Cats Kill Pheasants

There has been the contention for many years that cats will not attack wild game. This argument has been refuted by the Department of Conservation and there is now on exhibit in the office of the Director a cat standing on the limb of a tree holding the head of a pheasant in its mouth.

This cat was killed with the pheasant in its mouth on one of the game farms by an attendant. This same cat had killed eight pheasants and was being watched and was killed while in the act of destroying this one. The cats catch the birds by the head and after the kill they do not touch the body, being content to eat only the head of the fowl. The Director is sending photos of the cat and pheasant to the different game journals of the State.

Pears For Sale—O. P. Witt, Broadlands.

The Standard Service Station has just completed the furnishing of a modern rest room for ladies.

Jim Handley was home from Urbana over the weekend. He informs us that he is now working in the laundry department at the county farm and states he has little work to do, plenty to eat, and is getting along fine. And henceforth this glorious rag of freedom will keep Jim posted on what is happening at Broadlands.

W. C. Fields Has New Star Role in "It's A Gift"

Paramount's favorite comedian, W. C. Fields, and Baby LeRoy appear in "It's a Gift," which comes to the Broadlands Theater this Friday and Saturday night.

"It's a gift" reveals Fields, at the opening of the film, as the hen-pecked, inefficient manager of a grocery store whose home is such a crazy bedlam that he can neither eat, shave nor sleep in peace.

When he gets an inheritance from his uncle, he buys an orange grove from an enterprising young salesman, who is in love with his daughter, bundles the family into the old chariot and begins the long trek to California.

By a miracle, the family survives the perils and hazards of their wild-eyed ride and arrive at the ranch to discover that it will not even grow cactus.

With no money and no way of returning, because the automobile has just fallen apart as it has threatened to for years, Fields exhibits his shrewdness in a deal that wins for him the orange grove he has coveted and brings the picture to a happy and satisfactory conclusion.

Jean Rouverol and Julian Madison are prominent in the supporting cast and dominate the romantic interest of the picture.

R. M. Astell Buys Bank Buildings Here Saturday

The bank block and the large brick garage building, property of the First State Bank of Broadlands, which closed its doors in November, 1930, were sold at public auction here last Saturday morning by W. J. Stapleton, deputy receiver. R. M. Astell was the successful bidder, having purchased the entire lot at $1,045. There was a small attendance at the sale and only a few bids were made. The property was sold subject to approval by the court.

U. S. Consents to Feeding Ducks and Geese

There has been a great deal of controversy among the sportsmen of the State over an order issued by the Federal government in reference to the feeding of ducks and geese as the order was of vital interest to sportsmen of this State. If the Federal order was enforced, it would mean that the ducks and geese would go farther south where they could secure feed, and shooting in Illinois would be a thing of the past.

Director Thompson of the Conservation Department informs us this week that he has received notice from the Federal authorities which permits the feeding of ducks and geese and rescinds their former order provided that no duck will be shot over the feeding area and far enough away so that the fowls could not have been attracted by the feeding or enticed by the hunter.

Director Thompson is requesting that sportsmen will show real sportsmanship and obey this order which assures for them plenty of ducks in this State.

Editor of Homer Enterprise Weds

On Friday, September 27th, occurred the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Sons, of Granite City and Philip Clore, editor of The Homer Enterprise. Rev. B. Heideman, Presbyterian minister of Fairfield, Illinois, read the vows of that faith at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Sons, at 2504 Grand Avenue. The single ring ceremony was used.

About fifteen members of the family were present for the wedding at eleven o'clock in the morning and a breakfast after the ceremony.

The couple left immediately after the breakfast for a short trip to Springfield and Chicago arriving in Homer late Sunday night. They will make their home in the Mrs. C. A. Conkey property.—Homer Enterprise.

Boost Inheritance Tax on Estate at Newman

Tuscola—Judge H. C. Helm has increased the state inheritance tax on the estate of the late Thomas Shaw, of Newman, by $1,289, raising the total of federal and state taxes to $52,238, the highest on record in Douglas County. The federal tax on the estate, valued at $278,000, was $25,000. Mary Alice McIntyre, Newman, daughter of one of Shaw's friends, was named executrix in Shaw's will and given a $125,000 share of his property.

Punishing The Feet

In one of his health articles, Dr. Copeland discusses a peculiarity of men and women which manifests itself in the way in which they persist in punishing their feet.

While all other articles of wearing apparel are supposed to fit the wearer, shoes are generally too small, because no one likes to display big feet. The average person will undergo the tortures of corns, bunions and callouses of every description rather than wear shoes of the proper size and shape.

Dr. Copeland declares that many an aching back and many lame limbs are due to the wearing of wrong shoes, and adds: "Your health depends on freedom from unnecessary aches and pains. You cannot afford to exhaust your reserve stock of nerve energy. That is what you do when you have badly fitting shoes."

A man is proud of the fact if he wears a number seven and a half hat, but tries to force his number eleven foot into a number nine shoe. As to the ladies, it is said that some manufacturers mark their shoes one number smaller than they really are, in an effort to encourage the wearing of comfortable footwear, while pleasing the fair customer's vanity.

Counterfeiter No. 1

With most of the country's more desperate public enemies in prison or dead, government secret agents continued their war on criminals in general a few days ago by capturing the nation's biggest counterfeiter, whom they had long sought.

Shadowing a man they had seen buying engraving chemicals in New York, they raided his apartment in Union City, N. J., finding an elaborate counterfeiting outfit and arresting their man, who was found to be William Watts, whose output of spurious currency is estimated at nearly a million dollars.

So nearly perfect were the bogus bills that many bank tellers had accepted them as genuine. Only a few weeks ago one of Watts' $20 bills was passed off on Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and when a bank rejected it he turned the joke on his chief clerk by asking him to change it, and got good money in return.

While it is unlikely that this clever counterfeiter will be able to make any more bank notes for a good while, a lot of his imitation money is still in circulation.

Grim Mementoes

Stored in a sub-basement of the State, War and Navy building in Washington, seldom seen by anyone, is the most interesting collection of relics connected with the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, including the principal exhibits introduced by the prosecution in the military trial of the conspirators who planned the crime.

Among these exhibits are the .45 caliber Derringer pistol with which John Wilkes Booth shot Lincoln in the Ford theater on the night of April 14, 1865; the bullet which killed the President; the knife with which Booth wounded Colonel Rathbone, who tried to prevent his escape; one of the assassin's boots, slashed by Dr. Samuel Mudd in order to set his broken leg; Booth's pocket compass, whistle, saddle, diary, necktie and several other articles pertaining to the tragedy.

These relics are kept with army court martial records and other archives in the custody of the chief clerk of the judge advocate general's office of the War Department, and are occasionally allowed to be seen by persons especially interested.

French Defense Line

France now possesses the strongest defensive military wall ever constructed by man in its great Maginot Line, stretching 150 miles along the border facing Germany and embracing 300 mighty forts. This line has just been completed at a cost of about $150,000,000.

Named for the late minister of war, Andre Maginot, who conceived the plan, this system of fortifications is considered impregnable, so far as attacks by land are concerned. Even air raids could do little damage, as much of the defensive works and equipment is underground. Steam and electric transportation systems, supply bases and communication lines are all protected in tunnels deep in the earth.

In case of threatened invasion the Maginot Line could be manned by a million men in 48 hours while trains operating wholly underground could bring up food, munitions, and all manner of supplies for the defending army without detection or the possibility of being attacked.

Construction of these mighty works began shortly after funds were voted for extraordinary measures of nation defense in 1928. Coincident with their completion a monument in memory of Maginot, their originator, has been erected in Fort Souville, 18 miles from Verdun. Maginot was a top sergeant at the beginning of the world war, rising to the position of war minister before his death in 1932.

Detecting Art Fakes

Science has now come to the protection of the art collector, who has often been scandalously swindled in the past through the cleverness of sellers of faked paintings. X-rays and the ultraviolet lamp are the detectives which expose the swindler.

It would no doubt be surprising, if the truth were known, how many millions of dollars have been spent on paintings represented as the work of old masters, but which are really forgeries or copies by lesser artists.

A celebrated case is that of two Blue Boys by Gainsborough one of which had been sold for some $750,000, when the other appeared, so nearly identical that experts disagreed over which was the original.

It is said that at one time or another about 2,000 pictures said to have been painted by Van Dyck have been sold, although the artist could hardly have painted more than 70 with his own hand.

The new methods of establishing the identity of old paintings is almost perfect, but many questionable paintings will never be tested by those methods.

Collectors who have already invested fabulous sums in paintings are not inclined to submit their pictures to the test. They would rather own a fake, for which they had paid the price of an original, than submit it to a test which might stamp them as boobs.

The shrewd politician hops on the bandwagon as soon as he is convinced of its identity.

The successful politician must have the gift of saying things that sound well but mean nothing.

A strange sequel to a Louisiana murder is reported. James Beadle is serving a life sentence for the killing of James LeBouef whose body was found in a lake five years ago. Recently Beadle's son was drowned in the same lake while trying to rescue the daughter of LeBouef.

Sir Malcolm Campbell nearly lost credit for making more than 300 miles an hour with his speed automobile on the salt flats of Utah. His speed was first announced as a fraction over 299 miles an hour, but later an error in computation was discovered which showed his actual speed to have been 301.3 miles.

A few months ago everyone was supposed to display the Blue Eagle of the NRA. Now such display has been forbidden in the following government order: "Hereafter, no one shall reproduce either for his own use or for the use of another, any Blue Eagle insignia or emblem issued, adopted or approved by the NRA, or any label bearing such Blue Eagle."

The government profited in two ways by the chain letter craze of a few months ago, which it banned as unlawful. Chain letter senders bought many postage stamps, with which to carry on the easy money scheme, and now the postal authorities have unclaimed letters estimated to contain between $3,000 and $4,000 in dimes and other silver coins, which will go into the U. S. Treasury.

LITTLE LIGHTS ON LIVING

By MARIA LEONARD
Dean of Women, University of Illinois
© Western Newspaper Union.

POWER AND LIGHT

EMBLAZONED across the sky at night, sometimes far distant, one can see when approaching a town, the great bright letters of an electric sign, bearing the words, POWER AND LIGHT SERVICE.

What an eternal truth and spiritual message our public utilities are writing across our skies—that power and light brings service! Dean Inge of London has said that as man's love for light progressively increases his need for government progressively decreases. Light is truth, and education is the process of determining truth. Knowledge is power but wisdom is light. Education must include both, that is why true education builds character. Power with light is character and character manifests itself through service, that great vital force of the human heart. Light is truth, where there is no light there is no truth. The Master said, "I am the way, the truth, and the light."

Power without light is a blind unguided force, while power with light builds the human race. As the human family receives more light through education and culture, it will also receive more spiritual guidance to manipulate those powerful forces which science has discovered in our mechanical age and it will learn to use them for the benefit, and not for the destruction of mankind. Light comes through education and acts of the human heart much as brakes check speed on a high powered car.

War for instance, is power without light, for its goal is selfishness, not service. High powered explosives are made to kill. Chemistry in the hands of a militarist kills, in the hands of a physician, cures. What is the difference? One is power without light—selfishness, the other is power with light—service.

A European scientist was once working in his laboratory on a God-like experiment, hoping to eradicate much of the disease of the world through his discoveries. Suddenly one day without warning he was commanded by his government to come into its laboratories, to discover gases for the next war. His laboratory was power with light, the other power without light; his was for human service, the other for human slaughter.

What would become of our modern methods of living if this public utility—power and light—service were to be removed? And what would become of the human race if this spiritual truth—service from power and light were removed? LITTLE LIGHTS ON LIVING

By MARIA LEONARD
Dean of Women, University of Illinois
© Western Newspaper Union.

POWER AND LIGHT

EMBLAZONED across the sky at night, sometimes far distant, one can see when approaching a town, the great bright letters of an electric sign, beating the words, POWER AND LIGHT SERVICE.

What an eternal truth and spiritual message our public utilities are writing across our skies—that power and light brings service! Dean Inge of London has said that as man's love for light progressively increases his need for government progressively decreases. Light is truth, and education is the process of determining truth. Knowledge is power but wisdom is light. Education must include both, that is why true education builds character. Power with light is character and character manifests itself through service, that great vital force of the human heart. Light is truth, where there is no light there is no truth. The Master said, "I am the way, the truth, and the light."

Power without light is a blind unguided force, while power with light builds the human race. As the human family receives more light through education and culture, it will also receive more spiritual guidance to manipulate those powerful forces which science has discovered in our mechanical age and it will learn to use them for the benefit, and not for the destruction of mankind. Light comes through education and acts of the human heart much as brakes check speed on a high powered car.

War for instance, is power without light, for its goal is selfishness, not service. High powered explosives are made to kill. Chemistry in the hands of a militarist kills. What is the difference? One is power without light—selfishness, the other is power with light—service.

A European scientist was once working in his laboratory on a God-like experiment, hoping to eradicate much of the disease of the world through his discoveries. Suddenly one day without warning he was commanded by his government to come into its laboratories, to discover gases for the next war. His laboratory was power with light, the other power without light; his was for human service, the other for human slaughter.

What would become of our modern methods of living if this public utility—power and light—service were to be removed? And what would become of the human race if this spiritual truth—service from power and light were removed? Perhaps we should better ask, what could not the potentiality of the human race really be if this truth were put into practice in men's hearts?
