"The Party's Over" a Sparkling Comedy

That great American institution—the family—provides the butt for hilarious farce in Columbia's "The Party's Over," to be shown here Friday and Saturday nights. The cast of featured players is headed by Stuart Erwin and Ann Sothern.

Bruce Blakely disavows an art career to support a selfish, indolent family. His one sympathizer is Ruth, his comely young secretary. She goads him on to leave his family and go to Paris to study, but the incessant whinnings at home keep him shackled. His father is a gay philanderer; his mother more interested in ancestry than pancakes; his sister in love with a would-be crooner whom she marries and brings home to roost on the Blakely doorstep; and brother Clay who comes home from college with a waitress-wife in tow. The final straw is the former maid's threatened suit against his father for alienation of affections. Bruce reads the riot act, announces his prompt departure for foreign shores and with a promise from Ruth to marry him as soon as they are in Paris, leaves the stunned Blakely household wondering—what next?

Show of Belgian Horses in Danville

A show of the finest Belgian draft horses in the world, owned by H. C. Horneman of Danville, will be held at Danville on Saturday, Nov. 3.

These horses have been declared not only by American but Belgian horse breeders as the finest Belgian horses in the world.

Mr. Earl Allen, expert trainer, will be on hand to show the horses. According to Mr. Horneman, a large part of the phenomenal success of these horses is due to Mr. Allen's expert care and ability to develop the correct traits of the breed and his methods in showing them.

Mr. Horneman is particularly anxious that lovers of horses and those interested in breeding horses inspect this exhibit.

Furious Animal Near Rantoul Attacks Moving Car

Mr. Bull, having escaped from the Murray Bros. pasture and being driven home by John Murray along route 119 west of Rantoul Monday morning, evidently was displeased, says the Rantoul Press.

Anyway, when John Quinlan came driving a Ford truck along the route toward Rantoul, the bull charged the moving automobile.

One of the animal's horns went entirely through the radiator and the Ford was carried from the pavement by the impact but did not upset. In the scrimmage the two front tires of the car were blown out and the car was badly damaged. Mr. Bull escaped uninjured and serenely walked away after having apparently relieved his feelings.

Broadlands Lodge, A. F. & A. M., will meet on next Monday night.

Perils of Kissing

Every so often some learned doctor—whose best friends, we suspect, won't tell him what his trouble is—has his fling at taking the joy out of life by issuing solemn warnings against the perils of kissing.

Now comes one Dr. O'Leary of Minnesota, who declares, as many have done before him, that kissing is likely to spread a wide variety of disease germs, ranging from tuberculosis to housemaid's knee.

But, like others of the killjoy tribe, the good doctor doesn't know just what can be done about it. In spite of all warnings, the ancient art of kissing still flourishes. It is even suspected that in certain quarters it is on the increase.

Yet few will deny that kissing has its dangers. One of which, in certain cases, is that of getting caught.

Paying Ransom Money

When a person is kidnaped, it is only natural that relatives should be willing to pay any amount they are able to raise in order that the loved one might be returned to them. Kidnapers know this, and that is why they ply their nefarious trade.

If it were made unlawful to make ransom payments, and the making of them construed as "compounding a felony," it would remove the incentive to kidnaping. In a recent Canadian case the authorities stepped in and forbade the payment of ransom by the victim's relatives. When the criminals found that no money was forthcoming they turned the man loose, not desiring to add the crime of murder when they knew there would be no profit in it.

At first glance it may appear a harsh procedure to prevent the payment of ransom to obtain the release of the person held. But it seems to be the only way in which this meanest of crimes can be stamped out.

Each payment of ransom encourages further kidnapings, because desperate criminals will always take a chance at beating the law when there is a probability of obtaining large sums of money as rewards for their crimes.

The Earth's Age

While Austria was in a turmoil over the assassination of Dictator Dolfuss some weeks ago, a patient scientist, Miss Edith Kroupa of the University of Vienna, was examining and analyzing a tiny bit of mineral, seeking further knowledge of the antiquity of the earth.

The mineral she studied with painstaking care was a mere speck, about one-hundredth of an ounce of a substance known to geologists as monazite, sent from Canada, where it had been found to possess peculiar radioactive properties, somewhat similar to those of radium.

By methods well known to scientists, radioactive substances have been employed to determine the age of the earth thru observing their rate of disintegration. Using radium, it has been computed that our planet must be not less than 1,850,000,000 years old. Miss Groupa's studies suggested an age of about 1,725,000,000 years.

Without quibbling over a discrepancy of only a hundred million or so of years, it is now quite generally accepted that the earth has been spinning in space between one and a half and two billion years, and perhaps longer.

This great age, as determined by modern science, is in marked contrast with that computed by Archbishop Ussher, the eminent Irish divine, who 300 years ago placed the date of the creation as 4004 B. C.

A Safety Pledge

Safety organizations throughout the country have long made appeals to motorists in an effort to promote the habit of careful driving, to the end that the appalling loss of life through preventable accident may be reduced.

Unfortunately, these appeals seem to fall upon deaf ears, as the 1934 record of fatalities and injuries in automobile accidents seems destined to reach new high figures. Still, the effort for safety must go on, in the hope that some good may result.

A recent safety pamphlet contains this pledge, to which every motorist might well subscribe:

1. I will obey all of the rules of safe driving all of the time.
2. I will deny the use of my car to anyone who forgets even a part of those rules a part of the time.
3. I will set an example of highway courtesy.
4. I will uphold the authorities as they endeavor to protect life and property from the incompetent and careless.
5. I will aid in arousing public opinion to the point where it will insist that something effective be done immediately to stop this slaughter on our streets and highways.

American Homes Best

The advantages enjoyed by the average American citizen are more impressive to B. C. Forbes, the well-known American writer on business subjects, whenever he visits Europe. He was born in Scotland and he knows his way about in Europe. He has just returned from abroad with some interesting conclusions directly in favor of our home conditions.

Telephones are rare, and newspapers do not have the wide circulation they have here, where they are regarded as a necessity in the average home. In a typical English boarding house he visited he found only one ordinary workman wearing a spotless shirt, collar and tie, and that workman was an American.

Furthermore Mr. Forbes reports that he found virtually no washing machines, another American device which has become so widely adopted in this country that its absence in the average home is likely to be a matter of comment by any visitor.

The living standards of the average European family are so much lower than the average American family that the contrast is remarkable. Mr. Forbes points out that anyone who goes into the home of the average European and observes its great lack of such equipment as is common in America to ease the burden of the housewife and to make living simpler and more economical, becomes thankful that he lives in the United States instead of Europe.

When Des Moines police captured three safe blowers, one of them was found to be the wife of another, dressed in a man's clothing.

Earl Warren of Eultan, Wash., sawed into an immense hollow tree trunk and routed out a big bear, which fled leaving a bunch of black fur in the saw's teeth.

Almost starved a cat was found standing guard over her three dead kittens among the ruins of a burning building at Montreal.

To The Voters:

I would liked to have called on every voter in Champaign county during this campaign and talked with you personally, but the duties of the Treasurer's office has kept me very busy every day. All the time I have had for campaigning has been in the evenings. Consequently I have not had the privilege of meeting all of you.

This is one of the busiest times of the year in the Treasurer's Office, as all the tax books must be balanced, final statements made up and reports filed for the closing of the fiscal year, therefore I believed it my duty to devote my time to this work.

I will appreciate your vote and feel that you, too, will realize that my time now belongs to the county.

Long View and Tolono F. F. A. Hold Joint Meeting

Several members of the Long View Chapter of the F. F. A. were entertained Monday evening at Tolono High School by that chapter. Mr. Braeuninger accompanied the boys and cooperated with Mr. Henderson, the Tolono Advisor, during the program. According to the rules of the activity contest all members in attendance will be awarded two points on their score.

The meeting started with the regular opening ceremony given by the officers of the chapter. Next on the program was a short speech which Dr. Nolan delivered while the Greenhands were prepared for the initiation then conducted by the officers. This is the first grade in the organization, and Mr. Henderson instructed the newcomers on its true meaning and purpose.

At that time a team from Long View composed of Mr. Braeuninger, Clyde Collins, Glen Carleton, Kenneth Bickers, Arthur Peters and James Beatty formally initiated the Future Farmers of the Tolono Chapter by using the ceremony which is outlined by the F. F. A. organization especially for this purpose.

As the hosts again took the floor, three honorary members: Mr. Letsinger, Mr. Drummond and Mr. Martin were elected and received a short speech from the president. When further business was asked for and none brought before them, the presiding officers ended the meeting with the closing ceremony and a salute to the flag joined by all. The next hour was devoted to recreation and refreshments after which the guests returned home. The Tolono Chapter is a leader in such activities, and Long View hopes to sponsor something similar to it in the future since they have seen how successful it was.
