The Bankers Today

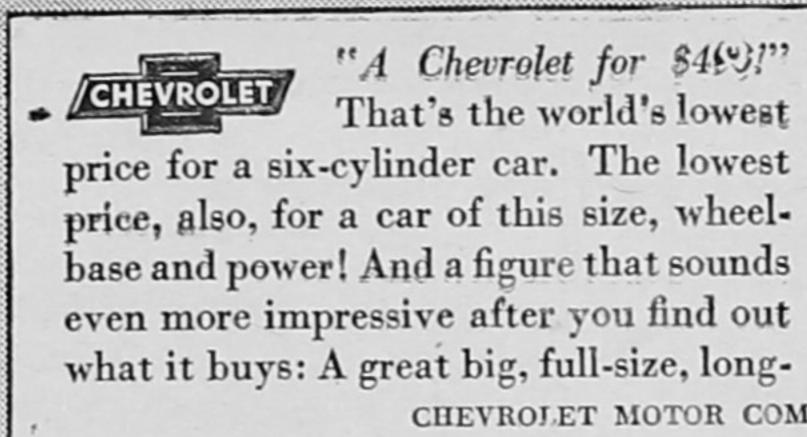

The bankers who are in charge of withstood the temptations and avoided the economic pitfalls of the great boom. If they had not they would not which even many banks and bankers, whose conduct was above reproach, high standards of professional ethics and business prudence that characterized those that remain, have passed out of the picture. How irrational this is, when we reflect that not more than three or four per cent of our entire population suffered personal loss because of what any banker did or neglected to do, whereas literally millions of bank depositors did not lose a single cent as a result of banking difficulties and really owe a vote of confidence and thanks to their own bankers who were true to the highest conceptions of their stewardship and brought their institutions and their customers safely through the greatest business disaster the world has ever seen. It has been distortion of the times that many who owe nothing but gratitude to their bankers joined in blaming the banker far out of proportion with any rational consideration of the facts.

Automobile Economy

Because of its lightness and its ability to rapidly conduct heat, aluminum is highly valuable to many industries, but has recently reached its highest degree of usefulness in automobile engine manufacture.

So much improvement has been made possible in the performance and economy of automobile engines by making certain vital parts of this metal, that Charles B. Bohn, president of the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation of Detroit, and other authorities predict that within the very near future there will in action. be few if any cars built that are inder heads, aluminum pistons and probably in the medium and high-priced fields, at least, aluminum connecting, rods.

Between now and 1940, 190,-000 people will be killed in automobile accidents.

The total of fatalities for the entire decade that began with 1930 will be 315,000, and the injury record will touch 10,000,000. The fatalities will be greater than the total of the soldiers killed in battle in the entire history of this country-and will surpass the battle casualties of the A. E. EDERAL examination of trust departments is the latest development in banking supervision and trust companies and banks operating trust departments are welcoming this development because it fills & long-felt want, it is stated by the Trust Division of the American Bankers Association. Despite the growing importance of American trust business in recent years examining officials have never given to trust departments the attention paid to commercial banking departments, this authority points out. Now the Federal Reserve System, in conjunction with the Comptroller of the Currency, has undertaken to bring up to the level of commercial bank examinations, it says.

Experts in trust work are being employed by the various Federal Reserve Banks. These experts will head the cial staffs are already at work in some of the Reserve Districts, including Boston, Atlanta, Richmond and Chicago. The Federal Reserve will ex-

Uniform Supervision Meanwhile, the Comptroller of the Currency has built up over the past two years a staff of special examiners for the trust departments of national banks. All national banks are members of the Federal Reserve System. Since nearly all state-chartered trust institutions are members of the Reserve System the new plan will bring about what amounts to Federal examination for the trust business.

State examining authorities probably will follow Federal supervisory policies to a considerable extent. Hence, coordination of the procedure of the national banking system and the Federal Reserve System is expected to result in a uniform system of examinations for trust departments in all banks. This in turn should produce considerable standardization in the operation of trust departments, the division declares.
