

Cadet David Freeman Writes Interesting Letter

Randolph Field, Texas.

Dear Joe—I believe when I wrote you last I was stationed at Pine Bluff, Ark., and we were having a cold, snowy time. Today is quite a contrast, as anyone who has been in Texas during summer months, knows what its sunshine is like.

But even in the hottest weather I believe you would enjoy Randolph Field if you were to come down here. Not only is it so renowned as an airfield, being called the West Point of the Air but its buildings are so beautiful. It is of Spanish architecture, and the formal landscaping of the homes, using palm trees, shrubs and gorgeous flowers is really wonderful.

We learned at Pine Bluff to fly Fairfield Primary Trainers which we then thought were everything a powerful airplane could be, but when we were taken for our orientation ride in a big BT 9, on our first day at Randolph, it was even more perplexing than our first ride had been when we began training. For now we were to fly a much larger ship, with considerable more horse-power, and we were faced with an incomprehensible mass of switches, handles and meaningless dials. We had had 60 hours of flying in the Primary Trainers and most of us felt we were already pilots, but now we realized we had only got started toward the goal of winning our "wings." While at Randolph I have added 90 more hours to my record. I hope to have 100 before leaving here.

But to get back to our new planes. We found that landing the BT 9 was one of the big difficulties to overcome as these ships were much larger, landed hotter and if not controlled every second would ground-hop or nose-up. Several times some of the boys have had wings drag the ground and propellers broken by just being off the controls for a second in landing.

The safest and one of the most interesting things at Randolph is the Link Trainer, guaranteed to crack up nothing—but your nerves. The Link is a small temperamental airplane, mounted firmly to the floor, by a series of intricate gears, so that it can duplicate actual air flying. A hood covers the Link, so you can see nothing but your instrument board and must fly by instruments alone, or the seat of your pants. Each Link has a trained operator who directs you (by radio) to fly turns, stalls, spins, and even to fly a radio beam as you would in a course between different cities. Your entire course is recorded on a recording machine and every mistake shows up plainly. The Link trains you, or at least gives you a good insight into blind flying, that you will later have with only your instrument board to guide you in actual flight.

Now we are flying by instruments in the BT 9 and it is trying on the nerves. However we are told that this is the training which may save our lives many times. When weather closes in and visibility is practically zero, as in a dense fog, the pilot who can't fly by instruments alone is not very likely to return to his home base.

Formation flying is another specialized type of flying. We use two formations, the V and the Echelon, in which the planes are stacked. When flying formation it is necessary to keep your eye glued on your leader every second and hold your position with your wing tips just three feet behind the leader. It's quite a thrill to be able to do this, and go zooming over the country thus, swooping down over the tree tops for a blitz landing in an auxiliary field, then gunning it and being able to feel the response of your motor in power and speed as you take off.

Night flying is beautiful, although I'll admit my first night solo was a little terrifying. On the take-off the darkness seems to swallow you up, but as you continue to climb, you find a world below you that is not very well camouflaged by night. The lights of San Antonio and smaller towns twinkle brightly, but are no match for the stars which seem so very near. As I look down I feel that most people seem to have felt little effects of war rationing of tires and gasoline for every main highway stands out like a city boulevard with a continuous stream of automobile lights. Night flying can be pretty tiresome, when after a full day of flying and of ground school, you are told to report at 11 p. m. for flying. You may not finish your cross country flight before 3 a. m. but if you don't want to walk a lot of hours on the "ramp," you'll report as usual the next morning for reveille formation at 7.

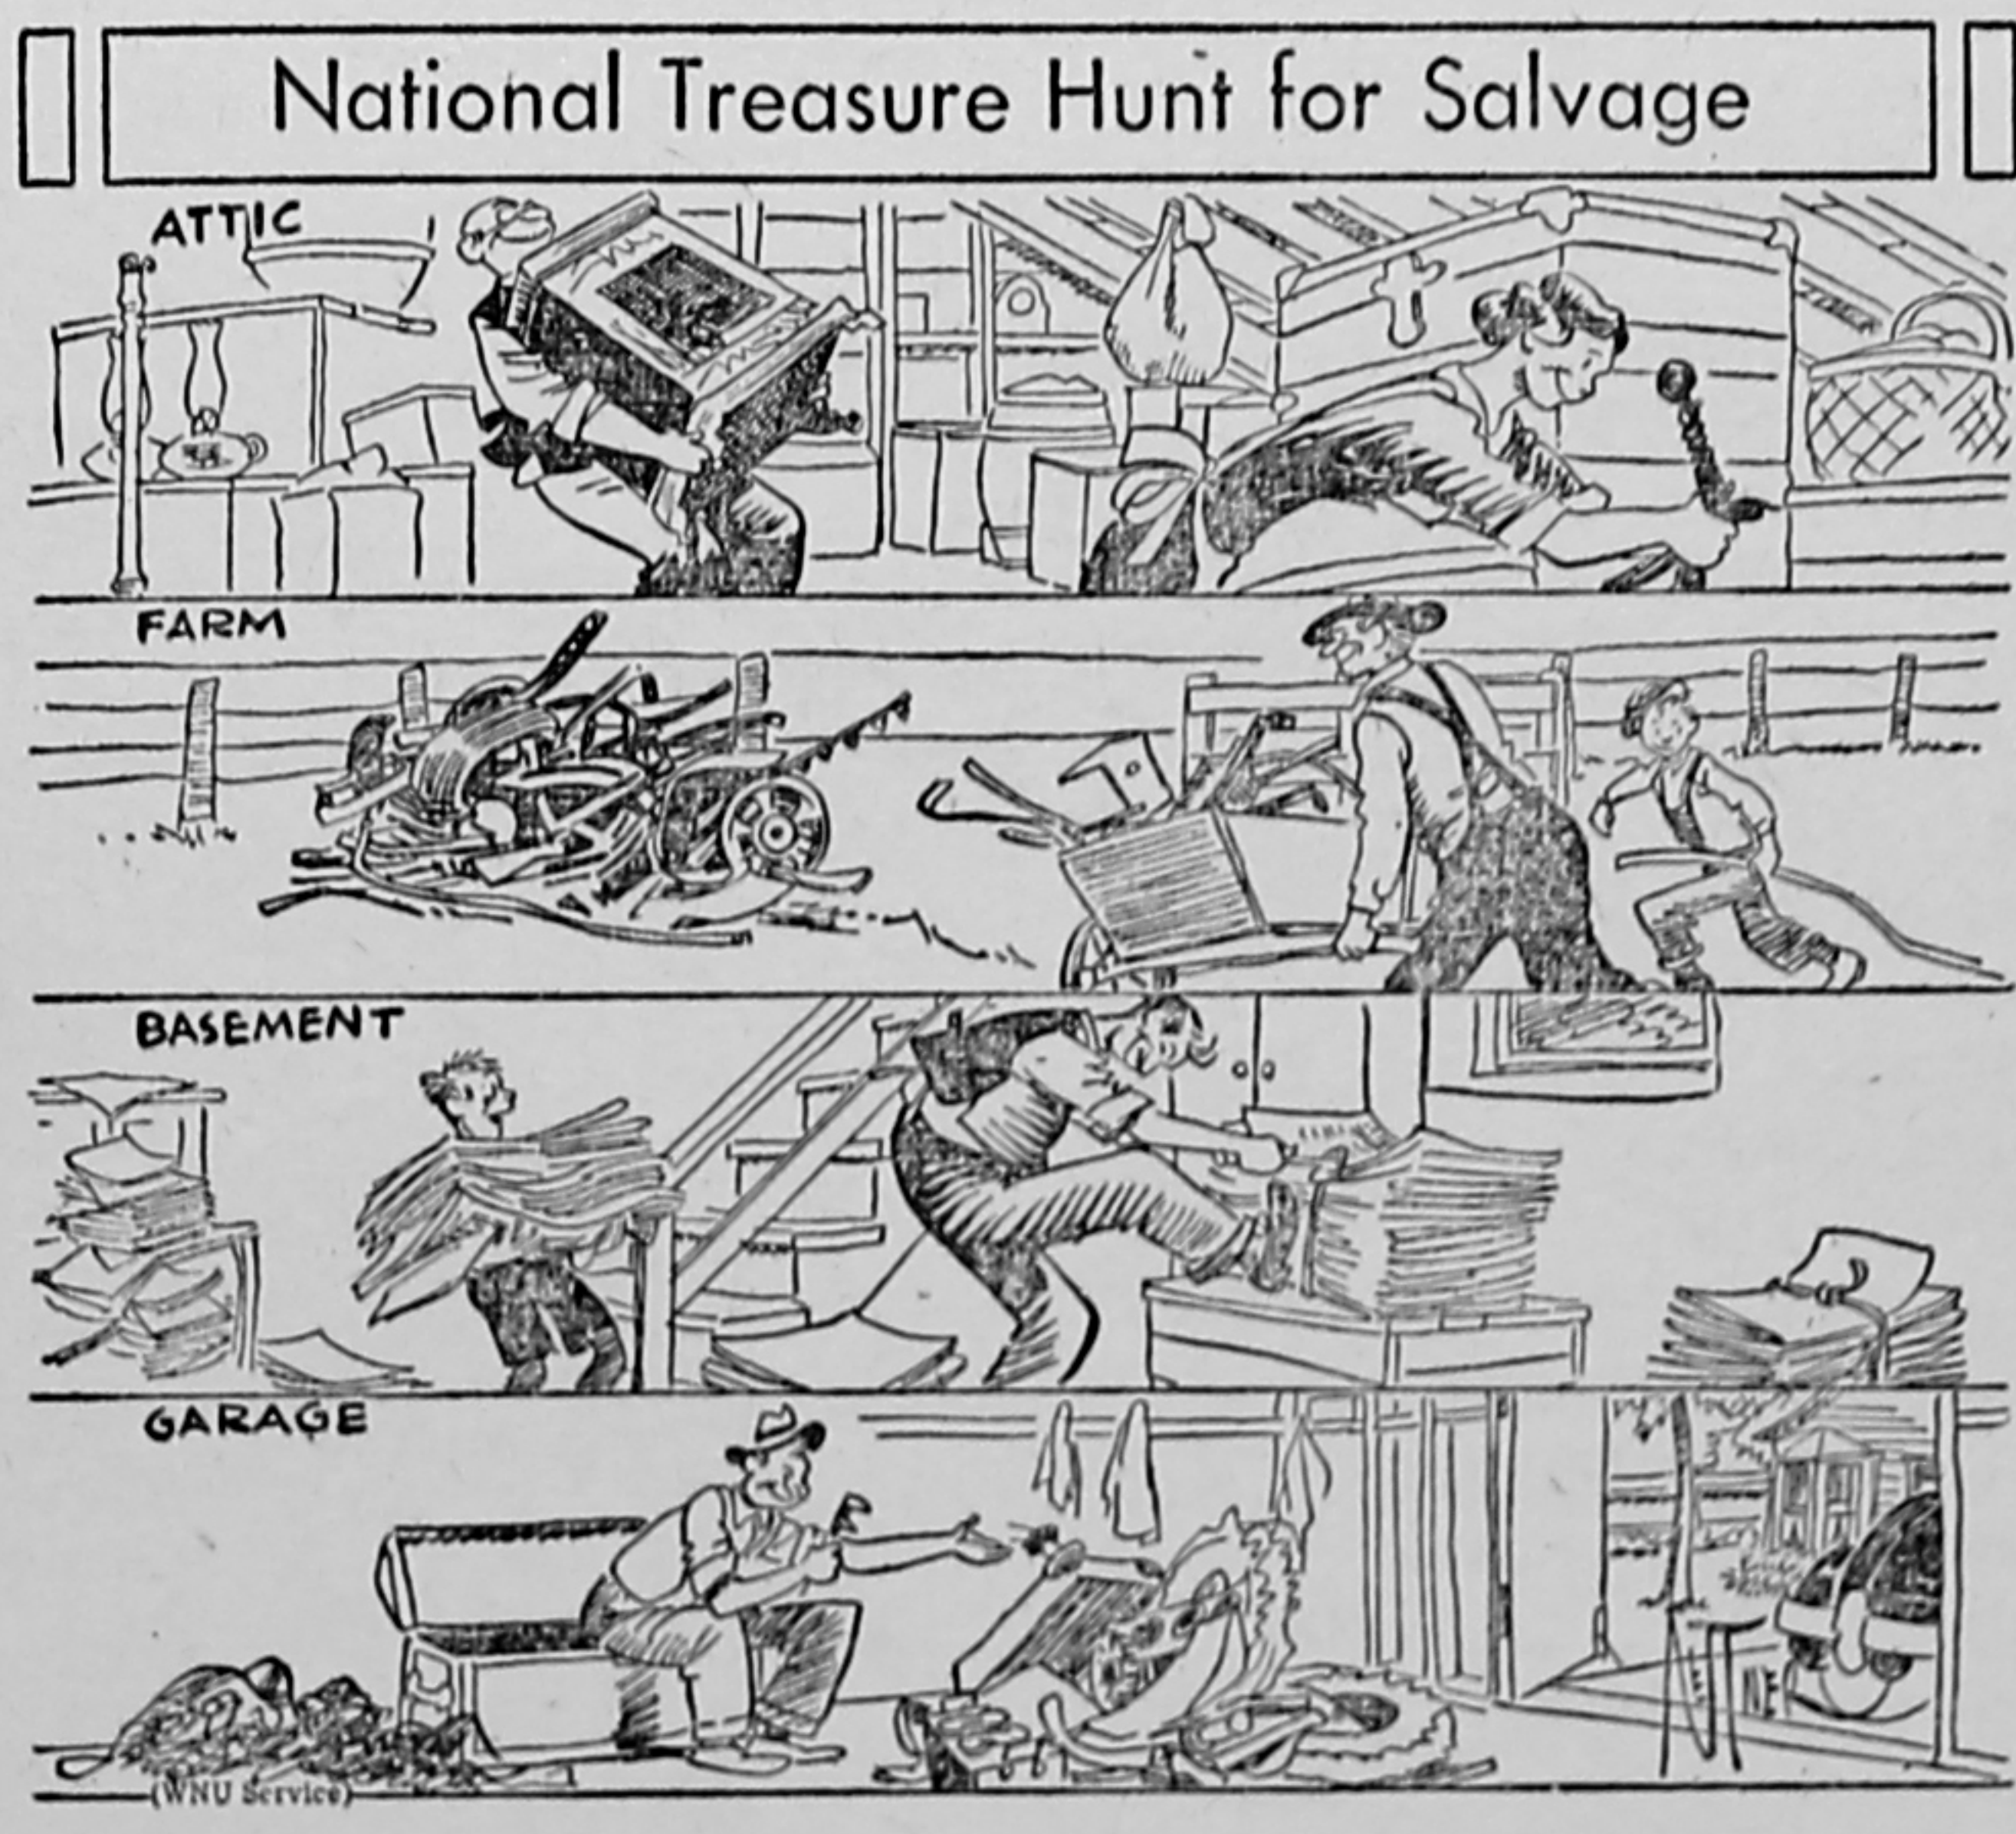

Statistics at best are dull reading but here are a few published in Form One, the Randolph Cadet Class paper, that might be interesting. The Cadets help the Air Corps spend part of the $25,000 per student in the following ways: Each Cadet burns 5,120 gallons of Octone gasoline and 1,020 gallons of oil in flying 26,319 miles and taxiing 112 miles over ramp and runways of some forty landing fields. He flies 1,920 miles in a Link Trainer anchored firmly to the floor. On an average each Cadet ruins four pairs of shoes by marching 1,641 miles of scheduled drill and considerable unscheduled drill on the "ramp." The average Cadet consumes 3000 cigarettes, 300 cokes, huge quantities of food, and 230 quarts of milk.

Flying isn't the only thing that keeps us so busy. We attend ground school classes in navigation, meteorology and radio code, and we must be able to take the Morse code both by radio and blinker light signals. Then military drill every day in the really hot Texas sun, with rifles and bayonets. Rigid calisthenics help to keep us fit for flying and give relaxation of mind and body from the strain of flying and ground school. After calisthenics we have an hour in which to swim, tumble, play tennis, hand ball, soccer, soft ball, touch football, volley ball, basketball or a workout in gym.

We will soon be sent to advanced schools, the last phase of our training. When we arrived at the Pilot Replacement Center, several months ago, our Flight Commander gave us a short talk on the seriousness of the job which confronted us. In ending he said, "Men, I want you to turn and look at the man on the right of you. Now look at the man on your left. Only one of you will achieve your goal and win your wings. It is too bad that the training has to be that tough. But it isn't half as tough as the assignment you will get, if you do finish that training."

Statistics show it to be true

Grandma Benschneider, 92, was in town Saturday, visiting at her property on the north side, where a new garage was recently built. Contractor Carl Coddington and his helper, Jack Eddy built the garage.

Henry Schumacher returned Tuesday after a ten days visit with his sons and daughter in Ohio. Dr. Arthur Schumacher and family and Miss Evelyn Schumacher reside in Cleveland, while Dr. Edward Schumacher and wife reside in Huron.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hardyman and daughter, Jacqueline, Indianapolis, visited in the Orron Hardyman home Sunday. Wayne was recently released from the Sunnyside sanitarium and this is his first visit at the home of his parents in three years.

H. W. Six, township treasurer, places his annual financial statement in this issue. Mr. Six has held this office for 38 years and has saved the township thousands of dollars by having his friends sign his bond, instead of being bonded through a surety company.

Mrs. D. F. Freeman has received word that her son, David, has graduated from the basic flying school at Randolph Field, Texas, and that he entered the advanced flying school at Kelly Field, Texas, on July 4. Here the cadets receive training in a larger and faster plane, and fly both single and twin engine ships.

Mrs. Olive Benefiel, Mrs. Zermah Witt, Mrs. Jessie Archer and daughter, Harryette Louise attended a shower on Thursday night of last week at Newman, in honor of Miss Katherine Ross, daughter of Dr. C. K. Ross. Miss Ross was married July 4 to Aviation Cadet Roy E. Adams of Scott Field, in the Kirby Memorial Christian Church, St. Louis, with the Rev. Albert Keller officiating.

David Hancock Rites This Friday Morning

David Franklin Hancock, who had been making his home here with his sister, Mrs. Nora Griffin, the past six weeks, was found shot to death in the Griffin home about 6 p. m. last Tuesday. He was 79 years old.

At a coroner's inquest conducted at the Dicks Bros. funeral home here Wednesday morning, his death was termed a suicide. Jurors were Prof. George H. Cook, Fred J. Mohr, Elvas Golden, Oscar Gallion, Roy Bergfield and Will Smith.

Worry over poor health was believed to have been responsible for the act, and it had forced his retirement from business several months ago. For over 50 years he had operated a rooming house in Tulsa, Okla., going there from his native Muncie, Ind., where he was born Dec. 8, 1862, a son of Watson and Elizabeth Hancock.

The sisters, Mrs. Nora Griffin, Broadlands; Mrs. Alice Thompson, Paris; and Watson Hancock, a brother, Selma, Ind., are the only survivors. Three sisters and three brothers preceded him in death.

Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. this Friday in the Dicks Bros. funeral home in Broadlands, with Rev. James S. Ferris, pastor of the local Methodist church officiating. Burial will be at Muncie, Ind., with Dicks Bros. in charge.

New Methodist Minister Arrives

James S. Ferris, of Ocean Grove, N. J., our new Methodist minister, arrived in Broadlands, Friday of last week, and preached his first sermon last Sunday morning. Mr. Ferris, who is a student at Northwestern University, Evanston, will be here most of the time during the summer months, and on weekends during the time he is in college.

Rev. Ferris is a young man, has a very pleasing personality, and has made many friends during the short time he has been in our midst. He is making his home at the Village Inn in Broadlands for the present.

Ronald Honce Mohr Has Birthday Party

Ronald Honce Mohr invited several small friends to his home to help him celebrate his sixth birthday on Monday, July 6. The group played games and enjoyed contests until time for the ice cream, cookies and chocolate milk.

The children at the party were Kent Harden of Chicago; Richard Canaday of Homer; and Glenda Sue Zenke, Erle and Lynden Frick, Charles and Billy Joe Limp, Ronald and Rodney Mohr, Broadlands. Also invited but unable to attend because of whooping cough were Marvin and Janet Struck, Donnie and Darrell Eckerty, Paul and Dennis Luedke, Richard and Roger Seider.

Do You Know Illinois?

By Edward J. Hughes
Secretary of State

Q. When was the general "eight hour strike" held?
A. 1886.

Q. How many Chicago workers joined the strike?
A. 58,000.

Q. Who was August Spies?
A. Co-editor of the Arbeiter-Zeitung, one of the papers which agitated militantly for the eight hour law.

Q. What tragedy ensued after a speech made by Spies on May 3, 1886, near the McCormick reaper works in Chicago?
A. Six of his hearers, having moved in the direction of the works, to watch a disturbance between strikers and non-strikers, were shot down by the police.

Q. Who was Albert Parsons?
A. Editor of The Alarm, the only English language paper in the group of papers agitating for the eight hour law.

Q. How did Parsons react to the Reaper works tragedy?
A. On May 4 he called a rally "to denounce the latest atrocious act of the police."

Q. Where was the rally held?
A. On Desplains street, between Lake and Randolph streets in Chicago.

Q. Who else addressed the rally?
A. Samuel Fielden, a labor orator.

Q. What was the aftermath of the meeting?
A. Inspector John Bonfield marched 200 policemen to the gathering and ordered its dispersal. Just then a dynamite bomb, of unknown origin, exploded and eight policemen were killed.

Q. Who were indicted for the "Haymarket Riot"?
A. Spies, Parsons, Fielden, George Engel, Oscar Neebe, Michael Schwab, Louis Lingg and Adolph Fischer.

Q. What were their sentences?
A. Seven were sentenced to death. Oscar Neebe was sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment.

Q. What was the action of the Supreme Court on appeal?
A. It affirmed the lower court in a 273-page opinion.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $85 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.

Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. Not that we need that many, but the reserve could go into shells and other much needed supplies. Buy more and more War Bonds and top the quota in your county by investing at least ten percent of your income every pay day.

Adolph, Benito and Hirohito—the three blind mice. Make them run with ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day.

Lost and found columns of Tokio newspapers are crowded these days. Every time an American buys a War Bond, the Japs lose face. Buy your 10% every pay day.

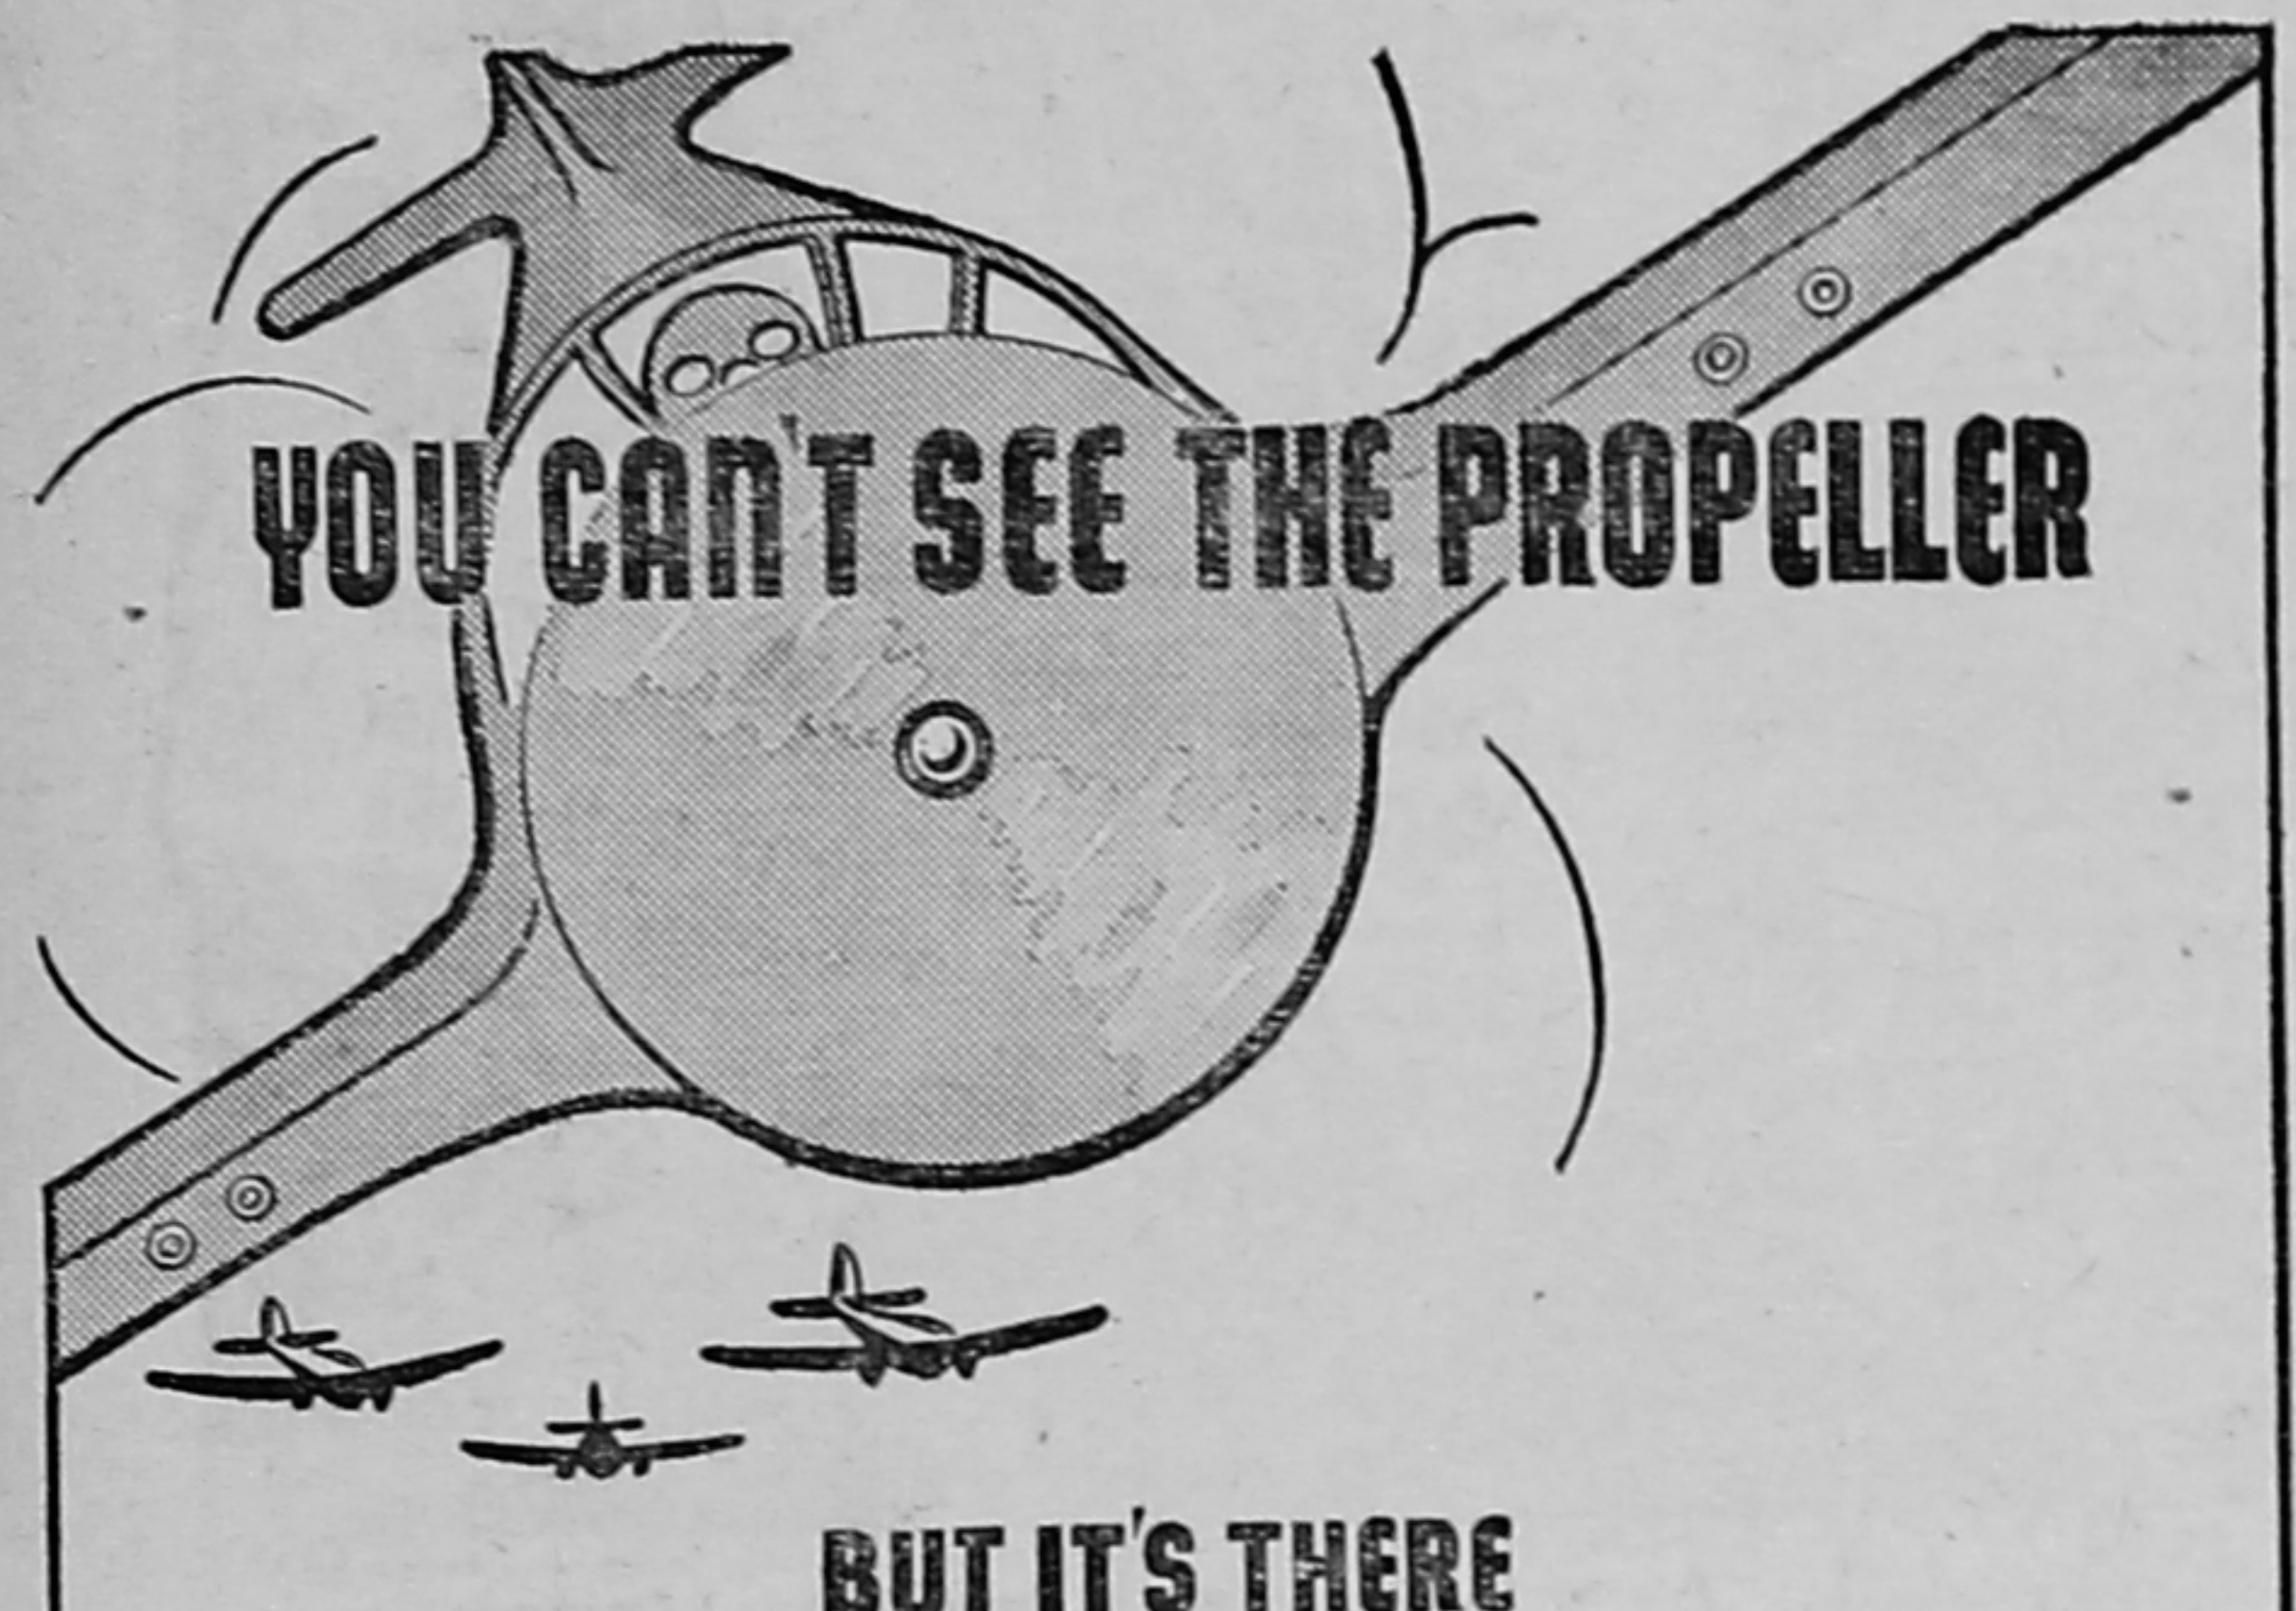

Our fighting men are doing their share. Here at home the least we can do is put 10% of our income in War Bonds for our share in America.

Not everybody with a dollar to spare can shoot a gun straight—but everybody can shoot straight to the bank and buy War Bonds. Buy your 10% every pay day.

STRAIGHT FROM NEW YORK

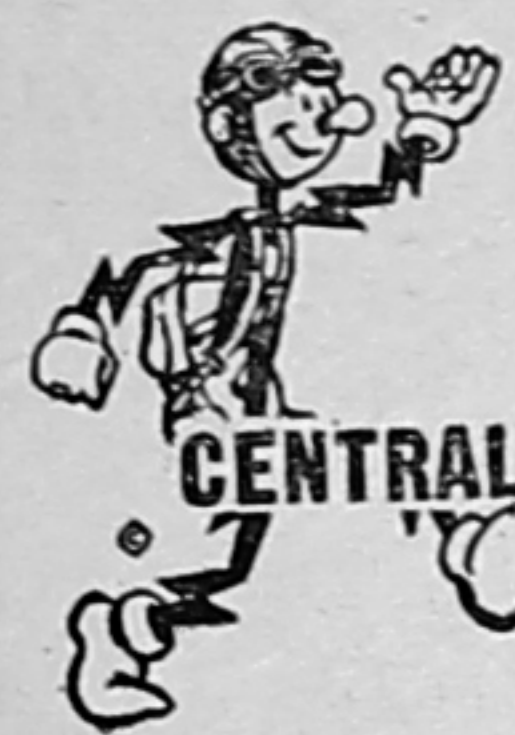

BEAU CATCHER
A romantic picture gown such as this New York creation of organdy and pique will win applause at graduation festivities and summer dances. The full organdy skirt is complemented by a yoke of organdy in the brief, snugly fitted jacket which tops a low, square-cut bodice of pique outlined with cotton lace.

Although we cannot see it spinning, the propeller's working there—it's all important to our men in planes—it "Keeps 'em Flying". And though we cannot see him working—Reddy Kilowatt is there—and he's important too. For here at home, production wheels propelled by clean Electric Power, turn out the parts, the guns, the tools of war, the planes to "KEEP 'em Flying".

Invisible, efficient Power that's vital to "our way of life" in peace, is now at war on factory fronts. Electric Power's at war when it conserves civilian time and strength that may be used in work for freedom's cause in home defense.

Economical Electric Power's at war throughout the nation. Its use enables patriots to produce more—to save more—to buy the bonds to build the planes—to "Keep 'em Flying".

Illinois State Capitol News

The largest number of spring pigs ever known in Illinois is reported by State and U. S. departments of agriculture. The pig census was taken by rural mail carriers. The estimated 6,083,000 head of spring pigs is twenty per cent more than last year's crop.

A gratifying 39 per cent decrease in Illinois auto fatalities is reported for May, as compared to May of last year. Although 125 persons were killed in highway accidents during the month, this figure represents a new low record for May. Last year in May 206 persons lost their lives on Illinois highways.

Two hundred sixty-six permits for Illinois oil wells were issued by state authorities in June. This is an increase of more than thirty per cent over the preceding month. The greater drilling activity is thought to be caused by rumors that more stringent federal regulations of oil production may be applied in the near future.

Chemists at the federal research laboratory, Peoria, can turn soybean oil and corn oil into something that looks, smells and feels like real rubber. Some forms of this synthetic product have a tensile strength of 500 pounds per square inch, and will stretch 200 per cent and snap back into shape. However natural rubber usually will stretch 600 per cent and has about 3,000 pounds tensile strength. The rubber development work at Peoria has not yet been brought to the commercial stage.

Double daily bus service is now in operation both ways between Springfield and Petersburg, including stops at New Salem state park.

The reconstructed village at New Salem has national renown as a Lincoln shrine and as a historically accurate showing of pioneer ways of life. Although in recent years New Salem has drawn a quarter of a million visitors annually, regular public transportation to the park has not heretofore been available.

A Lump of Coal

Take a lump of coal in your hand. It certainly isn't pretty. It doesn't even look useful. But coal is one of those extraordinary products which will revolutionize the world of the future.

Out of coal comes one kind of synthetic rubber—and America's highly-developed coal industry will be an important factor in eventually solving the grave rubber problem.

Out of coal come many plastics—and we're just on the verge of the "plastic age" today. All-plastic airplanes, all-plastic furniture—these are but a few of the amazing developments.

American industry and American inventive and chemical genius are opening up vast new horizons. Miracles are in the making.

Sermon: "The Persecutor Turned Preacher." No man can be more fixed in his prejudice against the New Testament doctrine of salvation by grace through faith than Saul of Tarsus once was; no man can be more decided in his opinion that those views are false than Paul the Apostle was decided in his faith that they are true.
He came to his convictions in the face of all the influence of education of bitter hatred or of contemptuous disregard on the part of his friends. The only way we can explain it: The miracle of conversion.

that not more than one-third of the men who start to train as Pilots finish the course and win their wings. We are under constant fear of washing out. But I love flying. It never loses its fascination for me. I wish every boy in the Service liked his particular job as I like mine.

I suppose Broadlands like most small towns has few young men on the streets these days. There are men here from everywhere it seems. They are a fine group and the officers are tops. In a few days now our class will be sent to other fields for our Advanced Course. I hope my luck holds and I rate a good one like Kelly or Ellington.

Your papers and the letters from back there keep me pretty well posted about the home community. I hope you are fine and I'm sure you are doing your part to "Keep 'em Flying."
Sincerely,
David Freeman.
