Important Changes Made In New Banking Law

By virtue of Senate Bill No. 532 State banks in Illinois will be given a new impetus and a better opportunity to compete with National banks. The bill accomplishes a number of important changes in our present archaic banking law.

Most important among these is the provision limiting stockholders' liability. A decision of the Supreme Court several years ago (Merchants State Bank vs. Sanders) removed all limitations on stockholders' liability in the event of bank failure, and under this decision, even though a stockholder had transferred his bank stock twenty years before the closing of the bank, he might be liable to assessment in event of failure of the bank. The change limiting liability should add considerable value to stock in State banks.

Other changes affect the investing power of banks, limit borrowing, and are designed to afford additional security to depositors.

Interesting, also, is the provision which allows a State bank to move from an "over-banked" to an "under-banked" town. This is not possible under the present law and should afford relief to several cities and villages in Illinois which were deprived of banking facilities by reason of the recent banking crisis.

Other important legislation accomplished by the Committee on Banks and Banking affected the operation of trust companies and investments by trustees.

Most interesting, perhaps, was Senate Bill No. 569 which is significant at the present time because it permits trustees to invest in refunding bond issues. Many trust accounts in Illinois are invested in old bond issues paying 4 to 5 percent, and these issues are being called in for the purpose of refunding and refinancing. Without these changes in the law the trust funds invested in these bonds would have to be reinvested in governments at 2 to 2½ percent, and would permit some very fine investments to escape from Illinois.

Auto License to be Reduced

Automobile owners will benefit by House Bill No. 392 introduced by Representative Schaefer O'Neill of Alton, which passed and will become active as soon as signed by the Governor. The bill reduces the automobile license fifteen percent, which will be a big saving to automobile owners in this state.

There has been considerable complaint over the state for some time that citizens of Illinois were paying more for license fees than were being paid in surrounding states. The bill has the unqualified endorsement of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes.

From Poverty To Power

That American boys have no monopoly of the opportunity to rise from humble origins to places of power is pointed out by a recent writer, who names several world figures who began life in poverty.

Lloyd George, former British premier, was an orphan brought up by a cobbler.

Ramsay MacDonald, the recent premier, rose from abject poverty.

The late Aristide Briand, several times premier of France, began life as a waif.

Pierre Laval, former French premier, was once a butcher's boy.

President Massaryk of Czechoslovakia was the son of an ignorant peasant blacksmith.

Benito Mussolini, Italian premier and dictator, was also a blacksmith's son, and himself worked as a common laborer.

And as an American parallel to the two last named, it may be mentioned that former President Hoover, too, was a blacksmith's son.

Curse Of Narcotics

In a recent address Captain Richmond P. Hobson declared that the traffic in narcotics is a cancer which has been eating at the vital organs of the world for 200 years, and that the power of American gangsters and racketeers is based upon it, rather than upon liquor.

He asserted that most of the bandits and gunmen who rob and kill are dope addicts who are controlled body and soul by those higher up. He believes the hope of the world lies in educating the young to the horrors of the "living death" of the dope fiend. Tracing the steps by which the drug habit is formed, Captain Hobson told of the physical and mental agony suffered by those who get hooked by dope. When the habit is confirmed the addict will resort to any means whatever to obtain his daily supply of drugs, and thus becomes a prey for those who would use him to further their evil purposes.

For several years Captain Hobson, Spanish-American war hero of Merrimac fame, has devoted himself to fighting the drug traffic and dangers, and is president of the Narcotic Defense Foundation, with headquarters in New York.

As Ships Come And Go

Closely following the scrapping of the great Cunard liner Mauretania, word comes that the longtime pride of the White Star line, the Olympic, will follow her rival to the boneyard.

Both of these great vessels are capable of further service, but they are too expensive to operate in competition with those new monsters of speed and luxury like France's Normandie, Italy's Rex, Germany's Bremen and Europa, and Britain's nearly completed Queen Mary.

The Olympic was a sister ship of the Titanic, destroyed in collision with an iceberg on her maiden voyage in 1912. The Mauretania was a sister ship of the Lusitania, sunk by a German submarine in 1915.

Even in prosperous times, the demand for accommodations on the largest liners is limited, and passengers naturally like to travel on the largest and fastest.

The operation of such is practically impossible without large government subsidies. The new Normandie cost $53,000,000 to build, and operating expenses for each round trip across the Atlantic are placed at $250,000.

Since the laying up of the Leviathan some time ago, the Normandie, 79,000 tons, is more than three times as large as the largest American ship afloat, which is the Manhattan, of only 24,289 tons.

Interesting Notes

It has been estimated that 300 tons of soot fell in London during 1930.

Soviet dentists are displacing gold with steel and other strong and durable metals.

American housewives own and use an average of 600 pounds of steel in their homes, according to recent estimates.

One-fourth of the workers in this country are engaged in lines of service that were unknown 30 years ago.

A British textile company has found a method of treating cotton and silk fabrics so that they will not wrinkle or crease.

Jews have about twice as great immunity to tuberculosis as any other group of the white race, a recent study has disclosed.

Albino Indians were kept in zoological gardens by native Mexican rulers, and sacrificed to the sun at the time of an eclipse.

During the five years ending with 1933 over $4,500,000,000 was paid as fire insurance premiums in the United States.

The bicycle is gradually replacing the donkey as a transportation agent in the small villages of Egypt. Natives call the bicycles "iron donkeys."

R. R. Robins of Woodward, Ia., has been collecting buttons for 25 years, and now has more than 15,000, no two of which are alike.

Declaring that they never had a quarrel, Larry Flannery, 72, and Frank Hinkel, 74, are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their partnership in the grocery business in Muscatine, Ia.

Out in Keokuk, Ia., the lights went out, and out went the linemen to find the trouble. Entangled in the wires they found a horned owl, electrocuted, with a rabbit in its talons.

George Roberson, 77, of Ames, Ia., has made a good living for 51 years fixing things that others can't. He claims that no problem in repair work has licked him yet.

Although Sammy Cantor of Philadelphia lost both legs when he was two years old, he recently hitch-hiked to Santa Monica, Calif., on his artificial limbs and later obtained a job as bat boy for the Chicago White Sox.

"Seeing Red" has changed its meaning

"SEEING red" used to be a simile for getting into a rage. Nowadays the public is "seeing red", but for a different reason. It is due to the prevalence everywhere of tomato juice. In restaurants, dining cars, homes, drug stores, automats, cafes—wherever one can get things to eat and drink, the crimson tide flows on. Perhaps the expression "seeing red" is still a good simile since there is certainly a rage for tomato juice. People drink it morning, noon and night. And people are right because they need vitamin C, and no source of this vitamin is superior to the tomato. Milk is another product which has been proclaimed the "almost perfect food." Has it ever occurred to you to combine these two excellent foods in a cocktail that will furnish a substantial part of your dinner?

A Nourishing Cocktail

Here's the recipe for such a cocktail which also furnishes another successful way of putting more milk into the diet: Have the contents of a 6-ounce can evaporated milk and of a 15-ounce can tomato juice well chilled. Pour milk into a chilled bowl, and add tomato juice very slowly, beating constantly with an egg beater. (An electric one is ideal for this purpose). Season to taste with salt, pepper and celery salt. Put a little finely cracked ice in each glass, and pour tomato juice cocktail over. Serve at once. Serves six. This cocktail is not only attractive in taste and color, but excellent for the children as well as the rest of the family. It's a grand way to get them to drink more milk because they see all their elders doing it, too. Try it on your family, and see how it works.*

BREAKFAST

Begins Business

And Makes or Breaks the Day

EVERY morning in his office a man begins doing business on the breakfast that he has eaten that day. If it was a good breakfast, with nice fresh vacuum packed coffee, and other foods that appealed to him, he's all set for a successful day. But if it was one of those unimaginative breakfasts, so like yesterday's and tomorrow's that it's hard for him to remember what he ate, he won't be feeling so peppy and well.

So why not plan your breakfasts in advance, not only for variety's sake, but for the sake of the family budget? That won't be so prosperous either if it's one of those monotonous breakfasts, for the breadwinner of the family won't be able to "bring home the bacon", and that's a mighty nice thing to have, at breakfast especially.

How to Plan Them

The way to plan better breakfasts is, first of all to remember that there are a great variety of fruits in addition to oranges and many kinds of cereals beside oatmeal, that eggs make excellent breakfast dishes but not the only possible ones, and that there are many different kinds of hot breads. Toast tastes fine—occasionally—but how about muffins, biscuits, Johnny cake, corn sticks, fruit bread and rolls? And bacon is a grand breakfast meat, but how about chicken or turkey hash, sausages, chipped beef, corned beef, ham and meat loaf, to say nothing of the fish such as codfish balls, tuna, salmon, mackerel, creamed codfish, codfish flakes and fish croquettes? You can see that a great variety is possible in this meal, and to make it even simpler here's

A Sample Breakfast

- Prune and Pineapple Bracer
- Fried Noodles with Bacon
- Johnny Cake
- Coffee

The way to make the bracer is to combine two cups of bottled prune juice with the contents of a No. 2 can pineapple juice and one tablespoon lemon juice. Combine these the night before and let them chill overnight. These proportions will make enough bracer to brace eight.

And, one more word of advice to the busy housewife. This planning of breakfasts with so many different ingredients during a week may seem to you burdensome, but do you realize that a great majority of the ingredients we have mentioned can be bought in convenient canned form? *

For That Royal Thirst

This world is so full of a number of things
That I think we should all be as thirsty as kings!
But we've lots of drinks—fizzes and rickys and slings
And cordials and punches to give our thirsts wings!

A ROYAL thirst is the kind that develops on a hot, dusty day after a long hike, a prolonged set of tennis, a ten-inning game of baseball, or something like that. On that principle many of us who are far from being royalists can develop many a royal thirst these torrid summer days.

However, as the above parody points out, we have many more means of alleviating these thirsts nowadays than even the mightiest monarchs of the past.

Fine Fizzes

Four Fruit Fizz: Have the juice from a No. 3 can of fresh prunes, one cup canned pineapple syrup, one cup orange juice, one-fourth cup lemon juice and two bottles charged water ice cold. Mix together and serve over cracked ice. This makes sixteen punch glasses.

Loganberry Fizz: Boil two and a half cups water and three-fourths cup sugar three minutes, cool and add one-half cup lemon juice and a cup of canned loganberries. Ice well, and, just before serving add one pint bottle ginger ale. Makes six glasses.

Cooling Cordials

Sour Cherry Cordial: Simmer one cup of sugar and one cup of water to make a syrup, add two cups tea, one cup orange juice and one-half cup lime juice. Press the red pitted cherries from a No. 2 can through a sieve or run through a food chopper. Add both the cherry pulp and juice. Just before serving, add one quart ginger ale. This makes about three quarts.

Tomato and Cucumber Cordial: Slice a medium cucumber thin with the peeling left on. Simmer together for thirty minutes, three cups strained tomato juice, two cups water, one clove garlic, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar and a few grains of pepper. Strain and cool the juice. Serve ice cold in cocktail cups. Serves eight.

Summer Punches

Lime Punch: Dissolve one cup sugar in one quart tea infusion while the tea is hot. When cold, add one 8-ounce bottle lime juice, the syrup from a No. 2½ can apricots and the syrup from a No. 2½ can grapes (reserving the fruits for salads, cocktails, etc.). Just before pouring ice cold into thermos bottles to serve wherever you want outdoors, add three ice cold pint bottles charged water. This makes twelve large glasses, or about twenty-four punch cups.

Prune Punch: Mix together the juice from a No. 3 can fresh prunes, one-half cup bottled lime juice and two cups water. Pour over ice and serve in punch glasses. Makes ten glasses.*

A Matter of Color

By HAL G. VERMES
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Service.

I HEARD of all kinds of figure men in my day but nobody like Roaring Reggie. There was the dizzy dame at Belmont who looked over the nags in the stables and then cracked down her cherries on the bangtail with the dressiest mane. And, of course, there's plenty of bets on the hide carrying the best looking rider.

But this story is about Roaring Reggie and the system he worked out that would have worked all the time if it would of, by which I mean Reggie would of made him a barrel of cherries if only.

But to begin at the starting gate, there we was at the Whoosh oval, where anything goes, Beezer Bertie, Harry the Pinhead, Mudder McMork and me. We're looking over the field and keeping our hands in our pockets until we see something that will pay plenty. We're tight on our cherries this day because we ain't got a grand between us—frankly, we don't own half a grand. In fact, we can perhaps push a century note together if we wet our hair plenty.

I'm serious thinking what we're going to do to pick up very much more cherries when this Roaring Reggie comes up to us at a canter so happy that it hurts me to look at him. Seems like he's a friend of Mudder McMork's but that don't mean he's somebody, because McMork knows anybody. Anyway, we listen to his spiel because it don't cost any cherries. And seems like this Reggie boy is a new kind of a dopester. He's got a system which is crazy enough to look good to Mudder McMork who eats anything up even if it's spinach. After listening, I'm laughing all over, but in 1.35 flat, McMork, who would be dumber if he was dead, sells the system to Harry the Pinhead and Beezer Bertie.

What can't I do then? I can't do nothing because the odds are against me and, as Bertie effectively points out with his beeper, I am carrying the light end of the pool and ain't got no say in the matter, anyway.

Well, what Reggie is roaring about is the positive payoff in a run-around for maidens that is due to go in a matter of minutes. The filly Reggie wants our cherries for is Susan Sevenup, who nobody ever heard of never.

And this is Reggie's system. He plies up all his cherries and plays 'em strictly on the color of the gallopers' coats. He has a fistful of facts and figures, but we ain't got time to digest them.

Bertie, Harry, and Mudder is fighting to throw their cherries away on this Susan Sevenup but I hold down the barrier while I asks this Reggie how can we lose? Which is the question I asks all tipsters, because if we can't lose, then I'm in.

So Reggie shows me the dope where in fifty-four races, bays win twenty-six times, chestnuts are on the front end only fifteen times, brown two, and black just one time. Now, what makes it sweet is that in this maiden merry-go-round, the only bay is Susan Sevenup.

"And she has to come in with the dinero," says Roaring Reggie, "because the rest of the maidens are all browns except for one black, which last will fall apart at the first turn."

The only reason I have no stable of my own today is because I am some of the people that Lincoln said you could fool all of the time. Roaring Reggie convinces me, because by this time I want to be convinced. Especially when he relates to me as follows:

"Because this filly is a stranger in the East," he says, "and she has a strong field against her, we can get fifty times over and over our money on her from a bookie what don't know any better than nothing."

While I'm thinking, Beezer, Bertie and Harry the Pinhead, are out promoting some more cherries on the cuff, and when they comes back we've got over a grand in the pool. And I have to admit that my split of fifty grand, even if it goes five ways, will keep the missus in blond hair nets for as long as she'll be a blond.

The post parade is going by then, so I ain't got no more time to think. It don't make any difference, because now Roaring Reggie has got all our cherries, and all we got left is hope. And I don't feel so good because I know that if that's all that's left afterwards, then we got a long walk back to New York.

I ain't going to tell about that race all over again because my heart ain't what it used to be. Sufficient to say that the dark horse what nobody knows cops the heat. Roaring Reggie's prize bay follows through, which just don't mean nothing to us because, of course, we put all our cherries on her nose for the long odds.

I'm thinking of visiting a cemetery just for the ride when McMork brings the glad news that the winner was a ringer, Talisman S. by name, a brown-coated gelding what was painted black to get him in this exclusive maiden event. So then the purse goes to Susan Sevenup, our filly; and before the fly bookie can leave for parts which is neither here nor there, we is filling our pants with the winning cherries.

Of course Beezer Bertie, Harry the Pinhead, and Mudder McMork is all for playing the color system from then on. But I kills that dopey idea when Roaring Reggie reveals to me private that he can't tell a bay from a chestnut because he's been color blind all his life.

SPINACH makes for IRON MEN

IRON men is slang for dollars, but it may also mean a number of other things. Husky boys and girls, for instance. And one way to make both boys and girls husky is to see that they eat their due proportion of spinach. For the iron content of this vegetable is exceptionally high, and it is an excellent source of vitamins A and G, a fair source of vitamin B and a good source of vitamin C.

Eggs, too, are high in iron content, so let's try combining these two foods in some recipe, and see whether we can't turn out some boys and girls of the same grade as those eleven "iron men" who played through the Yale-Princeton football game last fall, and won for Yale.

A Strong Combination

Baked Spinach and Eggs: Drain and chop contents of a No. 2½ can spinach, reserving the juice for soup. Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, one and a half tablespoons flour and one cup milk, and season with salt. Add three chopped hard-cooked eggs. Put alternate layers of spinach and the sauce in a buttered baking dish, cover with one-half cup buttered crumbs, and brown in a hot oven. Serves six.

Cheese and Spinach Omelet: Make an omelet of four eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, a few grains pepper, four tablespoons cream and one-third cup grated cheese, folding in the grated cheese with the egg whites, beaten stiff and then folded into the yolks. Heat the contents of an 8-ounce can spinach, season to taste with butter, salt and pepper, and spread on the omelet just before folding it over. Serves five.*
