WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure. You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.

Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?

DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.

Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.

Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.

You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. Mrs. Silas D. Keller, Penfield, Pa.

I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they are all using them. Mrs. Martha Lacy, Davenport, Iowa

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand all the time. I can certainly recommend them for pain. Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio

Sidelights

A returned explorer tells that among certain African tribes the young girls are starved for several days and then given a good beating just before they are married. A foretaste of the joys to come, as it were.

Alaskan natives are becoming civilized, if awarding alimony is a mark of civilization. For deserting his squaw, Charlie Big Eyes of Ninilchik was required to pay her off with one butchered bull moose, 10 dressed mink skins, 10 fox pelts and 100 salmon.

While applying for a marriage license at Fort Wayne, Ind., Clarence Friend and Josephine Knoll both fainted, the bride-to-be swooning first. After being revived they received their license. It would be interesting to learn how they bore up when they faced the minister.

Hunters are notorious for mistaking the nature of their targets, and Jack Evers of Green River, Wyo., is no exception. When he presented a pelt at the courthouse and claimed a wolf bounty, it was pointed out to him that he had erred in shooting and skinning the sheriff's police dog.

Hicks Foster of Blue Mountain, Miss., is both frugal and ingenious. When his old car refused to run he used the chassis in building a wagon, the fenders for a water trough, hinges for a barn door, radius rods for a wire stretcher, engine block for a doorstep, and radiator for a fire-place screen.

Recently Senator Borah proposed that the United States investigate the trouble between the Catholic church and the Mexican government. Now a Mexican senator wants his government to investigate the United States. The latter might not be a bad idea if it should lead to a remedy for what is the matter with us.

Golden wedding anniversaries are not uncommon, but when the four participants in a double wedding all live for 50 years after the event it is rather remarkable. This happened in the case of J. T. Manning and J. G. Page of Alabama, and their wives, who recently celebrated a half century of wedded life. Mrs. Manning and Mrs. Page are sisters.

IT WAS a pity, friends said, that so delightful a person as Doris should be married to A. Lindsey Mund, the most notorious producer in the show business. And yet Doris went around squandering her loveliness on an ugly little man whose only concern in life was that there might be a shortage of women.

She certainly couldn't be in love with Lindsey, whose reputation was even less attractive than his pot-bellied, sal-low-looking self. They wondered why she'd ever married him 'til they remembered that Doris, an upstate girl, stage-struck and anxious to try her wings, had doubtless been flattered by the attentions of one of the biggest men in the business.

All her friends wished she'd realize what life could hold by changing her name to Mrs. Dick Manning. And Dick who dogged her footsteps wished it most.

"Doris," he said one afternoon on the tiled terrace encircling the Mund penthouse, "you're going to Paris this summer, aren't you?"

She nodded assent.
"Come back single," he pleaded.
"On what grounds?" she smiled.
"Can't accuse him of non-support," she contended.

"Can't get it on incompatibility," she went on. "We don't see enough of each other to know whether we're incompatible or not."

"And I couldn't get it for cruelty. He never puts a hand on me."
"How about infidelity?" interrupted Dick. "Or does he come home early every night like a fond little husband and toast his toes before the hearth?"

Doris smiled again. "You could hardly expect a man up to his eyes in rehearsals to come home early every night," she pointed out.

Dick felt like taking this woman he adored and shaking some sense into her lovely head. Did she really think Lindsey was impeccable, or did the Puritan strain in her rebel at divorce? But because he knew that should he touch her to shake her, he'd change his original intention and take her in his arms instead, he sat stiffly silent beating his clenched hands together softly.

The minutes passed. "Doris," said Dick finally, "loyalty to the man whose name you bear and whose name I can't bear because it's attached to you, is all very pretty, but I want you to snap out of this forgotten-woman role and let me prove that as far as I'm concerned all other women are forgotten."

"Dick you're sweet." Her fingers lightly touched his sleeve.

"Sweet nothing, I'm bitter! Oh, Doris, don't you think you could love me a little if you tried?"

Her gray-green eyes clung to his.
"Tell me . . . If whenever a man's name is mentioned you quiver all over; if whenever you hear his voice it's as if something lifted you up and held you there; if whenever he looks at you your eyes drop lest he read your answering message. . . . Tell me is that love, Dick? Because if it is I don't think I could stop loving you if I tried."

"Doris!"
But before he could reach out to her she had risen and walked quietly to the edge of the terrace where she spoke dully as she watched the flaming streamers of the sunset wrinkle into the darkening canopy of night.

"I happen to be married. I took him for better, for worse."

"If you're so punctilious why let him forget . . . and keep thyself from all others, unto her alone?" Dick wanted to know. "But doubtless Lindsey was too busy eyeing the bridesmaids to hear the stipulation. You're just a silly martyr, Doris, that Lindsey uses for a safety-valve. As long as he's neatly married none of his soft-voiced sirens can put up a howl."

"You're a little harsh on him, Dick. A man in his profession has to be on the lookout constantly for new talent."

"Um. Doris, when are you going to see him as he is?"

"When the shoe fits," she answered. And so Doris spent the summer in Paris without resorting to its law courts. Just before she returned Lindsey gave up the penthouse for a much smaller place in the same building. No one was going to the theater any more, he said. Actually the amount saved was feathering another nest, but of course that would have to be proved to Doris, Dick sighed.

It was proved the night after her return. Doris, Lindsey and Dick were in the living room of the new small apartment having their after-dinner coffee when the doorbell rang and a freckled lad of about twelve handed Doris a pair of strange, tiny slippers. They were spik-heelled, snub-toed, and flaunted perky bows.

"We've moved into your penthouse," grinned the youngster, "and my mother sent me down with these shoes you forgot. She found them in the bedroom closet."

Dick thanked the lad and hastily bundled him off. Doris found herself holding a pair of slippers that could not have been hers by three sizes.

At the corner rummage sale the little old woman in charge looked distressed. "Didn't fit at all!" Dick boomed jovially, his arm flung across the shoulders of a freckled youth whose eyes danced because of Dick's generous bill.

Then the sallow face of A. Lindsey Mund loomed in Dick's inner vision. "And yet," he added, "they certainly did."

Oh, that's all right, answered the farmer cheerfully, "I helped myself to your tools and a spare tire while you were in the orchard."
