Frozen Assets

This is a term that has been used much during the last few years and has probably been little understood. In general a frozen asset is one that cannot be quickly and easily turned into cash. A note may have first class security, but if it runs on and on indefinitely without being paid, it is in a certain sense "frozen." Bank examiners insist that notes be paid off at least once a year. It is a wise thing for a person to plan his finances so he can do this, always maintaining a credit reserve at the bank.

More Power from Cheaper Fuels

Tremendous power, which assures every owner that he will be able to handle his peak loads at rated speed, and that his tractor will not be overloaded for the average work of his farm is developed from cheap, low-grade fuel, costing less than either kerosene or gasoline. Yet Hart-Parr tractors burn kerosene and gasoline as well as they do the cheap, low-grade fuels, and develop as much power from them and use no more of either. Hart-Parr tractors come in three sizes for small, medium, and large farms and are equipped with 3 forward speeds, from 2 1/4 to 4 1/4 miles per hour. See the new line now.

Harold Smith Injured In Automobile Wreck Near Patterson Springs

Tuscola, July 16.—A collision of two automobiles on the east grade of the Rice bridge on Route 121 near Patterson Springs Sunday afternoon attracted a large number of passing motorists who stopped to investigate.

A westbound coupe driven by a young man named Smith of Broadlands, collided with a larger sedan driven by a man named Norris of Rockville, Ind. The left front wheel of the latter was torn off while the left side of the Smith coupe and some of the wheels were torn off. The Norris car was headed north after the collision and a few more feet would have thrown it over the embankment of new earth which is quite high at that place.

Detailed information could not be learned other than that it was said that the Rockville man stated that he was watching workmen at the foot of the high grade and while his attention was distracted for the moment his car swerved to the wrong side of the road, crashing into the Smith coupe.

The impact was sufficient to rip off the side of the coupe and the driver Smith fell out on the pavement receiving injuries that appeared to be serious. The injured man was taken to Newman where he received medical attention.

The Smith mentioned above is Harold Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Smith of this place. We are glad to report that he is recovering from his injuries.

Longview Home Bureau Meets On Tuesday

The Longview Home Bureau met Tuesday afternoon, July 17, at the home of Mrs. H. G. Schumacher, with twenty members and three guests present, besides eleven children.

The response to roll call was "My favorite drink." A vocal duet was rendered by Miss Lillian Bergfield and Mrs. Howard Mohr, with Mrs. Eiler accompanying.

Special business for the afternoon was the planning of four family nights and for the annual picnic which will be held at Patterson Springs, August 21, the families to be included.

Mrs. Moore gave the lesson, "Comparison of Patterns," which brought forth a great deal of discussion and was duly appreciated. Other topics discussed by Mrs. Moore were, The Membership Drive; Music Appreciation; Salads (with a demonstration).

Refreshments, of ice cream, cake and lemonade were served by the hostesses.

Those present were Mesdames S. A. Howard, H. H. Jarman, E. E. Fansler, Levi Driver, Henry Mohr, W. E. Warnes, John Nohren, Howard Mohr, Frank Mohr, Lyman Mohr, John Warnes, E. C. Hagerman, R. D. Eiler, Edw. Nohren, O. D. Struck, Arthur Wilson, Henry Edens, Josie Dowden, H. G. Schumacher, and Miss Thelma Driver.

Guests were Mrs. Frank McGee, and Misses Lillian Bergfield and Florence Schumacher. Mrs. C. W. Moore, the advisor, was also present.

Your attention is called to the ad of L. W. Donley in this issue.

Miss Laura Rothermel Becomes Bride Of L. W. Schweineke

The marriage of Miss Laura Rothermel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rothermel, and Louis W. Schweineke, son of Mr. Christian Schweineke, took place at 4 o'clock Sunday evening in the Lutheran church. The ceremony was read by Rev. Wm. Klautsch.

The bride was attired in a dress of pale pink georgette, trimmed with cream lace, and wore a hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of pink rose buds and lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, the guests numbering forty. The house was attractively decorated with summer flowers carrying out the color scheme of pink and white.

The bride was graduated from the Allerton Community High School with the class of 1924 and for the past four years has taught school in this vicinity.

The groom is a well known farmer and is a veteran of the World War, having seen active overseas service.

Mr. and Mrs. Schweineke left for a trip to Chicago after which they will be at home to their friends on the groom's farm northwest of Newman.

Mrs. Loomis Writes Letter From California

The following letter was received by O. D. Loomis from his wife who is visiting relatives in California.

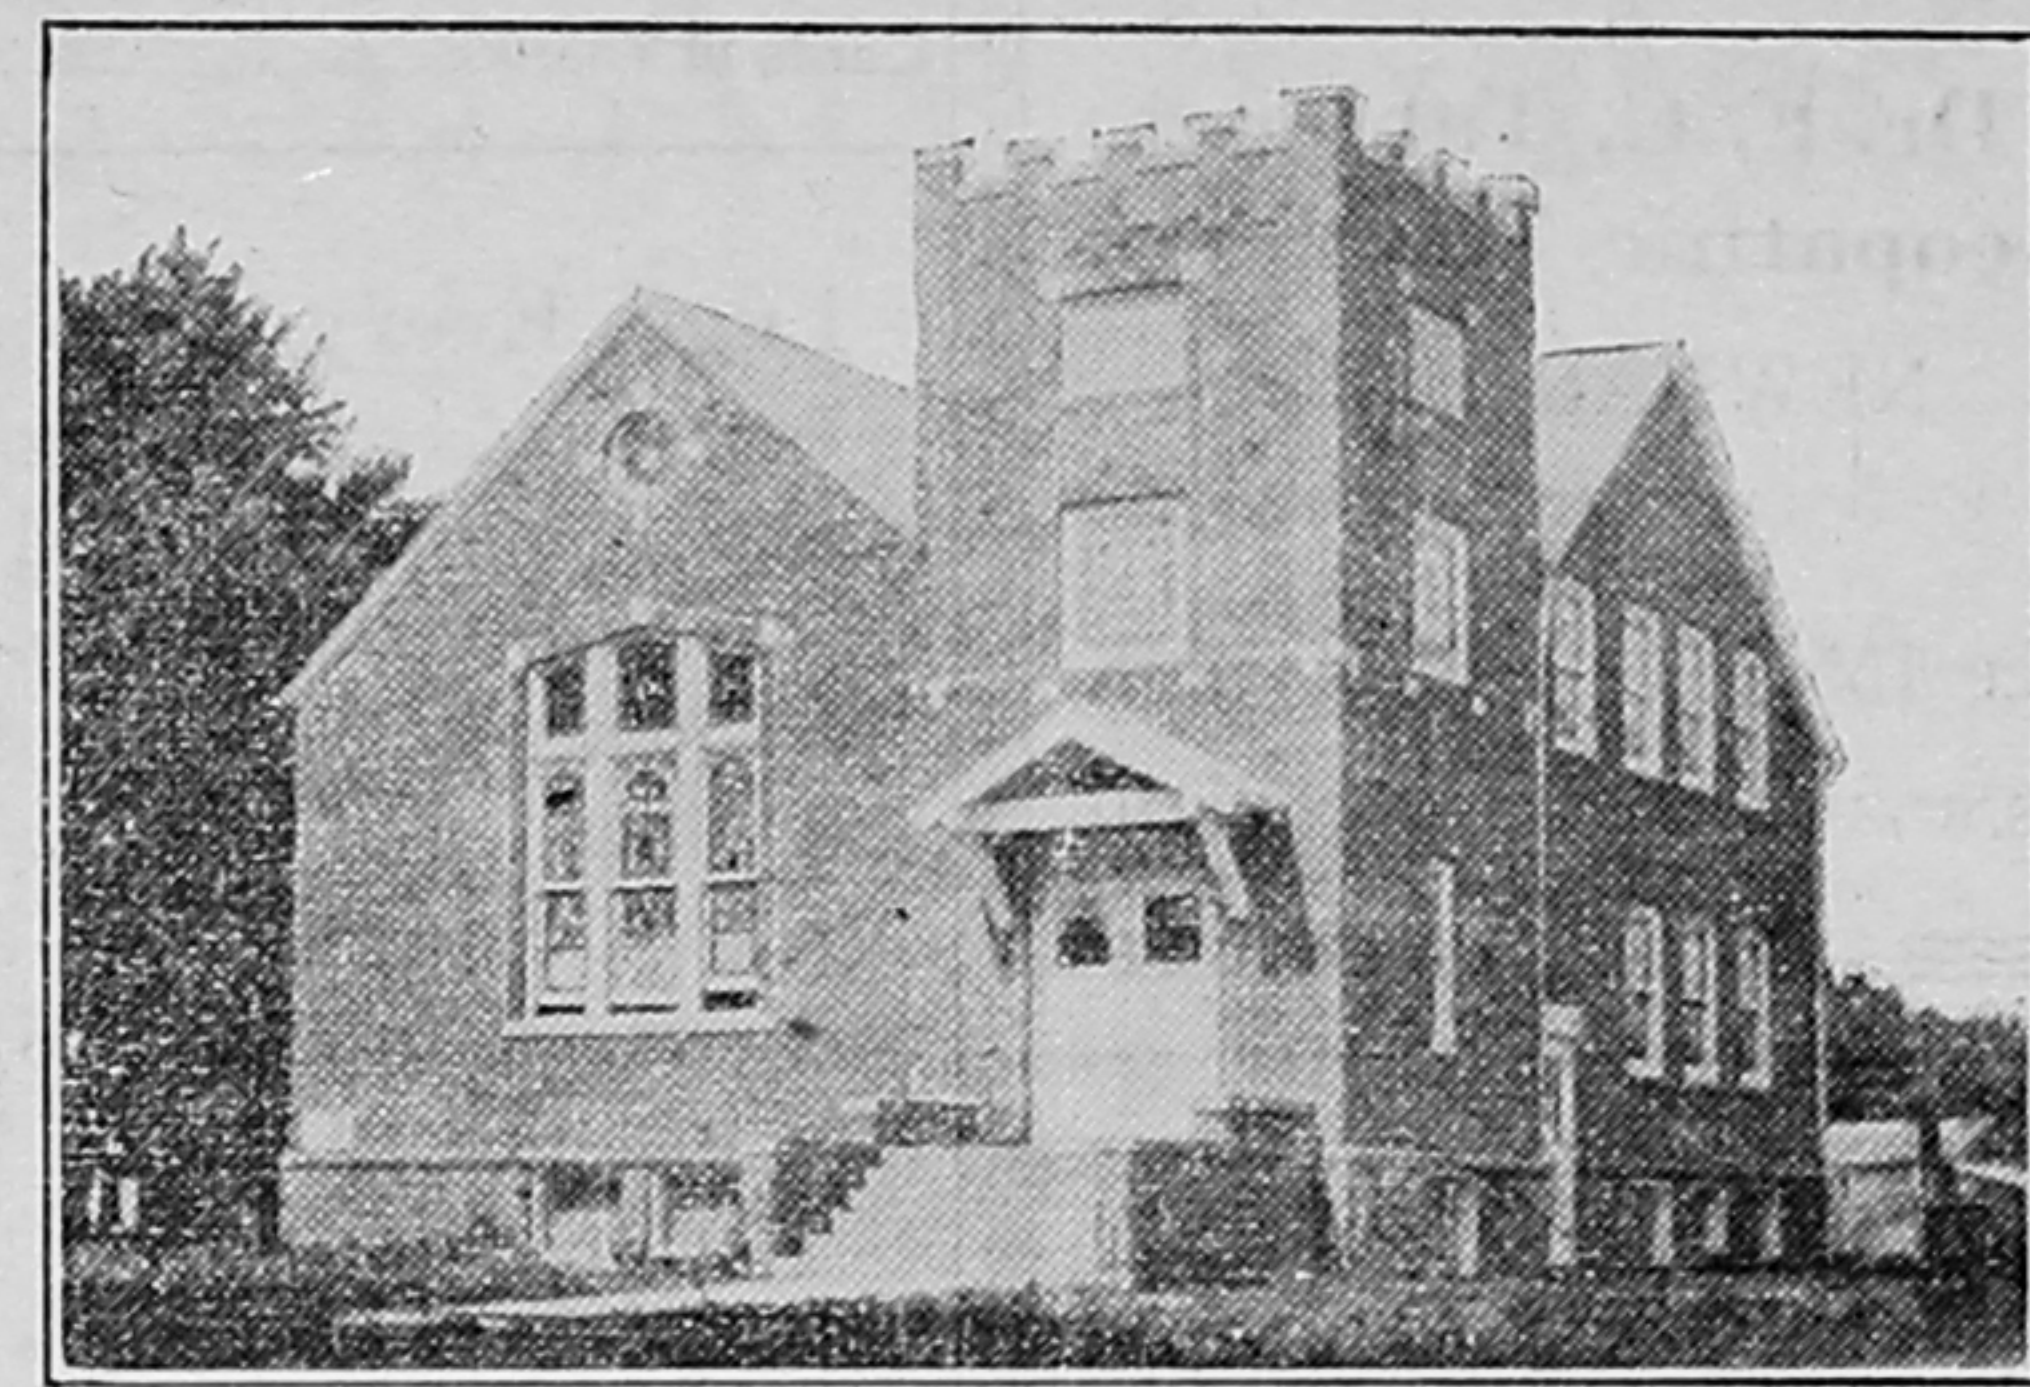

I am here at Mose's at present. We all went on Saturday to a mountain cabin belonging to Frank Frame. Dora, Mamie and I, Joe Moon and wife, Ella, Vivian, Mose and Ida went from here. It is about thirty miles from here. We stayed all night, 15 of us in all. We had a wonderful time and the scenery is beautiful. I climbed a mountain. We came back Sunday evening through Hollywood of movie fame. I stopped off here at Mose's and Mamie went home with Ella and Vivian. We found Frank Gilbert's address in the phone directory. Called him up and talked to him today. We went out and found Leslie Starks residence. Met his wife and son, then went to his office and talked to Leslie. This evening Miss Viola Starks came over to see me.

I am surely seeing things out here. Time is flying and we have not been half around. The 4th of July the Burtons took Mamie and I out to the big airplane ship. We got onto it and walked all around. It is big, holds 80 airplanes and is called the Saratoga. I enjoyed the boat ride out to the ship, 3 miles out from shore.

We are planning to attend the World's Sunday School convention this week. All the brothers and families are going to meet at Eldredge's next Sunday and I think I'll stay with them next week. I will go to Ella's tomorrow and as she lives near Viola Starks I'll probably visit her too, then back here the last of the week to attend convention.

Tell Ogle I have not seen Mentis Moon yet but will soon. How is everybody? How are you and the chickens? Wish you were here to help me enjoy the sights. When you write send it to Box 851, Gardena, Calif.

Dedication of Methodist Church At Longview

The new Methodist Episcopal Church in Longview which has been under construction for nearly two years, will be dedicated Sunday, July 22, with appropriate services throughout the day.

Dr. Wm. J. Davidson, President of Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington will be present and speak both at the morning service at 10:30 and in the evening at 7:30. Rev. Edwin G. Sandmeyer, District Superintendent of the Mattoon District will preside at the morning service.

At noon a basket dinner will be served in the basement. Many former pastors of the church are expected to be present, especially at the afternoon service. The address at 2:30 will be by Dr. George L. Losh, pastor of the First M. E. Church of Urbana. The service of dedication will be in the evening at 7:30. Parking facilities are being arranged in anticipation of a large crowd in attendance at these services from the surrounding towns and country.

The church is of brick veneer, with an auditorium to seat 150, and with adjoining rooms and balcony making it possible to seat 250 comfortably. There is a full basement equipped with kitchen and banquet room. The Longview people are to be congratulated on having provided so beautiful and commodious a church building. They may take just pride in celebrating the achievement. The public is cordially invited to attend all the services of dedication day.

Rev. C. M. Temple is pastor of the church.

John Bahlow Given Birthday Surprise

Several friends surprised John Bahlow last Sunday when they gathered at his home with well filled lunch baskets, the occasion being his birthday.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served cafeteria style, and during the evening refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

At a late hour all departed for their homes after having spent a most enjoyable day.

Those present were James Magers and family, Herman Struck, Jr. and family, Mrs. Anna Poggenдорff and family, Herman Struck, Sr., Walter Poggenдорff and wife, Mrs. Will Wienke, Harold Wiese, Fred Cress, Walter Kracht, Hilda Zenke, John Bahlow and family of Broadlands; Mrs. Ida Loveless of Decatur; Misses Enola and Mildred Sy, Gladys Bath, and Philip Johnson of Danville.

No Movies Till Fall

On account of the small attendance at the Broadlands Opera House caused by the extremely hot weather, the Legion boys have decided to discontinue the movie shows until fall.

More Rocked Streets

We failed to mention in last week's issue that Logan St. had been rocked from Diller Ave. to State St.

This week, Lincoln St. is being rocked from State to Second St. The intersection at Main and Third streets is also being rocked.

REV. C. M. TEMPLE, MINISTER.

Sunday School 10:00.

There will not be any preaching services at the Broadlands church next Sunday owing to the dedication services in Longview.

Urbana Dollar Day Is Thursday July 26th

The thirty-first semi-annual Dollar Day of Urbana merchants will be held on Thursday of next week, July 26, and Urbana's colors of Orange and Black will be featured in the store displays for the occasion. The names of several new advertisers appear in the Official Bulletin, which will be distributed the first of next week. Notable among these is the firm of Montgomery Ward & Co., which will have liberal space in the Bulletin.

Broadlands, Longview, Allerton and vicinities are always well represented among Urbana Dollar Day shoppers and with good weather conditions prevailing there promises to be a record-breaking crowd at the county seat.

Charles Eckerty Suffers Stroke of Paralysis

Charles Eckerty, who resides on the Rutherford farm, just north and west of the city limits, suffered a stroke of paralysis while sitting in a chair in the yard about 5 o'clock, Monday evening of last week. Mr. Eckerty had been working in the field near his home all day and about 4:30 complained to his son, who was also in the field, that he didn't feel well and believed he would go to the house. The son accompanied his father and upon reaching the home Mr. Eckerty sat down in a chair in the yard. He sat there a short time and the son asked him how he felt, but the father could not answer him. Mr. Eckerty was taken into the house and a physician was summoned. At this writing he was reported as well as could be expected and some improved.—Newman Independent

Legs, Everywhere, Legs

Legs. Legs. Legs. Once modestly concealed and mentioned blushing as lower limbs. Now just plain legs and open to full view. Thin legs, fat legs, legs of flappers, legs of grandmothers, daughters, aunts, sisters, cousins. Legs to the right of you, legs to the left of you, legs in front of you, shuffling and stumbling.

Legs photographic to sell the papers! Chorus girls' legs to put pep in the show. Legs from behind that cannot see themselves. Legs that make you laugh. Legs that punctuate your paragraphs when your companion who has an eye for them, says "Look!"

Legs of pretty team workers which, by every physic law, should make you give to charity. Legs of delegates, legs of college girls; legs classical, gothic and romanque; legs of movie stars, legs of murderesses, novelists' legs and legs of poetesses. Legs on street cars, legs in busses, legs at dances and legs in the home.

Legs that win prizes and legs that also ran; legs in silk stockings and legs bare that ought not to be; legs in the mornin', at noon and at night. Legs in platoons, battalions and regiments. Legs of golfers, legs of sinners.

Legs in dailies, weeklies, on stage and screen, in church and chancery. Legs at sea and legs on land, from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand. Legs athletic and legs anaemic, legs comic and legs pathetic, legs static and legs peripathetic.

Legs for breakfast, dinner and supper. Legs in wading, legs in dreams. Legs that appeal and legs that repulse, legs that charm and legs that convulse.

Legs! (To be shouted evultingly, derisively or disgustedly as the mood dictates.)—Baltimore Evening Sun.

Way Up in the Air
By AD SCHUSTER
(Copyright.)

"IN MORE ways than one," Bessie Lind looked admiringly at her suitor, "I wish you would live closer to the ground."

"You mean you're afraid I might fall?" He smiled. "I've been laying bricks for seven years now and never slipped once."

"I know, but you're so absent-minded. Some day you might forget you are standing on a little platform way up in the air and step off. You know, Norton, you've done some very—well—foolish things when you were thinking of something else."

"When I am at work that's all I think of," Norton was a little offended, "and besides, if I do think of anything else, it's you."

"All the same I wish you had a job in which you could keep both feet on the ground, literally and figuratively."

"The job is putting a little in the bank each week and in a year—maybe before—there will be enough," Norton Nodd took her hand, "enough for us to get married. Don't you go making fun of my job."

As if to answer the girl's wish, a remarkable thing happened to Norton the next morning. As he descended the stairs in his rooming house he saw the fat letter awaiting him on the hall radiator, and as he hurried on to work he read it. A draft for ten thousand dollars! Old Uncle Arthur had remembered him. There would be a wedding now. Right after work he would hasten to Bessie, tell her the news and, if she were willing, hunt up the preacher. Norton shoved the letter and draft into his lunch box and hurried on. He could not quit the boss without notice and, anyway, people did not retire from work on ten thousand dollars.

As the bricklayer placed brick to form a tall chimney his mind was on the happiness of Bessie after she had heard the story. He worked mechanically and well, hoisted up the platform as the chimney grew and had the satisfaction of fitting the top brick before noon. He came down for lunch, looked around for the box, and could not find it.

In vain he pleaded with the others not to hide his lunch for a joke. There was something in it, he insisted, that he could not afford to lose. He took the afternoon off and searched everywhere, even retraced his steps to the boarding house. A dream of happiness had been held before his face only to be taken away. He wondered if he dared tell Bessie.

Instead of a triumphant, happy lover it was a sorry one who called that evening and Bessie was left wondering as to the cause of his grief. For a week he went about his work hoping the missing box would turn up and then, all attempts failing, he confessed.

"We'll have to find it, that's all." The girl, facing him with the business-like air he had always envied, questioned him minutely as to all his movements on the day of the loss.

"And the box, was it that one I gave you last Christmas?" Suddenly her eyes took the light of hope. She was almost afraid of the idea that occurred to her.

"Norton Nodd," said Bessie, "you will have to take me up that chimney tomorrow."

Norton studied her soberly. When Bessie said "have" she meant it.

"All right," he answered. "I'll see you don't fall, but it will be a job getting the rigging up again."

Slowly he pulled the rope which took them up the pile of bricks he had laid so accurately but a week before. Near the top, where he had been working on the day of his misfortune, Bessie gave the signal and progress became even more slow as she tapped each brick with a small hammer. Then she laughed, a sobbing cry of happiness.

"Oh, Norton, here it is. The little red lunch box I gave you, plastered in the chimney like a brick!"

AMERICA LEADING IN RADIO COMMUNICATION

The opening of a new, direct radio channel between New York and Lisbon, Portugal, for the transmission and reception of Radiograms was recently announced by the Radio Corporation of America. The inauguration of this radio circuit adds another spoke to the world-wide communication system which has New York as its hub and radiates directly to England, France, Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Norway, Poland, Turkey, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Venezuela, Porto Rico, the Dutch West Indies, and Dutch Guiana. From San Francisco other direct radio circuits join the United States to Hawaii, Japan, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Shanghai, China, the Dutch East Indies and French Indo China. To further insure the continued supremacy of the United States in transoceanic radio communication the RCA is planning additional circuits for the near future to countries as near as Canada and Cuba, and as distant as Spain, Czecho-Slovakia, Chile and Siberia.

AN ACRE OF ALFALFA EQUALS THE FEEDING VALUE OF 2.62 ACRES OF OATS

ALFALFA HAY CROP YIELD IS HIGHEST

Acres of Alfalfa Has Same Feeding Value as 140 Bushels of Oats.

One acre in alfalfa does the work of 2.62 acres in oats, says the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. An average acre of alfalfa producing 2.55 tons of hay in a season produces a volume of forage that has the same feeding value as 140 bushels of oats produced on 2.62 acres. This comparison is based on feeding tests made by the North Dakota Agricultural College, in which 4,000 pounds of alfalfa hay equaled 3,520 pounds of oats.

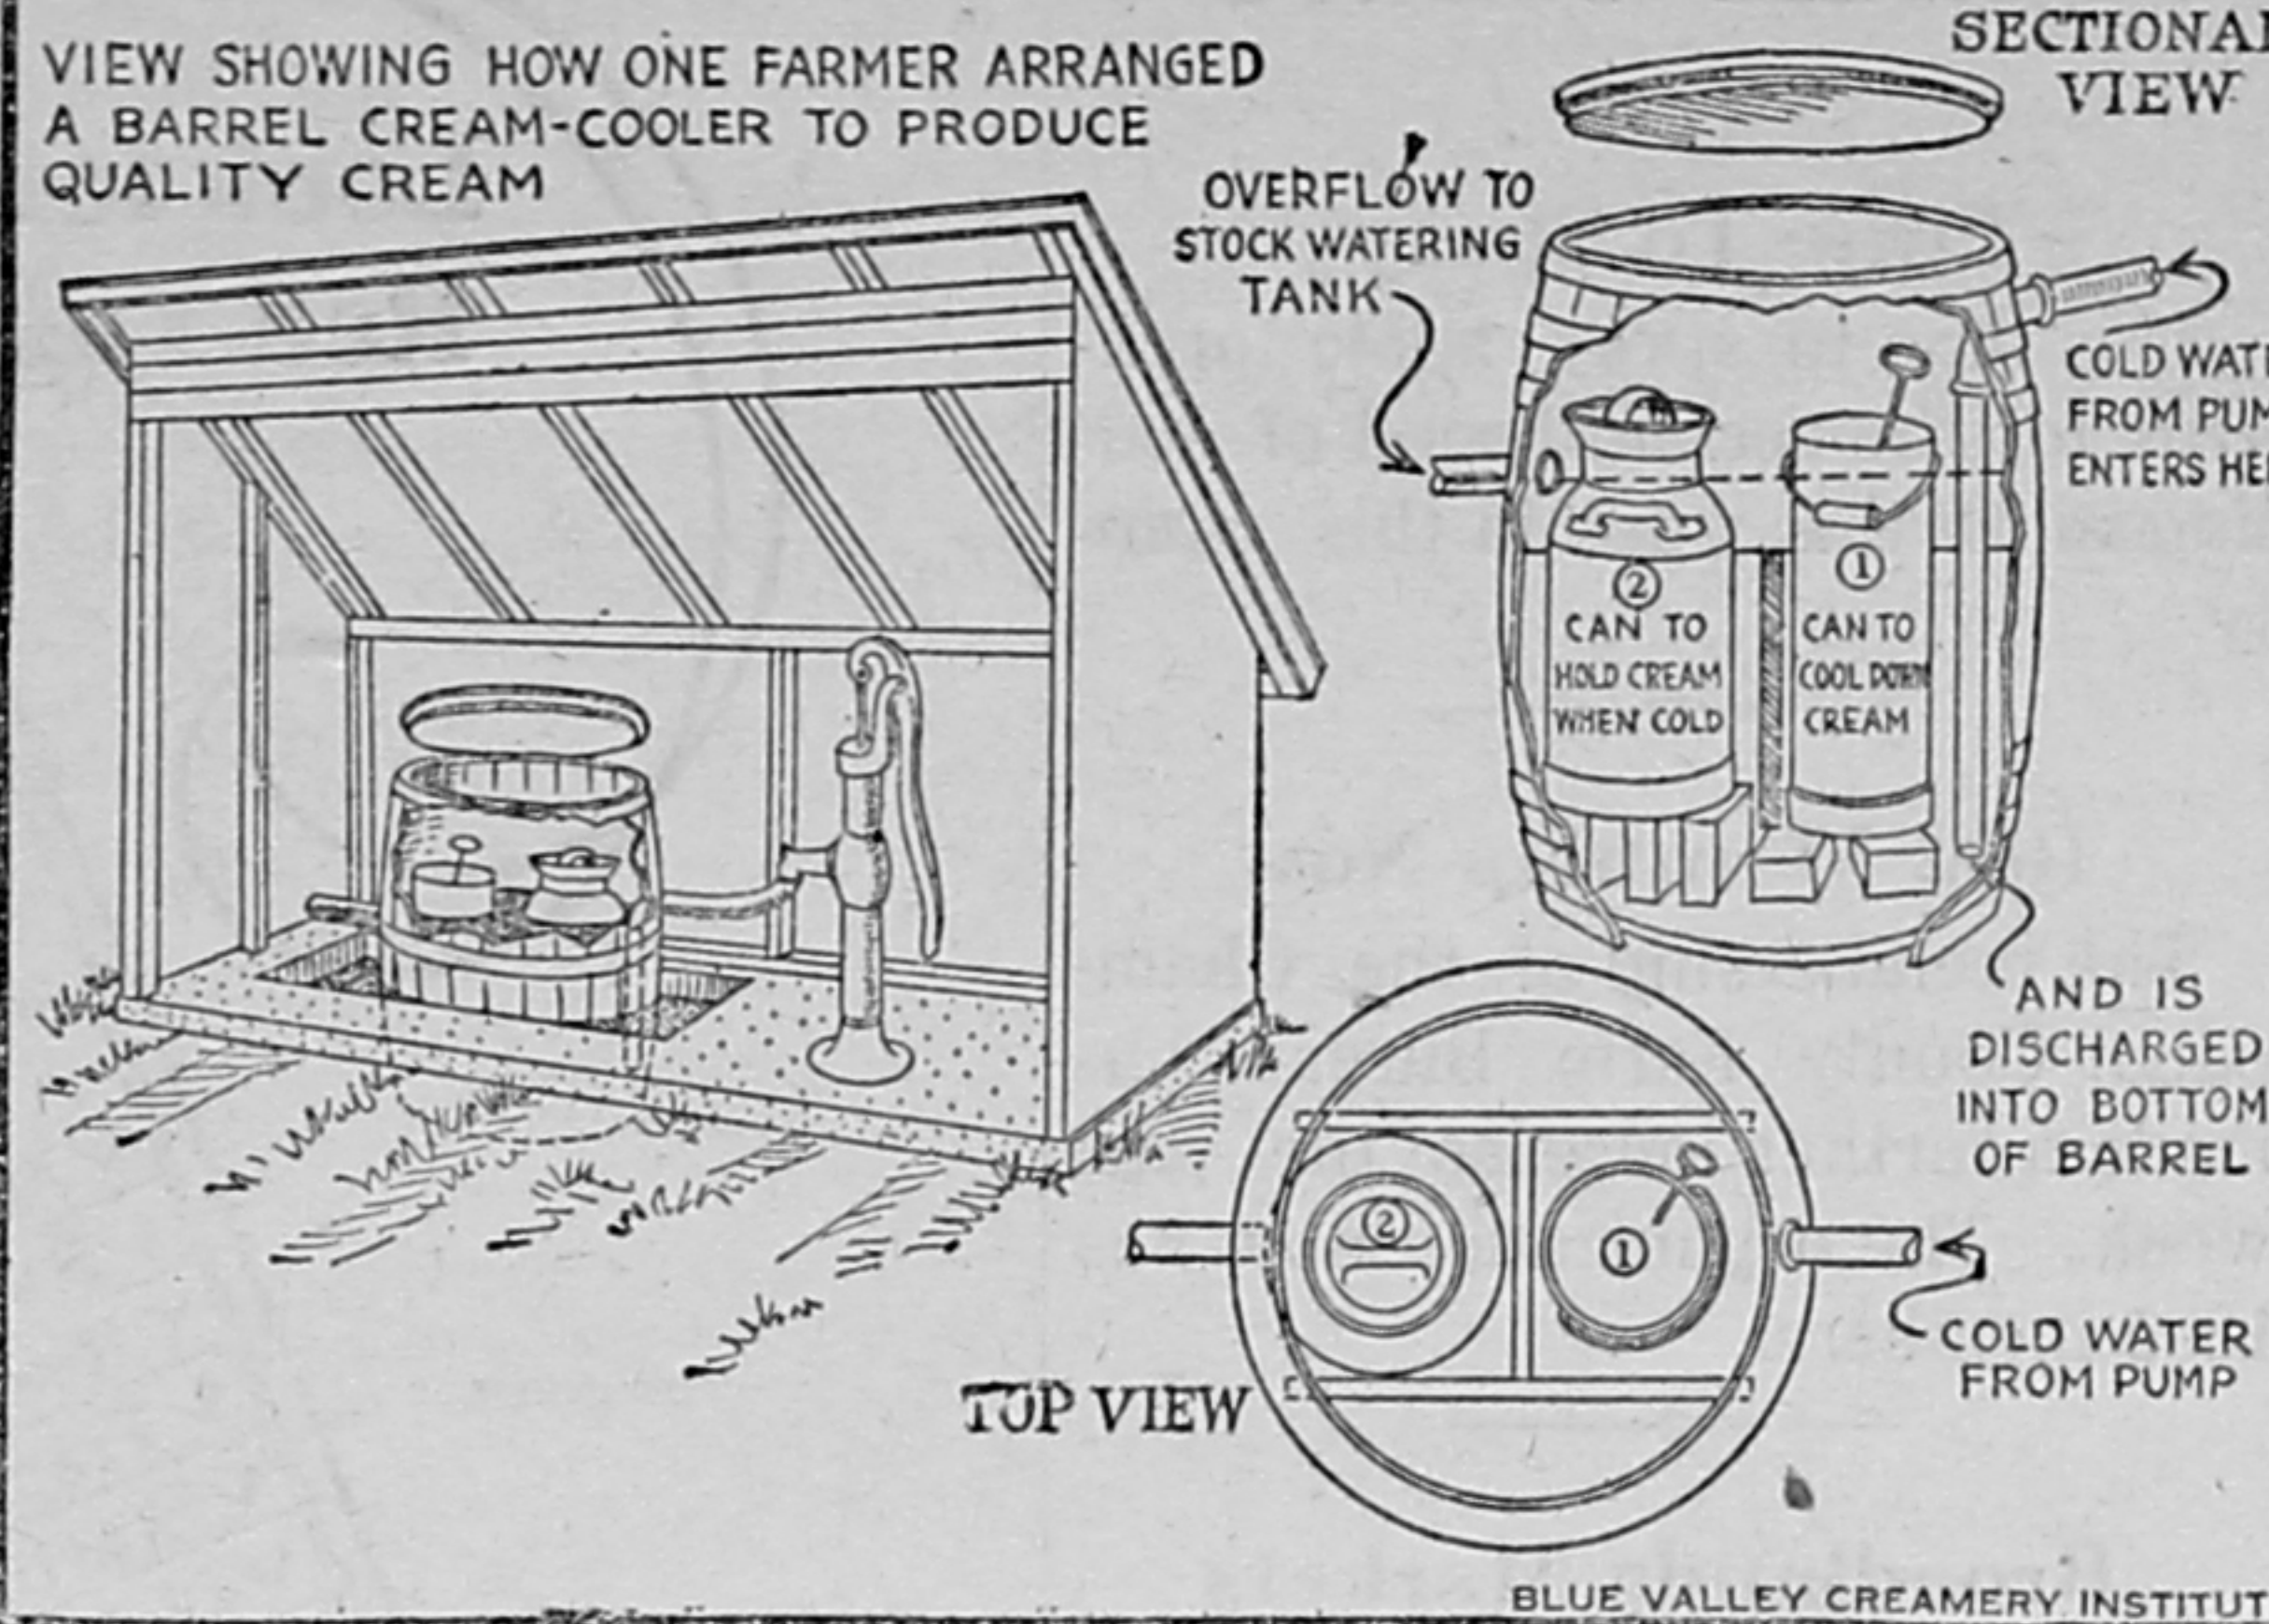

The institute estimates that the acre yield of alfalfa hay is equal to 2.62 acres of oats on the basis that it takes only 1.14 pounds of alfalfa hay to equal one pound of oats in feeding value. In the Minnesota dairying district where the survey was made, it was found that the average yield per acre was 2.55 tons or 5,100 pounds of alfalfa as against a yield of 1,712 pounds of oats to an acre.

Many farmers are under the impression that the yield of an acre in grain will make as much milk and butterfat as will the product of an acre in hay. And it will, in certain instances when high yield grains such as corn are compared with low protein, non-leguminous hays such as timothy. But the comparison does not hold true when an acre of alfalfa with its high yield of protein is matched against an average acre of oats, yielding even the high average of 53.5 bushels per acre. It must be remembered, however, that oats, pound for pound, as shown by the North Dakota station, have a higher feeding value than has alfalfa, and it is not recommended to plant all of the land devoted to oats in alfalfa, because a certain amount of oats in the grain ration is sometimes needed for variety. Crushed oats with ground corn, corn-chop, as it is called in many sections, form the base of a low-cost grain ration that can be grown on most farms in the Mississippi valley.

Alfalfa is famed as a milk and butterfat producer because of the fact that it produces a high yield of protein per acre. Alfalfa, pound for pound, equals grain in its ability to produce low-cost milk and butterfat. This year is an especially good year to plant an acre of alfalfa for every single cow and every two heifers on every farm, because cattle of all kinds have rarely been as profitable as they are at this time. Hogs, too, make cheaper pork on pastures planted in alfalfa and both hogs and hens, as well as cows, can profitably consume alfalfa hay and leaves during the winter barn-feeding season.

A Home-Made "Cream Cooler" for Hot Weather

SIMPLE TO MAKE A GOOD CREAM COOLER

Small Outlay by Farmer Will Insure Quality of Product During Hot Months.

A low-cost cream cooling plant to insure the production of high quality cream during the hot weeks of July and August can be made right on the farm by the farmer himself, says the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, with the use of a water-tight barrel, two cans, and an open shed-like structure to protect the barrel from the rays of the sun.

In building such an arrangement, a water-tight barrel large enough to hold two cans is sunk into the ground, as shown in the accompanying illustration, near a well pump or at least near enough to a pump so that fresh, cold water can be frequently pumped into the barrel in order to keep the temperature of the water surrounding the cans of cream as low as possible. The overflow water can be piped to the stock watering tank. Such an arrangement can be hitched to a hand or power pump or to a kitchen pump or faucet. If more convenient the barrel can be located on the shady side of a building and thereby do away with the necessity of building a shed or covering. The detailed drawing shows how simple it is to build a "cream cooler" on the farm. The principal point to keep in mind is to pipe the inflow water so that it is discharged at the bottom of the barrel.

Two cans are necessary. Warm, fresh cream from each separation is kept in can No. 1 until it has cooled down to the temperature of the cream in can No. 2. Before the next separation and after it has been thoroughly cooled, it is added to the cream in can No. 2. Warm and cold cream should never be mixed, and can No. 1 must be thoroughly washed and cleaned after emptying its contents into can No. 2 and before fresh cream is poured in it.

Lincoln's Tomb Mecca
Of 14,300 During June

Springfield, Ill., July 16.—During the month of June a total of 14,300 persons paid a visit to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln and attached their names to the register maintained for that purpose, according to the records of H. W. Fay, custodian. The number exceeds the average registration at the tomb for any six months during the first fifty years after Lincoln's burial.

A table prepared by Mr. Fay shows the increase in visitation through the years with June used as a typical month. In 1901—1,200 visitors. In 1928—14,300 visitors.

Prospects for a good corn crop this fall are bright. Oats and wheat are being cut, but no big yields are being reported. At this time a good rain would be welcomed.

The Donkey Parade

Oh, the donk he went to the Lone Star State,
And he hee-hawed loud both early and late,
As he painted the elephant black as black
And swore he'd run 'im clear off the track.
But what we ask, will the donkey do,
When with driver Al and his dripping crew
He's given the choice of water or beer?
Will he quaff a glass or drop a tear?
I'll tell you how it appears to me,
He's between the devil and the deep blue sea.

World Needs Wisdom That Comes With Age

Thank God for the old folks! They supply the balance so necessary in not only this but every day and age. Youth may rail at the older generation for being "old fogies" and "behind the times." But snowy crowns bring a seasoning of reasoning which the snap judgment of youth lacks. Old age can hark back and profit from years of experience, while youth, though fired with enthusiasm and ambition, has yet to undergo the ordeal of fire. This "pep" in youth is, of course, a component part of life, but we also need that sageness and maturity of opinion which comes only with advanced years.

One generation, in effect, acts as a check on the other, yet it cannot be denied that youth has in the past, does now and always must, depend on its elders to impart wisdom and good advice. Especially today, when youth is inclined to be reckless, should the admonition and guidance of the old folks count for the value that it really is.

Life is as the cycle of seasons which needs its autumn as much as its spring. Spring is a beautiful expression of budding life. But autumn is none the whit less beautiful—and necessary. Though youth, like spring, gives us love and roses, it remains for autumn to produce the harvest. In other words, it is age which gives the needed mellowness to the green sprouts of rash youth.

Again we say, God bless the old folks!—Pathfinder Magazine.

Troubles in Plenty for Court Officials

The master mind in control of state and social functions at the court of St. James occasionally must solve some extraordinary problems, according to Percy Armitage, who reveals himself as that astute functionary in his book, "By the Clock of St. James."

In making arrangements for the coronation of King Edward, Armitage found he must discover close to Buckingham palace a house large enough to accommodate the attending maharajah of Jaipur with his suite of 200 and that there must be accommodations in the same house for a cow. The house must also have a well since he was informed that neither the maharajah nor his servants would touch water that had flowed through pipes.

Such a house finally was found and then he turned his attention to obtaining the cow. She must have short horns and be pure white. When the maharajah came and found all this provided he took it as a matter of course and calmly gave instructions that the cow must not be killed at any time after his departure, but must die a natural death. This she was permitted to do after being maintained in luxury and idleness for many years.

His Wise Words

"Instead of heaping together the little ills of life and making mountains of them," said old Festus Pester, "we should try to slide through existence as easily as possible, consistent with honor and dignity—he who talks and runs away may live to talk another day. We should bear in mind that women, politics, weather predictions and nine-tenths of everything else are always uncertain, and not fix our faith too strongly upon them. If we have cares and ills and miseries and disappointments and are humbled and ignored and derided let us remember that there are always others and they are generally in town."—Kansas City Star.
