Ralph Bellamy-Fay Wray in "Once to Every Woman"

"Once to Every Woman," Columbia film, to be shown at the local opera house this Friday and Saturday nights, is a screen version of A. J. Cronin's "Kaleidoscope in K," which appeared as a novelette in Cosmopolitan Magazine last year. Included in the cast for this picture are Fay Wray, Walter Connolly, Walter Byron and Ralph Bellamy.

Mary Fanshawe, though only 26, has through marked ability and conscientious service attained a nurse-supervisor post in a hospital. In her ward is a young girl scheduled for a dangerous brain operation. Only one man in the hospital is skilful enough to perform the delicate surgery—Dr. Jim Barclay. Mary, in love with Dr. Preston, the hospital Romeo, is jealous of Barclay's apparent superiority over Preston. Chief Surgeon, the aged Dr. Selby, fearing his protégé's brilliance, attempts the operation himself, but his nerve fails at the crucial moment, and Barclay steps in to complete the surgery successfully. Selby, realizing his day is past, retires, naming Barclay his successor. Preston, no longer interested in Mary, is having an affair with Doris Andros pretty junior nurse. A disillusioned dancer, her beauty marred with acid, attempts suicide by drinking alcohol carelessly left within her reach by Andros. The latter resigns her post, but not until she reveals Preston's duplicity and philandering. The revelation opens Mary's eyes—and for the first time she realizes Barclay's affection is the love she had thought was Preston's.

Those present were: Mrs. Mary Smith, John M. Smith and family, Mrs. Anna Neal and children, Mrs. Clara Smith, Jess Ward and family, all of Broadlands; the Ward families of Bellflower and Mansfield; Mrs. Rebecca Ward and children of Urbana; Miss Sadie Oglesby of St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. Mabel Gipson and daughter, Mrs. Ruth Allison and sons, J. Holding Criminals

It is exasperating to note the frequency with which desperate criminals are allowed to escape from prison to resume their careers of murder and robbery, after great effort and expense have been incurred to place them behind the bars.

That so many do escape is due principally to the stupidity of prison officials, although inadequate jail equipment is a contributing factor. The federal government is endeavoring to remedy the latter defect by using tool-proof steel in the construction of new cells.

The new federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., will have cells made of such steel, which can not be cut by any tool which it would be possible to smuggle into the prison. Tools which would easily cut through ordinary steel leave the new bars barely scratched. Hack saws and files are rendered useless after a few strokes, acids are futile, and even a metal lathe makes little impression on the resistant bars.

The cost of installing such cells in local jails might be prohibitive, but in any event the best equipment that it is possible to afford should be provided. Even with ordinary cells, in good condition, increased vigilance on the part of prison authorities would eliminate or greatly reduce the number of escaping inmates.

War Unlikely Now

Disturbing as recent events in Germany and Austria have been, it appears that there is little likelihood of another European war in the near future. Having passed through the unrest incident to Hitler's killing of alleged traitors among his own following; the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria, and the apprehension occasioned by the death of Hindenburg, conditions in Central Europe seem to be rather less threatening than heretofore.

Hitler's latest autocratic action in presuming to dictate to the Protestant clergy of Germany has created another ugly situation, but whatever the outcome, it does not at the moment appear likely to cause international complications.

Mussolini's determination to maintain Austria's independence and his warning to Hitler to keep hands off Austrian affairs has on the whole tended to have a sobering effect on Hitler, while raising no serious protest from France or other interested nations.

The desperate economic plight of most European countries is such as to make the financing of a war most difficult, if not impossible, although continued internal unrest in both Germany and Austria may lead to further violence among their own people. In the meantime, the efforts of former Empress Zita to restore the monarchy in Austria are being observed with some apprehension.

Seeking The Truth

It can hardly be denied that with a disinterestedness not matched by any other class, the true scientist approaches every problem with an open mind unfettered by prejudice.

He has no ancient beliefs or superstitions to defend, no special cause to plead, no selfish interest to advance. He tries at all times to define, so far as is humanly possible, the dividing line between fact and theory, although he deals with both.

New theories are given respectful examination and if they can be proved they are assigned their places in the categories of fact. And when the scientific world in general reaches an agreement in any matter, it is the best possible evidence of its truth.

In an address before a scientific association some time ago, Chief Justice Hughes said:

"We need your interest in knowledge for its own sake; your ceaseless search for truth; your willingness to discard every disproved theory, however honored by tradition, while you jealously conserve every gain of the past."

While the scientific investigator, as a rule, receives meager material rewards in return for his services to mankind, all progress, both material and intellectual, has been primarily due to his labors.

Without the leadership of inquisitive, investigating and indomitable minds, we should not have advanced far beyond the standards of the cave man.

Medicine Man A Pest

Among certain Indian tribes the traditional medicine man not only fails to do his patients any good, but makes it difficult for white physicians to treat them satisfactorily, according to the director of public health nursing among Wisconsin tribes.

Reports from nurses on duty among the Indians of that state indicate that the tribal medicine men still hold a superstitious power over their people and are jealous of the white man's methods. As a result the white doctors and nurses are not called in many cases until after the medicine man has done his worst. Under such circumstances the white doctor is at a serious disadvantage and the patient often dies through lack of proper early treatment.

When this happens the native medicine man points to the white physician's failure as proof of his own superiority. And it is sometimes difficult, if not impossible, to convince the redskins that their medicine man is wrong. In fact, it is not best to criticize him much, as that would stir up racial feeling and make matters worse.

The policy of the white doctors and nurses is to try to gradually win the Indians over from superstition to scientific measures, and in this steady progress is being made. But the native medicine man is still a pest to be reckoned with, and a long campaign of education will be required to destroy his influence among the more backward members of the tribes.

Labor Day

Labor Day this year, on September 3, came at a time of great unrest among the nation's workers, and in the midst of a serious strike situation that shows little sign of improvement. More strikes have occurred during the last six months than in any similar period in several years. Many strikes have been settled, but others have developed to keep strike unemployment at a high level.

Most of the labor difficulties of the year have arisen over union recognition, or disputes respecting collective bargaining. Endless controversy has centered about interpretations of the ambiguous section 7-a of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which is likely to cause continued confusion until it has been definitely clarified.

In the main the operation of the NRA has been highly advantageous to labor, through increased wages and a shortening of the working day. But, unfortunately, in some instances the more radical element of the workers has taken advantage of the favorable aspects of the law to make demands which employers believe to be without justification.

Without presuming to pass upon the merits of any particular contention of workers or employers, it may be said that national recovery is being seriously retarded by the strike situation.

Unless all concerned show disposition to be reasonable and seek peaceful means of composing their differences, the entire country is bound to suffer from the effects of increased unemployment at a time when the demands for relief, due to natural causes, are almost too great to be met.

Tagging Our Brains

In recent years there has been an ever increasing effort on the part of psychoanalysts, psychiatrists, psychosanalysts, and what have you, to determine and classify the mental deficiencies of the well known human race.

Some time ago a comprehensive survey of mental diseases by specialists in psychiatry and allied fields was undertaken. After nearly three years of labor a new classification of such diseases has been published, the chief divisions of which are:

Amentia, neuroses and psychoneuroses, schizophrenic neuroses, psychopathic constitution, affective and emotional psychoses, toxic psychoses, organic brain disease psychoses, and other miscellaneous types. Which ought to catch nearly everybody on one count or another.

It is interesting to note in this connection that a recent diagnosis of Sigmund Freud, high priest of psychoanalysis and dream interpretation, revealed that he himself was a bit goofy, through "lack of inward integration."

Whether all of these investigations in mental science and pseudo-science are doing us any good is a moot question. To a great extent, the conclusions reached by the so-called experts appear to be so much bunk, although some discoveries of value may have been made.

A close analysis would probably reveal that all of us are a little cracked, either habitually or occasionally. In fact, someone has said, "crazy people are just like other people, only more so." And if, as some contend, crazy people are the happiest, why worry? But perhaps it is more fun to be nutty with a fancy psychosis.

Sidelights

Twins, a boy and a girl, whose birthdays are 2 days apart, were born to Mrs. J. W. McDaniel, of Macon, Ga.

Mohammedans have at least one signal virtue in that they never ask "Is it hot enough for you?" Their religion forbids them to comment on the weather, lest it appear that they are critical of Allah's meteorological arrangements.

The wisest get fooled once in a while. An object treasured and proudly exhibited for 20 years by the Smithsonian Institution as "the world's oldest ear of corn," reputedly grown in Peru, has been found to be merely a cleverly moulded piece of baked clay.

Progress toward civilization is noted among the Batak inhabitants of the Dutch East Indies, who formerly were cannibals, given to eating enemies taken in war, as well as old people of their own tribe. Now, it is said, they have forsaken that primitive custom, and eat dogs instead.

This is a year of many notable anniversaries. To mention only a few: 400 years ago Henry VIII renounced Catholicism and set up the Church of England, and Jacques Carter discovered the mainland of Canada; 300 years ago Maryland was founded; 200 years ago Franklin printed his first book in Philadelphia; and in the same year Romney, the painter, and Robert Burns, the poet, were born; 100 years ago James McNeil Whistler, Chauncey M. Depew and Charles W. Eliot were born, and Lafayette died. What happenings of 1934 will the world remember in the centuries to come?

A Busy Woman

HERE'S a woman who occasionally "dines" on a can of tomato juice from the ice-box. Her name is Claudine Macdonald, and she is the director of the Woman's Radio Revue, a featured daytime program over the National Broadcasting Company networks. Those who have not given the subject thought might be surprised to realize the vast amount of executive and detail work that goes into making a variety program such as this.

Mrs. Macdonald is one of the busiest women in the country. Not only must she procure a famous guest speaker for each of the five days a week that the Woman's Radio Revue is on the air, but she must also build a vocal and instrumental program around each speaker.

No Time to Eat

"Some days I don't even have time to eat," says this only woman director of the National Broadcasting Company. "Often I have a meal sent in from a nearby restaurant, but there are many times when I get nothing. On those evenings, when I get home from the studio too tired to think of stopping anywhere for a bite, I 'dine' on a can of tomato juice from the ice-box. Then I get a few hours' sleep, and go back to work."

Tomato juice is a tasty drink which has won its way to popular favor through its succulence and flavor as well as because of its health-giving qualities. But did you know that you can have it either hot or cold, served as either a cocktail or as bouillon, and that it is now making its appearance in these forms at many formal luncheons and dinners, though not as the entire meal as is sometimes the case with this very busy woman?

Time Lost is Money Lost

It costs money to be sick. You see it directly if your pay envelope is short. You lose out on some important work if you live on a farm or if you are one of the few who are not docked for lost time. You can't afford to show up on the job unless you are feeling fit. The boss wants results—not excuses.

How many times do Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, "That Tired Feeling," That "Morning After" Feeling, Neuralgic, Rheumatic, Sciatic, Muscular or Periodic Pains keep you at home or interfere with your doing a full day's work?

All these troubles are caused or made worse by too much acid in your body. To correct this condition take

ALKA-SELTZER

The New Pain Relieving, Alkalinizing, Effervescent Tablet.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid. Alka-Seltzer is pleasant to take, harmless, non-laxative.

Governor Horner on Automobile Accidents

Calling attention to the increasing number of automobile accidents and the annual toll of lives as a result, Governor Henry Horner in a statement issued recently, urged citizens of Illinois to participate in the Nation-wide Highway Safety Movement throughout the month of September. The Governor's statement said:

"The appalling useless loss of life and limb resulting from carelessness in the handling of automobiles on our streets and highways presents a problem which has become of real concern to the state and nation. No citizen of this state can lightly pass this matter by or fail to accept his own share of responsibility for its correction when he is faced with the startling fact that over thirty thousand lives are lost in the United States from this cause annually and over a million of our citizens injured.

"The general condition of the health of our people and living conditions in Illinois are continually improving but accidents of all kinds still comprise the fourth greatest cause of deaths in Illinois and automobile accidents alone are still responsible for the death of more than one-third of all persons killed accidentally.

"A great many states of the Union are joining in efforts to be made in September to promote the safer use of the streets and highway and it is proper that I urge the citizens of Illinois to participate in this effort.

"In the first six months of this year, 1,135 people have met death from automobile accidents as against 875 in the corresponding period last year, an increase of 30 per cent, while the indicated increases for the country as a whole is around 20 per cent.

"Last year the number of deaths in the second half of the year was almost 49 per cent greater than in the first six months. Consequently, if deaths in the last six months of this year increase over the startling record of the first six months of this year in the same proportion as they did a year ago, more than 2,800 persons will have been killed in automobile accidents and make up the State's greatest casualty record from this cause.

"Therefore, I cannot too strongly urge the citizens of Illinois to participate in this Nation-wide Highway Safety Movement with a full knowledge of the terrible record and the individual responsibility it places upon our citizens to help reduce the loss of life on our highways."

Not a bad motto for anyone who wants to avoid accidents.

Storms Cause Hay Fever

Storms as well as ragweed pollen bring on hay fever asthma, observations made at the Illinois Research and Educational Hospitals, Chicago, have shown, according to a report to A. L. Bowen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, from Dr. Major H. Worthington, managing officer of the hospitals.

For the past three years, Dr. Worthington's report said, "we have been trying to determine the effect of air conditioning on hay fever and asthma due to ragweed pollens. The first two years, our activities were confined to filtration of pollen only. A study was made to determine the type of filtration apparatus best suited for eliminating pollen.

The observations in 1932 led us to suspect other conditions besides pollen were responsible for attacks of asthma occurring in pollen sensitive patients; that in spite of the absence of pollen from the room, patients previously free of asthma developed attacks during a storm. As a result, last year, the room was equipped with apparatus to dry the air and keep the temperature at a fairly constant level, as well as eliminate pollen. Attacks during storms less severe and delayed in onset, but still occurred with a severe storm.

This year we are studying the effect of other conditions which may be responsible for attacks during storms. The room has been equipped with apparatus to increase air ionization stimulating conditions occurring before the storms. This is an additional measure to control the humidity, temperature and pollen elimination.

Attendant—No, he's gone out for lunch.

Patient—Will he be in after lunch?

Attendant—No, that's what he went out after.
