I. A. A. Supports 3-Way Program

Retention of the Agricultural Adjustment Act with all its provisions for controlling farm surpluses, enactment of an amendment to the State Constitution definitely limiting property taxes and prevention of further diversion of gasoline taxes from use for highway and street improvement, comprise the three point program behind which the I. A. A. seeks to unite all Illinois farmers, according to Farm Adviser J. E. Harris.

"In Champaign County as well as in other counties throughout Illinois, Farm Bureau committees are polling candidates for Congress and the State Legislature to determine their attitude on the three questions," Harris points out. "Early reports indicate an overwhelming percentage of candidates are ready to support the stand of the I. A. A."

An attempt is to be made, the local Farm Bureau committee states, to canvass every farmer in Illinois to get his support behind this program.

Ask Farmers to Cut Down Hog Numbers

Champaign County farmers were urged Monday to balance their swine herds during the present week.

"We want every contract signer who has too many hogs in his herd to meet the requirements of his AAA contract, to advise the Control Association office as quickly as possible," Elmer Messman stated Monday.

The hogs, which now number approximately 1,000 more than the contracts permit, must be disposed of before the producer is entitled to the benefits under the terms of the corn-hog contracts.

"A representative has been appointed to collect the hogs under the IERC plan," Messman pointed out, "but only after recommendations are made thru this office will the contract signer be cleared."

"We are asking that every producer who knows that he cannot comply with the requirements of the contract and who wants to give the pigs to the relief offices, to get in touch with us this week."—News Gazette.

"The Hell Cat" Comedy-Drama

A trio of outstanding Hollywood luminaries, comprising Robert Armstrong, Ann Sothern and Minna Gombell, will be seen in the leading featured roles of Columbia's "The Hell Cat," which will be shown at the local theater this Friday and Saturday nights.

"The Hell Cat" is an original screen concoction of comedy, melodrama and thrills. It presents a colorful treatment of the "taming of the shrew" theme in the story of a young, spitfire society debutante who sets her cap for a presumptuous young newspaperman audacious enough to sock her back when she slapped his face for attempting to take her photograph.

Briefly, the story concerns the efforts of the incensed deb to tame the hard-boiled, cynical newshawk. After the more obvious methods have failed, she disguises herself as a reporter from a small town and wins her way into his confidence. Together they experience a number of thrilling adventures tracking down news stories—climaxing their escapades in an exciting sea chase of a smuggler's yacht by a Coast Guard patrol boat.

Sam Warner Burns While Playing Euchre

Local euchre players had plenty of fun at the barbershop one day last week, when Sam Warner, one of the regular players, caught on fire. When the smoke began to roll, Sam began to tear his shirt. George Walker called for the fire department, Will Smith sounded the fire siren, and the boys laughed loud and long, and are still laughing. Some of the boys say Sam caused the conflagration when he reached in his shirt pocket and pulled two matches apart; others say Sam got too hot because he was playing too hard. And Carl Dicks says that spontaneous combustion started the fire.

The Y. W. O. Class of the U. B. Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Clem on last Wednesday evening.

The refreshments consisted of sandwiches, pickles, pumpkin pie with whipped cream, and coffee.

Ira Laverick has improved his property occupied by Roy Boyd and family, with a new coat of paint.

Art Struck ran into a culvert while delivering a truck load of stock to market the first of the week. His truck was damaged to the extent of about $100.00, it is said.

Willard G. Goodman for County Treasurer

It is our privilege this week to give a few facts concerning Willard G. Goodman, Republican candidate for Treasurer of Champaign county.

Mr. Goodman is a native of Champaign county, is married and has one son. He is a graduate of the Champaign City schools and Virginia Military Institute.

At present he is engaged in farming and lives on a farm near Bondville, Illinois. Consequently he is well aware of the problems of the farmer and anxious to see conditions bettered for those who till the soil. He has been a member of the Champaign County Farm Bureau for many years.

After his graduation from the Virginia Military Institute he served as bookkeeper and grain buyer in an elevator and has also had banking experience.

He is a veteran of the World War and a member of the American Legion.

Following the war he engaged in farming. Four years ago he was named as one of the deputies in the County Treasurer's office. This position he held until his appointment as acting Treasurer by the Board of Supervisors in August 1933.

Since his appointment he has proved a most capable and efficient public official. It is also true that it has been largely due to his untiring efforts that the county is beginning to get its debts paid off and the accounts of the county on the right side of the ledger again.

Voters should consider well at this coming election the qualifications of the candidates as it means much to have men of proved experience in office.

The experience Mr. Goodman has had in these various lines of endeavor especially qualify him to ably conduct the affairs of the Treasurer's office efficiently and economically.

A vote for him is a vote for experience and ability.

"No Better Will Be Made"

Looking back only a comparatively few years, we may remember or have called to mind many things which were taken seriously then, but which cause a smile today.

Such a smile may be evoked by an advertisement appearing in the Review of Reviews in 1899.

Properly displayed and accompanied with an illustration that looks very much like an ordinary rubber-tired runabout buggy without a tongue, the advertisement said, in part:

"The latest and best Horseless Carriage. Combines all requirements for an ideal and practical pleasure or business vehicle. No better will be made. Time cannot improve it. $600. Delivery in sixty days. Send for illustrated catalogue and interesting reading matter about self-propelled vehicles."

The fellow who wrote that advertisement took in quite a lot of territory. "No better will be made. Time can not improve it."

Think of that—35 years ago.

Happy Marriages

Psychologists, sociologists and other ologists are continually checking up the well known human race with respect to all its varied activities nowadays, so it was inevitable that they should make a study of happy marriages, if any, to determine how come.

After a long and patient research, several of these experts have disclosed their findings, which purport to show that persons who marry relatively late are more likely to live happily than those who marry at an early age.

To give a few examples from the statistics compiled by these indefatigable researchers, the following conclusions are quoted:

A girl who marries after she is 25 is three times as likely to find wedded bliss as one who rushes into matrimony before she is 20.

Males who marry after the age of 25 have 2.2 times the chance for married happiness as those who marry at an earlier age, according to one expert, while another places the ratio at 2.5. In either case note the decimal point.

Where both parties to a marriage are over 25, the chances for making a go of it are still greater. How far above the age of 25 this rule holds good is not stated.

Now tell all this to two youngsters between 16 and 20 who are that way about each other, and see what happens.

A Prodigy Grown Up

About eight years ago considerable publicity was given to the precocity of Ellen Elizabeth Benson of Texas, who was rated as America's brightest child. Before she was nine years old she had passed examination tests showing mental qualifications equivalent to those required of a high school teacher.

When she was 12 her intelligence quotient was determined to be 214, said to be the highest ever recorded in the United States by a person of any age in a Binet-Simon test. During the following year while in college she wrote six articles which were accepted and published by Vanity Fair. These and other intellectual feats brought her much fame as a child prodigy.

Recently a New York reporter rediscovered Ellen Elizabeth, now 21, living in a small apartment in the suburbs of that city. She said she was very happy, and hoped later on to resume her work, which has been neglected for several years, but at present she finds other activities more expedient.

She was married several months ago to Harold S. Leach, an employee of an ice cream company, whom she declares to be a perfect husband, in spite of his limited education. She, too, has a job—as cashier for an automobile concern—which is more than a lot of other bright people can boast of right now.

Misfits on the Farm

Everyone knows that farmers have not had a bed of roses for several years, and many of them are sorely pressed at present in spite of the numerous legislative acts designed to aid them.

Still, regardless of the difficulties of their general situation, there may be found in nearly every community a number of farmers who have made progress or who have at least held their own, even during the depression. These, it is needless to say, are men who really know farming, and plan their operations in an intelligent manner.

A leading banker in the Northwest, after checking up a large number of farmers in his community, has come to the conclusion that farm failures are due largely to lack of experience on the part of those who failed. He found that among those who have been least successful are a number of persons who do not belong on the farm, and lists a few as follows:

Two circus musicians, a paper-hanger, a sailor, a sea-going engineer, a race horse man, a brick-layer, an undertaker, a deep sea diver, a milliner, a professional gambler and three old maids.

All of these failed as farmers, of course, as might have been foretold, and their unfavorable experiences illustrate the futility of much of the "back to the farm" propaganda that has been spread about.

The farmer needs training and experience in the management of agricultural affairs, just as those in other walks of life must have training and experience before being entrusted with important activities. A misfit on the farm will be a failure, as he will be in any other calling for which he is unsuited.

Interesting Notes

The total membership in all church denominations in the United States is nearly 61,000,000.

Mary Anna Beckwith, wealthy society girl of Chicago, has taken a job as stenographer in an advertising office because she wants to do something useful.

Following the death of M. Marcel Caudet of Marseilles, it was learned that he married 40 years ago and kept the wedding secret.

Alfred Azner of London was granted a divorce because his wife had concealed from him the fact that she had been convicted of bigamy.

Constructed of light aluminum alloys and mounted on rubber tires, a compact lunch wagon as complete as a modern kitchen has been provided.

Joseph Cuneo, a Washington baby 2 years and 4 months old, can count in both English and Italian, knows both alphabets and can name any animal by looking at its picture.

"Walking is Safer Than Running," warns the October safety poster just issued by the Chicago Motor Club to more than 36,000 schoolrooms in Illinois and Indiana.

The picture underneath the caption shows a boy running across the street through traffic, while two of his classmates stand at the curb, waiting to walk across the thoroughfare at the first safe opportunity.

Running into the street was the cause ascribed by the Chicago police in the deaths of 169 children killed in that city in 1931, 1932 and 1933. More children were killed while indulging in this practice than any other. The accident prevention department of the motor club determined in a survey of each of the 426 child traffic fatalities in Chicago during the years 1931, 1932 and 1933 that the practice of running into the street is the most dangerous in which a child can indulge. This cause was responsible for 169 out of all deaths, or 39 per cent of the total.

The next most dangerous cause ascertained by the club in its survey was hitching rides and playing in the street. Sixty-eight children were killed while so doing. These comprised 16 per cent of the total. Crossing in the middle of the block was a cause of 45 deaths, or 10 per cent of the total.

Less than one child out of every seven killed, or 14 per cent, to be exact, were found to be not at fault.

Sidelights

A monument to Thomas A. Edison was recently unveiled at the Iwashimizu shrine in Japan. It was from bamboo grown near this shrine that Edison made the filaments first used in the development of the incandescent lamp some 55 years ago.

Al Smith is said to have made this crack when someone asked what chance foes of the New Deal had to organize their opposition: "No chance at all so long as the government keeps giving away money; nobody shoots at Santa Claus."

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, head of what he calls the Christian Catholic church at Zion, Ill., predicted that the world would come to an end on September 10th. It didn't so Wilbur did some more figuring and admitted he may have made an error of eight years. He now says the works will blow up in 1942.

An investigation by the Washington Taxpayers' Protective Association has disclosed that in the national capital many supposedly destitute persons drive expensive cars to the relief stations for handouts of food. It might be amazing if the public really knew how relief agencies are being imposed upon by such impostors.

One of the strangest coincidences recently recorded was the death of Captain Robert D. Willmott of the liner Morro Castle on board that vessel a few hours before it was destroyed by fire with great loss of life. The superstitious will see an omen of disaster in the captain's death at that particular time.

Prosperity appears to have struck Eryjindzan, Turkey, where the prices demanded for especially attractive brides have been suddenly advanced from around $150 to as high as $500. Whether this boost is the result of government price-fixing or merely the working of the law of supply and demand was not stated in the dispatch containing the news.

This was one of the first days of spring to capture glorious geniality from the gently warm sun and faintly stirring air—nature's farewell to a dragging, bitter winter.
Number 991 pressed his cheekbones against the bars of his open window. Even the metal felt less cold and unyielding than usual. Zephyrs stirred his sandy hair which had become much thinner during the ten years of incarceration. This morning out of the ruts of resignation which had claimed his spirit from the first rose a consuming desire for the far fields of freedom and the nomad life that had once been his.

Notes of song trilled over to him as if in direct answer.
"Meaning 'Cheerio' and 'Carry on' and all the rest of the uplift stuff," Number 991 muttered with a wry mouth. Nevertheless his shoulders straightened and he responded with a clear whistle.

I am much pleased with your Anti-Pain Pills. They sure are wonderful for a headache and for functional pains. I have tried every kind of pills for headache, but none satisfied me as your Anti-Pain Pills have.

About to turn away from the window, his gaze—which had been riveted on the cage—was caught by the sight of a child scrambling onto a chair which stood beneath it. The child was small, and had trouble making the grade; but finally stood on the chair and commenced fussing with the tiny door of the bird's prison. At once a woman appeared on the scene, removed the child with apparent scoldings, and pushed the chair away.

The significance of this ordinary incident flooded the man's mind with the conviction that some day the child would succeed with its mischief and his little companion would escape to those far fields of freedom that nagged their hearts perpetually.

Thus the idea of escape was born in Number 991 on this day of lovely promise which had suddenly new meaning for him. Amazed, and somewhat bewildered, he for the first time realized how many opportunities he had missed; wrapped as he had been during the years in the dull inertia of confinement and prison shop labor. The check-up of tools was often lax. It would be simple to confiscate and conceal files and oil. Nights were long in which to softly sever his bars.

He felt that escape for the little pal was destined. Why not for him, too? The chance to secure tools came soon and Number 991 became a different man. He stepped out of the prison rut of resignation into the province of love of life. A thousand sleepless nights had taught him where the night guard of his cell-block would be at any given moment. No detail of secrecy eluded him. Night by night the four little rifts in two of his bars grew imperceptibly deeper.

Intimacy, also, progressed between the bird and the man. Never a morning that they did not exchange buoyancies:
"How you coming, friend?" Carolled over.
"Fine! How 'bout you, little one?" Whistled back.
And often the mischievous child stretched its arms high for the cage, reinforcing Number 991's premonition that freedom for them both was a certainty.

The morning came when all but the last few strokes of the file had been taken. A few more deft moments' work would spell separation of the steel, and—escape! Watching the bird across the way, the man's body stiffened suddenly and his cheekbones pressed the bars so closely that he feared they might give way.

The child was dragging a chair under the canary's cage again. Today! The child climbed on the chair; fussed with the cage door, and opened it. The golden bird winged swift flight through the open window, and downward, beyond the man's impetuous gaze that strove to follow.

Number 991's joy mounted to the peak of elation. The little pal was free to travel the far fields—travel with him—to indulge fantasy.
Number 991 remained long at the window planning his own escape for that very night. He dreamed as he sniffed the blossom-scented air hungrily. Then he noticed the little boy; shoulders drooped in penitence; go out of the house opposite and disappear around the corner.

But why did the child return running followed closely by a sleek black cat, and carrying something in small, cupped hands as he screamed for his mother. Number 991's eyes strained to see! They caught a glimpse of a lifeless little blob of yellow from which the feathers drooped awry.

Number 991 turned away from his nearly severed bars, despair in the deep lines of his sagging face. With a watchful look everywhere first, he flung the tiny files through his bars and they disappeared in the tall grass of prison acres just as the morning shop bell clanged through the corridors. Far fields indeed!
