Latest 'Chan' Film Packed With Thrills

Charlie Chan, smoothest of modern sleuths, is on the trail again in "Charlie Chan in London," the thrilling Fox Film mystery which comes to the Broadlands theater Friday and Saturday nights of this week.

This time Charlie aids a young English girl whose brother has been convicted of murder. With only sixty-five hours to spare, before the brother mounts the gallows, Charlie sets out to prove the young man's innocence.

The trail leads him to a manor house not far from London.
There the threads of the story meet in an intricate maze of plot and counterplot, leading finally to an enthralling climax. There is a fox hunt, packed with suspense, in which Charlie pursues his human quarry across the countryside. There is a desperate dash to save the life of still another victim of the mysterious murderer.

Drue Leyton and Raymond Milland supply the romantic interest in this newest of the Charlie Chan thrillers; and there is delicious comedy provided by E. E. Clive, as a bucolic Detective Sergeant, and Elsa Buchanan as a very British maid-servant.

Don't miss "Charlie Chan in London" if you enjoy a gripping mystery yarn of a high order.

...MEMORIAL DAY...

Each year more and more graves of our soldier dead claim the loving attention of relatives, friends and living comrades, who on May 30 place upon them flowers and flags as tributes to those who sleep.

This beautiful custom is said to have originated at Petersburg, Va., where on June 9, 1865, the citizens decorated the graves of a number of Confederates who had fallen in battle while defending the town on the same date a year before. In 1868, Mrs. Logan, wife of General John A.
Logan, then commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. happened to visit Petersburg on its annual Memorial Day and was so impressed with the idea that she recommended to the general that it be made a national custom.

Accordingly, he issued a proclamation next year, calling upon all posts of the G. A. R. to observe May 30 as Decoration Day, or Memorial Day, by which it is also known, and this day is now a legal holiday in 40 states and in all U. S. possessions.

In recent years, especially since the World War, this date has been observed more generally in the South, usually under the auspices of the American Legion, although all Southern States also observe Confederate Memorial Day, on different dates in the various states.

These dates are April 26 in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida; May 10 in North and South Carolina, the second Friday in May in Tennessee, and June 3 (the birthday of Jefferson Davis) in Louisiana.

National Memorial Day on May 30 is the occasion for especially impressive ceremonies at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery, near Washington, where the President and high officials of our own and foreign government usually participate in the exercises.

State Gas Taxes and Registration Fees Total $46,544,599

Gasoline taxes and registration fees paid by Illinois moterists during 1934 totaled $46,544,- 597, as compared with $44,062,- 338 in 1933, according to J. J.
Cavanagh, general manager of the Chicago Motor Club. Basing his statement on preliminary statistics Mr. Cavanagh continued:

For the country as a whole, gasoline tax and registration fee collections amounted to $846,- 226,722, against $820,127,751 in 1933, an increase of 3.1 per cent.

An outstanding feature of the state motor vehicle tax statistics was the increase of nearly 6 per cent in gasoline taxes which rose from $518,195,712 in 1933 to $548,588,420 in the year just closed, representing the highest gas tax in history.

In contrast to this was the slight reduction, amounting to 1.4 per cent, in registration fee collections. This reduction took place despite increased car ownership, reflecting the movement in several states toward reduced license fees.

The total of nearly $850,000,- 000 of state gasoline and registration taxes accounted for about 40 per cent of state tax collections from all sources and was greater than any other single source of state revenue. This fact should be borne in mind by legislators writing new tax statutes, because experience has proved that unwise and excessive taxation of the motor vehicle user tends to dry up the richest source of revenue available to the states.

cago to work for her Master's

Vermilion County Retires Bonds; To Have Roads Jubilee

Twenty years ago Vermilion county adopted the first bonds ever issued to build a connected system of pavement. The last of these bonds will be retired on June 1. For this reason and because the 18-year-old single lane concrete promises to last a couple more generations, Vermilion county is to hold a Hard Roads Jubilee in Danville, June 5.

A long parade will be held in the afternoon with each township competing for the distinction of having the most beautiful float. Each township is to elect a township queen and attendants who will ride in the float. A feature of the program will be the burning of the recently retired bonds when they will be lighted by a Hard Roads Queen yet to be selected.

The address of the afternoon will be given by a speaker of national prominence, according to the Jubilee committee.

A large banquet will be held in the evening in honor of Vermilion road pioneers.

Vermilion county claims the honor of having more miles of pavement than any other like community in the United States.
The county bond issue of $1,500,- 000 largely built 166 miles of single track. The original skeleton system of single track proved so popular that the townships supplemented the county program.
In addition to the 140 miles of state bond issue roads, which include 50 miles of widened county pavement, Vermilion now has 257 miles of single lane pavement.

This pavement, nearly all of concrete 10 feet wide, connects all towns and cities and provides year round travel.

William John Ben- schneider is Called

William John Benschneider, 54, died at Payne, Ohio, May 20, 1935. Mr. Benschneider was a former resident of Broadlands and was well and favorably known here. His mother, also a brother, Carl, and sister, Mrs.
Hannah Luth, reside here.

Funeral rites were held Wednesday, May 22, at Payne, Ohio.
The following obituary was read at the rites:

William John Benschneider was born at Danville, Vermilion County, Ill., on March 22, 1881.
In his infancy Holy Baptism was administered to him, whereby he became a member of the Church.
On March 18, 1894, he was confirmed in the Lutheran church near his home.

On March 1, 1908, he married Mary Kamm. It was in 1915 that Mr. Benschneider and his family moved to Paulding County, Ohio, living in the general vicinity of the village of Payne.
Here he took an active part in the affairs of the St. James Ev.
Lutheran Church, serving as a church officer from time to time.
Likewise, it may also be said that he took great interest in the problems of his community, and set himself to the task of attempting to solve them.

In recent months especially, the health of Mr. Benschneider had been very poor, and on several occasions he was confined to his bed. Finally, on Monday morning, May 20, 1935, death came as a welcome escape from the pain of this life. He had attained the age of 54 years, 1 month and 28 days. He is survived by his widow, five sons, two daughters, his mother, one brother, three sisters, and many other relatives and friends who mourn the loss of him.

DIAMOND CHARLIE had followed the crowd into Chinatown to get a look at the five dead Chinese lying on the cobblestones at the corner of Pell and Mott.

The police were loading the bodies into the patrol wagon. Charlie stood at the curb looking at the drying rust colored spots on the gray cobblestones. That last Chinaman—more Americanized than the rest—no pigtail, eyes glazed, lips half open. The rich merchant, Li Sung Moy.

Charlie watched the second patrol wagon back up to a three-story frame house at the corner of Doyers street. In the last room they found Li Sung Moy's white wife.

In the flickering light her face looked pale and unreal. Her hair was heavy, golden, coiled softly about her head, banded by a tricorn jeweled headress. Festoons of pink and yellow flowers fell to her shoulders; pearls twined with jade ornaments hung in a fringe over her wide, blank, blue eyes. She smiled at the police as they questioned her. They wrapped gray blankets about the fragile body, and carried her down to daylight from the room where she had lived for sixteen years.

Charlie edged his way to the curb to get a look at her. Her eyes blinked like an owl's in the sunlight. She hid them with her long embroidered sleeve. He heard her moaning as they lifted her to the long seat of the wagon. The gong sounded, the crowd and pigeons scattered together. Charlie rolled a cigarette with one hand, staring after the wagon with a scowl. Then he lit it with a cupped match, pulled his low-crowned derby lower over his eyes and started for Bellevue hospital.

He stopped in a saloon for a drink and looked at himself in the mirror over the bar. She'd never know him—not after sixteen years. Not much left of the old debonaire Charlie—Diamond Charlie—circus con man. Only the horseshoe scarfpin of small chip diamonds in the red satin four in hand. His cuff links held two more pretty good stones, and the snake ring on his little finger had a big white diamond, the best he had left of the old display.

Funny that he had found Blanche this way. Hunting for her sixteen years, happening to follow a patrol wagon to watch them rip open the old hop joints, and there she was. He had only just got in town, unloading elephants up at Mott Haven since midnight, trekking with them all the way down Third avenue. Tender of elephants he was now. He grinned wondering what Blanche would think of that.

He had to wait at the hospital even after he had signed a card naming himself her best friend. The smell of the river swept over the old gray quadrangle. Made him think of Bridgeport and the docks—of Blanche, eighteen, just from Australia booked to do a big spectacular act on the rings. Little wisp of a girl. They had married and kept with the show for five years, until she missed one night in Buffalo.

Dope to stop the pain, hoping to keep on with the act. Something wrong with her back. Left behind in New York to be treated while he went on to the coast. No answer finally to his letters, even money orders returned and at last, word from the police that she was missing from the rooming house on Twenty-ninth East where he had left her.

He glanced at his watch and started for the addit ward. Blanche lay back on her pillow white as the jade amulet on the red silk cord about her throat. Charlie waited while the doctor examined her; the purple shadowed long nails, her dreaming eyes beneath closed lids.

When he left, the nurse set a four-fold screen around the bed. Any time at all, she told Charlie. On the way to the hospital in the patrol wagon she had taken an overdose of something hidden in her long satin sleeve.

The elephants up in Madison Square garden missed some of their usual ministrations while Charlie sat hours beside the white bed. He held one of her hands in his. Her other one clung to the jade amulet on the silk cord. He talked to her, trying to penetrate that last deep sleep. She had always wanted him around when she did her act, he thought. He used to wait for her while she took her final bows to wrap her blue velvet cape about her. Blue velvet with swansdown edging. Blue eyes, blond curly hair. Pale blue silk tights, blue satin blouse—little bit of a thing she was. He hummed the old entrance music to himself half consciously—the "Skater's Waltz."

He thought he felt her fingers close tighter over his hands. "Listen, Kid-die," he said eagerly as her eyelids lifted. "You look great. Your act was fine, honey. You're all right, kid—see, it's Charlie telling you—Charlie. I'm right here, kid—"

She gazed up at him as she made her entrance into the Big Show. On his way out under the red brick ivy-covered archway, Charlie rolled a cigarette musingly. Mrs. Blanche McCarter, beloved wife of Charles M. McCarter. In the "Clipper and Billboard." Some of the old-timers would see it. He'd take a day off and run up to Bridgeport to bury her, their last trouping together. And violets. Plenty. She liked them. He turned his coat collar up against the freshening east wind and started briskly over toward Third avenue to hunt a good pawnshop for diamonds.

How Good is Business?

How good is business? Outside of those industries which are again facing the threat or the existence of strikes, it is doing well and, seasonal changes taken into account, is improving in various basic lines.

Steel production recently stood at 45 per cent of capacity, an encouraging level for this time of the year. March sales of passenger cars were 98 per cent ahead of last year and show no sign of diminishing. Chrysler's sales for the first quarter were the highest in its history. Machine tool makers had the best April business in five years, and electrical goods manufacturers are reporting increased orders. Residential construction is exceptionally good and will probably improve with summer.

Swindling the Fat

Due to the present feminine desire for slim figures, thousands of women are being swindled by vendors of alleged fat-reducing preparations, which have no value whatsoever.

Put up in the form of "fat reducing chewing gum," or "fat reducing gum drops," some of these fake cures are quite attractive, but several of them which have been analyzed were found to contain nothing conductive to slenderness except a drug having a slight laxative effect. These reducing remedies are usually accompanied by instructions to eat only half as much food as usual, to take long walks, and be sparing in the use of bread and potatoes. Following these directions would tend to secure the desired result, of course, without the chewing gum and gum drops.

Doctors tell us that it isn't healthful for fat people to be slim, anyway. "Be yourself" is their advice.

Ten Miles From Broadway

If a recent newspaper correspondent is to be believed, one of the most primitive settlements in America is only 10 miles away from Broadway. It is on what is known as Sour Island, in the Hackensack Meadows, New Jersey.

This settlement, it is said, consists of 32 families, who have up to the present time, lived without schools, churches, telephone, movies, sidewalks or any modern conveniences.

All the inhabitants know of New York City, only 10 miles away, is the nightly glare of the electric lights in the sky. Once in a while some of them visit the nearby village of Secaucus to make a few purchases, but otherwise they are as remote from civilization as if they lived on an island in the South Seas.

Possibly they are as happy as the average New Yorker at that.

Writers and "Ghosts"

It is the simplest thing in the world to win fame as a writer nowadays—provided you have won fame in some other way first. The newspapers and magazines bristle with articles by this or that celebrity, and it begins to look as if famous folks are going to monopolize the printed page, to the exclusion of professional writers.

But there's a catch in it. In most cases the famous folks do not write the articles which they are supposed to write. They merely give a capable writer an outline of what they want to say and he does the rest. When the work is finished the celebrity gives it his OK and it is published as his own.

Of course, there are many prominent men and women who actually write the articles and books which bear their names, but in the case of stage people, pugilists and other sport champions, politicians and even business men, the actual writing is usually done by a professional, known as a "ghost writer."

Interesting Notes

For stealing a Bible, Charles Hamilton, of Halls Run, W. Va., was sent to the penitentiary for two years.

Jean Meridith, a San Francisco girl, traveled from that city to China, to spend one day with her parents, and returned by the same steamer.

Mrs. Alexander Unmer of Detroit secured a divorce recently and the cast-off husband then married her daughter, who was his step-daughter.

To win a wager, Nel Smith tried selling genuine $5 bills for $3.39 on downtown Los Angeles streets. Of hundreds who stopped to listen to his offer only two persons bought.

Although a bullet shattered one side of 11-year-old Jack Fleckner's brain, the other lobe has begun to work for the injured portion and the boy will recover fully, says his doctor at Port Clinton, Ohio.

Mrs. Thomas L. Havercamp, of Somerville, Tenn., recently resigned her job as one of the few women mail carriers in the United States, after walking 34,000 miles since starting her route in 1920.

Peter De Paolo, 1925 Winner, Ready For Come-Back Try At 500-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The toughest hill in the world is the comeback trail. But here's one champion who thinks he can take it in high all the way to the top. He is Pete De Paolo, one time racing champion and 1925 winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race, who is making his comeback this year in that classic on May 30. The smiling, little Italian speedster, who crammed a century of excitement into a decade, earned a quarter of a million dollars and lost it, wrote a book of his thrilling life as a race driver and put away his goggles after a spectacular crash in which he nearly lost his life, wants another shot at fame whatever the odds. Better than 100 to 1 are the odds against a successful comeback, authorities agree. Only to an champion this seems like a fair price. Dempsey and Benny Leonard failed, Jeffries couldn't make it. Joey Ray missed and so did Harold "Red" Grange among others. "They never come back" is a sports truism. "Only they do — now and then," Pete insists. "Look at Babe Ruth and Gene Sarazen. The Babe was almost through and came back stronger than ever. Sarazen is a greater golfer now than he was when he first won the U. S. Open in 1922. And ten years later he went out and won both the American and British Open. But even if they hadn't done it, I think I can." And there are a lot of Pete's friends who think he can. They point out that Pete is in the pink of physical perfection, a condition he owes largely to handball and regular gym work. He has, too, a first class mount this year—one of the team of 10 Ford V-8's which were entered by Harry Miller of Detroit.

Richard Arlen May Ride In Auto Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—A handsome adonis of the screen with a rough and ready disposition may ride the bricks in the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway here May 30. He is Richard Arlen, star of the movies and an expert on combustion motors in his own right. Arlen has made a bid to ride as mechanic with his good friend Peter De Paolo, winner in 1925, who is attempting a come-back this year. DePaolo has accepted the application and Arlen must now pass muster before the A. A. A. Contest Board and receive permission from his studios. Regardless of whether he rides or not, Arlen will be a member of the De Paolo pit crew and not for picture purposes because he is capable of jerking out a spark plug and analyzing the motor condition as well as any other member of Pete's mechanical family.

Why "Typhoid Nurse" Is Giving 'Em Shots

When the reporter met the "typhoid nurse" in the office of M. L. Hunt, county superintendent of schools, Hamilton county, in McLeansboro, she talked of "shots" and sanitation and sickness. Out among the schools the reporter found pupils drinking from open cisterns, the water often coming from the schoolhouse roofs. He found ancient "openwork" toilets, falling apart; apparently of pre-Civil war vintage; buzzing flies and crawling insects. In the Farris district, home of the above toilet, the assessed value of all property is $19,940. Taxing for school purposes, at the legal limit, $1 to the $100 valuation, the school can get $199.40 per year. There are 18 pupils enrolled. That's $11.77 each. The school asked for $852.83 state aid last year. But the state, due to a legislative faux pas, is far back in its payments to the starving schools of the state.

Whiskers Will Flow Until He Wins Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—George "Doc" MacKenzie may be eligible for the baseball nine of the House of David before he wins a 500-mile race.

The Edington, Pa., flash has determined to let his whiskers grow in a Van Dyke beard until he captures the big prize of automobile competition and his whiskers will float in the summer breeze as he whisks about the Indianapolis Motor Speedway here on May 30. MacKenzie has not fared so well in his starts in the big-time although he has been a worthy contender about the dirt tracks. He had a feature Californian race in his pocket until he ran out of gas a short distance from his goal but recently led a good field to victory at Reading, Pa. Much in his favor, MacKenzie will have a capable car this year entered by Gil Pirrung of St. Louis, Mo.

The last few days of favorable weather has put many farmers in the fields, finishing their spring plowing and planting corn. Many local farmers have equipped their tractors with lights to go day and night, in order to catch up with their much delayed farm work. Although only 2 percent of the corn has been planted in this vicinity with favorable weather the next ten days much of the corn planting will be completed.
