Star Theatre, Villa Grove, Installs New R. C. A. High Fidelity Sound

Installation was completed on Saturday and okayed by Mr. Beck, ace engineer of R. C. A. Mfg. Co.

Technical progress in sound motion picture art has been so rapid and far reaching since the time, four years ago, when speech and music were added to the moving image on the screen, that sound reproducing systems made up to this year are hopelessly inadequate in recreating the finely recorded pictures of the present time, due to previous systems reproducing only tones as low as 150 cycles and as high as 5,000 cycles, while R. C. A. High Fidelity equipment reproduces as low as 40 cycles and up to 10,000 cycles.

The Star theatre equipment is of the same make and type as was just recently installed in Radio City Music Hall, New York City.

Music minded patrons, especially, will appreciate how clear, full and effortless is the speech and singing of their favorite stars.

You will also notice, when you listen to a 40 piece orchestra for instance, that it sounds like a 40 piece orchestra—not an 8 or 10 piece orchestra—as you are able to distinguish each instrument separately.

This equipment was finished and okayed by R. C. A. Mfg. Co., Camden, N. J., June 15, 1936, and the installation at the Star was the third equipment to be installed in a theatre in the United States.

G. B. Barber, manager of the Star, said today that the installation of this new equipment was just one of the many improvements in store for the patrons of the Star.

Frank Kracht Loses Pants; Goes Home In A Wagon

Frank Kracht, while engaged in storing oats at the John Bahlow home, northwest of Broadlands, last Saturday, got caught in the elevator tumbler shaft and was stripped of his clothing. Frank said he had nothing on but a smile when the struggle ended, and not being able to find a barrel, had to go home in a box wagon. Although his legs were pretty badly scratched and bruised, Frank was able to get to town Saturday night.

Pension Checks With Federal Funds Due

While old age assistance payments in Illinois have increased 50 percent since federal approval of the state's setup, according to reports from Springfield, acceptances of petitions in Champaign county have increased in much greater amount in the last two weeks.

Since the federal government is matching Illinois' maximum monthly payment of $15, checks with the new increases probably will be received by pension recipients this week, it is said.

The money to meet the government's share of the pension is expected to arrive at the state treasury in the near future.

A. L. Bowen, state welfare director, stated that he has received no further information from the Federal Security Board as to whether its approval of the Illinois act will be retroactive to April 1, when the state started payments on a $15 maximum basis.

To date about 640 of the more than 1,200 pension applications from this county have been given final approval.

St. Joseph Fair August 25-26-27-28

St. Joseph, July 22—The 8th annual Champaign County Agricultural fair, to be held here August 25, 26, 27 and 28, with many added features over those of the past, has prospects of being the greatest exposition held since its inaugural. The announcement that Jimmy Garrigan and his nationally famous dance band will be featured the last three nights has added much interest to the festival. This will be the first appearance of a major orchestra at the Champaign County fair.

Fair officers and directors are optimistic of another record breaking attendance. The 1935 gate broke all previous records when more than 20,000 visitors passed through the entrance. Dave Fisher, president, and E. R. Peters, secretary, have announced the premium and entertainment budgets have been greatly increased. More than $1,000 has been added to last year's premium total, bringing the total for this year to $5,000. The entertainment budget has been almost doubled. Entertainers from WLS and other free attractions have been engaged.

In conjunction with the Champaign County Fair the sectional vocational fair, including 16 high schools from Champaign and Vermilion counties, and 4H club boys and girls from Champaign County will be exhibitors.

Methodist Church is Redecorated

This week marks the completion of extensive improvements that have been in progress at the Methodist church for several weeks. The once new and imposing structure was beginning to show the effects of more than forty-five years of continuous service to the people of the community. The years have taken their toll. Pastors and members have come and gone. Members and friends of the church believe that a structure made for worship should be made becoming for worship. Christians have always cherished their sanctuaries, and given them their best. "Let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us," is a divine voice. So, in hope and devotion and effort the people set to work, and now a new fire-proof roof, new paper on the interior and freshly painted exterior, are the marks of care and love the people hold for their church. This work is possible because members and friends of the church gave with that giving which is both liberal and joyous, and further because of the faithful attentions of the Improvement Committee, George Walker, Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. Leanna Miller. The workmen, likewise, have done their work with special interest and faithfulness. The Pastor and people and Committee want to thank all who have so willingly and generously contributed to this much needed improvement.

The people of the entire community are invited to share in the spiritual benefits flowing out from this church. As it is now a better physical structure may it even more be a better spiritual home and force in the community. As you walk by the church, or hear its bell, feel its call to worship. A Christian church carries on a work that is essential to the highest interests of a community.

Outwitting a Crook

An unusual package was delivered recently to Herman Pattberg, a wealthy citizen of Duisburg, Germany. Inside was a carrier pigeon and a letter.

The letter directed him to securely fasten a 5,000 mark note to the pigeon and turn it loose. He was warned that he would be murdered should he fail to comply.

Pattberg thought it over, then a bright idea crossed his mind. He hired an aviator to follow the pigeon when it was released minus the money. The flyer carried a camera with which he photographed the house on which the pigeon alighted, then returned and gave the picture and directions to the police. The would-be blackmailer was soon in jail.

An Air Flivver

Within five years a business man living in a distant suburb may board his one-passenger air flivver, fly to the city and alight on his office roof. Returning at night he may land in his own yard with ease and safety. Such is the prediction of conservative pilots and engineers.

This may happen in less than five years if plans for the commercial manufacture of the autogyro are carried out. Invented by Juan de la Cierva, a Spaniard, the autogyro is fitted with an ordinary airplane motor and propeller, but in addition has revolving wings in a sort of windmill arrangement which enables it to sustain itself in the air at slow speed, thus permitting it to rise or land in the space of an ordinary tennis court.

The revolving wings are said to give the machine stability in flight, besides making a crash to earth almost impossible, even though the pilot should entirely lose control. It is declared that it flies like an airplane but settles to earth like a parachute.

An American company is perfecting a new design for commercial production. If claims of its promoters are made good the autogyro may soon revolutionize short distance traffic.

Prophets of Doom

Luckily for humanity, it still maintains a saving sense of humor. Were this not so, the wailings of the pessimists would drive us all crazy. For surely there is no lack of prophets of doom to harry us with their doleful warnings that the world is going to pot.

Each long-faced brother solemnly assures us that unless his particular panacea for saving the race shall be speedily adopted there is no hope. Modernism, flapperism, automobiles, hootch, movies, dancing, cards, and cigarettes, singly or in combination, constitute the outstanding menace, according to the viewpoint of the particular alarmist who happens to have the floor.

Thus, after listening to these apostles of doom, with a more or less pronounced feeling of boredom, unregenerate humanity turns to the funny pages and smiles at the varying fortunes of Jiggs and Andy Gump.

This does not mean that the average person is indifferent to the evil in the world. It means that sensible people recognize the inherent weakness and folly of humanity, and refuse to become unduly excited about it. They realize the futility of trying to carry the world's burden on their shoulders, though they seek to be helpful in practical ways. They courageously face the things that are, while sanely striving for the things that ought to be.

Aluminum Age Coming

Aluminum alloys discovered and developed very largely by the automobile industry, in its search for light weight with strength, are spreading rapidly to other industries. We now have the aluminum lawn mower and the aluminum bicycle which are two outstanding examples of where the light metal has made human propulsion less arduous and more pleasant. The alloys which made possible the aluminum lawn mower and the aluminum bicycle particularly Bohnalite were developed in the automotive industry. Charles B. Bohn, who is responsible for the development of Bohnalite, predicts that during the next ten years this type of alloy will supersede steel and even wood for many purposes.

It has already supplanted hard wood in the manufacture of certain parts for shoe machinery and from New England come reports of the adoption of Bohnalite for machines used in the textile industry in order to speed up production. The rapid stitching requires tremendous speed of reciprocating parts and the use of aluminum for these parts permits smoother and more rapid work.

The list of industries now using aluminum extensively is big but it is growing rapidly and as Charles Bohn declares "We are rapidly entering the real aluminum age."

The Speed of Light

Marvelous as was the discovery that sound impulses could be transmitted by telephone and radio, their mere transmission would be of little value if they traveled only with the speed of ordinary sound.

To illustrate: If one were in San Francisco and desired to talk to someone in New York, and had a voice loud enough to be heard that distance, it would take nearly four hours for the message to cross the continent—for sound travels only 720 miles an hour.

But, fortunately, electrical and radio impulses travel with the speed of light, which for all practical purposes is instantaneous for terrestrial distances, or about 186,000 miles a second.

Incidentally, it may be mentioned that so far the longest combined telephone and radio conversation ever carried on by regular toll customer was between San Diego, California, and Stockholm, Sweden, a distance of 8,630 miles. By special arrangement longer distances have been covered.

Many improvements in telephone and radio communication will be made in the future, but there will be no increase in speed. Always the sounds are transmitted with the speed of light, the speediest thing in the universe.

A school teacher who advocated water instead of whiskey took up a glass of each and held them before the class. She dropped an angle worm in the water and it wiggled around as if enjoying itself immensely. Then she dropped a worm in the glass of whiskey and it dropped to the bottom stone dead.

Now children, she said, what does this demonstrate?

From the rear came the reply: If you drink whiskey, you won't have worms.

Storm Warning

By VERA PAYNE ROCKWELL

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

A STORM was brewing. A bolt darted to the horizon and the wind rushed, with a sluggish sound, across the dusty plain, puffing great clouds of alkali-laden dust through the screen door.

The instruments in the dingy little telegraph office in Casa Grande quivered intermittently. Suddenly from the air, without human aid, came a familiar sound; then three in quick succession, followed by a long blur of dots as a heavy bolt quivered near by.

Bruce Matthews set them on paper and listened for more. . . . Be-E-W-A-R!

A single dot . . . the code letter E. Nothing more. Bruce gasped. Before him lay the word, "Beware." The storm increased; another blur of dots hissed through the coils. Bruce stiffened to attention, his scalp prickling. One by one he picked them from the air . . . C-O-F. . . . another blur. F. Quiet for a full minute. Then a snap and blur of dots. And then . . . I-N.

It was one o'clock in the morning. In four minutes the express was due at Casa Grande. The heavy beam of the powerful searchlight warned Bruce and he telegraphed on to Tucson to clear the tracks. He was on the platform when the heavy train stopped.

He watched the unloading; a trunk, a huge box, two suitcases, a dog in a cage with her litter of pups. This last fascinated Bruce for he loved dogs and, while the other things were being unloaded, he fondled the mother with her family.

"Take good care of the dogs," called the baggage master as the train eased into a start, "they're worth something like $500. I reckon the delicate cargo in the baggage room will take care of itself."

Returning to the cage Bruce had to pass the open door to the baggage room. He halted, frozen in his tracks. With mouth open, he stood and stared into the dimly lit room. Cold sweat broke out on his forehead and his skin tingled. There lay the "delicate cargo," a long, low box . . . a coffin!

Instinctively, Bruce felt for his forty-five. It lay on the table within easy reach. That was some comfort. With a mighty effort, he pulled himself together and turned to the table with his back to the baggage room.

Above the table hung an old mirror. As Bruce looked into it he could see the image of the coffin. He half smiled as his nerves quieted.

Then, as he watched it, the lid of the coffin lifted; a hand appeared.

Bruce grew tense, his heart pounding. He clutched his forty-five. Slowly the hand slid through the narrow opening, then disappeared swiftly and the lid of the coffin descended slowly and silently.

Minute after minute Bruce sat staring into the old mirror . . . no sign of movement at the coffin.

"What is the matter with me?" Bruce thought in disgust. "Just because of a coincidence, I lose my head and begin to see things."

Suddenly he galvanized to attention . . . a motion in the reflected image of the coffin; the lid was raising again! The hand, large and ghostly white, appeared, groping fingers clutching at the air; an arm began to creep out.

Bruce broke his paralysis of terror. He wheeled, darted across the room and, with a swift spring, landed on the coffin's heavy lid.

At six o'clock, Dick Coffinberry, twelve-year-old son of Bruce's landlady, ran in as was his daily custom, to meet and walk home with Bruce.

Bruce lay sprawled on the coffin, down the side of which hung limply a great, hairy arm pinched under the heavy lid and Bruce's dead weight.

Dick yelled for help. Cold water from the deep-driven artesian well revived the unconscious Bruce. Within the coffin another man was regaining consciousness; his arm hung crooked and broken.

"That's 'Stretch Delaney!'" exclaimed the sheriff on his quick arrival, "with a load of explosives to blow the mail train to kingdom!"

When the excitement had died down and they were on the way home, Dick said importantly, "Know where I was in that storm last night? Down in our club shack in Bristol's lot. Don't tell anybody, Mr. Bruce; but me an' th' gang connected our play set with the telegraph wire an' sent out messages."

"Last night?" exclaimed Bruce. "Listen, what did you say about a coffin?" "Didn't say nothing about a coffin. We just said 'Beware' and the message was signed 'Coffinberry,' that's all."

Manila Is Odd City

Manila, capital of the Philippines, has three distinct sections. There is the American section, with wide streets, substantial business houses and parks; the Spanish section, inside great walls, with old monasteries, Moorish-type buildings and narrow streets, and the native quarter, with its stilted houses and thatched roofs. Every Sunday and on all holidays cockfights are held in the native quarters just outside of the city's limits. It is the popular sport of the islands.

Interesting Notes

Dr. James McMunn of Hampstead, Eng., requested when he died to be buried as far away from other dead people as possible.

George Maley of Chicago was acquitted of the charge of kissing Miss Ella Lurton, 23, who declared she had never been kissed before.

Ninety-eight years has J. B. Kelsey of Harlington, Tex., spent on earth, but he's still driving his automobile about the streets of his home town.

More than 2,000 prospectors have invaded the interior of Minas Geraes, Brazil, since gold was discovered on the roots of grass pulled up on a ranch near Conceicao.

Sheriff Albert Kampmeyer of Aurora, Ill., was so proud when he became a grandfather that he promptly pinned a deputy's star on the diaper of his day-old grandson.

Pacing the corridor outside the maternity ward of a Hollywood hospital, Robert Andrews swallowed his lighted cigarette when the doctor emerged to inform Andrews that he had become a father.

Falling from heights up to 50 feet without serious injury in days when he was a carnival aerial cyclist, "Daredevil" Tilden of Newark, N. J., died recently as the result of a four-foot fall.

Forced to choose between 30 days in jail or parole, which provided that he stay out of the county for two years, John Azevedo of San Rafael, Calif., chose the jail sentence in order to marry his sweetheart after he was free.

"Twosing" with TOMATOES

TOMATOES and squash, tomatoes and spinach, tomatoes and celery and potatoes—have you ever thought of combining them? It can be done, you know, because the tomato is a flirtatious vegetable which adapts itself tenderly to "twosing" of this kind. Here you see it in a blissful embrace with a white summer squash.

Baked Squash and Tomatoes: Peel one white summer squash and cut in small pieces, removing seeds. Put squash and one tablespoon chopped onion in buttered baking dish, dust with salt and pepper and dot with two tablespoons butter. Heat contents of one No. 2 can tomatoes, season to taste, and pour over and bake until squash is tender—from forty-five minutes to an hour in a moderate oven. Serves six.

More Sentiment

And here it comes to close grips with some green young spinach in this

Spinach and Tomato au Gratin: Drain off liquor from a No. 2 1/2 can spinach, reserving it for soup. Put half the spinach in baking dish and cover with a layer of sliced tomatoes (you'll need two fresh tomatoes), sprinkling with salt and pepper. Repeat. Spread one-half cup grated cheese over top and bake in hot oven till cheese is melted and browned. Makes six servings.

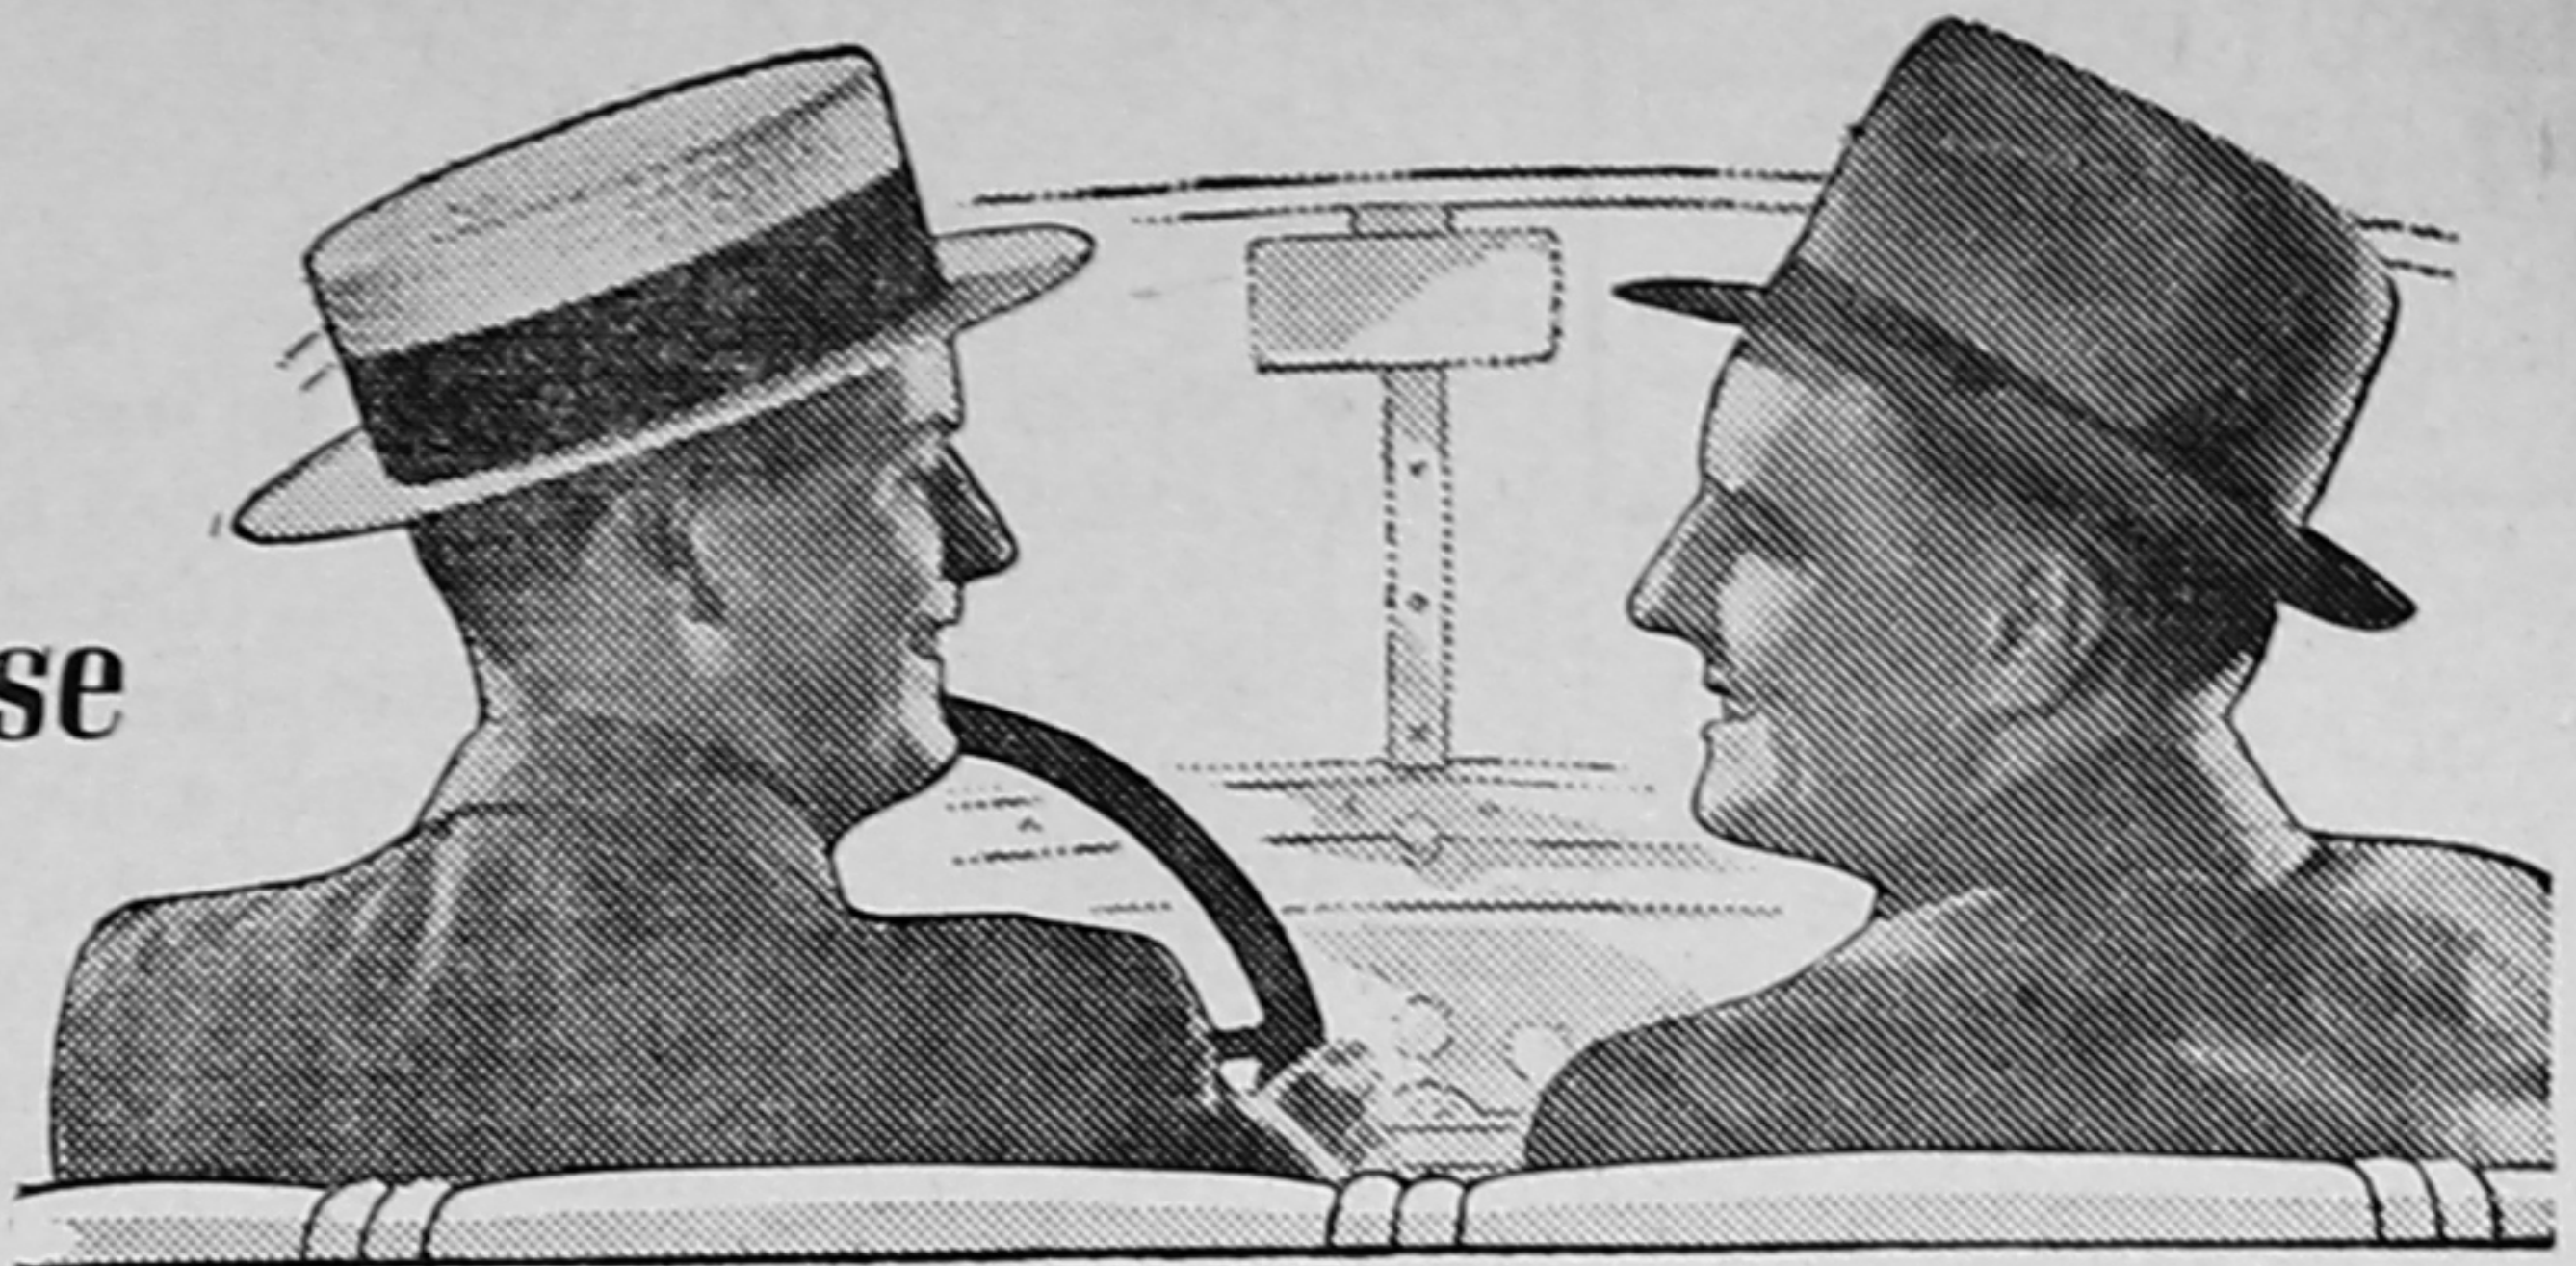

Here it must have been caught "twosing" with two other vegetables because it gets in the soup.

Cream of Tomato and Potato Soup: Put the contents of a No. 2 can tomatoes, one and a half cups raw potato cubes, one and a half cups diced raw celery, two slices onion and one-half cup water into a saucepan and cook gently, covered, until vegetables are tender, then press through sieve. Pour slowly into two cups scalded hot milk, season to taste and serve at once. Serves four.*

Mr. Beck, Ace Engineer for R. C. A. Mfg. Co., made the installation, and states: "You will find very few sound installations as good, none better."

A treat to music lovers. All instruments clearly reproduced. A 40 piece orchestra now sounds like 40 pieces, not 8 or 10 as over old sound systems.

TREES

JOYCE KILMER—who died in action August, 1916, has immortalized himself by the following verse:

I think that I shall never see
A poem as lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast.
A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

Have you ever considered the individuality of trees—the most kingly of plants? They have personalities as fascinating to study as human beings. We find the age old Cypress trees throughout the ancient hills of Italy, straight, dark and uncommunicative, symbolizing death and its mystery in the poet's mind. "Woe to him who never sees, the stars shine through his Cypress trees!" Then in contrast we see the spreading and hospitable branches of the glorious Elm. We rejoice in the refinement and culture of the beautiful Maple, in the steadfastness of the sturdy Oak! We wonder at the exquisite delicacy of the white barked Birch that thrives so often near, and in such contrast to, the physical endurance of the hardy Pines. Trees are living creatures. The man who has no special tree friends is indeed a lonely creature.

President Coolidge first instituted "Forest Protection Week," bringing to the American conscience the fact that the tree life of our country must be spared if we wish to safeguard America's natural resources. Forests prevent floods, they make the soil fertile by holding moisture. Think what trees have done for civilization, giving work to thousands; they have made possible the building of homes, and have furthered man's intercourse through railroads and ship building.

The third and fourth lines of the beautiful poem above recall what a scientist once told me. Some of our largest forest trees have the life giving power of lifting 60 gallons of water daily from Mother Earth into their branches.

The boy and girl scout movement of America is teaching our youth to love trees. When this becomes universal, no more will selfish lumber corporations, with pecuniary interests, be allowed to cut down the marvelous Redwoods of California, as old as the time of Christ. No, these belong to the ages, an inheritance of posterity, no one generation owns them.
