Small Enters Race For Third Term

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 8.—Governor Len Small today announced that he would be a candidate for governor at the Republican primaries April 10, 1928. His platform in full, follows:

America first, no foreign entanglements.

Illinois first in prosperity, human progress and humane government.

Early completion of the lakes to the gulf waterway.

Federal government, permanent flood control of the Mississippi river and its tributaries.

Permanent farm relief.

Government by the people thru direct primaries.

Completion during the next five years of Illinois paved road system, consisting of over 12,000 miles of pavement, connecting every city and village, paid for by the users of the roads without one cent of direct taxation.

Home rule for Chicago in the management and control of its traction and transportation problems, with full power to negotiate franchises, subject to the approval of a majority vote of the people of that city.

An honest, economical, constructive and humane administration for the people of our state.

Full, free and equal rights of Illinois as a sovereign state of the union.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—An operation which severed Siamese twins and permitted one to live was revealed here today.

The twins were born on February 1, to Mrs. Frank Keller, in a farm cottage near Marseilles, Ill. Dr. Paul E. Clark, who attended the birth said they were joined together in the lower part of the abdomen, in such manner that the same blood stream ran through both bodies.

One child apparently was normal but the other showed no sign of life, except the blood circulation. Inasmuch as the circulation came from the heart of the other baby, Dr. Clark decided that an immediate operation was the only hope for the normal child.

The conjoined twins were rushed to Rayburn hospital in Ottawa. Dr. J. H. Edgecomb, a specialist, was called. He agreed with Dr. Clark that an operation was necessary. Ether was administered to the baby and the connecting link of flesh severed.

The baby was given eight hours to combat the effects of the ether. Finally little Meta Keller stirred, and in a few hours was being taken back to her mother and now is reported showing the natural development of a normal baby.

No Dull Moments At Picture Show

In the future there will be no more dull moments at the movie shows at the Broadlands Opera House, as the managers have purchased another fine picture machine, which will be installed soon. The addition of the new machine with the good equipment the Legion boys already have on hands will enable them to run a continuous show which will no doubt meet with the hearty approbation of the patrons of the movies.

Lincoln An Educated Man

One of the best educated men this country has produced was Abraham Lincoln. This statement may surprise some, who think of him as unschooled. To them the Gettysburg address is a miracle. But in reality that exquisite piece of literature is no miracle. Like most works of genius that beautifully constructed composition is the result of years of self-schooling, study, practice, and discipline.

The boyhood studies of Lincoln were of a fundamental character. It included the Bible, Pilgrims Progress, Aesop's Fables, Robinson Crusoe, Weem's Life of Washington, later Ramsay's Washington, arithmetic, a history of the United States, the revised statutes of Indiana, and Lindley Murray's English Reader. Of the last mentioned book, Lincoln once said to his partner, "It is the best book ever put in the hands of American youth."

With this educational preparation the boy Lincoln started his career as a young man at New Salem, Illinois, and there attracted the interest of three remarkable men, Mentor Graham, the schoolmaster who directed his reading for many years; Jack Kelso, a student and philosopher; and John Allen, a college-bred gentleman and scholar, whose well chosen library was placed at Lincoln's disposal. Lincoln's real education began here, based on the fundamentals just enumerated.

For six years thereafter, while he was clerking in a general store and later as proprietor of his own store at New Salem, he studied diligently and systematically. Under the tutelage of Mentor Graham, he mastered Kirkham's grammar, Blair's rhetoric, and studied surveying. From Jack Kelso he learned to appreciate literature and philosophy, and by him was introduced to the works of Shakespeare, Burns, Byron, Hood and many others. He studied law and read a mass of material on the slavery question, pro and con. All that he read was well chosen and thoughtfully digested.

It was such study as this, continued through life, and not a miracle, which made Lincoln a master of the English language, and a leader among the scholars of his time. It was the correlation of study with experience and reflection, never stopping but always seeking, which gave him his great understanding of human nature and human affairs.

Lincoln was not a miracle. He was a development. Most people who succeed at what they are trying to do are developments. If they keep on succeeding they must keep on developing. They must treat every experience which comes to them as an apprenticeship for an experience more difficult and more worthy of their mettle.

Destroy Your Old License Plates

Destroy your old license plates or place them under lock and key is the warning issued by J. H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor Club.

Every year at this time, police records disclose that some serious crimes and numerous automobile thefts are committed by criminals using cars disguised with last year's license plates. A criminal may easily elude identification by the use of old license plates which have been cast into the alley on the rubbish pile. In the interests of the community, motorists should take every precaution to prevent thieves from getting 1927 license plates.

Strong on Common Sense

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

"HE MAY succeed in accumulating a fortune; but he has not done it yet," said Mr. Marshall Welden. He was speaking of Edwin Porter, who was in love with his youngest daughter, Cynthia; and he was speaking to his eldest daughter, Maria, spinster, aged forty, who presided over his household. Maria was the child of his early marriage as Cynthia had been the child of his later days.

"Of course, father," replied Maria, "you are quite right. A marriage now between Porter and Cynthia would be most imprudent. And yet it's a pity, too—isn't it? They do seem to be so much in love with each other. If they had any common sense—which they haven't, being in love—they would see the matter in the same light that we do."

"I will have a talk with Cynthia," said Mr. Welden.

Mr. Welden had a talk with Cynthia. It was a long talk and it left her in tears. He had not spoken harshly to her—had not been dictatorial—but he had appealed to the girl's sense of duty and aroused her filial emotions. He had no other object than his daughter's welfare—as he saw it. He had watched the growing affection between Cynthia and Edwin with growing uneasiness. He felt that the time had now come to act. After his consultation with Maria he was sure of it. Maria had said that common sense forbade the marriage. Maria was strong on common sense—the phrase was continually on her lips, and her father was accustomed to receive it as an oracular utterance not to be denied.

And that was Edwin's evening for calling. Cynthia received him sadly, pensively and sweetly.

"Edwin," said she, in reply to his protestations of love and pleadings for an immediate marriage, "Edwin, I feel for you what I have never felt for another—or ever shall. But our love is not all; there are other loves; such as the love of a father for his child, of a child for her father, a sister for a sister."

"Your father has been talking to you," cried Edwin, "and has forbidden our marriage. I see."

"He has pointed out to me my duty," replied Cynthia.

"Oh, he has?" said Edwin rather petulantly. "The whole of the matter is he doesn't think I have money enough. If I had a few millions he would point out to you just as clearly that it was your bounden duty to marry me—whether you wanted to or not. Come, now—if you really love me as you say you do let us go right off on our own hook and get married. You are of age and so am I. Your first duty is to the man you love and who loves you. What do you say?"

Edwin, you perceive, was a bold wooer who believed in taking citadels by storm. In the bosom of Cynthia there was a fierce struggle going on between her love for Edwin and her affection for, and her sense of duty to, her father. When a few more of his pleadings had been met by Cynthia with highly edifying discourse upon the relations between parent and child he grabbed his hat and went away in something very like a huff. When he got home and had cooled down he thought the whole matter over calmly—and before going to bed wrote Cynthia a letter.

Now Miss Maria Welden had more than her share of curiosity—and was not above resorting to dubious means to gratify it. While outwardly scorning romance as opposed to her favorite hankering after it—there had been so little of it in her life! She was desperately anxious to know what Edwin and Cynthia would say to each other when Cynthia told him of her father's decision and, against all ethical considerations, hid in the back parlor to hear.

The next morning she told her father: "I accidentally happened to hear a part of the interview between Cynthia and Mr. Porter last night—and I must say Cynthia showed a lot of common sense."

"I thought she would," said Welden.

And Maria gave him an outline of the lovers' conversation. Shortly after Cynthia came rushing in to her sister with a letter in her hand. "Oh, Maria," she sobbed, "Edwin can't love me or he would not give up like this." In the letter Edwin had said that he had come to realize that he had been selfish in asking Cynthia to give up the luxury and affection which surrounded her in her present home to share his struggles and poverty. He would always love her, and some time, perhaps, if her heart remained the same—and that sort of thing.

Maria took the letter and marched straight to her father, who was at work in his study. "Cynthia showed a lot of common sense last night," said she, "and here is a letter from Edwin Porter which is also common sense."

"Very much so," said Welden, after reading the letter.

"And now," went on Maria, "since they have both displayed so much common sense in this affair why not let them be married if they want to?"

"Just as you think best, Maria," replied Welden, "you always take a common sense view of things. I guess I have got enough money to set them up housekeeping."

Lesson for February 12

JESUS PICTURES THE KINGDOM OF GOD

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:14,15; 4:1-34.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How God's Kingdom Grows.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God's Kingdom Grows.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Kingdom Grows.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Growing Kingdom of God.

I. Jesus Preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God (Mark 1:14, 15).
1. The time.

After the voice of John the Baptist was stilled because of his imprisonment, Jesus took up the message.

2. What He preached.

It was the gospel of the kingdom of God. Since "gospel" means "good news," the good news which He preached was that Christ had come to establish His kingdom.

3. How He preached.

He said, "Repent, for the kingdom is at hand." The King was then ready to set up His kingdom if the Jews would receive Him.

II. Jesus Pictures Four Classes of Hearers (Mark 4:1-20).

1. The place—the seaside—(v. 1).

He was obliged to enter a boat to escape the pressure of the crowd.

2. Why He taught in parables (vv. 9-12).

It was not until the rulers had set their hearts against Him that He employed the parabolic method.

3. The parable of the four kinds of ground (vv. 3-8; 13-20).

Observe that the seed and the sower are the same in all these instances, but the results are entirely different, determined by the condition of the soil.

(1) The Wayside (vv. 14, 15).

The wayside means the track beaten by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by fowls, which represent the agents of Satan (v. 15).

(2) The stony ground (vv. 5, 6, 16, 17).

Stony ground means stones with a thin layer of soil upon them. Under such conditions the seed springs up quickly and is soon scorched because it has not much depth.

(3) The thorny ground (vv. 7, 18, 19).

In this case the ground is good, but has thorns in it. It is mellow and has depth, but has not been cleaned of the thorns. The thorny ground hearers of this age are: (a) Those who are so immersed in worldliness, business and anxious care that the good seed cannot mature; (b) those who are rich. The effect of riches is often to blind the spiritual perceptions; (c) those who are running after the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word.

4. The good ground (vv. 8, 20).

This ground differs from all the rest. It is soft and mellow, deep and moist, therefore is capable of bringing forth fruit in varying degrees of abundance.

III. Jesus Pictures the Growth of the Kingdom (Mark 4:21-34).

1. The parable of the candle (vv. 21-25).

The bushel stands for the cares and material things of life, and the bed for ease and comfort.

2. The parable of the growing grain (vv. 26-29).

(1) The attitude of mind of the gospel preacher (vv. 26, 27).

He should with the utmost fidelity cast seed into the ground, preach the Word, and leave results to God.

(2) The processes of the spiritual life are gradual (v. 28). It is "first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear."

(3) The consummation of the spiritual process (v. 29).

Despite the difficulty under which sowing is done, we can be assured of a harvest time.

3.—The parable of the mustard seed (vv. 30-34).

(1) The unimportant beginning (v. 31).

2) Its vigorous growth (v. 32).

The greatest power on earth today is that which had its inception in the preaching of the gospel.

(3) Its lodging capacity (v. 32).

The birds which lodge in the branches represent the children of the evil one who find protection and food in that which was inaugurated by Jesus Christ.

Hume Farmer Is Crushed By Horse

Hume, Feb. 6—Everett White, 34, father of several small children, was crushed to death at 10 o'clock this morning on his rented farm north of here, when he was caught by a horse against the side of a barn. Death was almost instantaneous.

Just how the horse came to pin his owner to the wall will probably never be explained, inasmuch as White, after screaming, never regained consciousness.

He is survived by his wife and children.

Brocton Scene Of Fatal Row

Brocton, Ill., Feb. 6—On recommendation of a coroner's jury Ernest Gardner, 20, of this place, was held in jail in Paris today pending further investigation of the fight between Gardner and Clarence D. Ford, Brocton restaurant proprietor, in which Ford suffered fatal injuries, early Monday.

Gardner went into Ford's restaurant about 1:30 a. m. He became boisterous. Ford ordered him to get out and he declined to go. Ford went around the counter to put Gardner out and Gardner struck him. Ford then pushed Gardner out the door. On the sidewalk, Gardner struck Ford and knocked him down. Ford's head struck the edge of a bread box. He got up and was knocked to his knees again. Gardner was pummeling Ford when others interfered.

Ford died 10 minutes after he had been carried into his restaurant.

Meanwhile, Gardner not knowing Ford had died, went home and went to bed.

Neither Ford nor Gardner was married.

Helps For Bird Study
Are Now Available

New York City, Feb. 6—Beautifully colored pictures of birds, leaflets, bird pins and outline drawings on paper suitable for crayon or water color work are now available in large quantities for teachers and children of Illinois.

This offer made by the National Association of Audubon Societies renders it possible for young people to secure authentic literature and pictures of some of our best known wild birds, by the method of forming simple Junior Audubon Clubs in the schools.

Sample of the pictures drawn by America's leading bird artists together with full explanations and plans for teaching bird study will be sent to any teacher or other leader of children's groups upon receipt of request sent to National Association of Audubon Societies, 1974 Broadway, New York City.

Jackie Is Bugle Boy In New Film

A cavalry bugle—a horse—a pet horned toad—these are Jackie Coogan's most prized possessions. The horned toad, discovered on location during the filming of "The Bugle Call," is the new starring vehicle which appears at the Broadlands open house on Saturday night, Feb. 11.

Jackie discovered the horned toad on the plains near Chattanooga, where the company went to film Indian battles in the replica of a frontier fort for the new picture, a vivid historical romance of Indian fighting on the great plains. Jackie caught and tamed the little animal.

Jackie's new picture presents him in a role new to most of his followers—for he's had his haircut and plays a "near-grown-up" part, as he calls it. He appears as a bugle boy in a cavalry post—the son of a troop captain—the thrilling days of 1870 when the cavalry blazed the Bozeman Trail as a pathway to the West. Thrilling battles and other spectacles are a mammoth setting for a delicate story of human heart interest in the new play.

Claire Windsor plays the heroine, and Herbert Rawlinson is seen as Jackie's father, a cavalry captain on the frontier.

Chronic Poisoning Chief Danger From Exhaust Gas

Springfield, Jan. 31st:—The greatest danger from inhaling exhaust gases from motor vehicles is not sudden death but chronic poisoning that may lead to serious pulmonary, neurotic and circulatory complications, according to Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, State Health Director, who points out in a statement issued here today that thousands of employees in commercial garages, patrons and drivers of gasoline buses and closed car passengers are subjected to the deleterious effects of carbon monoxide when adequate ventilation is disregarded. Demands for garage space have resulted in the conversion of storerooms, ware houses and other buildings without ventilating facilities to that purpose while protection from cold has led to the heating of buses and closed cars with exhaust gases. These conditions have complicated modern life with a new hazard that man has never before experienced.

Sudden death from inhaling motor exhaust fumes is apparently on the decline in Illinois but the hazard of chronic poisoning increases year by year, said Dr. Rawlings. Constant breathing of carbon monoxide is unavoidable in commercial garages where engines are constantly running and where ventilation is poor.

Constant breathing of carbon monoxide, as may be the case with mechanics in commercial garages, may result in chronic poisoning which manifests itself in headache, weakness, dizziness and nausea.

Ventilation is the great preventative. Free use of God's free air eliminates danger. Open doors and windows is the simplest way to ventilate but mechanical devices are practicable. Ozone machines that are on the market and have been installed in some places are useless.

Making A Truck

Farmers Jeff Boyd and Butch Struck have been busily engaged in building a truck in Mark Moore's sales room the past week. And talk about a noise. Well, the editor hasn't taken any after dinner naps the past week, thank you.

Local Corn Meeting

Twenty-two corn leaders from thirteen community units attended the county corn leaders meeting at the Farm Bureau office on Friday, Feb. 3. Meetings were scheduled for various townships during February. The plan of the meetings this year will include corn culling and a study of tusarium and gibberella (the corn root rots.)

Lowden Endorsed By 19th District Committee

Frank O. Lowden was endorsed for the Republican nomination as President by the Republican Central Committee of the 19th Congressional district on Thursday, Feb. 2nd. This action followed presentation of a resolution drawn up by the legislative committees of the Farm Bureaus in the 19th Congressional district, which met in the office of the Decatur Farm Bureau the same day.

Champaign County is particularly interested in the outcome of this meeting since it is understood that a good deal of pressure was brought to bear against the nomination of a man sympathetic to agriculture.

The resolution addressed to the chairman of the Republican Central Committee of the 19th Congressional district read:

"We, the Legislative committee of the Farm Bureaus of the 19th Congressional District, comprised of the following counties, respectively, Champaign, Piatt, Douglas, Moultrie, Coles, Dewitt, Macon, Shelby;

In a meeting held in Decatur this morning, Feb. 2, 1928, at the Farm Bureau office, by a delegation from each of the above named counties, in the interest of the farmers, hereby offer and present to the chairman of the Republican Central Committee of the 19th district, the following resolution.

Whereas, We believe in selecting national delegates, the interest of farmers is vitally at stake and at this time the farmers are unusually concerned in the personnel of these delegates; and

Whereas, the farmers of this district are determined that the personnel of the delegates of the 19th Congressional district shall truly reflect the interest of agriculture; and

Whereas, the 19th Congressional district comprises one of, if not the richest agricultural district of Illinois, and that the present condition of the farmers of this district is deplorable and daily growing to a more critical condition;

Therefore be it resolved, That the organization of the Farm Bureaus of the 19th Congressional district respectfully urge, and earnestly request, that in selecting delegates to represent this district, that you will select such delegates that you know have the interest of agriculture at heart.

W. A. Coolley Buys Sheep

Banker W. A. Coolley, who recently purchased a number of fine sheep, has had a great deal of experience with them and has always kept a few on hands. He thinks it pays to raise them as they don't require much attention and are easily kept. In fact Mr. Coolley is so fond of sheep he keeps several of them at his home here in Broadlands.

Broadlands Baby Beef Club Meets

Broadlands Baby Beef club met in the Bank parlor for its regular monthly meeting Saturday afternoon, Feb. 4th. The regular business was conducted including the reading of the minutes and the roll call. The very bad weather kept some away but the attendance was good and several of the parents were present. Directors John Nohren, Herman Struck and John Bahlow of the Shipping Association were present. Mr. Henry Kilian, Jr., manager of the shipping association was present, and gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the history, purpose and plan of work of the Shipping Association. Short talks were also given by Mr. H. E. Wiese, Mr. Henry Kilian, Sr., and Mr. Will Coolley. Kenneth Allen gave a short talk on duties of Directors of Corporations. Mr. Burns, the county farm adviser who has been very efficient in the club work summarized the work of the day and made the main points very plain. The next meeting will be held the first Saturday in March.

Political Maneuvering Causes Some Delay

The Farm Bureau leaders most closely connected with the tax equalization program in Champaign County refuse to shoulder any of the responsibility for any delay in the tax reassessment program. If any delay in the future does occur, tax leaders assert that the entire responsibility will lie with the interests which for political reasons have resisted the Farm Bureau all along, and especially since October 6 last, in their efforts for tax equalization.

The assessors have returned their books and the Board of Review again has the job before them of bringing about equalization between all the different taxing districts. The fact that Champaign is on a general level 34.6% lower than farm lands in the county is one of the major factors in the fight which the Farm Bureau is making to secure equalization. The Rantoul level is 30% below and the Urbana level 16.6% below the level of farm land assessment.

The matter now rests with the Board of Review and their decision will be rendered in a short time whether they will equalize and bring justice in the county.

The Farm Bureau deplores the recent newspaper articles which have appeared regarding the large amount of money that it is alleged will have to be borrowed. Farm Bureau officials regard the talk of borrowing money as part of the propaganda being used to fight the tax equalization program.

Soil Testing Saves Farmers $26,000

At the two day conference of lime-legume leaders of the Champaign County Farm Bureau on Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 30 and 31, it was brought out that approximately $25,921 had been saved to members through testing soil before applying limestone.

Hold Vegetable Gardening School

The Champaign County Farm Bureau held the first vegetable gardening school that ever was held in this county last Tuesday at the Farm Bureau office. The school was organized with the idea of assisting Farm Bureau members to plan better gardens in order that they may be of more value in supplying food for the family and in saving labor.
