Beg Your Pardon

A mistake was made in last week's issue in publishing the article regarding the miscellaneous shower given in honor of Mrs. Mabel Skinner Smith, at the home of Mrs. Mide Walker. It was stated that there were about 30 guests present, whereas we should have said there were 40 present, according to Mrs. Walker. Beg your pardon, Mrs. Walker.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

W. Earl Ballew, Pastor

The Sunday School meets at 10:00 o'clock. Why not start the Fall and Winter attendance now!

The Preaching Service is at 11:00 a. m. The entire time will be given to the Communion service. The doors of the church will be open to the reception of new members. This is the last Sunday of the Conference year. The Annual Conference meets at Rock Island, Sept. 15. There will be no preaching service in the church one week from this Sunday, Sept. 20, as the Pastor will be away attending the Conference.

Do You Know Illinois?

By Edward J. Hughes
Secretary of State

Q. Who recommended Ninian Edwards as first Governor of the Illinois territory?

A. Henry Clay highly recommended Ninian Edwards, and he was appointed by President Madison, his commission bearing date of April 24, 1809.

Q. In the war of 1812, who was charged to clear the territory along the Illinois?

A. General Samuel Hopkins, a veteran officer of the revolution, at the command of 2,000 Kentucky mounted volunteers was ordered to break up the villages and disperse the Indians residing along the Wabash and the Illinois rivers.

Q. Where did Lincoln hold his first Circuit Court case?

A. In the Sangamon County Circuit Court, October, 1836. It was the case of Hawthorne vs. Woolridge, involving a breach of contract and trespass.

Q. Where was Lincoln dubbed the "Rail Candidate"?

A. In a State convention held at Decatur on May 9, 1860. Two rails from a lot of 3,000 made in 1830 by John Hanks and Lincoln were presented to the candidate.

Q. Did General Hopkins fulfill the commission given him in the war of 1812?

A. No. His forces mutinied and he was forced to return home.

Q. What was the original meaning and spelling of the word Sac, an Indian tribe in Illinois?

A. The original name, "Saw-kee," now written Sac was derived from the compound word "a-sau-we-kee"—signifying in the Chippewa language Yellow Earth.

Q. What Illinois tribes made up the Illinois Confederacy?

A. Five tribes comprised this Confederacy: The Tamaroas, Michigames, Kaskaskias, Cahokias and the Peorias.

Q. What position was held by Ninian Edwards when he received the appointment as first Governor of Illinois?

A. Ninian Edwards was at that time chief justice of the Court of Appeals in Kentucky.

Q. Who received the appointment as first Governor of Illinois and declined the honor?

A. John Boyle of Kentucky was appointed by President Madison but declined the office and was appointed associate Justice of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky.

1,600 Children Killed in U. S. Last Year

Safety for thousands of children who must now cross streets and highways on their way to school should be the direct concern of every motorist in Illinois, said Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes in a safety bulletin just issued.

According to the bulletin, more than 1,600 children were killed and 44,000 injured in the United States last year while playing in or crossing streets and highways.

Eternal vigilance and consideration on the part of motorists, is the only effective means of reducing this appalling number of tragedies during the coming school year," said Secretary Hughes.

"Careful drivers will bear in mind that with schools reopening the school zones again become danger zones.

"Many schools have established school patrol systems. Certain students are given authority to direct traffic in order to aid groups of children to pass busy streets in safety.

"These patrols should be obeyed even though the motorist thinks he is technically within his rights. The knowledge that one is driving within the law will be of little consolation to the motorist who strikes down an innocent child.

"However, the responsibility for the safety of our children rests not entirely upon the shoulders of the motorist.

"Parents and teachers should cooperate by instructing children in the proper method of crossing streets. They also should warn little ones of the dangers of playing in the streets and of hitching to moving trucks and vehicles."

Plight of the Aged

While not a pleasant subject to dwell upon, an occasional look ahead to the condition which may surround old age would be advisable even for those whose circumstances in early life are satisfactory and whose future seems secure.

We may well be reminded that nearly 80 per cent of all old people are wholly or partially dependent upon others for support. Yet many of these in early and middle life were prosperous; some even wealthy.

Who cannot look about him and see acquaintances who were once the envy of their neighbors, but who through business reverses, accidents, illness or extravagance are now brought to feel the sting of poverty?

Usually such disasters might have been averted by a reasonable exercise of prudence and thrift. Keeping up with one's neighbors in a false display of prosperity is one fruitful source of old age poverty, and there are many others. Much of the misery which usually accompanies old age might be avoided by looking ahead before it is too late.

A Chinese Conscience

In spite of Bert Harte's famous rhyme in which he declared that "for ways that are dark and for tricks that are vain the Heathen Chinese is peculiar," there are a good many honest Chinese, possibly as large a percentage as among other nationalities.

At any rate, a rather unusual quality of honesty was found in one when the Rockefeller Foundation established a hospital in Peiping to be maintained by a native staff of doctors. The headship of one of the hospital's departments was offered to a young Chinese physician, who replied to the offer as follows:

"If this offer is made because of my ability as a scientist, I accept, but if proposed because I am a Chinese, I must decline."

This desire to stand on his own merits, rather than accept a position because of his nationality, was most commendable. How many Americans would decline a position on such grounds?

About Boy Babies

Researchers and statisticians are digging into everything imaginable nowadays, figuring out the possibilities of this and that. Dr. A. J. Lotka, a specialist in life insurance statistics, has been studying the prevalence of boy babies, and these are some of his conclusions:

When a boy baby is born he has two chances out of three to grow up and become a father. He has even chances to become the father of a son, but only one chance in four to become the father of two sons. A few grow up to have ten sons, but there is only one chance in 2,000 that this will happen.

Many other more or less interesting conclusions are set forth by Dr. Lotka, who finally estimates that in about nine cases out of ten the family name will eventually die out.

He fails, however, to state whether he thinks this is a fortunate thing for the human race. We venture the suggestion that in most cases it probably is.

Selling to Farmers

Business men of the country spend 850 million dollars a year for advertising to reach city dwellers, but only 30 million in reaching the farmers, according to Samuel R. McKelvie, a Nebraska publisher.

He added that this disproportion in advertising efforts was all the more striking when it is considered that the farmers of the country have a normal purchasing power of ten billion dollars annually.

He might have gone further by stating that no class of prospective customers are more responsive to honest advertising than farmers and farmers' wives. Generally they take fewer newspapers and other periodicals than city dwellers and consequently read those they do take more thoroughly.

Merchants would do well to give more consideration to newspapers which reach the rural population.

Theater Lighting

An exchange reminds us that theater programs of some forty years ago frequently carried a note concerning an invention in lighting arrangements, as follows:

"The use in theaters of electric light is experimental. Its brilliancy is of incalculable advantage if it does not prove too intense. It is our duty to give the new light the fairest and fullest trial to reach the highest and best results attainable thru experiment."

While this sounds queer to us now, it did require vision and courage on the part of theater owners and others to give the then newly discovered light "a fair trial." Their progressive-ness was rewarded, as it deserved to be, and nowhere has the science and art of lighting reached greater heights of perfection than in the theater of today.

Much credit is due to the pioneers who made these developments possible.

Eleven Kinds of Money

When we are fortunate enough to get hold of some of Uncle Sam's coin of the realm we seldom scrutinize it closely, because we know that for practical purposes one dollar is as good as another.

In fact, the average citizen is probably unaware that there are eleven distinct kinds of United States money, but such is the case. These include federal reserve notes, national bank notes, silver certificates, gold coin, United States notes, subsidiary silver, gold certificates, federal reserve bank notes, minor coin, silver dollars and treasury notes.

At present the total amount of United States money in circulation is approximately $5,743,000,000 of which more than one-half is in federal reserve notes. Silver coins constitute a relatively small portion of the money in circulation.

The administration's monetary policies have attracted attention among financial and economic experts. The layman knows little of what it is all about, and inasmuch as the experts are in thorough disagreement it seems that they don't know much about it either.

Speeders of Old

The traffic problem, especially in our larger cities has long been acute, and added to the congestion, which appears unavoidable, is the menace of the inattentive driver and the willful speeder.

But we should not imagine that similar problems did not concern city dwellers of the past. In an editorial which appeared in the New York Mirror in the year 1834, the reckless Broadway bus drivers were severely criticized for their disregard of life and limb. It said:

"The inconvenience and danger of this is no less felt by those who ride than by those who walk. It has not only become dangerous to cross Broadway on foot, but persons who venture or trust themselves inside one of these carriages run the risk of having their brains turned by the rapidity of the motion."

Not only was fear expressed for the safety of pedestrians, but the writer of that editorial appears to have believed that too rapid speed would scramble the very brains inside one's cranium.

What would he have thought of driving an airplane at the rate of more than five miles a minute.

Branding Dangerous Cars

In a European country, the cars of motorists convicted of flagrant violation of traffic laws are painted with an emblem as a warning to other drivers. It is said that this practice, newly started, has caused an appreciable decline in dangerous driving, as motorists naturally want to avoid the embarrassment and publicity the emblem gives them.

A great many thousand American motorists should have their cars so branded. The worst class of offenders consists of those who push the throttle to the floorboard as soon as they get out of sight of a traffic officer. Excessive speed—and there are times when 15 miles an hour is excessive—is responsible for more deaths than any other driving violation.

Passing on hills and curves and meandering through traffic are also potent causes of death, injury and destruction. On many tragic occasions, a driver has tried to save a needless minute—at the cost of a life.

Driving on the wrong side of the road, jumping traffic lights, passing at intersections—are practices dear to the heart of some people. They help keep the morgues and hospitals full to capacity.

Yes, it might be a good idea to adopt the branding practice in this country. A suitable emblem would be a skull and cross-bones.

What's New

Artificial sponges which are said to be as satisfactory for all uses as natural sponges are now made from cellulose.

The frequency of sinus ills in the United States is due to the mixing of races and nationalities, Dr. O. Paul Snyder told the American Otolaryngic Society recently.

An accidentally discovered treatment for trachoma has been brought to this country from France. No satisfactory treatment for this eye disease has hitherto been known.

An electric gas-filled tube, emitting germ-destroying ultraviolet rays and which is said to greatly increase the length of time food products will keep by destroying the bacteria causing spoilage, was recently announced in New York.

Don't Prolong The Agony!

Next time you suffer from Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, a Cold, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains; That Tired Feeling, That "Morning After" Feeling. Get a glass of water and drop in one or two tablets of

Alka-Seltzer

The New Pain-Relieving, Alkalizing, Effervescent Tablet. Watch it bubble up, then drink it. You will be amazed at the almost instant relief.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid.

After trying many brands of medicines—so-called relief for gas, and all of them a failure. I gave up hopes. By chance I tried Alka-Seltzer—I am more than satisfied. Geo. Bennett, New York, N. Y.

What Presidents Eat

Wide World Photos, Inc.

THE above is an authentic photograph of a corner of the supply room in the White House at Washington. The next time you stop in at your grocer's, think of the fact that Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt—or whoever bats for her if she's busy, which she invariably is—may be in a Washington grocery store buying exactly the same foods of the same brands as you to serve to her distinguished husband, to statesmen and ambassadors.

At any rate hysterics can often be avoided by means of canned foods according to an interview in the New York World-Telegram with the First Lady of the Land shortly after her husband was inaugurated President. The girl who has hysterics when her husband telephones that he is bringing an office mate home to dinner, she was quoted as saying, has a lot to learn. In a well-run household, Mrs. Roosevelt believes, there should be certain things in reserve—canned foods that can be rushed into service at a moment's notice if the dinner that was planned seems rather slim for company.

White House Well Provided

That is how the White House comes to be well provided with canned foods. There are tomatoes, pears, fruit salad, sardines, salmon, lobster, pork and beans, pineapple, tomato juice, mackerel, corned beef hash and sweet potatoes to be seen in the picture, and remember that it shows only five sections of the shelves. We suspect that Mrs. Roosevelt's—or her housekeeper's—shopping goes farther than that.

An emergency shelf of easily prepared foods is probably more necessary in the White House than in any other single dwelling in the land. Its efficient housekeeper must be prepared to change her estimates of the amount of food that will be needed for any meal or on any day not by what is necessary for merely two or four but literally for dozens of people. One of the inalienable privileges of the President and his First Lady is that of rapid changes of mind.

Canned Foods the Answer

Canned foods provide the major part of the answer to this perplexing problem for some of the following reasons. Their food value is equal to that of home-cooked food and generally even greater because the canned food is more easy to digest on account of being more thoroughly cooked. A higher percentage of vitamins is retained in canned foods than in foods cooked at home by the ordinary methods. Perfect sterilization renders canned foods absolutely safe. The sterilization process destroys harmful organisms as no home cooking can do.

Then there are the aspects of convenience and economy. Canned foods are always ready to serve. For cold dishes they need only be mixed with other things, in salads or desserts, and placed attractively on a dish. When they are to be served hot, a brief heating is all that is necessary. There is no waste in canned foods. The vegetables and fruits have already been peeled and stoned or seeded. The fish has been boned and skinned and all unusable parts removed. Every bit of the canned food is usable.

Finally canned foods save time as well as labor. It is no wonder that Mrs. Roosevelt and all her predecessors have given them a permanent place on the White House shelves.*

Horses and Ribbons

By MARTIE RAMSON

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

"SPEED" JOLLEY and Lew Reid were more than just friends; they were pals. They roomed together when Lew was in New York. When he was in Maryland or Florida he would write to Speed every day. He would give Speed an accounting of the day's doings; the races he won and those he lost, too. He would ask Speed in his letters, if he saw this about him in the papers and that, always knowing that Speed would cut every line out and save it.

You see, at this particular time, Lew Reid was the leading jockey of the country. People that followed the horses, and especially those who bet their good money, would tell you that you couldn't bet against Reid. "The kid's a miracle man," they'd say, and they were almost right. Horses that never ran better than third, and which went to the post at eight to one and ten to one, Lew brought home right in front. Soon it became a question of who was riding the horse. Not very long ago Goldie B, a fair three-year-old, was quoted at ten to one in the morning line. An hour before the race there was a change in jockeys. Heller came off and Reid went up, and in less than ten minutes the price dropped to four to one. And to top it off, Reid brought the horse in right in front. So it looked as if he really knew how to do it.

It was the month of April and the Pelton outfit, for which Lew was riding, was in New York for the Jamaica meet.

Speed had said nothing to Lew in his letters about losing his job, and when he did tell him, Lew passed it off lightly, telling Speed that he had nothing to worry about.

"You'll be gettin' better soon, Speed. An' besides, ya got a few hundred in the bank, so what's the use of worryin'?"

"Well, maybe you're right, Lew," smiled Speed. "Let's forget it for tonight. Helen's havin' a few friends over and asked us to drop around."

Helen was Speed's sister and spending an evening at her place, even though it was a half-hour ride on the subway, was nothing new to either of them.

We'll skip over a few weeks here to make a long story short.

The night of Helen's party Lew met Sue Thompson, and from the first moment he laid eyes on her he knew he was in love. But unfortunately, Speed met her too and felt the same way about her. Because Lew had to divide his time between Maryland and New York, Speed had the advantage, and it wasn't long before he told Lew that he and Sue were planning to get married—if Speed could get a job.

Lew's ardor for Speed had cooled since the night they met Sue, though he tried real hard to keep his friend from noticing it. Little did Speed realize that every time he mentioned Sue's name, he was driving a spike into Lew's heart.

Then one day Lew came to Speed with an idea. Lew was riding at Saratoga at the time. "Red" Dubin and his gambling syndicate were on hand, and Lew knew that one or two races every day would be a bit shady. He also knew that whatever was going on he would have to be in "on the know," for to beat the race they would have to beat Lew Reid. And so a day later Speed was at the track, and that evening Lew is telling Speed, "If you see a red ribbon on my hat, bet the horse I'm riding. If I'm wearing a green ribbon, lay off." And Speed, so as not to forget, wrote it down. "Soon," continued Lew, "you'll have enough dough to marry Sue without havin' to worry about gettin' a job."

Speed was happy; happy to have a friend like Lew and a girl like Sue. Little did he dream that Lew, vindictive in his heart, was framing him to lose his five hundred, so that he would be that much further away from Sue and his contemplated marriage.

Speed watched with anxious eyes each time Lew came from the stables and, seeing a red ribbon, would dash over to the window and make his bet. Three days later his bankroll increased to thirty-five hundred dollars, and a week later he and Sue were to be married. Lew, of course, was to be the best man.

It wasn't a large wedding, but it was beautiful. Everything done up just right, as Speed said later.

Lew and Speed were waiting for Sue to dress. Soon she came through the door. Over her wedding gown of white she wore a green coat, the only one she had that would suit the occasion. As she approached Lew and Speed the prospective bridegroom smiled with pride and turning to Lew said, "Gee, doesn't she look beautiful in red and white?"

Lew stared at him, aghast. So that was it! For the first time in all the years, Lew had just found out that Speed was color blind.

BANK GROUPS MAKE NATIONWIDE SURVEY

American and State Banking Associations Collaborate in Investigation

LOAN SERVICES STUDIED

Activities of the Government in the Banking Field Are Reviewed and Position of Banks Analyzed

NEW YORK.—Detailed bank researches, covering all phases of practical operating and economic facts and conditions related to banking, are being made by the American Bankers Association. The resulting material is being placed at the disposal of all state banking associations, which in many instances are extending the researches of the national association in their own states. These activities are said to be a part of the general program of banking development which is being carried on by the organized banking business.

Among the most extensive researches being conducted by the American Bankers Association is that of its Committee on Banking Studies, which is making a detailed survey of Federal Government lending agencies and policies. The basic material, which is kept up to date by continuing studies, shows where the Government agencies get the money they lend, what liability the Government assumes, what subsidy it extends, what return it gets, for what and to whom the money goes and on what terms it is loaned.

The Government in Banking

"It is not the intention of the committee to express its viewpoint about any agency," says the foreword to this material. "Its intention is only to determine the facts. These facts properly assembled and presented should help banks to meet Government competition if and where it exists. The committee believes the Government entered the lending field at a critical period in order to aid banks and financial institutions. If the time has come for the Government to withdraw, it is the duty of bankers to demonstrate their readiness to take care of all sound credit needs."

It adds that the banks must be equipped with full factual material as to the Government's emergency lending activities and practices, and that full cooperation has been given the committee by Government agencies in obtaining facts. Binders of the material gathered have been placed by the committee in the hands of state associations.

Investigation of Postal Savings

The Committee on Banking Studies has also made a survey of the Postal Savings System throughout the United States to ascertain to what extent it is competing with chartered banks. Questionnaires were sent to banks in all places where Postal Savings depositories are operated and their answers will be analyzed as a basis for the committee's findings.

The Bank Management Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a nationwide survey covering the movement among banks to increase their earning abilities "through fair and legitimate rates for services they render their depositors." It has developed a plan of account analysis as a basis of fair charges.

"All business in order to justify its existence is founded on the economic principle that a reasonable return should be expected from services rendered," the commission says.

Personal Income Loans

The Bank Management Commission has also formulated methods for installing and operating personal income loan departments in banks. "This plan contemplates making loans primarily to individuals and small business concerns, based upon the character and assured incomes of the borrowers, as distinguished from the usual basis for 'commercial loans,'" the commission says.

It points out that a large part of the population is not now making use of available bank credit and that "to these people the personal loan department extends a valuable service which at the same time is profitable to the bank." It adds that it is "the duty of the banks to educate the public to come to the bank for all financial services. Small borrowers should be informed that the local bank is willing to care for their demands."

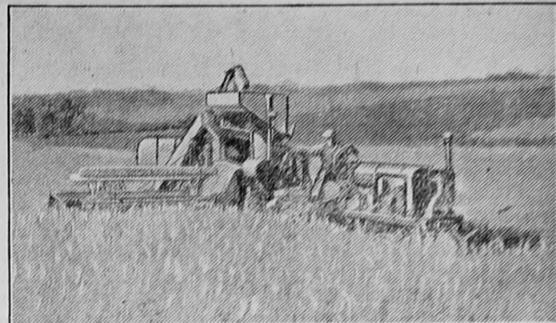

Other Researches

Other researches are being made by the Economic Policy Commission of the association dealing with shrinkages in liquid commercial loans caused by economic changes in the nation's business methods while the National Bank Division has made studies of the lending and investment powers of this class of bank, the present status of the real estate investment field and of detailed data by states on earnings and expenses.

The Savings Division has gathered the facts showing savings in banks of all types, the number of savings depositors, the per capita savings for the country as a whole and the effects of current economic and social changes upon the savings habits of the American people.

The association's State Bank Division has issued the most recent figures available as to the detailed conditions of state banks, showing steady improvement in the position of the state banks, with marked expansion in their aggregate resources, while the Trust Division has compiled a guide to fees with a recommended cost accounting system.

The Successful Small Combine

McCormick-Deering No. 22 Harvester-Thresher

ANY farmer who has 50 acres or more of grain to harvest can use this 8-foot combine profitably. It is an economical one-man outfit that cuts and threshes 20 to 25 acres a day. Owners use it successfully in all staple grains, in soybeans, peas, Lespedeza, sorghum grains, and a wide variety of special crops.

The McCormick-Deering No. 22 Harvester-Thresher is soundly designed throughout. It is easy to operate and requires no hair-trigger adjustments to do good work.

Come in and find out how this combine will pay on your farm. Other sizes—12 and 16-foot cuts.

Modern Method of Making

COOKIES

"The children run from near and far To dip into the cookie jar."

THAT'S one of the immemorial prerogatives of childhood. So prevalent is it, in fact, that a vast cookie baking industry has been built up to keep all the cookie jars in the country comfortably full so that children can exercise that prerogative.

But, after all, it's fun to surprise them. They all know the contents of the innumerable cartons of delicious cookies that save modern housewives so much preparation and baking. But when they plunge their eager hands into a cookie jar—a real old-fashioned cookie jar—which they know contains cookies made at home, the pleasure of uncertainty as to the nature of their treat is added to their anticipation of something delicious.

Apricots Inside!

Almond Apricot Squares: Cream one-half cup shortening and one-half cup sugar, add one well-beaten egg, and then one-fourth cup apricot purée. Sift together two cups pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoon soda and a few grains salt, and add. Stir in two-thirds cup finely chopped blanched almonds. Chill well, roll very thin and cut in squares. Place on a greased sheet. Will not spread. Bake at 400 degrees, a hot oven, for eight or nine minutes. Makes five or six dozen cookies.

Dried Apricot and Nut Cookies: Put one cup dried apricots through a food chopper. Then combine them with one and a half cups condensed milk, one cup canned moist coconut and one cup chopped nuts, drop by spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for from twelve to fifteen minutes. Makes about thirty cookies.

Molasses and Coconut

Molasses or Ginger Cookies: Boil one cup molasses a minute, add one cup sugar, one cup shortening, two teaspoons ginger, two teaspoons cinnamon and two well-beaten eggs. Add four teaspoons soda mixed with one-fourth cup vinegar. Add about five cups of flour to make a stiff dough. Roll thin. Cut as desired. Bake in a moderate—375 degree—oven for about twelve minutes. Use also for making gingerbread men. May sprinkle with sugar before baking if desired.

Coconut Buns: Cream one-third cup shortening and three-fourths cup sugar, add one well-beaten egg and then one-third cup canned raspberries, mashed but not sieved. Sift together one and a half cups pastry flour, one and a half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon soda and one-fourth teaspoon salt, and add. Add one cup bran and one cup canned moist coconut, and chill. Drop by small spoonfuls on a greased pan, about two inches apart. Bake in a moderate—350 degree—oven for about ten minutes. Makes three and a half dozen cookies.*

Baby Rain Maker

Little Dorothy Faye Terrell, aged 4, visited the Texas Centennial Exposition last week. She came from Plainview where it had not rained for a while. Confidently she carried her umbrella with her. It rained on Centennial crowds.

Quite a Change

This fur parka, once worn by Adm. Richard E. Byrd at the South Pole, and which Corrine, sensational "Apple Dancer" in the Streets of All Nations at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas, wears above, is quite, quite different from her dancing costume.

Treasurer's Office

Urbana, Champaign County, Illinois, September 8, 1936

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, treasurer and ex-officio collector of Champaign County, and the State of Illinois, will apply to the County Court of Champaign County at the September term thereof, to be held on the last Monday in September, at the office of the County Clerk of said county (it being the usual place for holding said court) for judgment against the said described lands, town lots and real estate, for such taxes, special assessments, interests and costs thereon, respectively, and also an order to sell the said lands, town lots, and real estate for the satisfaction thereof, and notice is hereby given that on the first Monday next succeeding the granting of judgment or the first Monday of the October term, to-wit: On Monday, the 5th day of October, A. D. 1936, all the lands, town lots and real estate and tracts of land for the sale of which an order shall have been made by the said county court, will be exposed to public sale at the place of holding such court in said county, for the amount of said taxes, special assessments, interests and costs accrued thereon respectively.

(Signed) Willard G. Goodman, Treasurer and ex-officio Collector, Champaign County, Illinois.

I, J. F. Darnall, business manager of the Broadlands News, a weekly newspaper published at Broadlands, County of Champaign, State of Illinois, do hereby certify that the foregoing lists of lands, town lots and real estate were published in said newspaper on Thursday, September 10th, 1936 and that said lists have been examined and found correct and that the same were published in all the papers for that number and date and duly distributed according to law.

New Rangerette

Here's Shirley Temple, the newest Texas Centennial Exposition Rangerette. Gov. James V. Allred signed her commission as a rangerette and official of the Exposition, a $25,000,000 World's Fair opening in Dallas June 6, gave her a 10-gallon hat, a pair of chaps and an invitation to attend the opening day ceremonies.

THE LADY CANDIDATE

EVER hear of Mrs. Belva Lockwood of New York? She was the woman who was twice a candidate for the presidency of the United States on the Equal Suffrage ticket. That she was defeated on both occasions is beside the point. The record shows that she was perhaps the most stalwart of the early-day advocates of "emancipation" in all its forms for the lover sex. And she accomplished most for them.

In 1882, two years before her likenesses were seen on presidential banners, Mrs. Lockwood obtained the admission of women to the Supreme Court of the United States. It was the culmination of a five-year battle, launched at the Suffrage convention in Lincoln hall, Washington, in 1877.

Mrs. Lockwood was a practicing attorney herself. For three years she had been empowered to appear before the Supreme Court of the District but was barred from the United States body by lack of precedent. She established the precedent. But it required a follow-up campaign of briefs, speeches and bills to obtain the desired end.

The speech of Mrs. Lockwood at the 1877 convention was convincing to her hearers. Contrary to current recollections of the masculine type of woman who first demanded political equality, she is described in a convention report as entirely feminine. As an example: Mrs. Lockwood wore a velvet dress and train.

Mrs. Lockwood was a candidate in 1888 as well as in 1894. She was active in public life almost to the day of her death in 1917, when eighty-seven years old. After women were allowed before the United States Supreme Court she championed the right of Negro lawyers to appear there. Then she shouldered legal cudgels for the Indians, went as a peace commissioner to Europe, engaged in a score of other worthwhile activities.
