John O. Rising

Candidate For Nomination For Sheriff on the Republican Ticket.

Mr. Rising is a life long resident of the County, a World War veteran with an over-seas record, and has served his township as commissioner of highways.

Mr. Rising is a man of action rather than promises—a man who will conduct the office in a business like and economical manner, and his friends believe the voters of Champaign County will choose well and wisely if they select him as a candidate for the sheriff's office.

Gas Tax Diversion Bill Should Be Defeated

The State Senate passed Senate Bill No. 70 last week which will divert one-third of the revenue derived from Motor Fuel Tax Funds to the School Funds. Senator W. E. C. Clifford voted against this diversion bill.

This money is to be diverted to schools because Cook County and a few southern Illinois counties have not kept their taxes paid and Cook County now owes over $30,000,000 in taxes.

The following is a portion of an editorial from the Champaign News-Gazette regarding this bill:

"The cities need all the money they can get for street work. The smaller communities, especially, can use the gas tax money to advantage in the maintenance of their streets. There are approximately 20 incorporated communities in Champaign County that would suffer if they lost a part of the gasoline tax money that is rightfully theirs. The money they get from the gasoline tax is spent in providing work for the people of the towns. Practically all of it is spent on labor. Men living in the towns get the work at home. They get the money, and the towns get the improvements. Relief rolls are reduced when employment is provided. There is everything to gain by keeping the gasoline tax intact for the purpose for which it is levied.

The fight against diversion of gasoline tax money is not won. The people have been victorious in the skirmishes thus far. But the real battle will not be fought until the legislators return to Springfield after the April primary election. When they go back they should go with the understanding that the people are tired of peanut politics. The people want the schools to be provided with money, but they don't want the gasoline tax raided. Liquor revenue and the sales tax will provide all the money necessary for state purposes. Let's keep the gasoline tax intact."

Lutheran Aid Meets With Mrs. Elsie Cress

The Ladies Aid of the Immanuel Lutheran church met at the home of Mrs. Elsie Cress on Thursday afternoon of last week.

Rev. Wm. Klautsch had charge of the devotional service after which the afternoon was spent in inspecting dresses made for children in the Children's Home at Peoria. Eighteen members and four guests were present.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bertha Kracht.

Willard G. Goodman

Candidate for Nomination to Office of County Treasurer on Republican Ticket.

Willard G. Goodman, of Bondville, Illinois, is making a favorable impression on the voters of the county in his campaign for the Republican nomination as County Treasurer of Champaign county.

Mr. Goodman is a native of Champaign county being born in Scott township and in which township he now resides on a farm. When a small lad his parents moved into Champaign where he grew to manhood and received his schooling. He is a graduate of the Champaign City schools and is also a College graduate.

For many years he has been engaged in farming and feels that he understands the problems of the farmer as well as those of the business and professional men of the cities and villages.

A little over three years ago he entered the County Treasurer's office as one of the deputies and last August was appointed to the responsible position of Treasurer by the Champaign County Board of Supervisors.

Mr. Goodman has been a close student of the affairs of the office during his tenure as Deputy and Treasurer and is without doubt one of the best qualified men in the county, at the present time, to fill that most exacting and responsible position.

He is courteous and affable to all patrons and it is his ambition to conduct the office in a manner that makes for efficiency in all departments.

All of the banks in the county are used as depositories and Mr. Goodman makes it a rule that as soon as there are monies available, to distribute same to the tax receiving bodies. By doing this it leaves no chance for a big loss in case of some catastrophe.

Mr. Goodman has proven himself a capable and painstaking official and the Republican voters of Champaign county will undoubtedly remember him at the polls on Tuesday, April 10, 1934.

Rich Men Who Give

It has long been the fashion for certain writers and speakers to criticize the American people for their commercialism—their desire to make money.

While it is true that the mere making of money is not a very high ambition, it must be remembered that it is through our genius for business that we have been able to provide the funds for innumerable things worth while, such as are not enjoyed by any other nation in the same degree.

Great sums devoted to educational, religious, charitable and artistic purposes have been made possible through successful business pursuits. Scientific research, the advancement of health measures, better homes, and the comforts and refinements of civilization generally have been due to the ability of our people to acquire money and to their willingness to spend it for these things.

Most of the high-brow critics of business obtained their education at colleges and universities endowed and made possible by business men. Business and money-making are not the end of our national ambition, but the means whereby civilization may be promoted and preserved.

Business Is Better

Yes, business is better. And the curve is holding stubbornly to its upward trend. Mainstay of the jump is still the automobile industry's spectacular recovery—and spectacular is the word. Every fresh report coming from the motor centers is more encouraging than the last. Unfilled orders for both trucks and cars are zooming. Ford and General Motors alone are reported to be at least a quarter of a million orders behind. And other industries are racing along with the auto makers. In the department stores, according to the last announcement, the cash registers are ringing merrily, with an average national gain of 25 per cent in dollar volume over last year. The chemical industries, which survived 1933 in good shape, are continuing their advance now, with glass, textiles, paper, etc., finding good markets and stable prices. The most recent Department of Commerce survey shows steel output higher, business activity better, commodity prices on the rise, stock and bond prices up and general betterment all along the line.

Discontinuance of CWA, which has employed 4,000,000 people—including teachers, artists, street cleaners, insect eliminators, a poet or two and about every possible classification of worker—is beginning and will naturally react unfavorably on business. But leaders hope for the best—and, what is more, seem really to expect it.

The Gyro-stabilizer

Seasickness and other discomforts of ocean travel in stormy weather will be eliminated when the new gyro-stabilizer comes into general use, according to Science Service.

This stabilizer, which is really a huge top made to spin at high speed, has been developed to a practical stage, and several have been ordered for installation in new vessels. The largest so far weighs 120 tons and its rotor is capable of being spun at the rate of 930 revolutions per minute by means of a 200-horsepower motor. It takes an hour to get the rotor up to full speed, and it will continue to spin for two hours after the power is shut off.

Engineers say that a stabilizer of this size will prevent a 450-foot ship from rolling more than two degrees in a heavy storm.

A new 45,000 ton Italian liner will have three huge gyro-stabilizers, it is understood, and it is expected that this device will be adopted for use in the finest ocean passenger ships of the future. Stabilizers have been successfully used for some time on yachts and other small craft, and it is believed that they will be equally effective on the largest ships.

If expectations are realized, ocean passengers of the future may be able, regardless of the weather, to eat their meals in comfort, and best of all, retain them after they are eaten.

Capital is Timid

Why is recovery from the economic depression so slow? Because capital is afraid. Many millions of dollars now lie inactive in banks because the owners of this money are possessed with fear.

Persons who invested readily in stocks, bonds, real estate and varied business enterprises during the prosperous times now hold back and await developments. And so long as they hold back through fear, so long will a resumption of normal industrial business activity be retarded.

It is inevitable that general prosperity will come back in time, but the timidity of capital may delay a return of normal conditions. And it seems that little can be done to overcome that timidity.

A Job For Statesmen

Many experienced observers of world affairs are greatly alarmed over the present outlook. Some go so far as to predict that another European war is inevitable, and perhaps not a long way off. Even the most optimistic must agree that a serious situation exists.

This, we believe, is not because any nation really wants war, but it is because economic conditions are so desperate in most European countries that the governments in power are unable to satisfy the demands of their own people for a chance to earn their daily bread. There is suffering in America—real suffering—among a large element of our population. But it is relatively slight in comparison with what is being experienced in some other parts of the world.

The pitiful paradox is that there is enough food and clothing and raw materials in the world to make everyone fairly comfortable if some means could be found for their rational distribution.

The granaries of the United States and Canada are almost bursting with surplus wheat while millions go hungry; there is an immense cotton surplus while millions go unclad; other basic commodities go begging because those who need them have no money with which to buy.

Will the statesmen and business leaders of the world be able to avert the crisis which these conditions threaten to bring about?

An optimist is a fellow who buys hair restorer from a bald-headed barber.

The will of Theodore Mants of Des Moines was in the form of a phonograph record, on which he directed the disposition of his estate, followed by the statement of witnesses. This is believed to be the first all-talkie will on record.

Running Carelessly Into Street Accounts for 30%
of Child Traffic Deaths

The April safety poster just issued by the Chicago Motor Club to approximately 38,000 classrooms in Illinois and northern Indiana, stresses the importance of looking when crossing the street.

The poster pictures a boy, blindfolded, crossing a street heavy with traffic. The caption says: "You Wouldn't Do This!" and then the lower picture shows a boy running across the street carelessly. The caption asks: "Then Why Do This?"

A bulletin to the teachers concerning this poster says that running into the street carelessly accounts for about 30 per cent of all child traffic deaths.

Farm Fire Prevention

Man is a peculiar animal. He worries a lot about minor dangers, but gives little thought to greater risks which may cost him his property and even life itself. Indifference to the danger from fire is an example of this.

People of the United States allow $500,000,000 worth of property to be destroyed by flames each year? Fires on farms cost an average of more than $93,000 a day. A farm fire occurs somewhere in this country every fifteen minutes. In five years $180,708,761 was the estimated farm loss from fires, most of which were preventable.

The farmer needs protection from fire, but he has been reluctant to help himself, although a large measure of protection would cost very little. When the average fire starts, one squirt of a fire extinguisher will put it out without serious loss. But given a few minutes to get headway it is beyond control, licking up the property owner's dearest possessions, and threatening the destruction of his family and himself.

A little fire extinguisher, kept in a convenient place for instant use, is so inexpensive as to mean practically nothing in the household budget. Handy for its vital job when a fire breaks out, its worth is incalculable in protecting house or barn, and it may often be the means of saving the lives of people and animals.

Teacher—You know, the camel can go a whole week without touching water.

Stingo—Certainly not. Didn't you see me try to dodge into that doorway?

Don't you wish you was a bird Jimmy, so you could fly away up in the sky?
Naw, I'd rather be an elephant and squirt water through my nose.

University Belongs to the People

The University of Illinois is truly an institution of the people. It is one of the best and most comprehensive examples of what a state university should be—an agency to develop every intellectual, industrial, commercial, and professional interest of the state, as well as to teach. What it has been able to accomplish is due to the interest of the people of Illinois who through their representatives in the State Government have supplied the resources necessary to carry on this great educational enterprise. They have insisted that everything be done to place and keep it in the front rank of universities and colleges. It belongs to the citizens of Illinois. Its governing body is the Board of Trustees, eleven in number, who are elected directly by the people of the State and who serve without salary.

The Governor and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction are ex-officio members. The other nine are elected for six years, their terms being so arranged that three expire every two years and are filled at general State elections. The functions of the Board are legislative. It maps out general policies; all appointments to the staff are subject to its approval; salaries, by law, are determined by it; and all assignments of funds are made by the Board for specific purposes. The annual budgets and the biennial appropriation requested of the Legislature for running the institution are subject to its approval. The Board meets monthly and at such other times as are necessary for the transaction of all of this business and its proceedings are published and reported to the Governor and the General Assembly of Illinois.

Roger F. Little

Candidate for Republican Nomination for the General Assembly 24th District, submits his name on the basis of ability, experience, standing and influence.

Two to be nominated. Vote for two.
 Plumping is unfair, undemocratic, disloyal to the party, and a loss of opportunity to the voter.
