Realizing that Staleys have a real ball team, the local manager is anxious to make the battle interesting, and is making an effort to secure Danko of Danville to pitch and Vitrol of the Terre Haute Three-Eye League to catch for Broadlands.

The game will start at 2:30. Admission: Gents, 25c; Ladies, free.

Local People See Rare Collection Birds, Fowls

A number of local people had the privilege of inspecting a collection of rare and beautiful birds and water fowls here last week, when Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lloyd stopped for a visit with the former's aunt, Miss Lena Todd. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd made the collection in the state of Utah and were enroute to their home at Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. Lloyd is collector for the Carnegie Museum and other institutions. They certainly know their birds and local people considered it a rare treat to see these specimens.

The Special Session of The Legislature

There is much conjecture around the State House these days as to when Governor Hornor will call a special session of the legislature. The best information we have been able to obtain is that the session will be called the first week in October.

The Governor is being flooded with requests that certain matters be taken up at this session, but he is making an earnest endeavor to embody only those in the call which are of vital interest in order that the session shall not be prolonged.

One of the main questions will be the changing of the Old Age Pension Law to conform to the Federal law. This should not take much time as there are very few changes to be made. The two principal changes are the length of time a person must reside in the state and the amount of property he may be possessed of in order to be eligible under the Act. The Federal law states that a person must be a resident of the state ten years, while the state law requirement is fifteen years. The state law is that a person may be possessed of $5,000 and still come under the law, while the federal law cuts out the amount and bases the pension on the needs of the person.

Miss Fauniel Harden Tells of Tour and Cruise Trip

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the friends who helped me to win the tour and cruise trip given by the Danville merchants to girls of high school age in the Danville trade territory. There were fifty-six other lucky girls.

I will try and tell you some of the things we did. Saturday, August 24, we were in Danville by 3:30 to have our pictures taken and to obtain our tags for our bags and also our tickets. At 11:15 we boarded the train for Detroit. We arrived in Detroit, Mich., at 8:00 a. m., and took a bus to the Fort Shelby hotel, one of the largest in Detroit. Six girls were assigned to each room to rest before breakfast. After breakfast we could rest, go to church or do anything we wanted to, although we had to be back at 12:00 for dinner. Many of the girls stayed at the hotel and wrote cards. I attended the Presbyterian church. It was the oldest church in Detroit, still it was large and very beautiful. After church a few of the girls went to the roof of the hotel where we could see all over the city. The twenty-first floor is being built into a fort representing Fort Shelby. After dinner we went on a sight seeing tour of Detroit including Belle Isle which is a very beautiful place. At 5:00 the sightseeing buses took us to the boat docks where we boarded the steamer, The Greater Detroit, for Buffalo. Each girl had a room-mate, mine being Doris Coffman of Allerton. There was dancing on the boat from 8:00 until 11:00. My room-mate and I sat on deck at night and enjoyed the lake breeze. After arriving in Buffalo at 8:00 a. m., we took the interurban to Niagara Falls. From here we went over the Gorge route then to the boat docks. Here we boarded a smaller boat for Toronto. We had lunch on the boat and arrived in Toronto at 1:30. We were again met by the sightseeing buses which took us through the residential district of Toronto. The houses of Toronto are old and large and about ninety percent of the people own their own homes. We passed a castle which contained 200 rooms. The castle is built on a hill and has a large tower and an underground tunnel leading to the stables. This castle is for sale for $100,000 and six years back taxes. We visited the House of Parliament and the Hall of Fame. After our sight seeing tour we visited some of the stores of Toronto. A few of the girls went down China Town until we were frightened by Chinese men staring at us. We left Toronto at 4:00 by boat. We had dinner on the boat and danced until we arrived at Niagara at 9:00. We stayed on the Canadian side of the General Brock hotel. We had a room facing the Falls. The next morning we went to see the Falls on the American side. Here we visited the Cave of the Winds which is at the foot of the Falls and in some places within twenty feet of them. This was a great thrill. After this we took a sight seeing tour of the city Niagara Falls. We visited the shredded wheat factory where we were given bananas and shredded wheat. After lunch we took the interurban for Buffalo. We boarded the steamer, The Greater Buffalo at 5:00 for Detroit. We had dinner, dancing and deck games on the steamer. We arrived in Detroit at 10:00 a. m. At 12:30 we met at the Wabash station and started home. We passed thru Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. When we arrived in Danville we had travelled 1,350 miles and 640 of them were on water.

It was a wonderful trip and enjoyed by everyone. We are truly grateful to the Danville Chamber of Commerce, the merchants, and the friends who made this trip possible.

Fauniel Harden.

Amazing Car Economy

If the dream of some of the country's leading metallurgists comes true and the price of aluminum through a much greater output is brought down materially in price, it is likely to completely revolutionize engineering practice. It has been pointed out that in the automobile industry alone the use of cast aluminum for cylinder blocks would cut 35 to 40 per cent from the weight of the engine, thus contributing materially to the performance of the car as well as to its economy.

The possibilities of aluminum cylinder block castings as well as its use for an infinite range of other purposes, both in the automotive field and in other industries, are seen in the employment of a Bohnalite cylinder block for the first successful Diesel-passenger car engine.

This engine, an American design known as the Cummins, placed in a stock passenger car, recently traveled from coast to coast at a fuel cost of a little over $7. It has shown on tests throughout the country that it traveled for about one-seventh the cost of a similar gasoline-powered unit. This engine employs Bohnalite aluminum alloy for the cylinder blocks, cylinder head, crankcase and other important units.

A similar employment of aluminum in gasoline engines would likewise increase their efficiency and economy, engineers declare.

Easy to Equip Home

Thousands of families are taking advantage of the National Housing Act to give their homes proper modern electrical equipment. There never has been a period when appliances have been installed as rapidly as they are at present.

Families are equipping their homes with modern washers and ironers faster than ever before, now that they have discovered the ease and economy with which this can be done. There is no reason for anyone to bother longer with out-of-date or expensive laundering methods.

Never before in the whole history of electrical appliances has it been so easy to enjoy such home conveniences as it is now. For any man of ordinary good credit standing who wants to provide his wife with housekeeping aids, the whole procedure is extremely simple.

He need not be a property owner. The appliances are selected. The customer and the dealer visit a cooperating bank. The buyer is lent $150, say, and promises to repay over a period of one to three years at 5 per cent. The dealer obtains the full purchase price at once and delivers the appliances without delay. The buyer simply makes a monthly payment to the bank.

Many families desire the new equipment but have a distaste for ordinary time-payment methods. These look with favor on the new Washington plan of a simple bank transaction with no mortgage involved, an arrangement encouraged and supported by the government. The economy of the plan is its greatest advantage. For example, a family can invest $150 in a washer and ironer and make the entire transaction for as little as $4.80 monthly.

What's New

Production of a new low-priced six-cylinder car with Diesel engine will begin soon.

Recent experiments at Yale indicate that the new heavy water slows the action of the heart and may be useful medically.

Plate glass has been developed which admits 70 per cent of the sun's light, but excludes nearly one-half of its heat.

Fingerprints may now be transmitted by telephone or teletype by a new system designed to aid crime detection.

Baltimore ranked second among shipping ports of the United States during the first half of 1935, New York being first.

Carbon monoxide, the deadly gas from automobile exhausts, can be removed from the air by an eliminator developed by two Colorado inventors.

By a process developed in California fully ripe cantaloupes can be kept for five weeks by coating them with wax and keeping them cool.

The largest single piece of mobile machinery in the world is said to be in use to clear top earth away from coal beds in Ohio.

A power-driven circular saw, mounted on a hollow aluminum pole, enables one forester to do the work of four men trimming trees with hand saws.

A new world record for glider distance flight is claimed by a German, Ludwig Hoffman, who is said to have flown his motorless plane nearly 300 miles without a stop.

Simultaneous transmission of 200 conversations over one circuit is possible with a new cable developed by the Bell telephone laboratories. Ordinary telephone lines can now carry four conversations.

WHERE THE FAMILY FAILS

ENGRAVED in stone on the doorway of the law building of an Eastern university is the silent but powerful message, "He who enters selfishly here endangers." This is certainly true of the profession of law and of medicine, in fact of all professions, including that most responsible profession of them all—parenthood.

Our American home has suffered greatly from without and within this quarter of a century. Causes and results have become hopelessly interwoven in helping to destroy the home's momentous influence, through easy divorces, childless homes, handbox apartments, promulgated heresies of marriage through literature and screen.

However, the basic ailment of the whole world from nation to individual is selfishness—self-aggrandizement, selfish interests. The golden rule has become leaden—do for yourself and let others do likewise. This doctrine has permeated some of our American homes. At a fairly recent Parent-Teachers' state meeting in one of our most intellectual Eastern states, the president made an eloquent appeal for parents, fathers and mothers to spend one evening each week with their children, reading or playing in the home circle or at a movie. Asking for a rising vote of promise from this audience of 500 parents she could hardly suppress her disappointment when only 75 men and women stood to pledge this much of their time from their own pleasure plans to really become acquainted with their children.

Two years ago Roger Babson told us that more money was spent for automobiles in the last three and one-half years than had been spent for homes in the last 150 years. Could it be that pleasure is becoming the pivot of American home life rather than the rearing of children?

When parents' interests turn in on their own pleasures, their children's interests turn out of the home, so that children themselves lose enjoyment and become bored with an evening at home. If one figures approximately the waking hours from childhood to college age, seventeen, about 1,000 hours are spent in Sabbath school, around 11,000 hours in the public schools, leaving 80,000, nearly 87 per cent of childhood and adolescence under the influence and responsibility of the home.

How can parents give the child momentum enough in his first six years to carry him through life from home lessons of character and religion, if some of our parents are so absorbed in their own selfish interests that they are unwilling to spend even one evening a week with their children?
