Come and hear this man of God. We owe it to ourselves, our families, and our town to make the very best out of life. The only way to make the best out of life is to let Jesus rule in our lives. God gave us his very best, therefore we owe him our best, our time, our talent, our all. Unsaved people this meeting is for you. Come and take advantage of this opportunity. God needs you and you need God.

The old year is gone and the new year has begun. We are three hundred and sixty-five days nearer eternity than we were one year ago. Are we any nearer to God? If not we are farther away from him.

Paul said "Now is the accepted time." Why not hear him now?

Hired Hands on the Farm and in Town

Farmers have a hired man in this bank the same as they do in the country. He doesn't pitch hay and husk corn but he does do a lot of chores. He is often underpaid; frequently abused.

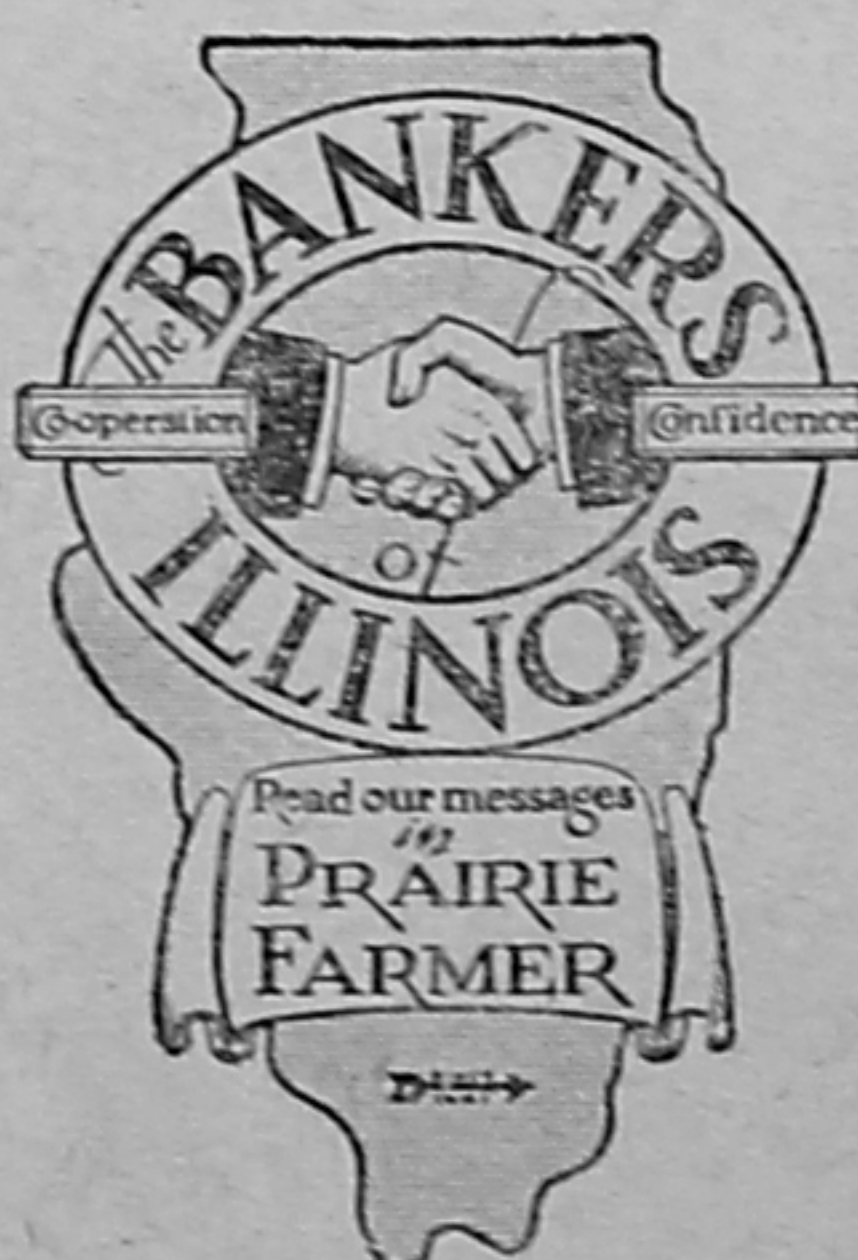

This hired man is your checking account. It costs money for him to live—paper, postage, supplies, monthly statements, bookkeeping, besides a lot of overhead costs. Here is what he does: Keeps your books, protects your funds, furnishes receipts for your transactions and a lot of general utility work. He does all this in return for the use of your money. Now if you only leave him with a few dollars balance, how can he get along.

Look upon your checking account as a workman worthy of his hire.

1928 Models Are Faster

This is an age of speed. Every make of automobile now going on the market for 1928 is faster than before. It is faster for ordinary use, not just for test purposes. The automobile manufacturers have met the demand for swifter machines. But unless traffic regulations are strictly observed, 1928 is likely to see an unprecedented number of lives sacrificed on the altar to the gods of speed.

The situation calls for a tightening up on the part of those responsible for the enforcement of speed laws. Pedestrians and motorists alike must be forced to obey the laws or be punished. It is better to suffer mildly than to die.

If both motorists and pedestrians obey the rules, many lives will be saved and nobody will be really inconvenienced. And if everybody obeys the regulations, traffic will move faster, too. Don't take a chance it may be your last one.

Pay Your Grocer First

When you pay your bills give your grocer first money. He supplies you with the most necessary thing in life—food.

The most important thing in the world is to get something to eat.

If you must put off paying any one, therefore, let it be anyone but the grocer.

He is not wealthy. He seldom has a surplus in the bank. His money is all invested in merchandise and accounts.

He buys of wholesale houses who sell on stated terms and have experts who are paid to get the money when due. He cannot pay them with excuses.

He cannot afford collection expenses. He should not be expected to. If he is courteous enough to give you credit, show him equal courtesy by paying promptly and without making him extra expense.

He has no security. What you buy of him is soon consumed and he cannot get it back. He trusts you on your honor alone. Who else does as much for you?

He asks no favors—needs no charity, but is entitled to a square deal.

Dividend Letter of the
Central Illinois Public Service Company

SPRINGFIELD

DIVIDEND LETTER OF THE

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS:

During the last quarter your company had a net increase of 2,738 electric customers, adding to its lines 2,799 kilowatts in lighting and 967 kilowatts in power. In addition power contracts were secured aggregating 493 kilowatts.

New electric franchises and/or street lighting contracts having been granted your company by twenty-two communities in the territory served. The Company also secured contracts covering the power requirements for the Menzies Shoe Company at Carbondale and the Illinois Electric Porcelain Company at Macomb, covering more complete electrification of that company's plant. Wholesale power contracts were also secured covering electric service to six coal mines and to the Illinois Central Railroad Shops at Carbondale.

During the last quarter your company completed a 33,000-volt transmission line extending from Gibson City to Forrest. This transmission line forms a loop in the Division P territory and provides material improvement in service to all customers in the western part of that division. The transmission line extending from Havana to Forrest City was also completed, enabling the Company to supply transmission line service to Bishop, Topeka and Forrest City.

During the last quarter your company completed the installation of an electric switching station at Hoopston, equipped with circuit breakers on the 33,000-volt transmission lines extending to Watska and Paxton. This equipment was installed to improve service in that territory. Work is nearing completion on a truck type switch board at Quincy governing all local distribution feeder lines. Work is progressing rapidly on changing the old steam driven ice plants at Anna and Lincoln to electric driven fresh water installations. Work of removing the old equipment and the necessary building changes is being rushed to completion so that the manufacture of Cipso ice may be started in these plants promptly for the 1928 season.

CENTRAL ILLINOIS PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY

Electric light and power companies are custodians of the savings of millions of people. The investor's willingness to put his money in the business is the very foundation of this growing industry, in which an average of five dollars must be invested in facilities for each dollar of annual gross revenue.

When economical transmission of electricity over broad areas was made technically possible it opened up an era of construction and consolidation of electric facilities outside of the large cities, a period of building widespread efficient systems in non-metropolitan areas to replace inadequate local plants in small towns and to serve rural sections for the first time.

The public utility investment company represents equally the investor whose savings it puts to constructive use and the customer whose electric service it provides by assembling the capital with which to construct the necessary facilities. Between these two, investor and customer, it has established an identity of interest. Earned confidence and soundness of investment have enlisted millions of investors and thus assured that ready flow of capital necessary to the ample, economical and expanding electric service upon which the new industrial and social life of the nation is builded.

On the last page of this folder is an interior picture of the Marion office opened during the past quarter. The new Marion office building is equipped with the latest modern and complete lighting equipment, display fixtures and counters for the convenience and comfort of the Company's customers. The first floor of this building is used for the service of the Company's customers in Marion, while the second floor is used for the headquarters of Division C.

Respectfully yours,
CENTRAL ILLINOIS PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY
 Springfield, Illinois. January 14, 1928.

Danville Has Cowless Dairy

Danville, Ill., Jan. 7—T. W. Conron of Danville operates a certified dairy farm upon which there are no cows and gets fifty cents a quart for his milk.

Whooping cough, followed in rapid succession by measles, scarlet fever, and kidney trouble, was the necessity which led to establishment of Mr. Conron's dairy farm, populated by goats. His young son was the sufferer, and the disease had left him in such a weakened condition that he was sent to California to recuperate.

While there, he was fed on goat's milk, and improved rapidly. His father decided to buy goat's milk for him when he came home—but he could find no goats. So the goat farm was established.

On the Conron farm, about 200 goats of all ages and descriptions are kept. The Saneen breed predominates, although there are a few Toggenburgs and Nubians.

At milking time, the forty or more milking does are lined up in stanchions on raised platforms so the milkers can get at them better. Each doe produces an average of two quarts a day at a cost of 12 cents a day. Instead of tin cans for roughage, they get the best of dairy rations, similar to those fed cows. Some does give as high as eight to ten quarts a day.

Conron's farm is the principal producer of goat's milk for the Chicago market. Practically all of it goes to children and invalids. Goat's milk has the quality of being readily digested and hence is in demand for infants.

Physicians say that goats milk will agree with babies when all other foods fail. It is claimed that babies will digest the milk in twenty minutes, whereas it takes two hours to digest cow's milk.

Another quality claimed for the milk is that it is free from tuberculosis.

While the goat industry is well built up in California and other western states, a goat farm is rather unusual for the corn belt.

Lousy With Hams

A young wife went into a grocery shop and said: I bought three or four hams here a month or so ago, and they were fine. Have you any more of them?

Yes, ma'am, replied the grocer, there are ten of those hams hanging up there now.

Well, if they're off the same pig, I'll take three of them, said the customer.

Low Bridge

She: Is it dangerous to drive with one hand?

You bet. More than one fellow has run into a church doing it.

Lure For Victims

Grocer: Here's your fly paper. Anything else?

Rastus: Yassuh, Ah wants six raisins.

Grocer: Do you mean six pounds?

Rastus: Nah, suh. 'Bout six raisins—jes' enough fo' decoys.

Thirty-Day Deposit

Judge: What is your occupation, Rastus?

Rastus: Judge, I ain't got none. I jist circulates around.

Judge: Withdraw from circulation for 30 days. Next case.

My Project Story

Upon entering the Longview High school for the third year I was puzzled as to what subjects I should take. The agriculture course had been placed in the school for the first time and I didn't know whether to take it or not because I had planned to go to University after graduating from High School and I wanted to take all the required subjects. With the advice of the Principal I chose to take Animal Husbandry which would give me one and a half credits.

The instructor of the Agricultural course told us we would have to carry on a project and we could have our choice as to what we select. This was rather broad because there were several projects which we could take and the question arose as to which I would rather select and which one I could handle the easiest. With the aid of my father I chose to feed three steers for beef production. I had two steers to start with but I had to buy the third steer. I bought a steer weighing four hundred and fifty pounds for seven cents a pound. The other two calves were smaller, one weighing four hundred and thirty pounds, the other, three hundred and ten pounds. I started feeding these calves on November the first but they would eat only a small amount of grain for the first month. I kept them on pasture for thirty days and then kept them in on dry lot. I fed a ration consisting of corn, oats and alfalfa hay. The calves seemed to be very slow in getting on full feed, and therefore for the first sixty days the calves made a small gain. I added Fatena to the ration as it was recommended for cattle feeding. I fed ear corn at first and then decided to change and feed shelled corn. The calves seemed to relish the alfalfa hay but to my disappointment the supply was not large enough and I had to feed clover hay instead of the alfalfa hay. The calves seemed to be disappointed also for they wouldn't eat very much clover hay. I kept feeding small quantities twice a day until they learned to like it. The calves seemed to make smaller gains after I started feeding the clover hay.

The calves seemed wild and it was hard to weigh them so one day I decided it was time for us to become friends and I lassoed them and tied them up. I took the clippers and trimmed the shaggy hair on their head and back. I spent a half day working with them and they seemed to get tame all at once. After that I could handle the calves and work with them any time I wished. I thought that I had now accomplished one great problem. I weighed the calves about every thirty days in order that I might keep record of their gains. My project was to end in six months but I didn't think the calves were ready to market so I fed them another month. The calves did real well the last thirty days as they seemed to eat more feed and took on a lot more flesh. The largest calf was in real good shape at the end of seven months while the other two were just in fair condition. I was offered nine cents for the calves at home but I didn't think this was enough money so I shipped them to Chicago through the shipping association. The returns came in three or four days but were by no means satisfactory. The oldest calf brought nine and three quarters cents a pound while the other two only brought eight and one half cents a pound. I would have been better off financially if I had sold them at home for nine cents. After I figured up my expenses I found that I just about broke even on my project.

As this was my first experience in project work I feel that I could do much better the next time. I liked the project work and was glad that I took the calves for my project and hope that I will derive a great deal of benefit from the work and also from the agricultural course.

Won His Point

Little Willie questioned his grandmother with an appearance of great seriousness: Ain't Rotterdam the name of a city Gramma? Don't say ain't, Willie, the old lady corrected. Yes, Rotterdam is the name of a city, why? It ain't swearin' to say it, is it, Gramma? Don't say ain't Willie. No it isn't swearing to say Rotterdam, why? Cause if sister keeps on eatin' so much candy she'll Rotterdam head off.

Fifty-Fifty

They had only been married a week and were still away on their honeymoon, that disastrous time of awakening for both.

Now, that she, is the time to make my confession.

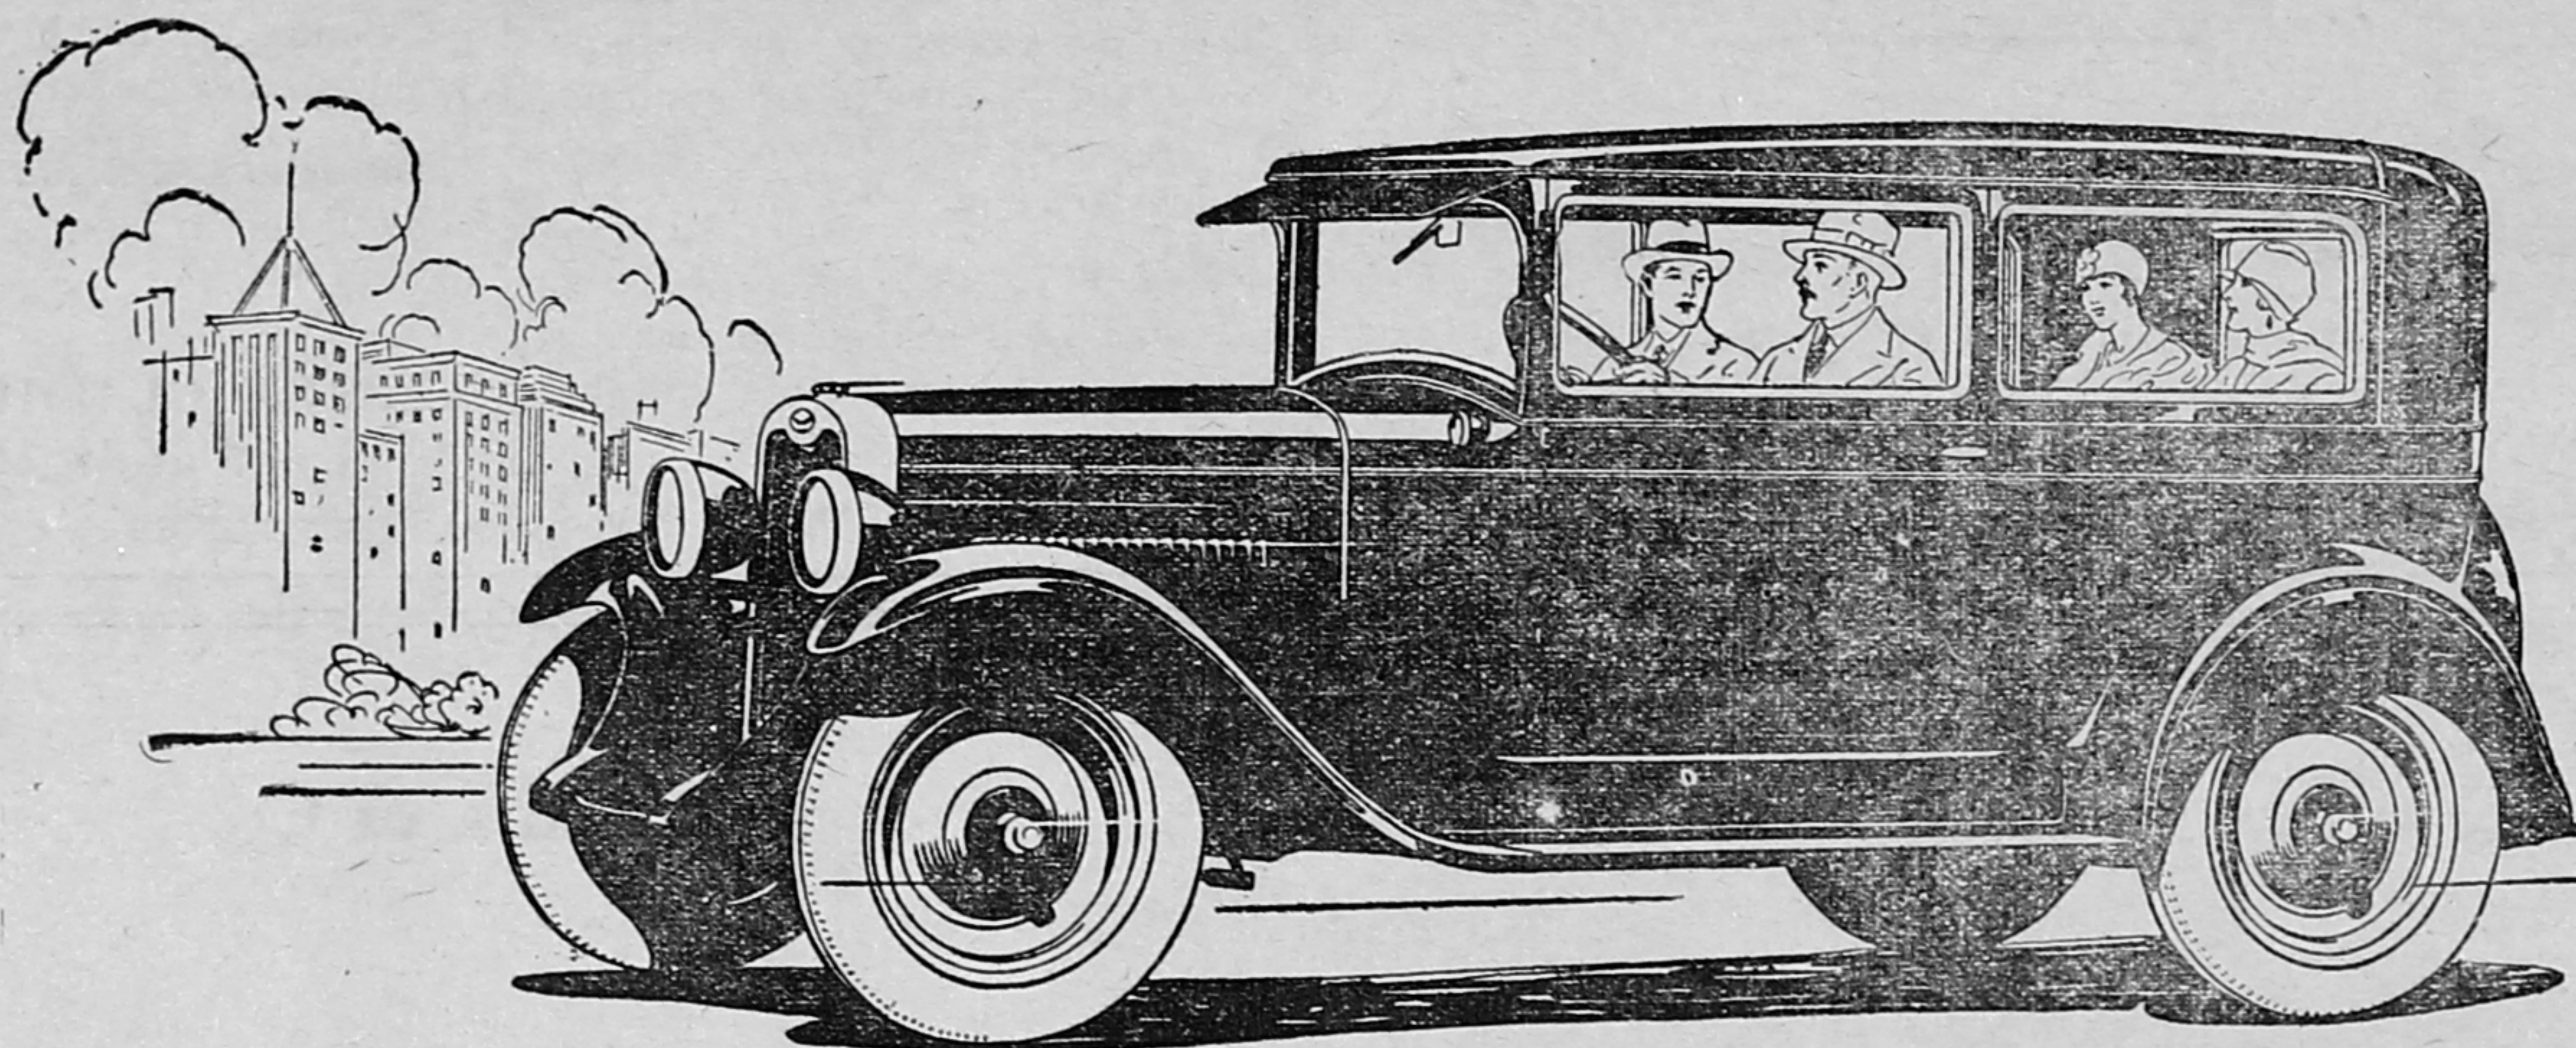

Darling I have a secret to tell she whispered, nestling closer against his shoulder.

What is it dear? he demanded. Can you ever forgive me for deceiving you, dearest? My left eye is made of glass.

Oh, he murmured with a sigh of relief, don't say any more about it, dearest. So are the diamonds in your engagement ring.
