Declare CIPS Pfd. Dividend

A dividend of $1.00 per share on the $6 and 6 per cent Preferred Stocks of Central Illinois Public Service company has been declared by the Board of Directors, payable July 15, 1935 to holders of record June 20, 1935.
L. A. Magraw, President of the company, stated that in addition to the Federal 3 per cent tax on the income from electric residential and commercial customers which the company is absorbing, it is now faced with the possibility of a State 3 per cent tax on utility revenues which is equivalent to approximately $1.10 a preferred share annually. In view of this situation, the declaration is not to be construed as a resumption of dividends on a regular basis. The policy regarding future dividends must be determined from time to time as earnings and general business conditions dictate.

The News is $1.50 a year.

Sally Rand to Appear at Palace Theater, Danville

The management of The Palace Theatre, Danville, announces the biggest amusement scoop in the history of Danville theaters for next Tuesday when the glamorous and world renowned Sally Rand makes a personal appearance.
Coming direct from the Casino de Paree, New York City, accompanied by her own company of twenty-five De Luxe night club entertainers, Danville is indeed fortunate in being included for a visit of the girl who created such a sensation at the World Fair in Chicago.
Miss Rand will appear in four shows, and the usual screen attraction will also be shown.

Miss Mildred Freeman Bride of George Harden

The marriage of Mildred Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Freeman, Broadlands, and George E. Harden, son of Mrs. Sue Harden, Longview, took place at 5:00 p. m., on Saturday, June first, at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of the immediate relatives. The Rev. C. M. Temple of Blue Mound, officiated.

Attendants were Miss Anne Harden, sister of the groom, and David Freeman, brother of the bride.

A white crepe costume with matching accessories and shoulder bouquet of pink rosebuds and blue forget-me-nots was worn by the bride. The bridesmaid wore pale blue crepe with white accessories and yellow rosebuds and white sweet peas in shoulder bouquet.

After the ceremony a two course buffet supper was served, the bridal table having appointments of pink and white flowers. A large wedding cake trimmed with a miniature bride and groom, was the centerpiece for the table.

The bride was graduated at Longview High School after which she attended the State Normal at Charleston. For the past two years she has taught at the Fonner school and is re-employed there for the coming term.

Mr. Harden is also a graduate of the Longview High School and at present is employed with the Marlatt Battery Co., at Danville, where they will make their future home.

Dr. Dicks Has Narrow Escape In Auto Accident

Dr. T. A. Dicks had a very narrow escape from serious injury last Sunday morning, when he figured in an automobile accident. The accident occurred on the paved road near the Madigan home north of Longview, when the doctor passed another car going in the opposite direction. His car skidded on the dirt side of the road which was wet and slick at the time and crashed into the guard railing. A 2x6 inch plank measuring 12 feet in length was driven through the radiator and into the front seat of the doctor's car.

After viewing the car with that plank running through it, one is convinced that the doctor had a miraculous escape from serious injury or possibly death. His car wasn't greatly damaged.

Lee Tracy-Helen Mack In "You Belong to Me"

A story of the heart-break, pathos and the human drama that goes on behind the curtains of the vaudeville stage, and in the private lives of vaudeville folk, Paramount's 'You Belong to Me' will be shown at Broadlands this Saturday night.

Heading the cast are Lee Tracy, Helen Mack, Helen Morgan and the latest juvenile star, David Holt, aged six, who makes his debut in this picture.

Also Popeye and Betty Boop Cartoons.

Women and Time

From time immemorial husbands have complained of the long time it took their wives to dress; men have observed that women did not heed the flight of time, but carried on interminable telephone conversations without realizing how long they talked, and so on.

This apparent lack of regard for time by the fair sex has long been the source of endless comment—often profane. But now it has all been explained, thanks to modern psychology.

Exhaustive tests conducted at Johns Hopkins University show that women just naturally can't help it. They don't realize the meaning of "tempus fugit."

These tests developed the fact that women on an average estimate the time it takes them to perform a given task at about one-half the actual time required. Dr. Isabel Stewart, who conducted the tests, which were made with 1,048 students, both men and women, said:

"Men estimate more accurately. The inaccuracies of women imply that time really seems shorter to women than to men."

Which recalls the joke of a paragrapher who wrote: "Married men do not live longer; it just seems longer."

Jane Addams

The death of Miss Jane Addams in Chicago a few days ago removes one of the most remarkable women America has produced. Her achievements as settlement worker, social and political reformer, author, lecturer and ardent peace advocate, brought her world-wide fame.

Born in Cedarville, Ill., September 6, 1860, Miss Addams had the benefit of an unusual education, supplemented by several years of foreign travel.

In 1899, with Ellen Gates Starr she opened the Hull House settlement in Chicago, of which she has since been the head. Her interest in sociological theories caused her to devote her life to practical efforts in behalf of the poor and degraded, a work in which she achieved marked success.

She had honorary degrees from several American universities, and in 1910 she was given the first honorary degree ever bestowed by Yale on a woman. As president of the Woman's International League for Peace she presided over conventions at The Hague, Zurich, Vienna, Washington, Dublin and Prague.

In 1931 she shared the Nobel Peace prize with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, and the same year was given the Bryn Mawr achievement award of $5,000.

While by some Miss Addams was considered quite radical in her social and political views, no one ever questioned her sincerity or the fact that she performed yeoman service for distressed humanity during her long life.

A Bright Chinaman

Popular notions of Chinese character and intelligence were given another shock when Dana Yung Kwai was voted by the senior class at Yale its most brilliant member. While a freshman he won prizes in history and chemistry; as a sophomore he won prizes in drawing, mechanics and physics. Before entering Yale he distinguished himself as a student at a Washington high school and won a medal as captain of a cadet company.

Yung Kwai is the son of the counselor of the Chinese legation at Washington—who is himself a Yale graduate.

Although the accomplishments of this gifted young man are exceptional, his record proves that there must be latent among China's millions many bright minds capable of being trained to high efficiency, and used with mighty effect for the advancement of civilization.

Popular Fallacies

After an erroneous statement has been repeated often enough it is next to impossible to eradicate it from the popular mind.

For many years the question was asked why the addition of a fish to a pail of water would not add to the weight of the bucket and its contents. Several ingenious explanations were offered, but the real reason could not be agreed upon. Finally some inquisitive skeptic weighed a bucket of water and after adding a five pound fish weighed it again. It weighed just five pounds more than it did before adding the fish. The question, therefore, was shown to be based upon a false assumption.

A similar situation is pointed out by the Christian Science Monitor in answer to the question of why the younger generation is so much inclined to crime. Thirteen cities reporting to the United States Children's Bureau showed that in nine of them juvenile delinquency decreased last year, while an increase was noted in only four.

Likewise, it is popularly supposed that crime in Chicago is more prevalent than ever before. Yet actual statistics show that crime since 1915 in that city has not increased in proportion to the increase in population.

It is unwise to jump at conclusions or take too much for granted.

Peace and Pacifism

Among all the movements now abroad in the world with the ostensible aim of promoting universal peace, there are some which use the cloak of a worthy cause in spreading propaganda of the most sinister sort.

Every right-minded person wants peace. But, as has often been pointed out, there is a great difference between desiring peace, and being willing to sacrifice everything else to secure it.

The Revolutionary fathers might have had peace through submission to the encroachments of the British crown. Belgium might have had peace, a little while at least, by allowing the Germans to cross her territory without resistance, at the beginning of the World War.

Illustrations like these might be multiplied indefinitely, to show what the doctrine of pacifism or non-resistance may lead to. While it is the hope of idealists that war eventually may be banished from the earth, few practical persons cherish any such delusion.

About the best that may be hoped for is to reduce the causes of war to a minimum, and endeavor to localize hostilities which break out from time to time.

This result will be attained, not through militarism or pacifism, but through reasonable preparedness for eventualities, while exerting every honorable means for preserving peace.

Use Your Beans to Vary Them

HAVE you ever realized the number of different kinds of beans you can get in a can? Baked beans, Kasher beans, lima beans, beans with pork, red kidney beans, stringless beans, and beans with tomato sauce all come to you in this convenient form. Of course you can make a great variety of dishes with all these different kinds of beans, but the ones most difficult to vary are the baked beans. These make a fine dish just as they come from the can, but have you ever tasted

Curried Baked Beans: Fry one-fourth pound bacon, and remove to dish to keep hot. Add two shredded green peppers to fat, and sauté until golden brown. Add two No. 2 cans baked beans, two cups tomatoes, one-fourth teaspoon pepper and one teaspoon curry powder, and simmer from fifteen to twenty minutes or until slightly thickened. Serve garnished with the bacon slices and whole sweet gherkins. Serves eight.

Another Foreign Tang

If you don't particularly like curry, but do pine for a sharp taste in your beans, here is another recipe with a foreign tang:

Mexican Baked Beans: Fry sixteen rashers bacon, and remove to platter to keep hot. Pour off all but about six tablespoons fat. Add two diced onions, and sauté till golden brown. Add the contents of two No. 2 cans baked beans and two teaspoons chili powder, and heat thoroughly. Add salt, if desired, to taste. Serve bacon on top. Serves eight.

And fine for picnics are
Baked Bean Sandwiches: Mash one-half cup cold canned beans, add two tablespoons chili sauce, one tablespoon chopped capers, two tablespoons chopped dill pickles, salt and paprika, and spread between buttered slices of brown bread.*

Sidelights

It is said that the carillon in the tower of the University of Chicago chapel is the largest in the world, its 72 bells weighing 220 tons. The smallest bell weighs ten and a half pounds, the largest more than 18 tons.

Twenty-one years ago Bernard Coe was judge of a "queen of beauty" contest in Maryland, and shortly afterward married the queen. Since then she has borne him 20 children, 15 of whom are living. Two are married, and she is a grandmother at 38. The Coes live on a farm near Priest's Bridge, Md.

Mrs. Dionne of Canada, mother of the world-famous quintuplets, has nothing on a mother goat owned by Dominick Frasure, a farmer of Geneva, N. Y., which recently gave birth to five healthy kids. The press dispatch announcing the event assures us that it isn't kidding.

Some time ago Charles Over, Jr., a wealthy young businessman, glanced through the pages of a film magazine while ill in a California hospital. The face of Iris Adrian, beautiful red-head of the screen attracted him, and when he recovered he sought an introduction. They plan to spend their honeymoon in the Orient.

Harris Bark, 21, of Muskogee, Okla., is one of the comparatively few persons whose heart is on the right side of his body, and to this circumstance he probably owes his life. Recently he was shot in the left shoulder, the bullet ranging downward to the spot where one's heart is supposed to be. His wasn't there, so he will probably recover.

Sidewalk Cafe

WNU Service.

THE rain swept suddenly down upon Fifth avenue and drove the diners indoors. All but Constance who left her young man for a gap in the boxed hedge and ducked around the nearest corner. Like a bedraggled chicken running for cover, she thought a little hysterically, and hailed a passing cab.

"And that's that," murmured Constance settling herself as comfortably as possible, meaning that she had written a rather clever ending to an evening of adventure. Meaning that if a girl has been so indiscreet as to pick up a man, the better part of valor lies in flight.

Once back in her hotel room, surveying her rain-drenched self in the mirror, all fear vanished and all sense of shame as well. She was glad that she had got dust in her eye and had to have it removed by the best looking man in New York!

It had all happened because she had spent a two weeks' vacation in New York alone and this had been her last night. And dining all by yourself in one of those romantic sidewalk cafes between Madison and Washington squares wasn't so pleasant if you remembered that very shortly you must return to Mr. Berring and his typewriter back in Midvale.

The best looking young man she had ever seen was dining just two tables away quite alone.

A bit of Fifth avenue lodged in her eye. It felt more like the Empire State building, although it came out at the first dab of Constance's handkerchief. But Constance discarding all her aunt's teachings, had continued to wipe her eye and had even moaned a little for good measure. It had worked! The tall blond young man had left his seat to offer assistance. He had said: "You see, I've had a great deal of experience; my mother was always getting things in her eye. So if you'll permit me—"

Constance had submitted bravely to having her ridiculously long lashes rolled back on a match and to having the corner of a very large, very clean linen handkerchief inserted in a perfectly clear eye.

"There!" the young man had announced at last and gravely showed her a fleck of dust on his handkerchief.

So the blond young man moved over and they lingered over coffee and cigarettes. They exchanged names and other unimportant information which on Constance's part, at least, was strictly misleading. She still preferred to be a New Yorker down for her shopping. His name was Bill Maynard. He was the sort you called Bill at once. He had lived in New York all his life.

Bill was saying: "You're a real person, Constance. I mean—real."

Constance had wanted to say that she wasn't real, at least she wasn't what he thought her. She wanted to tell him that she was just a stenographer from the Middle West enjoying a vacation in New York.

"I'd like you to meet my mother. She's a darling. Taught me to scrub behind my ears; that hard work never hurt anyone; and not to tell lies."

"So many people do," murmured poor Constance, "tell lies, I mean."

"You couldn't," Bill had said confidently.

How could she tell him then?

A few days later she was walking the streets of her home town, jobless.

She knew she ought to be registering at an employment agency but nothing seemed to matter now. She had lost her job and Bill. She looked at a store set back from the sidewalk and thought, "What a grand place for a sidewalk cafe."

Then said sternly to herself: "Look her, Constance, this won't do, you know. You've got to be nonchalant," and took out her compact to repair the damages from not being nonchalant.

After that she felt better. She could even face the wind which was blowing off Main street and then it happened again! All the dirt from Main street was in her eye and no amount of rubbing did any good.

She turned blindly toward the nearest door. She'd have to sit down and find her handkerchief; she'd have to find some one to help her. Only there wasn't any Bill now.

Some one inside was taking her elbow, leading her to a seat. A professional voice murmured, "It's rather dusty, isn't it? Now if you'll just hold still a moment—"

And then gentle, efficient fingers were rolling back her ridiculously long lashes.

"There, do you want to see what did the damage?"

Constance opened her eyes. She saw a glass case filled with eye glasses above which was a sign "We Are Glad to Remove Dust from Your Eyes Free of Charge." She looked up and there was—

"Bill!"

"Constance!"

"But how, when, where—" It simply couldn't be true.

"You darling! did you think I'd let you get away so easily? In all that nonsense you told me, you had said you were stopping at the Treymore. And when I found that you were from Midvale, well, Midvale was as good a place to hunt for a job as any, so—"

"You found a job and I lost one."

"You only need one job in a family," said Bill confidently.

"I hadn't," and Constance smiled, "thought of that."
