Carlville Youth Shot By Prominent Citizen

Physicians are fighting to save the life of Albert Perantoni, 15, of Carlville, who was shot and seriously wounded for allegedly stealing apples from an orchard. Dempsey Sawyer, 70, owner of the orchard, was held in Macoupin County jail without bond. Sawyer is one of the county's most prominent citizens.

The shooting occurred last Monday with buckshot striking the youth in the left side and arm.

After being first treated at home the youth was removed to St. Francis hospital at Litchfield when his wounds took a serious turn. Hospital attaches reported that the youth's condition remains critical.

If pedestrians were killed by gangsters as they stepped off the curb at the street corners, the whole populace soon would be aroused, points out a bulletin issued by the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor Club. The butchery would be stopped. Yet, every day pedestrians' lives are being snuffed out just about as unreasonably in traffic accidents, and the situation is accepted with a matter-of-fact indifference. Don't you be an auto-killer!

Declares Second Brood Chinch Bugs Worst Yet

Intermittent showers of the past week failed to check destruction of the Champaign County corn crop by the billions of chinch bugs now feasting upon the major field crop.

"Rains are actually responsible for a large share of the additional damage reported Monday," W. Z. Black, Champaign County Farm Bureau director, pointed out.

The new damage comes from the fallen stalks, blown over by the winds that preceded or accompanied the showers.

"Few realize the extensive loss that has been done by the second brood of chinch bugs," Black said. "Nor is it extensively known that the bugs are now doing considerably more harm than early in the summer. Cornfields are literally alive with the pests."

According to Black and other Farm Bureau officials, there is little or nothing that can be done. Most of the stalk roots have already been cut by the bugs, and the stalks are so weakened that few can stand erect in even the slightest of winds.

A Chinese Girl Star

Considering Bryn Mawr's high rank among the women's colleges of the country, it is rather surprising to learn that this year's brightest junior at that institution is a Chinese girl, Miss Vung-Yuin Ting.

For attaining the highest scholastic record in her class Miss Ting has been awarded the Maria L. Eastman Brooke Hall memorial scholarship, and for standing highest in her major subject, chemistry, she will receive the Charles H. Hinchman scholarship. After her graduation at Bryn Mawr next year she will enter the medical school of the University of Michigan.

Her father is Dr. Zoong Ing Ting, a leading physician of Shanghai, with whom she expects to practice after obtaining her degree of doctor of medicine. Her aunt is China's greatest woman physician and is the head of the Women's hospital in Tientsin.

Miss Ting is treasurer of the Bryn Mawr Athletic Club and was last year president of the International Club. She is five feet tall, weighs 98 pounds, and is said to be one of the most popular girls in the college.

She is one of many bright students from the Orient who have demonstrated their ability to equal or excel their Occidental collegemates in scholarship, in spite of what would seem to be a serious linguistic handicap.

Some Long Words

What is the longest word in the English language? That is a hard question to answer as writers have from time to time coined words of extraordinary length which have never gotten into general use.

The longest in Webster's International dictionary is honorificabilitudinitatibus, defined as "honorableness," a pedantic nonsense word, used by Shakespeare in Love's Labor Lost, and containing 27 letters.

But in chemical treatises may be found even longer words more wonderfully compounded than the chemical products which they describe. For example, tetrahydroparamethoxyquinoline, with 31 letters; also paraoxymethoxyallylbenzene of 30 letters, and others.

English must yield the palm to some foreign languages, however, when long words are considered. In German, schutzengrabvernichtungautomobile, with 35 letters, is as formidable as the war engine that it describes. In English this machine is commonly designated by the four-letter word "tank," a saving of 31 letters going to the credit of our mother tongue.

Longest of all so far discovered is a Greek word of 181 letters which appropriately enough is the name of a dish containing many ingredients. We call it simply "hash."

Electrical Names

In no other industry has the names of its pioneers taken such a prominent place in its nomenclature as in the electrical industry. Most of the terms used in designating electrical units are derived from the names of early physicists and inventors, whose work laid the foundation for 'the electrical age.'

The unit of electric power is the watt, named for James Watt the Scottish inventor, who lived from 1736 to 1819.

The volt, unit of pressure, is named for Count Alessandro Volta, Italian physicist, who made the first electric battery and lived from 1745 to 1827.

The ampere, unit of strength, for the French electrician, Andre Marie Ampere, 1775-1836.

The ohm, unit of resistance, for the German electrician, Geo. Simon Ohm, 1787-1854.

The farad, unit of capacity, for the English physicist, Michael Faraday, 1791-1867.

The henry, unit of inductance, for the American physicist, Joseph Henry, 1797-1878.

Of these terms the most familiar is the watt, and its multiple, the kilowatt, which is 1,000 watts, or the equivalent of approximately one and one-third horsepower.

It is fitting that the early investigators of the mysterious forces of electricity and magnetism should be immortalized in the nomenclature of an art which has contributed so much to the well-being of mankind, and whose future possibilities seem almost limitless.

NO GOOD REASON FOR PESSIMISM

F. M. Law, President American Bankers Association, Sees Improving Conditions and a Changing Future

WASHINGTON, D. C.—There is no good reason for pessimism today, for though the "depression is not by any means over we are coming out of it," F. M. Law, President of the American Bankers Association told the American Institute of Banking convention here recently.

"Banking is a necessary business and will endure," Mr. Law said. "In order to endure, it must be the right sort of banking, under the right sort of management."

"The American Institute of Banking commands and is entitled to great respect because its major objective is to teach and promote the right kind of banking. One of the chief reasons for my faith in the future of banking is that this organization has 219 active chapters, with over 50,000 members, and with 33,000 students enrolled, and it is doing a good job in teaching these thousands of bank employees what good banking is, and what it is not."

Business Men Should Recognize New Conditions

Business men everywhere, and especially bankers, he said, will do well to recognize and to understand the many changes that are occurring, for "it is fatal to be obsessed with the belief that any and all change from the existing order is heresy."

Banking is a serious business, he said and "I know not one single man or woman who has made a success of it who has not been over a long period of years a hard worker." He added:

"Take for your motto the old German phrase 'Ich Dien.' (I serve). Meaning what? Serve your depositors, your stockholders and society."

"Let no man tell you that private initiative is dead. On the contrary, it commands a greater premium today than ever before. If you and others like you have courage enough, if you possess patience, if you have a passion for hard work, and if, with an open mind, you look to and prepare for the future and the opportunities which are sure to come, you cannot be denied. Your generation will add prestige to the honorable calling that we know as banking."

Banks Repay R. F. C. Loans

Banks and trust companies on May 31 had repaid 61 per cent, or $967,959,623.08 of the $1,581,357,085.08 in cash which they had received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation since its establishment on February 2, 1932.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD FINDS BANKING BETTER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A review by the Federal Reserve Board indicates that the condition of operating banks, particularly in country districts, has improved in recent months, as shown by the fact that these banks have been able to reduce their indebtedness to the reserve banks, to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and to others.

The July bulletin of the board in discussing these findings says:

"At the same time progress has been made in making available to depositors funds that had been tied up in closed banks."

"Banks in financial centres have been out of debt to the Federal Reserve Banks for a long time and in addition have had a large volume of excess reserves. At the beginning of the year there were still many small banks throughout the country, however, that carried a considerable load of indebtedness."

Country Banks Reflect Improvement
"The liquidation of indebtedness by these banks reflects in part improvement in business condition and the consequent ability of customers to repay bank loans which long had been frozen. It constitutes a strengthening of the banking position."

The board pointed out that the reduction of member bank indebtedness has been continuous since the beginning of 1932 except for a brief period during the banking crisis in the Spring of 1933. The review continued:

"In 1932 liquidation of indebtedness of member banks to the reserve banks was accompanied by an increase of their borrowings from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. In the past year and a half, however, indebtedness of member banks to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has also been reduced."

SEES TURNING POINT IN BANKING HISTORY

NEW YORK. — The American Bankers Association Journal in its July issue presents the following review of banking and business conditions:

"It is an almost universal opinion among bankers that June has been the turning point in banking history in the matter of recovery. Reasons for the optimism are twofold—the condition of the banks and the prospects of better banking business."

"The reorganization of the banking system after the holiday of sixteen months ago is now practically complete. The comparatively few banks yet to be reorganized and reopened are no longer a serious factor in the situation. The year's preparatory period for the enforcement of major provisions of the Banking Act of 1933 has passed, and banks now have a definite idea of where they stand."

An American girl was rigidly questioned by Mexican immigration authorities the other day, in order to determine whether she had sufficient money so she would not likely become a public charge. This, of course, is a routine inquiry, and the young woman in question was able to convince the authorities that she could take care of herself. She was Miss Doris Duke, heiress to the Duke tobacco millions, and one of the richest girls in the United States.
