Harry A. Little Announces Candidacy

Elsewhere in this issue of the Broadlands News will be found the announcement of Harry A. Little, of Urbana, who is asking the nomination to the office of County Treasurer on the Republican ticket, subject to the action of the voters of that party at the coming primary April 12, 1938.

Mr. Little is well known politically and as a business man in all parts of the county. His many friends predict that he will make a strong bid for this nomination. His membership on the board of supervisors and his work on the board of review for two terms will be of material benefit to him should he be fortunate enough to secure the nomination and election.

Mr. Little is well qualified for the position he seeks and should he be successful in obtaining the same, we feel assured the office will be conducted in a most capable manner.

Mrs. Mary Dillon, Longview, 74, Dies at Mercy Hospital

Mrs. Mary Dillon, 74, resident of Longview for the past fifty years, died at 11 P. M., Monday, at Mercy hospital, Urbana, having been in ill health for some time and a hospital patient since July 19.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning, December 30, at 9 o'clock, at the Immaculate Conception Church, Bongard, where the deceased was a faithful attendant until illness compelled her to remain away.

Mrs. Dillon was born Aug. 10, 1863, at Kickapoo, Peoria County, daughter of Lawrence and Johannah Keefe. She was married April 12, 1893, to John Dillon who preceded her in death January 9, 1904.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Daly, Chicago; two brothers, Lawrence, a farmer, and Michael, president of the Longview State Bank; a sister-in-law, Nora Dillon, Longview; three grandchildren and several nephews and nieces.

The deceased was a member of Longview Lodge, Royal Neighbors of America.

Longview Township High School News

Mary Collins, Reporter.

The Seniors who ordered class pins received them Monday morning.

School was resumed Monday after the Christmas vacation.

Among the students who visited out of town during the holidays were: Maxine Eastin, Sidney; Odelle Swangle, Homer; Gordon Hales, Brocton; Hertha Ringo, Charleston; Fauniel Harden, Chicago.

Long View defeated Pesotum at Pesotum, Tuesday night by a score of 55-24. Junior Churchill was the scoring sensation by totaling 20 points. Schweineke was second with 13, which equalled that of Wayne Batty, Pesotum's star and high point man in Champaign County basketball.

It took Arcola an overtime to defeat Long View in the Okaw International Tournament. The overtime ended in a 28-26 score in favor of Arcola. The Long View boys were praised for their speed and their determination not to give up. Junior Churchill, tiny Sophomore player, was the star of the Long View squad.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

W. Earl Ballew, Pastor

We have an unusual opportunity next Sunday. Due to a late change in schedule a group representing the Wesley Foundation at the University of Illinois can come to us at Broadlands. They will bring a splendid musician; a representative student will give a short talk; Rev. L. J. Sailor, the Associate Director of Wesley Foundation, will preach the sermon and tell of the splendid work and needs of the Foundation. No one can hear him without a stirring uplift. You will get something inspiring from this service. The hour is 11:00 o'clock. The Sunday school meets at 10:00.

The Methodist Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. Mary Dicks on Thursday, Jan. 13.

J. M. Rutherford Dies in Oklahoma City, Okla.

News of the sudden death of John M. Rutherford of Oklahoma City, Okla., was received at Newman by relatives on Tuesday morning. The deceased was formerly a resident of the community and was born on the Robert Rutherford farm north of Newman where he grew to manhood.

He was born Nov. 16, 1873, and at the time of his death was 64 years, 1 month and 4 days old. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rutherford, early residents of the Newman community.

On April 19, 1902, he was united in marriage to Miss Flo Swigart of Newman. They lived on a farm for three years then moved to Newman where they spent one year, then moved to Oklahoma.

Three children were born to this union; a son, who passed away in infancy; Corienne, now Mrs. Fred Starr of Idaho; and Clayton, Oklahoma City, Okla. Besides the wife and two children, he leaves the following brothers and sisters: Bert, of Newman; Robert, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Paul and Charles, Chicago; Mrs. Bertha Henderson, Chicago; Agnes, Newman; and Jean of San Francisco, Calif.—Newman Independent.

Kerna Blocks Have Fire Scare Last Friday

Kerna Block and family were victims of a fire scare on Friday afternoon of last week, when the wallpaper around the flue in their home caught on fire. The blaze was soon extinguished and little damage was done.

The fire truck refused to run, and had to be pulled, pushed and dragged to the scene of the fire. However it wasn't needed.

The men who have been handling the fire truck in the past declare they are now on a sitdown strike and will not attempt to use the old truck in case of another fire. All of which leads us to believe a new fire truck is needed in this man's town.

The Edward Nohrens Hosts at Bridge Party

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nohren entertained several friends at a bridge party Monday night, Dec. 27th.

Five tables were in play with prizes going to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moore, Mrs. Gladys McClelland, Albert Telling.

Refreshments consisted of assorted sandwiches, pickles, pecan pie with whipped cream and coffee.

The most important thing in all the world is the thing you have in mind to do. No sane man will leave his house unlocked, windows open, a fire burning in the fireplace, the gas water heater turned on, and the electric iron still plugged in.

No safe and sane driver will leave his truck unattended unless he does the following things: Shuts off the engine and sets the emergency brake; places it in low gear; makes sure that he is not stopped on a crest of a hill, or at any point where traffic can not see his vehicle from all directions.

These are some of the important things in driving.

All-White Wrap Is Chic This Winter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HERE'S telling you how to look your most enchanting self when you go to dining, dancing and making merry during the winter social swirl.

The ingenue's choice is for full-skirt romantic entrancing creations made of frosty, frothy diaphanous whites that dazzle with glittering, glistening sequin, crystal and rhinestone accents.

White wraps to wear over these beguiling frocks are so smartly in fashion they are literally taking the world by storm this season.

Then, too, there is the new-this-season ermincrush that makes up exquisitely into wraps such as pictured herewith.

It is also contended that scores of thousands of New Yorkers who thought LaGuardia should be continued as mayor would oppose the idea of the mayor becoming President of the United States.

Other Angles Which would seem ample proof that plenty of people will vote for a good public servant for some offices, but will not necessarily support the same man for President.

The Case of "Jimmie" There has been a lot of joshing about President Roosevelt's training up his elder son to take his place.

one of the new tulle frocks with voluminous skirt and expertly fitted bodice that is so quaint and so chic all in one.

Yes indeed, this winsome muff and wrap set is one any stylish-minded woman would love to own. Well, why not even if you happen to be one among those to whom evening elegance at little cost is a problem to be met.

We might say that if you would be intrigued with the thought of a little bolero, muff and hat set, patterns are easily available and such a trio made of ermincrush would carry you through a winter with unmistakable style distinction and allure.

An all-white cape is also a possession to be coveted. See the one in the picture. The lavishness of the velvety weave has been added unto by the trim of sable-dyed kolinsky.

HIGH-STYLE SUEDE By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If you are properly style-minded you will set your heart on having a suit tailored of richly colorful suede. The handsome suede suits that feature so conspicuously in the present fashion picture are ideal for rain or shine as they are made of a shelter suede that is shower-proof and winterproof.

BLACK IS FAVORED FOR DAYTIME WEAR

Black worn with white and light colors is Bruyere's choice for smart daytime clothes in the mid-season collection. Light wool costumes in black with white satin blouses are a highlight of the showing, and rhinestone clips are the leading trim.

A black two-piece daytime ensemble is made in lightweight wool with straight-cut skirt and waist-length jacket of bloused design, fitted to a snug wide belt. With the costume is worn a lustrous white satin blouse, with long, fitted sleeves. The bodice is draped from center of the waistline, where it is fastened with a wine grosgrain ribbon which forms a corselet belt, dropped lower at the back.

Sumptuously Furred Tweed Suits Are High in Favor

An increasing interest in suits made of striking tweed is noted. These are not just tweed in the ordinary sense of the word, but they are sumptuous affairs of gorgeous tweed that "gets you" because of the grand and glorious coloring and the fascinating nubby knotty textures. The opulent furs that trim these elegant suits are a fitting tribute to the tweed itself.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for January 9

PREPARING FOR A LIFE OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Prepare ye the way of the Lord—Mark 1:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Was Baptized.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Was Baptized.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Getting Ready to Serve.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Dedicating Our Lives to Service.

"The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ"—what an interesting expression! Did it not begin back before the foundation of the world? Yes, for the death of Christ was no mere afterthought in God's plan. But now we have the coming into the world of the One who was the Lamb slain from before the world's founding. Jesus Christ is about to appear to begin his ministry which was to culminate at Calvary's cross.

Before Jesus, comes the one sent to proclaim his appearing, to herald the coming of the Servant of God. Mark begins his account with the ministry of John the Baptist and makes no reference to the birth and genealogy of Jesus. How appropriate that is, for after all the important thing about a servant is not that he came from a certain family, or was born in a particular place. The point is that he is here now and able and ready to do his work.

I. The Herald of Christ (vv. 1-8).

The prophets had pointed forward to the coming of Christ. John the Baptist, of whom our Lord said that there was not a greater among the prophets, now appears to proclaim his presence and prepare the way for him. Of him Joseph Parker beautifully says that he "was all but a transparent veil: they could almost see the coming God through him . . . If he stood aside for a moment there was the One who was to come."

John was a unique personality, admirably fitted to proclaim a stern message of repentance to a decadent age. Let us not put aside or ridicule strangely clad and unusual folk who have a word for us from God.

"Repent"—that was his message from the Lord. America needs that message today. The Christian doctrine of repentance has been set aside by some because they dislike its convicting power, and by others through theological readjustment. It needs re-affirmation.

John's greatest message, however, was the coming of the One who was to baptize not with water but with the Holy Ghost. Like every true witness he humbles himself and points to the Saviour. We need the message, "repent," but we need even more to recall to our preaching and our churches the Holy Ghost power of the Son of God.

II. The Baptism of Christ (vv. 9-11).

The account in Mark is brief but it brings before us the fact that the sinless Son of God thus identified his holy self with sinful humanity which he had come to save.

Let us learn the lesson that obedience to the divine will, a willingness to humble ourselves to do the work whereunto God has sent us, are prerequisites to the filling of the Holy Spirit with power and grace for life and service.

III. The Temptation of Christ (vv. 12, 13).

We recall as we consider the temptation of Jesus, that he was without sin, that there was no fallen nature in him to which Satan could appeal. The temptation or testing of Jesus was therefore along Messianic lines, but the principles both of temptation and victory are similar to those of our own experience. Consider the parallel passages in Matthew 4 and Luke 4.

The Devil has only three real temptations to present, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life" (1 John 2:16). These he used with Jesus as he tempted him to make food for his hungry body, to look at the kingdoms of this earth and attain them by a wrong method, and to presume on God's grace by throwing himself from the pinnacle of the temple.

Victory came through the use of God's Word. We need to learn that lesson and not attempt to defeat Satan with any man-made weapons of will-power, logic, or culture. Jesus was certain of victory. He is our victory. Learn to know him as Saviour and Lord. Study God's Word and learn how to use it in spiritual conflict. Yield to the Holy Spirit. Victory lies that way, and nowhere else.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Making a Chintz Bed Spread With Corded Seams.

WOULD you like to make a chintz bedspread to match your curtains? Of course, such a spread must have seams in it, for most chintzes are only 36 inches wide, while the average double bed is about 54 inches wide. But seams need not detract from the beauty of the spread.

Eleven and a half yards of 36-inch-wide chintz will make this spread and pillow cover for a double bed. In the diagrams at the right I have given the dimensions for cutting these for a 54-inch-wide bed. It is best to cut the center portions first; then cut the 18-inch side sections for the pillow cover; then the 10-inch strips for the side ruffles of the spread.

Cable cord for the corded seams may be purchased at notion counters. Prepared bias trimming may be used for the cord covering. Baste the covering over the cord, as shown here at A; then place the covered cord in the seam, as shown, and stitch as at B, using the cording foot of your machine. Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

Keep a Goin'

A man we knew had rounded out more than ninety years when a little bit of a windfall came to him. The first thing he did after counting the money was to say, "Now I'll set out another orchard!" He did not flinch in the face of his years. He was ready to start right in where he started 50 years before. Time ought never to down any of our folks. When a cold strikes . . . don't take needless risks

Treat Colds This PROVED Way

WHY experiment? Vicks VapoRub has been doubly proved for you . . . proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind; further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (See full details in each VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you such proof.

VapoRub is the direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no risk of stomach upsets. Simply massage it on the throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Relief starts almost at once. You begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub starts working direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time, its medicated vapors—released by the warmth of the body—are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion.

Repeat treatment at bedtime. After restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps right on working, hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Two Able Executives

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune," according to Shakespeare's Julius Caesar. Be that as it may, last spring's great Ohio River flood brought into national prominence two able men who rode to greater fortune, on its crest.

Among those whose masterful handling of desperate situations in their communities received the highest praise were City Manager Clarence A. Dykstra of Cincinnati and Mayor Neville Miller of Louisville. Both directed rescue work and relief for flood refugees in their respective cities with consummate skill and spectacular success.

Recently both men have been called to more important if less spectacular posts—Dykstra to be president of the University of Wisconsin, and Miller to be assistant to the president of Princeton.

Both had been at the head of university departments before becoming city officials, and are therefore exceptionally equipped by scholarship and executive experience for leadership in the great educational institutions named.

Ox Blood Treatment

Amazing results in the treatment of pneumonia patients with injections of a new chemical derived from warm ox blood were reported by Dr. Clyde Brooks of the medical school of Louisiana State University before the southern Medical Association's recent meeting in New Orleans.

The greatest success of the new treatment has been attained in pneumonia in infants and old people, Dr. Brooks said, and it has also proved very beneficial in influenza cases. An interesting comparison of results by percentages of deaths was given, covering methods employed in a series of 800 pneumonia cases.

Of children one year old or less having lobar pneumonia 55 percent died under serum or other treatments heretofore employed, while only 6 per cent died when treated with the new chemical, which is called "deutero-proteose."

Among pneumonia patients over 50 years old 75 per cent died under usual treatments, while only 15 per cent died when the new chemical was used.

If subsequent results maintain the record reported by Doctor Brooks, the new discovery will mark an epoch in the battle against one of mankind's most deadly enemies.

Champ Navy Father

Lieutenant Hjalmer E. Olsen of Waukegan, Ill., is not the Father of the Navy, but he is the champion Navy father, being a retired officer himself and having five sons in the Naval service. They are:

Lieutenant-Commanders Chas. E. Olsen and Clarence E. Olsen, Lieutenants Earl K. Olsen and Robert I. Olsen, and Midshipman Albert R. Olsen, now a student at the Naval Academy.

The elder Olsen was born in Norway in 1860, and served on board the battleship Iowa during the Spanish-American War. He was retired for disability in 1904 but made a come-back in 1906 and was assigned to active duty at the Chicago Naval Training Station until 1910. He returned to active training station duty again during the World War. He recently received a letter of commendation from Secretary of the Navy Swanson, who wrote:

"Such a record is indeed remarkable and is a manifestation of practical patriotism of the highest order. Permit me to extend to you my appreciation and heartiest congratulations, and wish you and your family a most prosperous future."

Some More Blue Laws

Recently a press report told of a revolt against certain ancient blue laws by citizens of Bellows Falls, Vt., which caused a Chicago reporter to look into some antiquated statutes of the Windy City.

He found, among other things, that it was unlawful for a lady to allow her hatpin to protrude more than half an inch beyond the crown of her skypiece; also that her bathing suit was rather rigidly regulated by a city ordinance.

Kids were informed that they were prohibited from flying kites in Grant Park, or being on the streets unaccompanied between 10 at night and 6 in the morning if under 16 years of age. Shooting air rifles within the city limits is banned, and wearing a mask, even on Halloween, is unlawful, except with the mayor's permission.

When an automobile frightens a horse the motorist must bring the old bus to a full stop until Dobbins quiets down, and no musical instrument may be taken upon a public beach without a written permit.

Finland's Birthday

This month the republic of Finland is celebrating its 20th birthday, its independence having been declared on December 6, 1917. Prior to the World War the country had been an autonomous duchy of the Russian empire since 1809, and before that was a part of the kingdom of Sweden for six and a half centuries.

Helsingfors, the capital, has a population of approximately 270,000. The oldest city is Abo, which celebrated its 700th anniversary in 1929. The country has an area of 150,000 square miles, about equal to that of New England, New York and New Jersey combined.

Although the little nation has less than four million inhabitants it has eight political parties. The Communist party was outlawed in 1925, and no Communist may become a member of the parliament. Both men and women vote, but not until they reach the age of 24.

Finland is the only country to pay every installment on its war debt to the United States as it became due. In 1934 it floated a 10 million dollar loan in New York at 4 per cent interest, with which to pay off bonds bearing higher rates.

The two Finns best known in America are Padvo Nurmi, the former world's champion long distance runner, and Jean Sibelius, by many considered the greatest living musical composer, now at work on his Eighth Symphony at the age of 72. The number of Finns unable to read and write is less than one-tenth of one per cent, another world record.

Marriage and Divorce

In the matter of matrimony, every state in the Union has one common requirement—a marriage license. But from that point on, unanimity ceases—21 states require no "waiting period" between application for a license and performance of the marriage ceremony, while only one state, Wisconsin, requires a delay of as much as 10 days.

In the case of divorces, the states are in near unanimity on only one point. With the exception of South Carolina, which does not allow divorce for any reason, every state permits divorce for adultery. From there on, state restrictions vary. Seven states recognize adultery as the only grounds for divorce; others will grant divorce for such reasons as incompatibility, cruelty, habitual bad temper or on any of some 20 grounds.

To hollow-eyed, 72-year-old Arthur Capper, U. S. Senator from Kansas, this unstandardized system of state laws on two of society's most pressing problems has long seemed unwise. Last week Congress had his proposal for a Constitutional amendment which would permit the Federal government to supervise marriage and divorce laws in all the states. His amendment, which must first be passed by a two-thirds vote of both houses and then ratified by 36 states, includes these provisions to regulate marriages:

(1) Two-weeks' "waiting period;" (2) denial of marriage licenses to insane or venereally diseased persons (only 12 states now require venereal disease tests); and (3) a fixed minimum marriageable age of 18 years for the man and 16 years for the woman (19) states have these minimums).

Senator Capper would recognize as grounds for divorce adultery, cruelty, desertion, conviction of an infamous crime and incurable insanity.

Because of religious, social and political considerations, chances for adoption of the Capper amendment are not bright. Meanwhile, each year 1,200,000 couples marry in the United States and, just as regularly, 200,000 couples are divorced.

Sidelights

At a ball given by the Imperial Airways staff in Southampton, Eng., Captain A. S. Wilcockson, a transatlantic pilot, won one of the prizes. It was a free 10-minute ride in an airplane.

A dangerously absent-minded professor is Dr. Jacques Millot of Sorbonne University, Paris. He left a bag containing 60 live scorpions in a taxi, but fortunately an alarm was given before anyone was stung.

Presumably as a joke, Lynn Leonard, a reporter of Wenatchee, Wash., started a subscription list to raise a fund for "the widow of the Unknown Soldier." Many patriotic citizens signed up without inquiring as to the identity of the widow.

A radio speaker tells this one: After a candidate had made the same speech in a certain town for the third time, a wag presented him an empty watch case, inside of which was a note reading, "If you ever make that speech here again we'll give you the works."

Fourteen years ago Joseph H. Sears of Oyster Bay, L. I., hired a chef who gave his name as Alfred Grouard, and who served faithfully until his health failed last year. He had never left the estate; never had any callers nor received any mail. When death came a few days ago it was discovered that Alfred was a woman.

Now Isn't That Devilish?

Teacher—What became of the swine that had the evil spirits cast into them?

Pupil—They made them into deviled ham.

"This joke will slay you," a friend told Coleman Pattison, an Indianapolis attorney. He was almost right. Pattison laughed so hard he fractured two ribs, puncturing a lung. Physicians said he would recover.

Historic Hoaxes
 By Elmo Scott Watson

"Two Famous Scientists"

THE World's Fundamentalist conference was meeting in Toronto, Canada. One of the speakers, a certain Doctor Brown, had defended the story of Jonah and the whale against the doubters who refused to take that familiar Bible story literally. So he was delighted when he received a letter from the city editor of the Toronto Mail and Empire which seemed to back up his belief.

The next evening Doctor Brown read to the 3,000 delegates to the conference the letter which described how two well-known German scientists, Herr Doktor Butterbrod and Herr Doktor Smearkase, while delving in some ruins near Nineveh, had found the skeleton of what they believed was a whale. It had a sort of muscle arrangement working a trap door which gave access to the stomach. This, the scientists declared, proved conclusively that it would have been scientifically possible for Jonah to live contentedly for three days inside the whale.

The delegates cheered the reading of this letter and Doctor Brown was well pleased. But he wasn't so pleased the next day.

For the Mail and Empire came out with a story which announced that the names of the two eminent scientists might be otherwise translated as "Doctor Bread and Butter" and "Doctor Cheese" and that the letter was a hoax planned by Charles Langton Clarke, who had written the story for his own amusement many months before the Fundamentalists met in Toronto.

Mental stress of sort is usually responsible for escapades. Anyway, Abigail desperately lonely. Jeanne, debonair, the flippant, was of a case, and their bachelor gartment was dreary—dreary ight in spring with the softly bg air promising showers and moon a blur of gold aslant th.

"Two weeks to since she was called," mused il, as she wandered restlesslyut the cubby-hole they called. She paused in her cramped berings to pick up a button halcealed beneath the bedroom ru.

"Off her new d flannel," she commented, as scrutinized the bit of brown bort was the work of a moment tid it with deft fingers in the roiere it belonged, but as she reach hang the dress back in the wbe she studied its brilliant h admiringly at arms' length. "thought came to her to try it or something to do, and take a l.

Sauntering da side street, she noticed casualouring car which slowed down oite the curb just ahead of her.

Abigail could'er just tell how it happened, bn an instant she found herself sd by strong arms, dumped into front seat and whizzed away he side of a very big man.

She did not sam and her first definite feelings one of exhilaration. She woeing kidnapped!

Neither spoland as they approached a w-bordered stretch of pike, thoughf fear, which had to be fought anubdued, crept into her mind.

It would nevdo to let her companion believer to be afraid, at this stage of thame, reasoned the practical Abig.

"Look here," he began, with only a faint tremor her voice, as they slowed down the roadside, "what is the meani of this—this out-rage?"

"I dunno," truff voice replied, dejectedly.

"Don't kno' she echoed, surprise conquer every other emotion.

He turned h around and looked at her in the dness.

"I shouldn't've done it, and I'm sorry if I scal you, but I was so blamed loneso and—"

"Who said u did scare me?" tartly interruid Abigail, who was regaining comsure as he became more embarrsed.

"Well, moe girls would have yelled—but y didn't," he added, admiringly.

"What goodould it do to yell?" asked Abigalsimply, as she relaxed againste back of the seat. "I felt a dp of rain—let's go back."

"What for? I haven't had anybody to talk since I been in this town, and thas three days."

"It's more-respectable to talk where we ca see what the other looks like."

"Mebbe yore right," he agreed, starting the r.

As they dve slowly back to town, he toldier of his proposal to, and rejectiony, one Jennie Smith, who had kep house for him since the death of is mother a year before; how, amzed and a little hurt, he had fled to town for a few days while sh made ready to leave his farm for pod and all, and, how, in sheer despration and loneliness, he had grabbd the first girl handy, not caring wether she was a little frightened ornot, in order to avenge his spite on womankind in general.

His accentsavored of the country, which warmed Abigail's heart, for she had been a country girl and she often veirned for the open fields more than anyone ever guessed. However, she gave no sign that he had gained favor, and maintained a discreet silence.

As he drew in at the curb in front of her apartment, the arc light shone full upon them, and the scrutiny on the part of each, though brief, seemed to be satisfactory.

"You look too sensible for these clothes," said the man, safely.

"And you look much too common-place for an abductor," laughed Abigail, light - heartedly, wondering why she felt so blithe.

"Can't I come around here tomorrow night and try to prove that I am of sound mind?"

He looked so earnest that Abigail nodded assent, and as she went up the steps, she saw not a brick entrance, but a door rock, and, above it, a plain green door with a brass knocker on it. And the scent of lilacs was in the air.

Grandma's Diary

By SELMA A. CAREY
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate,
WNU Service.

VIRGINIA DEXTER, from the depths of the pillowed hammock on her veranda, idly watched the actions of David Hughes as he helped an urchin recover a load of wood that had fallen from his cart.

"Always a good Samaritan, aren't you, Dave?" she jokingly asked him, as he came up and sat down beside her.

"I wish you would be one to me, Virginia," he pleaded.

"Please, David, don't go all over that again," she exclaimed, rather crossly; then, to divert his thoughts, she opened the paper on her lap. "They are having the Legion benefit dance tonight, I see."

"May I take you?" David asked quickly.

"I'm sorry, but Mr. Allen asked me first."

"That cad!"

"David!" indignantly.

"I'm sorry," humbly apologized David.

"Here comes Mr. Allen now," exclaimed Virginia, as a bright red racer swung into view down the road.

In reply to Mr. Allen's invitation to go for a short spin, Virginia agreed enthusiastically, to David's intense chagrin.

A kindly-looking white-haired lady, who came out in time to hear her acceptance, said, "Dear, I wish you wouldn't—"

Virginia interrupted by kissing her, as she said, "You silly little Grandma, don't worry about me. By-by, Grandma."

Grandma sat watching David as he went down the road with his familiar jaunty step. "Just like Hiram used to be," she soliloquized.

Later, in her room, Grandma took out a dusty little box from concealment. Tenderly she handled the trinkets therein until she reached the object of her search, a little black book.

Surmising that Grandma was having a nap, upon her arrival home Virginia sat in a comfortable chair to take a rest in the sitting-room.

With a casual glance at the magazines on the little table she noticed the little black book, and, curiously, she picked it up, opened it and, with deep interest, she commenced reading.

June 1, 1850—Mr. Hale called today. I was glad it wasn't Hiram who called for he is getting to be such a bore of late, while Mr. Hale—ah—he is so romantic and debonair.

August 1, 1850—I am treading on air today. Mr. Hale proposed to me. I must now call him Noah. Hiram seemed displeased, but he is so queer.

September 15, 1850—Noah and I were married today in the little church around the corner. He seems a trifle impatient this evening, but, of course, I should allow for all the excitement. I am actually nervous myself.

January 1, 1851—Noah has been away on business for the past few months. I was so glad to hear from his own lips that it was his sister he was seen with in town.

July 15, 1851—Noah's and my son is three weeks old today. I named him Robert, after Hiram Roberts. I am glad I did this because it pleased Hiram, and Noah didn't mind a bit. In fact, I do not think he cared whether I named him at all.

Noah is working too hard lately. I mentioned this to him today and he became almost furious at me for standing in the way of his ambition.

June 24, 1856—Little Robert is five years old today. I haven't received a word from Noah in three years. Hiram has been so kind to baby and me. Robert calls him Daddy. He doesn't remember his own.

June 24, 1876—This is Robert's wedding day. The only reminder I have of his father is the words imprinted on my memory, taken from a newspaper clipping dated 20 years ago:

"Couple found dead in Hotel . . . They were registered as Mr. and Mrs. Noah Hale."

Virginia closed the book. "Poor, dear old Grandma! What heart-aches she had known."

"Why, she left it purposely for me to take warning before it was too late for me, also," exclaimed Virginia, as she realized that her love-affair had been the same as Grandma's.

Two hours later David's dejected look turned to gladness as he espied Virginia when he entered the house. "Virginia!" he cried. "I thought you were with Mr. Allen in the auto when I passed it down the road."

"I told Mr. Allen I was going with you, David."

"You've made me the happiest man in the world," David whispered into a little pink ear that lay very near his coat-lapel.

"Not I, but Grandma's diary," contradicted a muffled voice.

He's An Industrial Worker!

YOU would naturally think of the man operating the tractor as a farmer. And he is a farmer, but he's also an increasingly important figure in the industrial world, not only as a consumer but as a producer. He's engaged in hoeing up a field of soy beans which later, after passing through various factory processes, you'll be using in the form of paint and varnish, soap, linoleum and scores of other products. Consumers Information points out that 91 million pounds of soy bean oil, a comparatively new crop for American farmers, was produced in one recent year. Of this amount, 2½ million pounds went into the soap kettles, 5 million into linoleum and 13 million into paint and varnish.

This brand new market for American farmers, who are now growing a large number of industrial as well as food products, has been developed, like many others, through the vast research programs undertaken by American industry, whose laboratories have added untold millions to the national wealth and also thousands of jobs for American workers.

DOAN'S PILLS

Washington News

By Hugh M. Rigney

Historical—The desks and the equipment which we use in the Capitol building often are of great historical significance. For instance, the desk now used by Senator Pat Harrison is the same that was used by Jefferson Davis and has saber wounds gashed in it. The desk used by Daniel Webster is different from all others and has been occupied by Senators Charles Sumner, Geo. Frisbie Hoar and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Notification—There is a pompous ceremony at the commencement of the Session of Congress in notifying the President that Congress is in Session. The ancient form is followed as the Speaker and Vice President appoint committees to ceremoniously walk down the aisles. However, the truth is that these committees no longer even go through the form of phoning the President. As soon as the committees disappear in the cloak rooms, the job is done. There was a time when the Committee galloped to the White House and back on speedy horses.

Capitol Facts—The Capitol building has a floor area of 14 acres, and 430 rooms are devoted to office, committee and storage purposes. There are 14,518 sq. feet of skylights, 679 windows and 550 doorways. The dome receives light through 108 windows, and from the Architect's office to the dome, there are 365 steps, one for each day in the year.

Freedom—The statue of Freedom on top of the Capitol building is entirely bronze and weighs 14,985 pounds. It was modeled by Thomas Crawford in Rome, Italy, and the plaster model shipped to this country. It was cast in bronze at the shops of Clark Mills, not very far from the City of Washington. The bronze casting cost $20,796.82, and the sculptor was paid $3,000 for the plaster model.

Average Farm Income—The Department of Agriculture has just released the results of a survey concerning average yearly farm income in four typical Illinois counties. This survey was conducted in DeWitt, Logan, Macon and Piatt Counties and determined that the average yearly income in 1935-1936 was $1746. This takes into consideration money income and non-money income in the form of food, etc.

Bills—There have been introduced to date in the Seventy-fifth Congress, 8,783 bills in the House of Representatives and 3,156 in the Senate. The Superintendent of Documents estimates that there might be introduced a total of 25,000 bills during all three sessions of the Seventy-fifth Congress. Of this number, it is unlikely that more than 500 bills will be passed and signed by the President. In other words, there is one chance in 50 that bills under consideration by the United States Congress will be enacted into law.

Weather—Weather in Washington during the Christmas holidays was ideal. There has been no snow to date and the temperature has scarcely been below freezing. The sun has shone a good part of the time, and it has been pleasant out-of-doors. Handshakes—Postmaster General James A. Farley customarily shakes hands with each employee in his department shortly before New Year's Day, in order to thank them for their cooperation and wish them a Happy New Year. The remarkable thing about Mr. Farley's greeting is the fact that he can call all employees by their first name and recall something personal about each. There are almost 1,000 employees.

Historic Hoaxes

By Elmo Scott Watson

Washing the White Lions

IT'S only once or twice in a century that Easter Sunday falls on April 1 but on one of those occasions the coincidence made it easy for some April Fool prankster to perpetrate a classic hoax. In March, 1860, several thousand citizens of London were greatly flattered when they received a neatly-printed and official-looking card which said:

"TOWER OF LONDON! Admit the bearer and friend to view the annual ceremony of washing the white lions on Sunday, April 1, 1860. Admitted at the White Gate. It is particularly requested that no gratuities be given to the wardens and their assistants."

No one had ever before heard of either the White Gate or the white lions so everyone who received one of these invitations was curious to know whether the latter were real or just statues.

A few staid citizens were dubious about the propriety of attending such a function on Easter Sunday but that didn't bother several thousand others who entirely overlooked the fact that it was also April 1. So they swarmed to Tower hill in hansom cabs and on foot and began inquiring eagerly of the gatekeepers where the White Gate was.

As soon as the gatekeepers saw the invitations they immediately recognized the hoax and they greatly enjoyed the opportunity of answering "April Fool!" to the eager inquirers. In fact, it has been suspected, although never proved, that some of these gatekeepers were the perpetrators of the hoax.
