

Nancy's Little Bag

By ESTHER MUGGINS
© Associated Newspapers, WNU Service.

ELLA CALDWELL ran to the door, smiling. Her husband was coming home from a three-day trip. Ella had been watching the elevated trains for twenty minutes before she saw his signal—the newspaper held crosswise on the window of the train.

Just as he opened the lower door of the hallway Ella heard Mrs. Mink's door open. Mrs. Mink was a new tenant in the apartment below. The agent of the building and the janitor said she was a well-to-do widow, jolly and generous to a degree. It turned out when Mrs. Mink's household goods were being moved into the apartment that Ed and she had been classmates at grammar school.

On the strength of this ancient acquaintance Mrs. Mink had cheerfully called in Ed to settle a difference of opinion between her tallying of the hours it had taken the moving men and the hours set down by the men themselves. And every time that Ed had gone in or out of the building since that first day Mrs. Mink had managed to have some excellent reason for stopping him. Now Ella heard the soft voice of Mrs. Mink say gently:

"Oh, Neddy! Could you stop for a moment? My gold clock simply won't go and I've been poking at it all day just waiting for you to come in. I knew you'd be able to make it run!"

"Why—why, sure thing," Ed's voice answered.

Neddy! Ella herself never called him Neddy; he always complained that it was a sissy name for a he-man. It was all right to be neighborly, of course. But when a man has been away for three days it is laying it on a bit thick to stop him before he has had time for a marital kiss. There was scant time to think much about this, however, for the door across the hall opened and Alicia Graves ran across with her baby in her arms.

"The dentist just telephoned to me that if I come right away he can pull those two impacted wisdom teeth for me. I'd have asked you before I made the appointment definitely only I saw Ed coming and he has such a way with Nancy—" Alicia's voice trailed away into nothingness.

"It's all right, of course," said Ella mechanically.

"I like to be neighborly back and forth," said Alicia brightly.

It ran across Ella's mind—Ella had no babies to leave with neighbors—that most of the neighborliness lay just forth and never back.

When twenty minutes had passed and Ed had not come upstairs a plan formed itself in Ella's mind. Had Mrs. Mink been elderly and plain and poor, Ella would have thought nothing of Ed's staying so long. But Mrs. Mink was right up to the minute or a jump ahead into the next minute; her hair was always beautifully waved and her nails were glossy and rosy.

Ella had tried to call on the newcomer since Ed had once been a classmate, but no one had answered the door.

And now she rose to her feet, determined to carry out the plan that had come, unbidden, into her mind. Downstairs she rapped at the door smartly and then, the door being ajar, walked boldly in, through the hallway to the living-room, where she heard Ed's voice. On one hip she carried the neighbor child, Nancy, who was still clutching her bottle and in need of sundry attentions. In her free hand Ella carried a bag of baby necessities.

Her face was serene and happy as she spoke to Ed without a glance toward Mrs. Mink.

"I'm going up to the movie matinee, Neddy darling," she murmured. "Here's Nancy and the baby things, dearest. I knew you'd be glad to take care of Baby—or your friend will while you fix her clock. I'm coming to call on you one of these days," she finished, turning toward Mrs. Mink brightly. "I think it's so nice to be neighborly—back and forth, don't you?" There was a brief glance toward the baby that betokened coming afternoons with Mrs. Mink watching the child.

"Please don't leave the child here," said Mrs. Mink in a chilly voice, entirely unlike the voice with which she had greeted Ed. "I dislike babies intensely. I didn't know Neddy had babies!"

"Oh, do you?" drawled Ella gently, her eyes wide with horror and surprise. "Well, fix it any way you like, Neddy dearest. If I'm not back for dinner you'll know I met Irene at the show. She has been asking me over to dinner for weeks."

It was barely six o'clock when Ella returned to the apartment. Ed was sheepishly preparing dinner, Nancy sitting on the big dictionary propped with pillows. A little one-sided grin was on his face as Ella greeted him cheerfully.

"You stuck a knife blade into her heart, all right," he laughed, as he tilted her head back for the long-delayed kiss. "Funny, too, I'd thought she was quite—attractive until she glared at poor little Nancy that way. Kind of unfeminine, I call her!" he finished as Ella busied herself over the gas range.

Beauty Hints

By Jane Heath

HOT days—work days—play days are here. What's the news on summer make-up? "As little as possible," answer the beauty experts. "The idea is to look healthy and natural. Let your skin warm to the sun. Let your hair blow free. Discard rouge and powder if you like. But, even if you're rustivating back on the farm, you'll still accent two features—eyes and lips."

Eyebrows should be kept groomed and free of stray hairs at all times. This is quickly done with the convenient tweezers with scissors handle, sketched above. Keep to the natural hairline and avoid any artificial look which is now definitely "dated."

Luxuriant lashes are another beauty aim which may be achieved, as you tend your garden, with care and cultivation. Kurlene, a fine eyelash dressing made of rich, natural oils, will do the trick. Applied with the tip of the finger or an eye beauty brush, it leaves the lashes silky and pliable.

And now comes the final touch, a wide starry-eyed effect, produced with a clever eyelash curler that trains lashes upward with no heat or cosmetics. In selecting a lipstick, choose one with clear, warm blood tones, lighter than you've been using.

Accent your eyes and lips this summer, to look healthy and natural. But the wise girl will use just a bit of art to aid Nature.

REPORTER-PHOTOGRAPHERS, hundreds of them, constantly scour the world for "shots" that will make a news highlight more real... more interesting... more understandable. The single, business-like click of a camera and a thousand-word story is captured, all in an instant, to be presented in a manner more graphic than the words themselves could ever attain.

The scenes these men photograph number into the thousands daily. From this great number a careful selection is made. The chosen pictures, designed to aid you in the visualization of important news events or "human-interest" occurrences and individuals, are regularly offered by this newspaper.

This is our answer to a modern public's demand upon a modern newspaper for pictures of places, persons and incidents of world-wide interest.

Sentinels of Health
Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—living itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.
Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.
The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
