Chicago To Stage Finals of Live Stock Year

Next week the 1933 International Live Stock Exposition will open for its 34th year in Chicago. The show will be held from December 2 to 9.

Coming each year the week following Thanksgiving, the Chicago Exposition is the close of the agricultural show season in North America, which begins with the district and county fairs of early summer.

Officials of the Exposition say that there will be more draft horses exhibited than at any time in the last decade. A spectacular feature of the draft horse show is the performances of ton weight six horse teams. There will be eight six-in-hands competing at the evening Horse Shows of the Exposition this year.

In view of the nation-wide interest and the desire of thousands of those associated with the industries of agriculture to visit the International Stock Show, all the railroads entering Chicago have announced special low round trip fares at rates ranging from two cents a mile to a fare and a third for the round trip. Special excursion fares at a cent a mile will be granted from the northern Mississippi valley and northwest states.

Wilbur Thomas Writes of Trip To California

Palmdale, Cal., Nov. 4, 1933.

Dear Leonard and all:

We left Fort Sheridan at 8 o'clock Friday morning. It sure was an interesting trip out here. I seen lots of ranches. Seen some cow boys rounding up some cattle. I wished I was with them.

We were stalled about three hours the first night on our way. The engine broke and one had to come 60 miles to get us. It took us a long ways and it broke. Three engines broke on our way out here. We came through the Red Woods at night, so I didn't get to see them.

We got here about 9 o'clock Friday morning. We never did anything Friday. We get Saturday and Sunday off. We go to work Monday.

I might get a better paying job out here because on our way out here I helped feed the officers and Lieutenants. They asked the other boy and I how we would like a job like that out at camp. We said all right, so he took our names.

There isn't any woods around here. The work is making roads through the mountains. We are about 2000 feet above sea level. We are in between the mountains. We don't sleep in tents we sleep in barracks.

A bunch of us boys left the barracks at 8 o'clock this morning to go up on a mountain. We got up there and we seen one higher up than that one, we went up there and seen one still higher, we went up about seven of them before we got to the highest one. We could see all over the desert land. When we started back we went south and took a water ravine back around to the reservoir. We came out about 3 miles south of the reservoir. The reservoir is about 1 mile south of camp. So we were 4 miles from camp. Altogether we went about 10 miles. It was 12 o'clock when we got back. While we were on the highest mountain we were about 2 miles above sea level.

I have seen 1 lizard up here. I believe I will like it alright up here. The days are hot and the nights are cool.

I seen Mark Shelton at Ft. Sheridan the night before we left. I sure was surprised to see him, and he was surprised to see me. We are about 2500 miles from Ft. Sheridan, a long ways from home.

I wish you was out here to see some of the boys who re-signed up. They sure are built up. They've got chests and muscles on them like giants. They sure look healthy and fat. Some of the boys that weighed 115 lbs. when they first joined the Forestry Work, weigh 160 now.

We've got 16 miles of road to build through the mountains. They say we won't get 10 miles of it done.

I seen several Jack rabbits on our way out here. They sure are big.

Well I better quit this time for I've got to do some washing.

The sun don't get up enough to shine on us until 8 o'clock. It is behind a mountain at 5.

Riverside's Bells

The largest carillon in the world is in the tower of the four million dollar Riverside Church in New York. It has 72 bells with a range of six octaves, the largest bell weighing 20 tons.

The carillon tower is 360 feet high, into which the bells were hoisted by electricity, using steel cables.

Three bells in the world are larger than the big bass bell of the carillon, but it has the deepest tone. It is about eight feet high, its clapper alone weighing as much as the Liberty Bell, about a ton.

The tower and carillon are the gift of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. He and his father are the largest contributors to the new church, of which Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick is the pastor.

Riverside Church, with its great carillon, is a recent notable addition to the many fine religious edifices of the nation's metropolis.

Labor Vs. Communism

No immediate menace of communism threatens the United States, in the opinion of Congressman Fish of New York, chairman of the House committee which investigated activities of communists in this country. He states, however, that it is important for the government to keep informed concerning what the Reds are doing, so as to be prepared to meet any situation which may arise. In a recent speech Mr. Fish took occasion to pay a tribute of praise to American labor unions for their stand on communism.

While communists in the United States are relatively few they are very active, and lose no opportunity to foster class hatred, with the object of ultimately fermenting a civil war whereby they hope to destroy our form of government.

In this they will hardly succeed, but they can make a lot of trouble and for that reason should be closely watched.

Gold and Employment

Mr. Roosevelt's latest announcement on gold, in which he pledged the government to offer a market at the world price for as much of the yellow metal as is offered to it, will have a salutary effect on this country.

The purpose of the plan as affecting currency and credit expansion is of only academic interest to most of us.

Its effect will doubtless be an important expansion of mining activities, both here and abroad. Gold is like everything else—the wider and more profitable the market, the more effort will be given to finding and developing the product.

Thousands of men will find new work in the mining industry. Thousands of families will receive their livelihood because of it. And millions of dollars will be put in circulation, to surge through the veins of industry and speed the work of recovery.

Hope For Epileptics

Another disease which hitherto has been baffling to physicians seems in a fair way to be conquered. Drs. Helmholz and Hadow of Rochester, Minn., have made a report of several years of investigation and treatment of epilepsy with most encouraging results.

This report covers the cases of 141 patients treated, of which number 43 were cured, 32 were improved and 66 were not benefited. The treatment consisted of a special diet rich in fats, and was originally worked out by Dr. Russell M. Wilder, formerly of the Mayo clinic.

While the results are by no means uniform, and in some cases were of no benefit to the sufferers, the percentage of patients cured or improved is encouraging. Very little is known about epilepsy, so anything attempted in the way of treatment in the past has been a mere experiment.

It now appears that the scientists are on the right track, and the prospect for a complete mastery of the disease is most promising.

The Hitch Hikers

After about four years of operation the Maine law against hitch hiking is declared effective and beneficial by the chief of the state's highway police, altho not a single prosecution has been necessary.

The law forbids any person on a public highway to "endeavor by words, gestures or otherwise to beg or secure transportation in any motor vehicle not engaged in carrying passengers for hire, unless said person knows the driver thereof or any passenger therein." An exception is made in case of sickness of an emergency nature. Maximum punishment for the violation of the law is $50 fine or 30 days in jail.

Hitch hikers are a nuisance to motorists, and many cases are on record in which persons soliciting a lift have robbed and even murdered those who thus befriended them. On the other hand, most kindly disposed persons would willingly give an honest pedestrian a ride if there were any way to distinguish him from the other kind.

In this matter, as in so many others, a vicious minority seems to make necessary a law which imposes a hardship on those who have no wrong intentions. Law or no law it is safer not to pick up the unknown hitch hiker.

Modern Education

In a series of articles Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, discussed some of the laws which he believes underlies a thoroughly modern education. Coming from such a distinguished source, they are worthy of serious consideration.

Among the principles he set forth are these: We learn by action rather than by absorption; learning is specific rather than general; the best things to study are those which are important to our life and work; we should study the things that will most directly contribute to our efficiency and happiness.

Like many other progressive educators of the present day, Dr. Frank does not believe that a college education is either necessary or desirable for everyone. The four years spent in college might often be better employed in gaining practical experience in a workshop or in business. It depends largely on the natural talents and inclinations of a young person whether he should go to college.

For one who has a studious disposition and aspires to enter one of the learned professions, a college education is indispensable, of course. For those who go to college merely to be able to say that they have gone to college it is a waste of valuable time.

As Dr. Frank very truthfully says: "We cannot prove that a college education guarantees a big income, or that it makes us happier men or women. Most of the old arguments for college education are in the ashecan."

After Fifteen Years

Fifteen years ago on November 11 the greatest war of history came to an end through an armistice between the Allied powers and the United States on the one hand and Germany on the other.

This historic document was signed in Marshal Foch's special train at Rethondes, France, at 5 o'clock a. m., and provided for the cessation of hostilities six hours later. Accordingly the fighting ceased at 11 a. m.

While the Armistice of November 11 marked the real termination of the war, it was the fourth of a series of rapidly moving events which brought the titanic struggle to a close.

Bulgaria had already surrendered unconditionally at Salonica on September 29; Turkey had surrendered at Mundros on October 31; and Austria-Hungary had surrendered at the headquarters of General Diaz, the Italian commander on November 3. Left thus alone in the struggle, the defeat of Germany was inevitable.

In fact, Germany had appealed to President Wilson for peace on October 6, and the time between that date and the Armistice was taken up with diplomatic correspondence and the working out of the conditions submitted to Germany for acceptance.

These conditions left Germany absolutely shorn of all military and naval power which might enable her to take the offensive again. Signing the treaty of peace followed on June 28, 1919, at Versailles, near Paris.

Since that time many additional treaties, pacts and agreements have been entered into by various nations.

Continued efforts to insure peace are being made by the world's leading statesmen, and upon the results of these efforts depend the most momentous consequences to the human race.

Only One Hundred Years Ago There:

Was not a public library in the United States.

Almost all furniture was imported from England.

An old copper mine in Connecticut was used as a prison.

There was one hat factory and that made cocked hats.

Every gentleman powdered his hair and wore a queue.

Crockery plates were objected to because they dulled the knives.

Virginia contained a fifth of the white population of the country.

A gentleman bowing to a lady always scraped his foot on the ground.

The whipping post and pillory were still standing in Boston and New York.

Beef, pork, salt fish, potatoes and hominy was the staple diet all the year round.

Buttons were scarce and expensive and trousers were fastened with pegs and laces.

When a man had enough to eat he placed his spoon across the cup to indicate he wanted no more.

The church collection was taken in a bag at the end of a pole with a bell attached to arouse sleepy contributors.

New Name

Three year old Anna was given a honeysuckle plant by a neighbor. Arriving home with the gift she said, "see what I have mother, it's a—it's a syrup sucker."

Lost Important Part

Johnny, aged three, in a hurry to get out to play, grabbed a deviled egg and left the table hurriedly. He had just gotten outside the room when he shouted:

Mamma, come quick, I just dropped the devil out of my egg.

Needed Charging

Charles, three years old, heard a rooster crowing which had a considerably different sound from the other roosters. He ran in the house saying, Mother, that rooster's batteries must be run down.

Dorrance — How far do you live from the station?

Weed—Do you mean as the crow flies, the time flies or the money flies?

Kentland, Ind.—When members of the Chicago nudist colony near here go shopping for groceries in the future they must wear some clothes, according to a ruling today by Judge George Sammons.
