Highlights of NRA Message

Washington, March 5.—Some pointed sentences from President Roosevelt's address to NRA code authorities:

It is sufficient for me to point out once more that the difficult and dangerous situation into which the United States has got itself (last year) was due to the general attitude, "every man for himself; the devil take the hindmost."

We did not know as much then as we know now and because our eyes have been opened it is possible that future history will call that crazy decade of 1919 to 1929 one of the greatest blessings that ever came to the American people.

The real truth of the matter is that for a number of years in our country the machinery of democracy had failed to function.

The National Industrial Recovery Act was drawn with the greatest good of the greatest number in mind.

In this great evolution through which we are passing, the average American is doing splendid service by coming back at the cautious critic and saying to him, "Well, old man, what do you suggest?"

Every examination I make, and all the information I receive lead me to the inescapable conclusion that we must now consider immediate cooperation to secure increase in wages and shortening of hours.

We must set up every safeguard against erasing the small operator from the economic scene.

... we have arrived at the time for taking stock for correcting manifest errors, for rooting out demonstrated evils.

One thing is certain, we are not going back to the old conditions or to the old methods.

It is the immediate task of industry to re-employ more people at purchasing wages and do it now.

... we must now consider immediate cooperation to secure increase in wages and shortening of hours.

The law itself has provided for free choice of their own representatives by employees. Those words "free choice" mean just what they say.

Think back exactly one year ago today. You know where the banks stood at that time; you know where your own business stood.

How to Walk on the Country Roads

How to walk on country roads is shown in the March safety poster just issued by the Chicago Motor Club to approximately 39,000 classrooms in Illinois and Indiana.

The poster portrays two children walking against oncoming traffic. The caption says: "On country highways walk against traffic, not with it."

The safety bulletin issued to the schools points out that, despite many warnings, pedestrians continue to ignore the lesson taught in this poster. In 1932 it was estimated that more than 10,000 pedestrians were injured on rural highways in the United States. The state of Illinois in 1927 passed a law requiring every pedestrian to walk on the left side of the roadway and to step off the pavement when motor traffic is approaching. Pedestrians are urged to obey this law, and as additional protection the use of a light at night or a white handkerchief displayed prominently are suggested.

Mrs. Miller Hostess to Happy Hour Class

The Happy Hour class of the M. E. Sunday School was entertained at the home of Mrs. Leanna Miller on Thursday afternoon of last week.

The following readings were given: Parables, by class; What is Kingdom, by Mrs. Addie Freeman; Glory of Garden, by Mrs. Emma Jackson; Story of Luid Home, by Mrs. Maude Anderson; and Planting Rose Fences, by Mrs. Ruth Thode. The song, I'll Walk in the Garden Alone, was sung after which the meeting was closed with a prayer by Mrs. Anna Seeds.

Refreshments were served in keeping with St. Patrick's Day.

Guests present were Miss Mildred Neal and Mrs. Gladys McClelland.

Members present were Mesdames Emma Jackson, Mathilda Hardy, Anna Neal, Mary Fitzgerald, Yuba Catlett, Nellie Astell, Ruth Thode, Anna Seeds, Maude Anderson, Addie Freeman and Mrs. Ralph Gordon.

The next meeting will be held April 5th at the home of Mrs. Maude Anderson.

Your Newspaper

The following was taken from a circular sent to retail merchants by a large wholesale house: "The value of your local newspaper to the success of your business cannot be over estimated. It's worth all the support and co-operation you can give it. For the newspaper is a mirror reflecting the life of the community in which you and your store have an important part. Your advertisement is the reflection of your store in the mirror. Everybody sees it there. If it is not there, the mirror is dark where your store should be. You are there, but you cannot be seen. Your store is open for business as usual, but "out of sight, out of mind." To keep in step with the progress of the community, to get your share of business, you must advertise regularly. Take your newspaper publisher into your confidence; he can give you valuable assistance. Establish an advertising budget. Plan a regular schedule for your advertisement. It's a policy that is followed by the most successful stores; it's an idea that will be profitable for you."

J. W. Gallion was a Danville visitor, Monday.

Dividing A Herd

This story of dividing a herd of cows is not new, but it may interest those who have not heard it. Anyway, it is a neat problem in trick mathematics.

A farmer died possessed of a herd of 17 cows, of which he willed his wife one-half, his son one-third, and his daughter one-ninth. The executor of the will was stumped, but called a mathematical shark to his aid, with this happy result:

A cow was borrowed from a neighbor, making 18. The widow was given 9, which was one-half; the son got 6, which was his one-third; then the daughter received 2, or one-ninth. This totalled 17, the number to be divided, while the borrowed cow was left. She was returned to her owner, and everybody was satisfied.

Nose Ring Weddings

It may be surprising to many to know that even today among the Kamia Indians of California the wedding ceremony requires the placing of a ring in the bridegroom's nose, instead of on the bride's finger.

The nose-piercing is itself a ceremonial event, and takes place some time before the wedding, the operation being performed with a wooden needle. Four candidates for matrimony must submit to this ordeal at the same time, after which they must run 15 miles, then remain four days on a restricted diet, while women nearby sing continuously. Following this the youths must go naked for a month, not being allowed to eat deer, jack-rabbit or fish. Then they are all set for the wedding.

Perhaps the Kamia bride employs the ring as an aid in holding the spouse's nose to the grindstone, as many of her white sisters do without any such device.

Health Racketeers

Medical quackery, which for several years gradually lost ground because of the growing tendency of newspapers to reject quack advertising, seems to have found a new and potential aid in the radio.

Much advertising which no self-respecting newspaper would print is freely broadcast over the air, evidently with some success in attracting suckers, because it is being continued in undiminished volume.

Those who prey upon the public by fraudulently cashing in on the universal desire for health are characterized by Dr. E. P. Lyon, dean of the medical school of the University of Minnesota, as "health racketeers."

He says of this type of faker: "His health patter is pseudo science. His eye is on your check book. In these days especially he prostitutes the radio to his uses. Quacks and quackery, fakers and fakery of all kinds appeal to a bewildered public between jazz and the nasal tenor, with blatant advertisements that no reputable journal will print. Oh, health, what crimes are committed in thy name!"

Even some of what appears to be legitimate advertising is very deceptive. The doctor says further: "Brushing the teeth is a nice habit; but no one has proved that it saves teeth, and all the flamboyant advertising about tooth pastes is rottenest tommyrot."

We often wonder if Bill Hay doesn't reel off his chronic radio spiel about "film" with tongue in cheek.

Observance of Lent

The Lenten season, which is observed by the Roman and Greek Catholic churches, as well as in some degree by the Church of England, the Protestant Episcopal church in America and others, begins on Ash Wednesday, February 14, and will continue until Easter Sunday, April 1, a period of forty days not counting Sundays.

In the early years of the Christian era the fast of Lent was observed for varying periods by some only one or two days and by others for a longer time, according to the writings of Irenaeus, Greek Bishop of Lyons in the second century.

Pope Leo I, in the fourth century, recommended the fast of forty days, as having apostolic authority. This period was taken to commemorate the forty days' fast of Moses, of Elijah, and especially that of Christ.

Theoretically, at least, the faithful abstain from food on fast days until evening, worldly amusements and secular celebrations are to be avoided and marriages are held to be undesirable during Lent.

The duty of fasting is modified with respect to laboring people, children, and women under certain conditions, but increased diligence in works of charity is enjoined upon all, as well as extraordinary attention to all religious observances, throughout this period.

Mother of Monarchs

When in 1764 Letitia Ramolino a rather obscure Corsican girl married Carlos Bonaparte, an assessor, at the age of 14, there was little in the occurrence to indicate the far-reaching influence that was to follow their union.

It was not particularly strange that 13 children were to be born to them, but it is remarkable that of the 13, four were destined to become emperors or kings and two to become queens.

The most famous, of course, was Napoleon Bonaparte, who became emperor of France, and whose name fills more pages of history than that of any other mortal who ever lived. He was the second child.

Joseph, the eldest, became king of Spain; Jerome was king of Westphalia, and Louis was king of Holland. Of the daughters, Maria became queen of Naples, and Elisa became queen of Toscana.

Two other children held lesser rank, Lucien becoming prince of Canino, and Marie Pauline becoming duchess of Guastalla.

Thus Letitia Ramolino has become known to the world as "the mother of monarchs." It might be imagined, therefore, that hers was a happy life—but not so. She was often poverty stricken, and lived to see all her royal children shorn of their power. When she died at the age of 86 the great Napoleon had been dead 15 years, and while several survived her they had ceased to be factors in public affairs.

But in spite of that, Letitia Ramolino gave to the world a progeny whose activities did more to change the course of events than that of any other mother who ever lived.

Hardware Men Pay High Tribute To NRA

Omaha—"The upward trend in hardware can be ascribed to NRA," said Herbert F. Sheets, of Indianapolis, managing director of the National Retail Hardware Association, at the 33rd annual State convention of the Nebraska Retail Hardware Association in this city. He and various other speakers showed that improved sales had started last July, as the first fruits of reemployment under the President's Reemployment Agreement that became effective even before the scheduled date of August 1. Confidence of dealers increased with public confidence in the President's recovery program.

THE AMERICAN PASSION PLAY

Eleventh Annual Season

SCOTTISH RITE TEMPLE
Bloomington, Illinois

April 1, to May 20, 1934

Over a quarter of a million people have journeyed to Bloomington, Illinois, during the last ten years to witness "THE AMERICAN PASSION PLAY." All have returned home, not only deeply moved spiritually, but fully impressed with a better understanding of the mission of Jesus of Nazareth.

The play is presented in sixty scenes, in which there is portrayed the life and works of this great man from the Sermon on the Mount to His Ascension into Heaven.

A cast of two hundred and fifty men, women, and children appear during the presentation. Four choirs, two octettes, a chorus and pipe organ furnish the musical accompaniment.

"THE AMERICAN PASSION PLAY" is today the largest stage production in the world, and yet there is nothing theatrical about the exposition, because so realistic are the scenes presented, the auditor forgets his surroundings, and is carried back nearly two thousand years; becoming one of that great multitude that followed Jesus and listened to His sublime teachings.

The play is purely a community effort, the many players serving without compensation of any kind. The whole production is offered in the interest of spiritual uplift and a better understanding of the mission of Jesus.

For full particulars regarding this play, write "The American Passion Play," Bloomington, Illinois.

Hecht, vice president of the association, said he informed the President that "the banking structure is very sound, thanks to the policies of the Government."

Trucking Code To Add New Jobs For 300,000

Washington.—The trucking industry's code proponents announced to NRA that approval of the code by President Roosevelt is expected to add 300,000 additional employees and increase their annual pay rolls by $260,000,000. The industry now has 1,200,000 employees. Reduction of the work week from 48 to 40 hours for drivers, mechanics, helpers, and other employees will require 25 percent increase in workers, at $5,000,000 a week or $260,000,000 a year. The code sets up an industrial relations board of equal representation of employers and employees to deal with compliance and labor disputes.

Chicago Units of University Serve Mankind

Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy Colleges Located in World's Great Medical Area.

While the main part of the University of Illinois is located in the Twin Cities of Urbana-Champaign, three of its important units are in Chicago. The College of Medicine, the College of Dentistry, and the College of Pharmacy help make up that great medical area surrounding the Cook County hospital.

All three units, scholastically speaking, are leaders. The College of Pharmacy was the first school of its kind to be established west of the Alleghenies; the College of Dentistry is one of eleven in the country that requires a six year course; the College of Medicine has for years had a long waiting list of those seeking entrance. Research work and scientific investigations play almost as important a function of these units as does the teaching.

The question is often asked: "What is the State of Illinois doing to check the stream of human wreckage. The answer is that one of the most unique arrangements for the care of that group of sick and crippled who cannot afford medical service, for the training of young doctors, and for research into the cause and prevention of disease exists in Chicago—in the heart of the world's greatest medical center. The Research and Educational Hospital operated co-operatively by the University of Illinois College of Medicine and the State Department of Public Welfare is this unusual institution. This group is located just south of the Cook County Hospital plant.

Civilization's Backwash.

Scarcely had the first unit been completed and the equipment set in place when the backwash of the advance of civilization began to sweep through the portals of the hospital. The maimed, the sick, and the halt sought the solace their state held out to them. Where misfortune has wiped away position, home and the ability to maintain the former standard of living, and sickness and disease has come in the place of affluence, thousands of citizens of the state have become almost public charges unable to pay for medical attention they so badly need. The Research and Educational Hospital is the answer to their prayers.

Only those who are unable to pay for the medical and surgical attention they receive are taken in. There are more of this category than the institution can possibly care for. More than 90,000 came seeking aid during the past year. Destitution and actual want stalked with each of these suffering. Without the supporting hand of the state, gesturing through these two humanitarian departments, much, if not all of this human driftwood would sink into oblivion and the Potter's field, or fill the poorhouses and clog the institutions of charity privately maintained.

Threefold Purpose.

The Research and Educational Hospital has a threefold purpose. The first, of course, is the cure of the ill of the poor. That in itself is of primary importance, but scarcely less important is the second purpose, that of instructing young doctors so that they may go out into the state and care for the health of the public. The third and last is scientific investigation into the causes and cure of disease with a view to its prevention and effective remedy. The future benefit in this instance cannot easily be realized. The check and prevention of yellow fever and diphtheria are only two cases that result from this type of work.

For the accomplishment of these purposes there are provided laboratories, libraries, classrooms, clinics and hospital facilities, manned by some of the finest medical, surgical and research talent in the country, all housed within the walls of this great institution of mercy. Students, guided by their physician-instructors, attend the sick, watching over them, treating them, and through their close association with the actual cases of suffering learn the fundamentals of the great profession of medicine. In the laboratories, some of the most eminent research scholars of the country delve into the mysteries of disease and the malfunctioning of the human mechanism, and try to solve the problems of cure and prevention.

U. of I. Enrollment Begins Upward Climb

Student enrollment at the University of Illinois is on the upswing. Although the number of students enrolled this fall is less than a year ago, the freshmen class enrollment of 2,739 is 234 more than last. This indicates that the entire student body will be greater in the next three or four years.

Students from every county in the state help to make up the total fall enrollment of 9,996. On the Urbana-Champaign campus there are 8,843, while the University's departments in Chicago have an enrollment of 1,153 for the first semester.

As usual Cook and Champaign counties take first and second places in size of enrollment—Cook because of its dense metropolitan population and Champaign because many families move here while their children attend the University. There are 3,366 from Cook and 1,165 from Champaign county.

Other counties with more than 100 enrolled at the State University are: Vermillion, 221; Peoria, 173; Sangamon, 143; Kane, 147; Macon, 131; St. Clair, 131; La Salle, 100; Madison, 100, and Winnebago, 100.

Watch it bubble up, then drink it. You will be amazed at the almost instant relief.
It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of every-day ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid.
After trying many brands of medicines—so-called relief for gas, and all of them a failure, I gave up hopes. By chance I tried Alka-Seltzer—I am more than satisfied. Geo. Bennett, New York, N. Y.

Nurse for Fred

By ALICE DUANE

©. by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

SHIRLEY TOMPKINS pushed and pulled every movable gadget in sight in her automobile. No answering roar or purr of the engine rewarded her efforts. She leaned back, tired. "Deader than Pharaoh," she said with disgust. "Serves me right for taking this forsaken road."

She looked to right and left. Then, "Eenie, meenie," she counted out. The estate on the left won. Scrambling out of the car, she took a small suitcase from the back seat, and started to walk to the shaded avenue that led to the big house on the rise above the road.

Shirley was hot and tired when she reached the cool, comfortable looking flagged terrace in front of the house. But Shirley looked cool and charming—in a smart little white linen coat suit, with a bit of crisp pink blouse showing above the revers, and a black-banded, white straw hat shading her creamy skin and wide-set light brown eyes.

A woman, in a fussy figured chiffon afternoon frock, rushed forward to meet her. She looked approval at the attractive young woman standing undecided before her.

"Come right along, my dear. I'm waiting for you. I'm ready to go out. It's the first time for weeks that I've even planned to get away. And I was afraid you weren't going to get here. Now, all you've got to do is to keep him entertained. He's around on the south veranda. Please don't go till I get back."

"But—" began Shirley. "No buts, my dear. I like your looks. You're just what he needs. You see—well, anyway, the doctor says his mind has got to be cheered up. There's a houseman who'll wait on him—all you've got to do is to be amusing, diverting. So I guess all you've got to do is to act natural. You're positively too sweet for belief. I'm so glad you were intelligent enough to agree not to wear a uniform. He mustn't be made to feel that he's ill."

The older woman pushed the girl around the corner. "Here, Fred," she called, "Here's a nurse. I'll be back a little past six."

And with a rush of chiffon and perfume she was gone to the other end of the terrace, and then she had stepped quickly into a car that slid forward noiselessly from the side of the house.

The girl watched her disappear. Then, with a laugh, she turned to look around the corner to the south veranda. At the far end she saw a figure slumped down in a deck chair.

Shirley moved swiftly along the veranda. "Well," she said cheerfully, "I'm here. I'm not who you think I am, but I'll stay till—Oh!" Shirley dropped her suitcase in quite un-naturally fashion. "Oh!"

The young man in the chair slowly turned and lay languidly looking at her. Gradually a look of pleasure spread over his thin, white features. Then he closed his eyes weakly. "Sit down, please," he said.

Shirley stepped quickly to his side. "You're ill! I've startled you. Let me do something."

But the man shook his head quietly. "No," he said, "I'm not ill." With an effort he drew himself up in the chair. "Really, I'm quite all right—now. Where—when—why—how?"

"Don't talk." Real distress sounded in Shirley's voice. The man looked so wretchedly ill. "I'll tell you. You see—was that your mother?"

The man nodded a smiling "yes."

"Well, I was driving through this section on my way to visit friends in Boston—and I took this byway—well, anyway, I took it. And my car just stopped going. I couldn't budge it. And one of the doors doesn't catch—so I brought my suitcase with me and came up here to telephone for help—I didn't know you lived here. And then your mother saw me and I suppose she thought I was a nurse."

"Yes. Poor mother. She won't leave me alone with Peter—he's the man who looks out for me, so far as helping me limp back and forth is concerned. You see, after I got out of bed, fairly well mended, I didn't want a nurse."

She smoothed the blanket over his body tenderly. When he reached long, thin white fingers toward her hand, she thrust it, cool and firm and small, into his hand. Then she leaned swiftly over him, and placed a kiss on the thin white fingers.

"What happened, Fred? I knew you crashed. But I didn't know you were badly hurt."

"No—it was after you'd told me you didn't care enough to marry me. I was driving along pretty recklessly, I dare say."

Several hours later the soft, smooth purr of an automobile nearby was succeeded by the chatter of excited voices. From around the corner of the terrace appeared two women—Fred's mother and an attractive young woman in a white linen suit, carrying a suitcase.

"But I don't understand, of course," she said, "I thought I left you here with my son—"

She stopped talking as she came in sight of Shirley and Fred. Her quick mind, from what she knew and what she surmised, summed up the situation with fair accuracy.

"Well," she added, "it looks to me as if we don't need a nurse after all."
