Ed Brandenburger Visits Broadlands

Ed C. Brandenburger of Sullivan, publisher of The Sullivan Progress, was in Broadlands recently in the interest of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the General Assembly.

Two candidates are to be nominated by the Democrats in this district, which consists of the counties of Champaign, Piatt and Moultrie. Under an agreement entered into by the senatorial committeemen of this district several years ago these candidacies are to alternate. Champaign County is to have one all the time and the other is to be alternated between Moultrie and Piatt. This is Moultrie County's time and Mr. Brandenburger is asking the voters to give him favorable consideration.

Mr. Brandenburger has been publisher and owner of The Sullivan Progress since 1919 and has always taken an active interest in the affairs of this senatorial district. He made the race for nomination for the General Assembly four years ago and lost by a small margin.

Vandals Damage Lynn Grove Grave Markers

One of the worst pieces of vandalism in the history of the county was discovered Sunday noon. J. T. Cooper, who had gone to the Lynn Grove cemetery to inspect it for the purpose of putting in a bid for its care during the summer and found many monuments broken or misplaced throughout the three acre plot.

The sheriff was immediately notified and Monday announced he will pay a $100 reward for the arrest and conviction of the vandals. He has placed William Clemans, a deputy sheriff, on the case with instructions to put forth every effort to capture the guilty parties.

The cemetery is located one and one-half miles west of Block station and about six miles southwest of Sidney. It is fairly well filled with graves and monuments.

Deputy Clemans made a survey Monday morning and found 41 monuments broken or defaced. The damage will run into thousands of dollars. Some stones were pushed over and others moved from their foundations. One was thrown out of the cemetery.

On one monument on which there was a large stone or granite ball, the ball was broken off and thrown at other monuments to break them.

The deputy says there is ordinarily little traffic past the cemetery and the nearest house is a quarter mile west. In his opinion, the destruction was accomplished Friday night or later.—News-Gazette.

Gernon Roberts, 15, and Ervin Syfert, 16, charged with despoliation of the Lynn Grove cemetery, entered pleas of guilty on Wednesday in county court and asked probation.

The boys confessed the vandalism and officials said they offered no excuse or reason for the acts.

Now that warm weather is approaching, the number of bicycles in the streets will greatly increase.

Because bicycle accidents have become quite numerous recently, a planned safety program is essential. City bike ordinances should be strictly enforced.

A few important rules bike riders should obey are:

1. Give hand signals before stopping or turning.
2. Keep close to the curb, on the right side of the road.
3. Equip your bicycle with a front white light and a rear reflecting red light.
4. Ride with both hands on the handlebars and never carry other passengers on your bike.
5. Obey all traffic laws and regulations.

Place your news items in our mail box at foot of stairway.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—Among his companions in barnstorming, Glenn L. Martin was known as "The Dude," although his carefully tailored flying suits were always black, including their elaborate braid trimmings.

Martin Had Get-Up of Mortician

His somewhat mortuary get-up and behavior gave an impression of great conservatism, and it is not surprising that he got backing from the bankers when other aviators failed.

A few months ago, he said his Glenn L. Martin company, of Baltimore, making planes, had a backlog of $15,500,000.

He told the house naval affairs committee there should be a 100 per cent increase in armaments, that foreign nations are spending ten times as much as the United States. He would build a 250,000-pound bomber, carrying 30 men and a 4,000-pound bomb load 11,000 miles.

In 1912, this writer saw him put an inflated inner tube around his neck, strap a compass on his leg and take off to sea, at Avalon bay, Los Angeles, in a flying laundry wagon on which he had rigged a single wooden pontoon. He was bound for Catalina island, 20 miles away. It looked like suicide.

He not only made it, but picked up again at Catalina and finished the round trip, blanking Berliot, whose flight over the British channel was a one-way excursion. He had made the plane in an abandoned church.

The flight got him world attention. Then he staged a plane coyote hunt, dropped a ball into a catcher's mitt and a bouquet into the arms of a beauty contest queen.

This air extravaganza did not last long. In 1913, he built and sold two model TT war planes to the army, and has been building fighting craft ever since, with the exception of trans-Pacific Clippers.

He grew up in Mackburg, Iowa, built a pusher plane in his backyard and flew it in 1908. He is fifty-two.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, in his seersucker suit and his rumpled hat, frequently looked as if he had been sleeping under a bridge, especially in the midst of a hard campaign.

Bryan, Jr., Fastidious About Dress

His son, William Jennings Bryan, Jr., is fussy about his dress, severely and fastidiously groomed, with a jaunty little moustache and a nice collection of malacca sticks, sports clothes, and varied haberdashery.

He is in the news now as he becomes collector of customs at the port of Los Angeles, his first recognition by the California Democracy, in whose vineyard he has labored for years.

When his father laid down his staff and scrip at Dayton, Tenn., he picked from the legacy only two things—free silver and anti-evolution. He is quite unmoved by oratory, speaking with calm, legalistic precision, with no gift for the resounding or oracular.

He has made spirited forays against this or that, notably Upton Sinclair's "Epic" heresy of 1934, but with no such impassioned fervor as that which inspired his father. But, when occasion offers, he puts in a word for silver, or against evolution.

After the Dayton trial and his father's death, he made a knightly vow that his lance always should be leveled against this ignoble theory of man's origin. But nobody seems to be bringing that up now. The argument is shifting to where man is going.

He attended the University of Nebraska three years, studied law at Georgetown university, went to Arizona on account of his wife's health, and practiced law, first in Arizona and then in Los Angeles. He is fifty years old.

Origin of Word Assassin

The word assassin originated in Persia in the Eleventh century. It derives from hashish, the intoxicating Indian drug which at that time was used by notorious murderers under one Hasan-i-Sabbah to work themselves into the high state of ruthlessness required for their crimes. As a tactic in attacking vested authority assassination is as old as man. It is notably the most ubiquitous and immediate of dangers to autocratic government, as has been proved by the violent deaths of a high percentage of dictators from Julius Caesar to those of modern times.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL
By Carter Field
FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington.—For a government to rush into debt is a grand thing for all its citizens. For an individual to rush into debt is a terrible thing for all his dependents—though a good thing for his country.

Boiled down, that is the essence of the economic theory of a good many of President Roosevelt's advisers, if not of the President himself. It is shared by no less, for example, than Marriner Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the federal reserve system.

This sounds like a sarcastic criticism, especially to many of the old-fashioned folks who were brought up, whether they followed the teachings or not, on a "willful waste brings woe," and a "save the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves" philosophy. Actually it is as simple a statement of the theory as the writer has heard.

With plentiful government spending, especially if the money is raised by borrowing instead of by taxation, employment is encouraged; buying is encouraged; prices tend to rise; everybody has a job; and everybody, except the budget balancing theorists, is happy.

Example is made of Great Britain, which has never paid off the debts incurred in the Napoleonic wars, much less any of her enormous borrowings since. At various stages during the last two hundred years economists have worried about this debt. Actually, it is contended, Britain is just as well off now as at any time during the process, and her present ills are not due to her debt.

Of course, during this two hundred-year period described—for it goes way back to Napoleon—something has happened, which the economists advocating the bigger debt and bigger government spending theory do not mention. There has been a gradual shrinkage of the value of the pound sterling. But then, on the other hand, Britain is often cited as the only important country in the world which has never had a real inflation. Not an inflation crisis, to be sure, but her currency has gradually depreciated. Which is another way of saying that the people who saved their money kept losing a considerable fraction of it.

Evil of Saving

But there is a simpler illustration of the "evil" of saving. Let us imagine that everybody in the United States was gainfully employed, and every one saved so much of his earnings that the interest on his earnings would support him after 20 years.

In a very short period, 40 years at the outside, assuming no gambling element which would lead to losses, every family in the country would be able to live on its income. Theoretically, no one would have to work at all. Men and women could just spend their income on what they wanted, perhaps even save part of it.

Carrying this absurdity to extremes to make it clear, we would then be a nation of idlers, living on our incomes. But who would provide the food and clothing and automobiles and radios for our population?

To make the point still clearer, imagine a tariff wall around the United States so high that there would be no international trade. What would happen? Obviously demand being very high, and supply being very low, prices would soar. What would amount to a capital levy would thus be occasioned, and the accumulated savings would be wiped out. Everybody would go back to work again.

Now assume a little bit of this instead of a wholesale dose, and you have a depression. Reverse it, with everybody spending his head off, and you have a boom. In a nutshell, that is the theory, with the addition that if the individual doesn't spend, the government must.

Guffey Starts Something

Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania certainly started something when he named the issue on which he intended to support Thomas Kennedy and oppose Charles Alvin Jones in the Democratic gubernatorial primary in the Keystone state.

Guffey is supporting Kennedy for three reasons. One is that Kennedy has always regarded Guffey as his leader—has followed him in every important fight for many years. A second is that in supporting Kennedy, Guffey continues his alliance with John L. Lewis, who is Kennedy's real chief, for years in labor activities, now in politics as well. And a third is that Jones, who won the regular Democratic organization support, has always been a thorn in Guffey's side.

Guffey places it all on the count that Jones was against Roosevelt for the nomination in 1932. In short he was "Against Roosevelt Before Chicago," while Kennedy and Guffey were fighting loyally for Roosevelt. That is a mighty interesting change. It hits a lot of people. It hits Jack Garner, who is now

Vice President, but was a candidate against Roosevelt with some very important delegates. It hits the entire Maryland Democracy, which was enthusiastic for Albert C. Ritchie. It hits the majority leaders in 1932 of the Democratic party in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. It reaches out into California and hits Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, who was for Garner. It hits more than three-quarters of the important Democratic leaders in Ohio, and plenty in Indiana.

Idea Is Not New

There is nothing new about the idea of discrimination against Democrats who do not belong to the "For Roosevelt Before Chicago" club. But up until now the only point has been in patronage. Guffey would magnify this discrimination to apply to running for elective office. It would bar from any important role in politics everyone who was not actively fighting for the nomination of Roosevelt in the period immediately preceding June, 1932.

This is a new sort of political doctrine. It runs counter to the oft-stated maxim of Will H. Hays that "assimilation, not elimination" is what a party needs.

And there is just enough truth in Guffey's new doctrine, regardless of his own sincerity in stating it, to cause trouble. For there is not a Democratic senator or governor or member of the legislature who does not suspect that in any contest between an old Roosevelt friend and an old Roosevelt opponent, the President would be inclined to support the friend. That is human. It has always been.

The importance of it now is that never before has the titular head of a party, occupying the White House, had so much power to affect results in state primaries and conventions of his party.

Putting the two Guffey doctrines together would look very much as though John L. Lewis' favorite senator was digging a pit for Roosevelt to fall into.

All Boards "Wooden"

General Goethals, of Panama canal fame, was wont to remark, toward the end of his life, that "all boards are long, narrow and wooden." This opinion grew out of his experience with the United States shipping board, which attempted to build ships during the World war emergency. It had nothing to do with his experience at the canal. In fact, it was the contrast between his helpless bickering in the shipping board, and the czarism he practiced, thanks to Theodore Roosevelt, at the canal job, that brought forth his derogatory comment on boards.

All of which applies to the present Tennessee Valley authority (better known by its initials, TVA,) controversy. The real trouble considering solely its administrative mess, is the fact that it is run by a three-man board.

Washington observers have been racking their brains during the last few weeks to discover a single case of any government board, set up with a business type of function, as distinguished from a judicial type of function, which has not been ruined by personal conflicts between the board members.

The TVA is the outstanding present illustration of failure. The United States shipping board, with its interminable quarreling between members on wooden ships versus steel, etc., is the one best remembered.

On the contrary the ICC is an outstanding case of a successful government board, but its function is almost entirely judicial.

But in Business

Why, it is asked, should corporations be run successfully by boards, but governmental agencies apparently always come to grief? The answer, observers here figure out, is that business corporations are actually almost always dominated by one man. The division in power among the board members is theoretical, not practical. In a politically appointed board one member is just as powerful, so far as the operation of the board is concerned, as another. In business it is almost never that way.

For instance, the president of a corporation is always a member of the board. In some instances he is the dominating figure. He runs the company. If he runs it successfully the board of directors is just a set of rubber stamps. They approve his policies. The test of his power is the success of the corporation.

But the division of the corporation into three or more parts, with one member of the board supreme in each pigeonhole, would be highly unlikely in a corporation designed for profit. In a corporation such natural divisions of work are made, but they are usually confided to vice presidents, or other executives.

Sometimes the president is really just an executive, all the planning and policy coming from the board, but in most of those cases the board is dominated by one man.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for April 3 SERVING OTHER RACES

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:24-37. GOLDEN TEXT—God is no respecter of persons. Acts 10:34. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord of All. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord of All. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Good Will to Other Races. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Christian Brotherhood Toward All Races.

"God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34). He who by reason of His infinite knowledge might well draw lines of distinction between them is loving and gracious toward all, not willing that any should perish, extending His mercy to men of all conditions and all races. But men, whose knowledge is so limited that they cannot even rightly judge the thoughts of their own hearts, are quick to discriminate against their fellow man because he is of a different race, color, or social position.

A leader in the Southern Baptist church recently pointed out that the number of heathen in the world has increased about two and a half times as rapidly as the number of Christians, which means that at the rate of progress of missions during the last generation the world has become more heathen at the rate of six million a year, and now we are retarding the process still further. Because of financial depression we are recalling missionaries. When the world is ablaze with sin and God-denying political theories we withhold the gospel it needs. It has well been said that such strategy is like closing the hospital because an epidemic is in progress.

Jesus had gone into Syrophenicia and the region of Decapolis (look them up on the map) to rest. But the need of the Gentile people (to whom He was not at that time called to minister) impelled Him to help them also. Note how they were stimulated to believe, how their faith was tried, but triumphant.

I. Faith Encouraged.

The Greek woman and the man of Decapolis were led to believe in Christ in two different ways.

1. By hearing about Jesus. The woman "heard of him" (v. 25). Paul says, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). Are we diligent in season and out of season, telling the story of Jesus and His love? If so, men and women of our acquaintance will hear of Him and be ready to call on Him in the day of their trouble.

2. By a personal meeting with Jesus. The man was deaf; he could not hear about Jesus, but he could see Him. To him the Lord came in person, and by the sign language, related in verse 33, He stirred his heart to believe.

II. Faith Tested.

1. By obstacles. The woman met what seemed to be a sharp rebuke (v. 27), although it was no doubt much tempered by the tender voice of Jesus, and by the fact that He did not use the word "dogs" as the Jews did in speaking of the Gentiles. He spoke kindly, and He talked of the "little dogs" which were the pets of the household. But her faith was greatly tried, just as ours often is, not that it should fail, but that its strength might be demonstrated.

2. By natural handicaps. Jesus put no impediment in the way of the man, for he was already hindered by nature. How often do we not feel that in our very personalities and bodies are those things which hinder our full apprehension of the grace of God. Shall we then give up in discouragement? No. The man believed right through the barrier of unhearing ears and a speechless tongue. We can do likewise by the grace of God.

III. Faith Rewarded.

1. By deliverance from the devil. The woman's daughter was set free because of her faith. Men and women around us need to be delivered from the devil. Perhaps you who read these lines are in need of such deliverance. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:31).

2. By deliverance from personal limitations. The man's "ears were opened . . . and he spake plain" (v. 35). What is the unfortunate trait of personality, the handicap of body or mind that holds you back from accepting Christ as Saviour, or, having done so, from the full and free development of your spiritual life? Faith in Christ cuts right through the hindering inability. He said to Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

Temper

We are told, "Let not the sun go down on your wrath," but I would add, never act or write till it has done so. This rule has saved me from many an act of folly. It is wonderful what a different view we take of the same event four-and-twenty hours after it has happened.

Forgive Your Enemies

And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS pink and white chintz apron with pink gingham frills should inspire anyone to make long strides towards the kitchen. It is easy to cut. The material required is 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch-wide chintz or cotton print and one yard of plain material.

For the skirt of the apron, cut a piece of paper or cloth 27 inches wide and 23 inches deep. Fold this lengthwise through the center, as at A, then measure down from the top of the fold and in from the corners the distances indicated in the diagram and mark the dots. Using the dots as a guide, mark the outline of the apron skirt as you see it in the diagram. The dimensions for shaping the bib are given in the diagram at B. The pocket is a 5-inch square with lower corners rounded as shown here at C. The apron ties are cut 6 inches wide and 36 inches long. The strip for the belt should be cut 2 1/2 inches wide and a facing strip the same width should be cut for it. The shoulder straps are cut 4 inches wide and then creased lengthwise through the center.

The strips of the plain material for the ruffles are cut 6 inches wide. The ruffle material before it is gathered should be 2 1/2 times

Austrian Youths Celebrate Hitler Coup

International News Radiophoto.

A contingent of the Hitler Youth Organization of Austria are shown parading through the streets of Vienna in celebration of the Nazis' triumphant march into Austria. The successful Nazi coup spelled the end of Austria's existence as a nation and its beginning as a state of the German reich.

"The Law" in Austria Today

These German anti-aircraft machine gunners and thousands of others like them are enforcing Germany's will on Austria now, since that country became a part of the German reich in Hitler's bloodless coup. When this photograph was made these gunners were merely playing at war in maneuvers at Kissingen, Germany.

C. Houston Goudiss
Describes the Precious
MINERAL SALTS

That You Must Have in Order to Build Strong Bones, Sound Teeth, Healthy Nerves, Rich Red Blood

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York.

THE human body is often compared to a machine, but it is far more wonderful, far more complex, than the most intricate machine ever designed to run without stopping, day in and day out, for upwards of 70 years, is also a fully equipped chemical laboratory. For if a chemist should grind a man to bits and analyze the pieces, he would find at least 18 chemical elements, and possibly traces of several others.

In addition to oxygen, carbon, hydrogen and nitrogen, the body contains a wide variety of mineral materials, which are necessary to its proper functioning—and even to life itself. The list includes calcium, phosphorus, potassium, sulphur, sodium, chlorine, magnesium, iron, manganese, iodine and copper. All these substances must be furnished to the growing child—through food and drink—and generous amounts must also be supplied daily in the diet of adults, to replace the minerals that are constantly being used up.

Minerals Necessary to Life

It is vitally important that the homemaker should understand the function of these various salts and where they can be found. For if certain minerals are lacking in the body, the heart will stop beating. Without others, the bones cannot form properly. Still others are responsible for the rich red blood that makes the difference between a healthy person and a sickly one. Laboratory experiments have proved that if you leave out the smallest trace of the mineral known as manganese, you destroy the love of a mother for her child. And nutritionists—but unfortunately not mothers—are well aware that less than a thousandth of an ounce of iodine makes all the difference between a normal man and an imbecile.

Calcium—Captain of Minerals

Calcium deserves its ranking position as the captain of the minerals, because it builds the bones, or body framework. And the bony skeleton is to the human being what steel is to a building. Calcium is also the chief constituent of the teeth and upon healthy teeth rests the health of the digestive system and, in turn, the entire body. For food that is improperly masticated is imperfectly digested and fails to nourish properly.

About 99 per cent of the calcium in the body is found in the teeth and bones. If the body does not receive an adequate supply of this mineral in pre-natal life and during the growing years, the bones will be porous, distorted and easily broken, and the teeth will develop cavities and eventually may fall out.

In addition to being the principal material for making and maintaining the bones and teeth, calcium increases the strength and pulsations of the heart and helps the blood coagulate in case of injury, thus keeping you and your loved ones from bleeding to death. That is why an extra supply of calcium is fed to patients just before an operation.

Calcium Builds Will Power

There is a close relationship between calcium and sound, healthy nerves. And this precious substance likewise helps us to concentrate mentally—it strengthens our will power—and assists us in acquiring that "do or die" attitude toward life, which is essential in an age when we must all struggle or go under.

Yet despite its importance, it is estimated by that outstanding authority, Henry C. Sherman, Professor of Nutrition at Teachers College, Columbia University, that one-half of the American people—even those with plenty of money—are literally starving for calcium, because they do not know the food sources of this vitally important mineral.

Where to Obtain Calcium

The foremost sources of calcium are milk and cheese, which is milk in concentrated form. It is chiefly to provide adequate calcium that homemakers must follow the rule of a quart of milk daily for every child, and a pint for each adult.

Vegetables, such as spinach, lettuce, celery, asparagus, string beans, cabbage, carrots and cauliflower are also a good supplementary source of calcium. And some fruits, such as oranges, figs, strawberries and bananas likewise supply significant amounts.

Indispensable Phosphorus

Like calcium, phosphorus is required by the body in relatively large amounts, and like calcium, it is especially important in the diet of children, because it is deposited in the bones, along with calcium, as calcium phosphate.

Phosphorus is indispensable for all the active tissues in the body and plays an important part in regulating the neutrality of the blood. It can be obtained from whole grain cereals, eggs, dried beans, cheese, lean meats, and root and leafy vegetables.

Iron—King Pin of Them All

But measured in terms of food essentials, iron is king pin of them all. It is the supreme element in nutrition because it is necessary for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood. And it is the hemoglobin which carries purifying oxygen to every cell in the body. Recently, it has been discovered that copper is required for the proper utilization of iron.

"Red blooded" is a term understood by everyone to denote health and strength, and it is iron that makes us red blooded. When your children grow pale and listless, lose their pep and lack appetite, it is likely that they are starving for iron. If you become short of breath and "pant" when going up hill, or upstairs, even though there is nothing wrong with your heart or lungs, the chances are that there is insufficient red pigment in the blood—not enough to take up an adequate supply of oxygen and carry it to the millions of cells throughout the body.

There is no excuse for cheating yourself or your children of a full measure of iron, for this mineral can easily be obtained from liver, egg yolk, whole grain cereals, molasses, dried fruits, dried peas and beans, nuts, lean meats and green vegetables.

Iodine—Molder of Men

Almost everyone has heard that iodine is the mineral which helps to prevent that disfiguring enlargement of the neck, known as simple goiter. But few people realize that it is the principal constituent of thyroxin, secretion of the thyroid gland, and that the thyroid functions normally only when sufficient iodine is available.

A wide variety of physiological disorders have been laid to iodine hunger. Obesity is frequently the result of thyroid disturbance. Specialists contend that stubborn skin diseases are associated with disorders of this gland. Many people are accused of laziness who are really suffering from thyroid deficiency. And competent authorities claim that the thyroid likewise influences mental make-up and emotional tendencies.

Iodine is found chiefly in sea-food and in fruits and vegetables grown near the sea. In inland regions, where soil and water are poor in iodine, health authorities frequently add it to the drinking

An Invaluable Aid To the Housewife

IN THIS issue you will find the fourth of the series of articles written by C. Houston Goudiss, famous food expert whose books, radio talks and lectures have made him known all over the country.

In this article Mr. Goudiss discusses the vitally important subject, "Mineral Salts." He shows the necessity of these materials in the diet, and their relation to the building of a strong heart, healthy nerves, rich red blood, strong bones and sound teeth. He also gives the food sources of these salts.

Read each one of these articles as they appear weekly in this newspaper. They will prove invaluable to the housewife in assisting her to keep the entire family mentally and physically fit.

water. And the use of iodized salt is also recommended. By these simple measures, thousands of growing children can be saved from the disastrous results of iodine deficiency.

In general, it can be said that if the minerals calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine are supplied in adequate amounts, the other minerals will be automatically furnished.

But every homemaker should make it her solemn responsibility to provide these four in abundance. For only in that way can you insure optimal growth in children, develop vigorous health in adults, and maintain the highest possible tone of every organ in the body.

A Splendid "Service" for Floors

Floors receive rougher treatment than any other part of the home—and it is floors that show up to poorest advantage when neglected—best advantage, when properly cared for! Up to now, attractive floors have required some little time and attention, but this is no longer necessary. For into the field of domestic preparations has come "self-polishing wax"—liquid-smooth, simple to apply, lovely to see. This remarkable preparation goes on easily, quickly, and dries in 20 minutes! Its results are 4-fold: The floors are protected—they are preserved—they stay freshly-clean longer—and they are beautified! A quality self-polishing wax protects and preserves, by forming a film over the surface—hard enough to withstand friction and grinding wear-and-tear. It induces floors to stay clean longer, because dirt and grease cannot become imbedded in the wood. It beautifies, because it is shimmering, transparent, and brings out the natural beauty of the wood. And what more could the home-maker ask for? There are, however, various qualities of self-polishing wax available. Only the best should be used, for both the appearance and condition of the floors. But the finest self-polishing wax is a joy to use—its lasting results a joy to see!

FLOORS POLISH THEMSELVES

...with O-Cedar Self-Polishing Wax. No rubbing—simply spread it on and let it dry—then watch your floors sparkle! Non-slippery, long-wearing—eliminates scrubbing—dusting alone keeps floors clean. Full qt., only 85¢.

War on Crows

Farmers of the Middle West, suffering heavy crop damage from crows, are waging war on them by various methods, according to the Farm Journal, which tells of some of the means employed to destroy the pestiferous birds.

In Oklahoma, lengths of stovepipe loaded with dynamite and shot, are wired in trees where large flocks of crows roost at night. When night comes on these stovepipe bombs are touched off with telling effect. In one community it is said some 50,000 crows were killed with 150 such home-made bombs. A similar method was recently used with success in Montana.

Nebraska farmers in some sections organize shotgun brigades to kill the feathered enemies, and sometimes use an airplane to drive them to the ground, where they are more easily killed.

In Illinois an annual war on crows, usually beginning in January, is directed by state conservation officials, and both shotguns and dynamite are used.

The crow is not only destructive of crops, but is also an enemy of game and song birds.

Big Hosiery Bills

Lady dancers and others who disport themselves for motion picture fans cost the studios around a quarter of a million dollars a year for stockings alone according to an article in the Chicago Daily News, which says the average life of a pair of hose for a dancer is three wearings.

The average cost of a pair of stockings for a member of the chorus is about $4.50, but for the stars the cost runs as high as $20 a pair.

One of the most expensive stars to keep in hose is Eleanor Powell, who sometimes ruins as many as six pairs costing $15 a pair in a single day. Diminutive Lily Pons used up 120 pairs costing $20 a pair in one picture, which is probably a record.

Sonja Henie in her strenuous figure skating is another whose hosiery bill is high, running about $500 for each picture in which she appears. Her legs, by the way, are insured for $260,000.

All this sounds like rank extravagance, especially to a mere male, who gets along rather well with socks costing 35 cents, especially if he can find a pair without holes.

New Postage Stamps

It has been announced that 31 new designs of United States postage stamps will shortly be issued, and that these, with those already in circulation, will include portraits of all the Presidents not living. Several changes will be made in the denomination of stamps which bear the portraits of Presidents represented in present issues.

The first issue of United States postage stamps consisted of only two denominations, the 5-cent used on half-ounce letters going 300 miles or less, and the 10-cent for letters going a distance exceeding 300 miles.

The 5-cent stamp bore the portrait of Benjamin Franklin, our first postmaster; the 10-cent stamp bore the portrait of Washington, and were first issued in 1837, although a few postmasters had issued some stamps at their own expense for about two years previously. The very first adhesive postage stamps to be issued by any government were introduced in England in 1840, the example being quickly followed by other nations.

The first issue of postage stamp in 1837 would seem very insignificant in volume compared with the tremendous output of the present, which is estimated to be not less than 18 billion a year requiring 1,000 tons of paper, 575 tons of gum and 500 tons of ink.

Mammoth Kettle is Now a Monument

One of the eighty great iron kettles used a century ago to boil down brine from the famous Vermilion salines in the commercial production of salt now stands, five miles west of Danville on U. S. Highway 50, as a monument to a once important Illinois industry.

The eighty mammoth kettles, each large enough to hold two barrels of brine, were brought by boat and ox-cart from Louisville for the salt works of Major John W. Vance, which were profitably operated by him from 1824 to 1831 at the salt springs discovered in 1819 by Joseph Barrom, research workers of the Federal Writers' Project, W. P. A., have learned.

A few of the remaining kettles are used as water tanks in nearby farmyards and maple groves. The furrows on a hillside where roaring fires heated the immense containers may still be seen, but stones that formed the fireplaces have been carted away for other uses.

Illinois Man Invented The Ferris Wheel

Illinois gave the Ferris Wheel to the world. According to information obtained by the Federal Writers Project, W. P. A., a native son of Galesburg invented the wheel and directed its construction. It was a main attraction at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893. George Washington Gale Ferris was a member of two pioneer families of Galesburg, descendants of which now reside in that city.

Notwithstanding the opinion of engineers who believed the wheel could not be operated even if it were built, Ferris found backers for his enterprise. The encouragement given by officials of steel companies who believed in the feasibility of the wheel was an important factor in carrying out the plans. It is said that officials of the Fair were amazed both when the wheel did operate, and when it returned a profit.

According to accounts, the total cost of the wheel was $300,000, of which $25,000 was spent on planning and $12,000 on the wooden false work. The foundation, 40 feet deep, was laid in the winter months under handicaps. Because of the size of the job and the necessary haste, several steel plants divided the iron work. The pieces were so carefully checked for uniformity that they seemed to be the products of but one company. The giant axle weighed 70 tons.

The wheel, 270 feet in diameter, consisted of two huge rims with supporting spokes. Between these were suspended 36 cars, with seats for four persons in each one. As the wheel revolved, the cars reached a height of 258 feet, giving the passengers a fine view of the Exposition grounds, and a thrill to talk about when they returned to their homes.

The spinning and weaving of cotton is one of the largest of manufacturing industries in Portugal.

Ring Ridin'

"Ring Ridin'," at one time a popular contest during elaborate annual picnics held near Garrett, Douglas county, vigorously tested the horsemanship and nerves of the entrants. Broken bones sometimes resulted, and after a particularly stormy contest in 1891, the game was discontinued, research workers of the Illinois Federal Writers' Project have learned.

As described by an old resident, ring ridin' consisted of placing a small spear through a metal-like disk about ten inches in circumference. The disk, which was suspended from a string and pulley attached to a pole far enough from the ground so that a rider on a galloping horse could pass under it, was raised or lowered at the will of someone standing nearby.

We all remember amusing errors of childhood whereby we misinterpreted certain words in memorizing orally taught sentences. A very young movie star recently illustrated this tendency by beginning his Lord's prayer thus: Our Father, Who are in Heaven, Hollywood be thy name.

Careless drivers are a menace, thinks Saxon Brown, London strong man, whose special stunt is to allow an automobile to be driven over his chest. Recently a driver let the wheels wobble and they went over Brown's neck. Results were not fatal, but the strong man suffered for several days with a painful sore throat.

BETTY CARR turned her little purse upside down and ruefully counted its meager contents. The same old story! The end of the month and a balance of only one dollar and forty cents. There had never been as much as a two dollar balance in it for over a year. With all the time she had to spare, there didn't seem to be a single thing in the whole village of Sharon that she could do to make a little extra money.

SHORT SHORT STORY
Their long delayed visit to their western home, which she and John hadn't seen since their marriage, eight years ago, seemed as far away as ever. However, country roads were beautiful with Queen Anne lace just now. She and Buddy would take a walk to the drugstore at the end of the road and leisurely eat their ice cream in the little ice cream parlor over the river.
"Look, mother, look! Blackberries, thick as flies!"
"Come away, come away—you're in the 'queer woman's' meadow," she whispered to her little son. And then they both started back when a hearty laugh reached them from behind the hedge and a woman stepped out—a large, masculine woman, with a full basket of berries. Her eyes were laughing. She looked appreciatively at the little scene before her—at Buddy, standing defensively before his mother, looking the "queer woman" straight in the face.
"If your lad likes blackberries, help yourself. 'I have plenty.'"
This was so pleasantly said that Buddy relaxed his guard and pulled his mother forward through the hedge.

So this was what was behind that dense hedge that no eyes could penetrate! Trees and berries galore. And this was the "queer woman!" Betty looked curiously at her.
"I never saw so many berries all at once in my life," said Betty, when she had recovered her poise.
"I sell 'em in the city," said the woman with satisfaction. "I have my regular customers. My only trouble is in gettin' pickers here. Want to help?" she asked practically. "Fifty cents an hour, steady. You and your lad could easily make three dollars an afternoon and get your own winter supply as well."
"Give us a pail," said Buddy suddenly, and they began right away, and worked up to the time for Betty to get John's supper. Before summer was over they had canned and sold all the fruit and vegetables on the "queer woman's" miniature farm.
"You're like I was at your age," observed the woman to Betty one day. "Husband and you working like mad and not a cent in the bank, I bet."
Betty's eyes snapped.
"It won't always be—" she began heatedly.
"No. Something's bound to break right for a young fellow that plows his way through winter snows, to catch his train to the city at 7 o'clock cold winter mornings, for three years."
"You've noticed that?" asked Betty, with a catch in her voice.
"Jed Turner's wife is tied up with rheumatism and he's lookin' for someone to do up their Albertas that have begun to fall. You go up there and help out. Swap part of your labor for eggs and poultry and you'll be all set for the winter."
"I've never told you a thing and you've thought out my whole problem for me," said Betty.
"I've had to think and think hard all the days of my life," said the woman, "and I'm passing along the things I have learned. There is always a way out of your difficulties. Sometimes you have to work hard to find it, yet sometimes it lies within reach of your hand."

Betty went to Jed Turner's farm and did up their peaches, fed their chickens and put down their eggs. She wrote to her western home for her grandmother's recipe for rheumatism and rubbed it faithfully into Mrs. Turner's rheumatic knees until she was up and about again.
When the first snowstorm came and drifted high against the gate and Betty was getting John's breakfast a bit earlier to allow for the usual plow through the snow, she heard a noisy jangle, and there was Jed Turner on a home-made snow plow made of two beams and a cross section, driving his big bay through the swirling snow to her gate.
"The wife wants yer over this afternoon," he shouted. "I've cleared the way fer ye."
"Drive on to the station, Jed," she called back, and Jed willingly did what he was told, and made the way clear for the men who later stepped out onto a clear road on their way to work.
Betty gazed after the retreating form of her husband walking briskly along towards the station.
"How right she was," she reflected, looking through the dense hedge through which no eyes could penetrate. "There is always a way. Sometimes you have to search hard to find it—sometimes it is just within reach of your hand."

The White Elephant
THE year 1884 is known in circusland as the "white elephant year." P. T. Barnum had secured from Siam a genuine sacred white elephant and it drew such crowds that one of his rivals decided he must have a white elephant too.
So he whitewashed one of his pachyderms and renamed it the "Light of Asia." The dazzling whiteness of this beast, set off by its black velvet trappings, far outshone the rather dingy whiteness of Barnum's genuine animal. Barnum denounced it as a fake, but to prove it genuine its owners allowed visitors to touch its trunk which had been enameled.
But they didn't dare enamel its whole body (the whitewash could be scrubbed off each night) and thereby hangs a tale. At each performance the "Light of Asia" was stripped of its trappings, placed on a platform and beside it stood a learned "professor" who gave a lecture about the wonderful beast. The crowds noticed that the "professor" skipped about as he gave his spiel and wondered why. The reason was that the elephant wanted to make friendly advances to the "professor" and he knew that if he allowed the "Light" to rub against him, the whitewash might rub off on his black coat.
For some time the war of the rival "white elephants" went merrily on. Then Barnum made a deal with his competitor to withdraw the "Light of Asia." The next season the elephant was back on the road, but this time in its natural colors. Eventually, the "Light of Asia" wound up its career as "Old John," one of the favorite "bulls" of the Ringling circus.

Frank Merriwell at Fardale

Second down, twelve to go, with the State cheer booming across the field now. What did that Fardale quarterback think he was doing, slamming his lighter players into State's impregnable defense? Futile and silly. The State men were laughing.

Another formation for a run. But no, it was a fake. Springall took the ball and kicked quickly. He got it away and the wind helped carry it along.

Washburn, Fardale's left end, got through this time between guard and tackle. The over-confident State men had been caught almost flat-footed, and Washburn did some clever side-stepping and a little fast running. He downed the ball-catcher well over in State's territory.

A bit disgusted, but still confident, State settled down to show the home boys some real football. Of course Fardale knew what it was up against. Otherwise a long kick never would have been considered on second down. That early in the game, it was the trick of a team lacking faith in its driving force. Anyhow, that was the way State doped it.

Merriwell was trying to take it easy on the bench. He was trying to keep from getting too tense. If he got into this game at all, he wanted to be in the right condition, mentally and otherwise.

He watched the State steamroller start rolling, saw it steadily and surely grind forward into Fardale territory. It was bumping the breath out of the blue-and-white defenders. And it hadn't yet turned to either of the two scoring plays Kane had so carefully drilled his players against. Had the scout been mistaken about those plays?

No! There was the first one, a run around the strong end by the right halfback, with State's end blocking Washburn, Fardale's left end, in toward the line.

And now, with a heavy but swift interferer ahead of him, that backfield man came booming round the flank and went romping over the chalk-marks for a touchdown.

Washburn had failed. He had forgotten Kane's order not to worry about leaving a hole in the line, but to get outside the opposing end man and fight him off, while striving himself to get out still further out, if possible, to force the runner to swing wide. Had he remembered to follow instructions the run might have gained, but it would not, in all probability, have been good for a touchdown.

With the crowd in the south stand chanting State's fighting song, following a stirring cheer, State lined up to attempt a place-kick for the extra point. The angle was a little difficult, but State kickers seldom missed the posts. One of them booted the leather now, and Fardale failed to touch the ball.

But the wind took a hand. It swerved the ball just enough to carry it against one of the posts, and caromed off outside. Six points instead of seven.

State didn't mind that. Six points were merely a starter. Those confident fellows were thinking they might make 60 or more before the final whistle blew.

Time out now and a pause in which the school band played "Fair Fardale." Kane was sending a man in to take Washburn's place.

Hodge! Frank had forgotten that Bart had been transferred from the scrub the night before. Now he saw him fling off his wraps and start out on to the field. The fellow who had thought himself buried with the dead ones who were doomed never to play for Fardale was ordered to get into the game ahead of Merriwell.

Frank was human, and in that moment he felt a twisting stab of the commonest and meanest of human emotions. Jealousy. That was something he had though he'd learned to control and hold at bay, but it got him now and stung him deep and hard.

He and Hodge were the only two freshmen to make the squad, and to a certain extent he had helped Bart's reputation with the coach by yielding to Inza's wishes and saying a good word for the fellow at every opportunity. Now Hodge was going into this game to fight for Fardale and Frank was still glued fast to the bench.

Merry had been too busy to see Inza for more than a moment or two since Sunday, but only last night Barney had told him that Hodge had managed to see her often. And the frank Irish boy had expressed his conviction that she was a two-timer who was playing Frank for a simple sap. He had laughed at Barney then, but he wasn't laughing now. His face was a study of deep dejection.

He thought of her, sitting with her brother somewhere up in the stand behind him and applauding Bart, and decided that Barney was right. Just a simple sap, that's what he was.

The game went on with Hodge doing a real job at left end. Every time that same State runner came steaming round that end Bart was outside the opposing lineman and forcing the ball-carrier to make a wider swing. Thus he gave the Fardale backfield time to charge in and stop the play repeatedly before more than small gains could be made. And once he broke clear and brought the runner down himself for a slight loss.

The whole team had stiffened. Seeing this, State went into smashing tactics that soon had Kane sending in replacement after replacement for players who had been knocked out of commission. The coach was using up his best reserves fast, but, between pluck and many lucky breaks, Fardale hung on through the first and second quarters without being scored against again.

But the blue-and-white had fought more than three-fourths of the time in its own territory. Not once had it got within striking distance of the enemy's goal, and always the spectators—even the optimistic of the

There Was No Stopping Him Then.

Fardale fans—had constantly looked for a blow-up that would let the maroon jerseys run as wild and handsome as they pleased.

And when the whistle sounded the end of the half the shadows of their own goal-posts were on the backs of the Fardale players.

There was a heavier shadow on the face of Coach Kane.

Tom Kane was too wise to carry a clouded face into the dressing room, but he was grim as he walked about amid the benches and tables on which many of the fellows were lying while rubbers worked over them. He had a few words for each man, words of encouragement or instruction; sometimes of warning against faults betrayed on the field. Now and then he gave one of them a pat on the back. At times a slight smile played upon his otherwise hard-set face.

At length he called: "On the field in three minutes."

Then the coach made his speech, quietly:

"You did your work well out there in the first half. You put up a fine defense against a team that expected to walk all over you. When they found they couldn't do that they tried to put fear into your souls. But you weren't afraid. You showed them you could take it and come right back for more. Now you're going out there and give it. Games are won by courage and quick thinking oftener than otherwise, and you've got more of that stuff than State has. But look out for their air attack. They've scarcely used it yet, but they will when they find you are outsmarting them.

"You broke up their right-end run after they worked it for that one touchdown, and now they'll probably uncork their other big play from the same formation—a double spin with two fake passes and a slash through a hole they'll try to open between tackle and guard. Be on your toes for that. Now go out there and feed it to 'em!"

Still over-confident, State expected to see an opposing team that was all shot and nine-tenths licked come back to the field. What they did see was a team that apparently had just begun to fight. Within two minutes Fardale met the double-spin play and tore it to shreds for a small loss.

But a Fardale backfielder, who had charged into the line of scrimmage, was down. It was Elmer Davis. They got him up and two men half carried him toward the Fardale bench. He was completely out of the game.

"Now, Merriwell," said Kane, "go in there."

The coach had been holding Frank in reserve to fill Davis' place when the time came—and it had come. His heart pounding, Merry leaped up and hastened to report to the referee. At last!

Ten seconds later he was in the midst of another line smash that stopped State again, with no gain.

Then State went into the air, but the first pass was incompletable and a kick followed. Fardale's safety man got the ball and ran with it when Merry cut off the State player who was charging to tackle. A 20-yard gain set the Fardale crowd roaring. This was like the Musketeers when they were right.

State was both worried and angry now, and nothing does more damage than worry and anger. Before the Maroon players could pull themselves together Fardale had tricked them with a faked pass and an end run that netted another first down. Was Fardale going to town?

Fast action now, fast and sure. No waiting for State to settle down. A line-buck for two yards, and then an unexpected trick. Fardale came back with State's own double-spinner play. It surprised and disconcerted State, threw the secondary defense into uncertainty and completely off balance.

The runner came through the hole and broke loose with the ball. He was Merriwell. Weaving, dodging, side-stepping, changing his pace, Frank was as elusive as an electrified ghost. He straight-armed the last would-be tackler and was in the open.

There was no stopping him then. With the goggling, gasping, roaring crowd standing to the last human who could stand, he sped away for a touchdown.

And then, "Block that kick!" was the imploring cry of the State crowd as Fardale lined up to try for the point, with Springall holding and Frank in position to boot the leather.

Merry advanced and swung the good right leg that somebody had accused him of stealing from Charlie Brickley. The spheroid sailed over the exact center of the crossbar, putting the Musketeers one point ahead, and the north stand became a madhouse.

Merriwell didn't know they were cheering for him. He didn't hear the crowd roaring his name. So concentrated was he upon the business in hand that he saw and heard nothing, not a part of it. Heart and soul, he was giving that business all he had to give.

Now it was up to Fardale to hold that one-point lead—to hold it somehow and to add to it if humanly possible.

And now State, seeing at last that the expected push-over was not going to come off, was growing panicky. The thought of being defeated by Fardale was very shocking to them.

Over-confidence was gone, but something just as bad—or worse—had followed.

When the third quarter passed with Fardale not only holding its one-point lead, but continuing to threaten, State knew she must gamble. The final quarter saw State throwing passes which got her nowhere until the last minute of the game. Then two completions carried the Maroons to Fardale's 15-yard line and had the Fardale spectators shaking in their shoes.

Then there was a fumble in a line-buck. Out of the melee came Merriwell with the ball. Again he broke through. Again he was off for a run, with the crowd shrieking. Once more he ducked and weaved and went flying onward.

But a maroon backfielder had him. He couldn't get past this time. Not a chance.

Frank had seen a lone Fardale runner coming up. It was Hodge. But Bart couldn't reach the man to block him. So Merry, veering to the left, threw a lateral to Hodge and threw himself, instantly, into the clutches of the tackler, both going down.

Bart took the ball on the dead run and ran still faster until he could put it down behind the goal-posts.

There was riotous rejoicing in the dressing room. Fardale, with Merriwell, again booting the ball for the extra point, had beaten the strong State Second team, 14 to 6. Kane himself was laughing like a boy. He had told them all what he thought of the fine job they had pulled off, and he had actually hugged both Merriwell and Bart Hodge.

"Now let anybody tell me Fardale hasn't got a team!" he said.

Bart took his shower and rub-down, and dressed in a hurry. He was the first to leave. Merry saw him go and fancied he knew the cause of his haste. Of course he had a date to meet a certain person after the game.

Tad Jones was waiting when Frank left the gym. The boy was steaming with excitement.

"Gosh, Frank!" he chattered. "Gosh, you was just the real McCoy! You was right there with the old works. I'll tell the cockeyed world! But there's somethin' else I gotta tell you. Miss Inza's gone up to Mr. Snodd's 'nd wants you to come there right away. She told me to fetch ya, dead or alive."

Merriwell hesitated. So that was where Hodge had hastened away to so soon. Well, there might as well be a show-down now as later. No use putting it off.

"All right, let's go," he said. "But we gotta keep away from the campus. Hear that crowd roarin' in, Frank! They're celebratin', 'nd Professor Scotch is leadin' 'em. He's horse as an old bullfrog, too. He won't have no voice to lecher with for a week."

Merry found Inza in Snodd's big living room, alone. She was sitting at the piano, just as he had seen her the first time, and her fingers were dancing like pixies over the keys. The music that poured from the piano was wild and gay.

He came up and stood beside her. She felt him there, and the tune ended with a crash. She sprang up and caught hold of him with eyes a stary glow.

"Oh, Frank!" she said. "I want to tell you, Frank, that you're just the greatest thing that ever blew into this neck of the woods."

All eyes on this knitted two-piece! So summery, in white or pastels, it's done mainly in stockinette stitch, with a lace stitch defining its "sunburst" yoke. Use a round needle and there'll be nary a seam to sew or show. You'll love it in either nubby cotton yarn, a combination of wool and rayon, or in Shetland floss.

In pattern 5601 you will find instructions for making the blouse and skirt in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of the blouse and of all stitches used; material requirements.
To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th Street, New York.

Washington News
By Hugh M. Rigney

$10,000,000 Increase for R. E. A.—The House has approved an increase of $10,000,000 for Rural Electrification, bringing the total for 1938-39 up to $40,000,000. The increase was proposed in a Senate amendment to the Independent Offices appropriation bill.

One Car To Two Persons.—Congressman John O'Connor stated on the Floor of the House that the city of Washington has one automobile to each two persons, as compared to one car to nine people in New York City. This, plus the heavy tourist traffic, accounts for the almost unsolvable automobile problem here.

Butter For Veterans.—The House voted down an amendment made by the Senate to the Independent Offices appropriation bill to allow the use of oleomargarine in Veteran's hospitals which is a distinct advantage to dairymen.

May Continue Camps.—Congressman Woodrum of Virginia has offered a resolution in the House to keep open 300 C. C. C. Camps scheduled to be discontinued June 30. This resolution calls for an appropriation of $50,000,000. It is said to have President Roosevelt's approval.

Army Bill.—The Army Appropriation Bill, which has passed the House and is now in the Senate, calls for an expenditure of $447,808,555. It provides for 476 new air planes. This will bring the Army's total up to 3,302, which added to the Navy's 3,000, will place the Nation's air force at a sizable figure. Important to Central Illinois is that the bill provides for $1,500,000 to construct needed buildings at Chanute Field in Rantoul.

Cherry Blossoms.—The 4,000 Japanese Cherry trees here are now in full bloom, two weeks earlier than usual, due to a period of unusually warm weather. It is predicted that 200,000 visitors will come to Washington to see the spectacle this year.

New Face on Nickel.—The United States Mint will soon begin the coinage of millions of new nickels bearing the profile of Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and second President of the Union. This means that the good old Bull Moose nickel is on its way out.

Heavy Coal Deposits.—Representative Allen of Pennsylvania stated on the Floor of the House recently that in his Congressional District alone, there are coal deposits from which it is possible to mine 500 million tons of coal a year for 500 years.

Senator Glass A Dairyman.—Senator Bankhead and Majority Leader Rayburn are dairymen. Senator Carter Glass is another. On his Virginia farm his Jerseys made a record of 768 pounds of milk and 39.08 pounds of butterfat for February.

CCC Camps To Close.—By the end of the present fiscal year, July 1, unless the Woodrum resolution is passed, the number of CCC Camps will be reduced from 1501, as at present, to 1210. A mistake, many believe.

Can Make Corn Loans.—The time for making Federal loans on corn, and which was to end March 1, has been indefinitely extended.

Proposes Another Holiday.—The United States will have another legal holiday if a bill introduced by Senator Robert Reynolds of North Carolina becomes a law. The Senator proposes to add Armistice Day, November 11, to the list.

TO RIDE THE RIVER WITH
AN EXCITING NEW SERIAL OF WESTERN JUSTICE BY William MacLeod RAINE

Mystery rode the Arizona plains when Jeff Gray appeared. He was the strangest man Lee Chiswick had ever seen, a friend one moment, a foe the next. First he saved Ruth Chiswick, Lee's beautiful daughter, from a drunken cowboy. Then he tried to kill Lee... and later he stole Lee's cattle. A scoundrel, to be sure, but Ruth Chiswick knew her faith in Jeff Gray would some day be vindicated. Somehow those deep, clear eyes were essentially honest. You'll solve the mystery of Jeff Gray by reading "To Ride the River With" serially in these columns.
