the play—if you will?"

"If I will?" laughed Tom, throwing off his nervousness and looking into Chloe's eyes. "I doubt if you could stop me now."

"And if I know anything," smiled Mrs. Everly, "I don't think she'll want to."

And Tom and Chloe just stood gazing at each other happily.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON FRANCINE'S THRIFT

As Helen settled herself in Aunt Emmy's big chair she said: "Jack Hunt has bought the Briggs place. I never was so astonished in my life. Jack didn't have a dollar when he married Francine and now he's bought a house."
"Well, my dear, it's not so surprising to me. Francine is responsible for their prosperity."
"Why, Aunt Emmy, I thought she was awfully frivolous. I remember how disappointed I was when Jack married her. She seemed entirely too pretty and too well dressed to be a good wife. When I dined at their house I thought she was frightfully extravagant about her table. She must have paid her cook a lot to have the food she served."
Aunt Emmy smiled. "I liked Francine from the first," she said. "She and I became good friends. She told me how worried she was because Jack did not seem to think of the future and never tried to save money. Everything about housekeeping was so new to her that she was glad to come to me with her little problems. I advised her to save regularly, no matter how hard it might be. She coaxed Jack to open an account at the bank for her household money. He thought it was silly because they had so little. She said she could keep more accurate accounts if she had a bank account. He said they didn't have enough to keep track of. She insisted she wanted to learn to keep accounts. Then, when they got rich, she'd know how."
"I don't need to tell you how they prospered. Three of the sweetest children in the world, and now a house! Jack is proud as he can be."
"Yes," interrupted Helen, "but how did she do it?"
"The very first week after she started her checking account at the bank she took the money she saved and opened a savings account in the thrift department, where she got interest on her savings. You see, she was determined to save at least 10 per cent of her income. She saved steadily. She asked me to help her plan things out and together we worked out a budget, so she could divide her income to meet her expenses. When her plan was working well she told Jack."
"He was tickled to death. Then he began to save too. Francine wanted a real home. They saved for that. They have been married six years now and they haven't a debt in the world. That excellent food, my dear, was all prepared by Francine herself, just as her pretty clothes are made by her from remnants and odds and ends she picks up at bargain prices."—A. B. Aymes.

THE "GET-RICH-QUICK EXPRESS"

By W. R. MOREHOUSE
Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association

SO many millions of people have been defrauded out of their savings that it is the most natural thing for them to assume that the failure of any company in which they have stock is due to dishonest manipulations within the company.

W. R. MOREHOUSE

The facts are that many companies go on the rocks financially due to mismanagement and poor judgment and without any intent on the part of those in charge to defraud the stockholders.

Because men of good moral character organize a company for the purpose of engaging in some business enterprise is no assurance in itself that the business will succeed. Good intentions are one thing and business ability another, and usually unless there is plenty of business ability the business fails.

Before you invest in any new enterprise you should not only satisfy yourself as to the integrity of the managers but you should be certain that they have the experience, the technical knowledge and the ability to make the business a success.

What I am seeking to emphasize is the importance of making a thorough investigation before you draw your savings from the bank and entrust them in the hands of persons who may lose them, not through dishonesty but through poor business judgment.

Too many inexperienced investors rely on hearsay and on information too general to be at all adequate, when it comes to parting with their cash. So I say, make it a rule always to go to the bottom of every investment, and as it costs nothing to consult your banker, or the local Better Business Bureau, or the National Better Business Bureau, New York City, leave no stone unturned in order that you get the facts.

If you find that the organizers are trying to avoid an investigation, take that as a tip for making a most searching investigation.

In making investments a hasty investigation, or a superficial investigation is a most dangerous thing. To get the facts about an investment you usually have to dig deep and wide, and no rush investigation permits you to do this. Promoters of the worst type often welcome a hasty investigation, knowing that it does not give the investor sufficient time to get below the beautifully camouflaged surface finish with which they have so adroitly clothed their fake stock.

The road to happiness and contentment lies along the route to safe investment, the road made safe by the slogan, "Investigate Before You Invest."

At no point does this safe road run parallel, cross or form a junction with the route carrying the "Get-rich-quick Express." And although the safe route is devoid of thrills and the excitement peculiar to the other route, it is also devoid of its worries, heart aches and disappointments.

Although the safe investment route makes no rash promises of "independence for life," or "a million a minute," and although it does not use the slogan, "Ride along with us to Fortune and Live in Ease and Comfort in your Old Age," it actually brings comfort, independence and happiness to those who travel it, while the other route leads to despair, grudgery and poverty.

According to a certain survey of investments sold to the public by irresponsible promoters 97 per cent proved to be a total loss, notwithstanding they were sold with the assurance that they would bring financial independence for life.

Of new promotions sold to the public in a certain city more than 50 per cent were doomed to failure from the beginning for they were waterlogged with too much free promotion stock given to the organizers. It is said of most all promotions 85 per cent are doomed to failure before a share of stock is actually sold.

So I repeat, you cannot afford to take the "Get-rich-quick Express," for she's headed for the ditch.

EDUCATORS FAVOR MUSIC EXTENSION

N. E. A. Favors Placing Music Alongside Three R's in Curriculum.

Elkhart, Ind.—It is only a matter of a short time when music will take its place alongside the three R's and other basic subjects in the American public school, it is predicted by J. F. Boyer, supervisor of the Conn Music Center here. Mr. Boyer bases his prediction largely on the action of the National Education Association at its recent Dallas convention in going on record for this change with the following resolution:

"The significant place given to music on the program of the Department of Superintendence at Dallas, and the intense interest manifested in the discussion group devoted to music education, indicates the desirability of some statement by the Department of Superintendence. We therefore resolve:

"1. That we favor the inclusion of music in the curriculum on an equality with the other basic subjects. We believe that with the growing complexity of civilization more attention must be given to the arts, and that music offers possibilities, as yet but partially realized, for developing an appreciation of the finer things of life. We, therefore, recommend that all administrative officers take steps toward a more equitable adjustment of music in the educational program, involving: Time allotment; number and standard of teachers; equipment provided.

J. F. BOYER

Music in Rural Schools.

"2. That we favor an immediate extension of music study to all rural schools, in the belief that no single development will so greatly increase the effectiveness of their work and so greatly lessen the extreme differences now existing between rural and urban education. We recommend as a guide the "Course of Study for Music in the Rural Schools" approved by the Music Supervisors' National Conference.

"3. That we believe an adequate program of high school music instruction should include credit, equivalent to that given to other basic subjects, for properly supervised music study carried on both in and out of the school; moreover, the recognition of music by the high schools as a subject bearing credit toward graduation should carry with it similar recognition of its value by colleges and other institutions of higher education. We recommend further that the Department of Superintendence favor a study of present practices as to music credits.

"4. That, recognizing the great interest manifested at this meeting toward making music a more vital element in education, we recommend that this subject shall continue to receive the attention of the Department of Superintendence and be included in the discussion groups of its annual program."

Every Member of This Family Is a Musician

A truly musical family is that of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Kenneth Pfohl of Winston-Salem, N. C., says the Conn Music Center. From the father and mother down to little Douglas, every member of this family of eight excels in some one musical instrument.

Mrs. Pfohl plays the piano, Mr. Pfohl the flute. The children contribute violin, viola, cello, trumpet, harp and drum. They have solemnly promised one another that they will never, never get too grown-up to make music together.

"The Pfohl family is always in demand for concerts. They all play one solo each and give several ensemble numbers. Their solos are always memorized so that they will not have too much music to carry. Expert packing is necessary to get eight people, with their instruments, music and music racks into one seven-passenger car."

Mrs. Pfohl studied music under Dean Shirley at Salem college, North Carolina, and after her marriage, continued to practice, no matter what happened. She has been organist in her husband's church for five years.

Irate Patron—Here, waiter. You've spilt soup on my coat.
Waiter—Never mind, sir! It won't leave a grease spot.

Did you ever catch your husband flirting?
Once.
What did you do?
Married him.

There's something wrong with these rabbits you sold me. They have the hiccoughs.
My dear sir, they are Belchin' hares.

Authority: Say, young man, I can't let you on the train in your present condition.
Stewed: 'Sall right, I just want to kiss the engine good-bye.

A little girl left in charge of her tiny brother called out: Mother, wont you please speak to baby? He's sitting on the fly paper, and there are lots of flies waiting to get on.

Beau (waiting) Your sister is a long time making her appearance.
Bobby: Well, she'd be a sight if she came down without making it.

Grover: I sent a dollar to a firm for a cure for my horse that slobbers.
Salesman: What did you get?
Grover: A slip of paper on which was written: Teach him to spit.

I say, old bean, what's the difference between 'abstract' and 'concrete'?

Burpo: Well, when my wife promises to make a cake, that's abstract; when she makes one, it's concrete.

Are you here for manslaughter? the warden asked a prisoner.
No, sir.
Aren't you? This card says you are here for manslaughter.
Yeah, that's what that fool

judge said, but I told him twice it was a woman I croaked.

Did you give your penny to the Sunday school, Robert? asked the fond mother.
No, ma'am, I lost it.
What! Lost another one? That makes three Sundays straight you've lost your penny.
Yes, but if I keep it up I'll win 'em back. That kid's luck can't last forever.

The glib insurance agent had persuaded Rastus to undergo a physical examination. All went well until the doctor started to fill out the personal question blank.
Do you use wine, spirits or male liquors? he asked.
Ah knowed it! Ah knowed it! exclaimed Rastus, jumping for the door, clutching his collar and tie. Ah 'spected all de time you wuz prohibition agents!

Pat was taking Professor Jones down the river in a rowboat.
Pat, said the professor, have you ever studied zoology?
No, said Pat, I don't know nothing about it.
Well you've missed half your life, replied the professor.
Just then the boat hit a snag and upset.
Hey, Professor, yelled Pat, do you know anything about swimminology?
No, gasped the professor.
Then in a few minutes you're gonna miss your whole life, cried Pat, as he struck out for shore.

Look For The Red "O. K." Tag

After we have thoroughly reconditioned a used car, we attach a red "O. K." tag to the radiator cap.

This tag certifies that the vital units of the car have been gone over completely by expert mechanics and put in condition to give thousands of miles of additional service. It takes all the "guess-work" out of used car buying.

Look for this tag when you buy a used car—for it is your guarantee of quality and value!
