Illinois Farm Kitchens Salvaging Waste Fats

The farm kitchens of Illinois are joining the campaign to salvage waste fats, Robert Ticken and George M. Eisenberg, co-chairmen of the salvage committee, Illinois State Council of Defense, reported to Gov. Green.

George Schlagater of Streator, president of the Illinois Food Locker Association, offered the services of 280 locker companies as collection depots for fats salvaged by farmers.

The fats quota for Illinois is 50,000 pounds a week and collections were swelled to 32,000 pounds last week.

Nearly 100 communities are preparing for intensive scrap metal harvest drives during September in an effort to lift the state over the top by the end of 1942 on the huge quota of 1,790,000 tons set by WPB, Ticken said.

The critical situation of our mills and war production plants because of shortage of steel was stressed by Ticken. He said that some mills have already been forced to shut down furnaces, while most mills are operating on a day to day basis.

"We must work seven days a week at salvaging this vital war material," Ticken warned. "Our army and navy work seven days a week fighting our enemies, and they cannot do it on five or six days supplies of guns, tanks, planes and ships. We must supply the material to produce these essentials as our contribution to victory."

Food Price Situation

Price Administrator Leon Henderson recently announced that widespread upward adjustments in food prices will be authorized by mid-September. That move was unavoidable in the interest of retailer and consumer alike.

The situation which led to it is simple. When prices were frozen at the level of last March, many food retailers were selling their wares at prices which were based on the lower wholesale prices of months before. These retailers were doing this voluntarily, as part of their successful and aggressive contribution to the anti-inflation program. Meanwhile, replacement costs had substantially risen in many instances, and retailers could not restock except at the risk of heavy cash losses. As the OPA pointed out, unless this "squeeze" was relieved, low-cost distributors would have been forced to stop stocking and selling many important food products. And if that happened, these foods could have been moved to consumers only through distributors who had relatively high price ceilings.

What is true of foods is true of other lines of goods as well. If the original price freezing order had been allowed to stand without correction, thousands of merchants, and particularly those who were selling to the public at the lowest possible cost, would have eventually been forced out of business. The American economy, which is largely based on the operation of retail business, would have been seriously disturbed. And the brunt of the blow would have been borne by the stores, which have done the most to protect the consumer.

The reason behind the OPA's new policy should be understood by all. It does not mean that stores are going to earn unjustified profits at the public's expense. It simply means that the OPA has wisely realized the necessity of allowing retail prices that will give the merchant enough return to stay in business and keep shelves well stocked. Mr. Henderson believed that the best solution would be wartime subsidies to compensate for the "squeeze," but Congress refused to vote them. So an increase in prices became inevitable.

When Fire Starts

An authority on fire-fighting recently said that practically all fires could be extinguished with a glass of water at the beginning. The great, destructive fires, in other words, are caused largely by delay in discovering and fighting them.

In these days, when maximum conservation of materials and labor is vital, fire control is the duty of everyone—housewife, executive, foreman and worker. And fire control has two distinct phases. The first phase is fire prevention. That simply means that every home and every place of business must be periodically inspected, and all fire hazards, no matter how minor they may seem, promptly eliminated.

The second phase is fire fighting. A fire which could be immediately put out in its first stage, may turn a home or a factory into a raging inferno in a matter of minutes. A little equipment, plus a little knowledge, makes it possible for any one to extinguish the average fire when it starts.

It is well to have a chemical extinguisher of an approved type on hand. In addition, have a supply of sand and a hose where you can reach them instantly. Sand is a first-class extinguisher, and should be used wherever it is too difficult to reach a fire with water. When you tackle a fire move fast—and don't get excited.

Everyone who can should take advantage of the fire control instruction given by civilian defense organizations. The lessons on how to defend ourselves against incendiary attack can be applied with equal force to all other kinds of fire. The goal we must strive for is to make every house a fire control station.

Spare Your Doctor

War's drain on the nation's doctors continues to grow rapidly. In time, it is likely that all physically fit younger doctors, and many older doctors, will be called to military service. And so, the burden of work on the doctors who remain at home will be doubled and redoubled.

Many authorities are now advising the public as to how it may help these doctors perform their jobs with maximum efficiency under difficult conditions. First, don't ask your doctor to make a house call if you are able to go to his office. Second, don't call him at inconvenient times unless there is an emergency. Third, when you do see him, don't waste his time in gossip and idle talk. It may be all right to visit with the doctor in normal times—it is definitely a bad practice now.

The standards of American medical care are the highest in the world. During the war, with millions of people working at arduous labor, every possible means of guarding these standards must be used. And you can be certain that the doctors will do their part. They will willingly work longer and harder. They won't spare themselves. They know better than anyone else that the preservation of civilian health is absolutely vital to the war effort.

The patient who wastes a doctor's time may, unwittingly, be depriving a person who desperately needs it, of medical attention. Spare your doctor.

Give the family vitamins in their natural form—those in fruits, grains, vegetables, and animal products produced on the farm.

Soaking mildly-cured meat in water draws out juices and some of the flavor. Such meats only need wiping thoroughly with a clean cloth wrung out of cold water.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Gas masks which came into use in warfare for the first time when the Germans used poison and mustard gas in World War I, are much improved today over those used then. The Chemical Warfare Branch of the War Department issues these gas masks to every man in the service. We are taking no chances.

The type pictured here is the "can" and "elephant nose" mask and costs about $9.25 each. The headgear is transparent, made of material resembling cellophane and does not cloud with the breath. You can buy two of these gas masks with the purchase of an $18.75 War Bond. We need thousands of them. Don't fail to give at least ten percent of your income every pay day for War Bonds. Buy them at your bank or postoffice, regularly.

Sidelights

A peach is a peach to a peach grader—especially the Georgia peaches. While several hundreds of workers were busy about a peach grading machine near Marshallville, a blonde Georgia peach got her dress caught in a large wheel—and away went the dress. She was not injured but had to wear a heavy overcoat home in 91 degrees of heat.

Tire and gas rationing continue to cause trouble—with horse drawn delivery wagons. Over at Tulsa, Okla., recently a horse pulling a bakery wagon became frightened and ran away down Main street. The driver tugged at the reins in a frantic effort to stop the horse. A policeman gave chase but the fast-moving horse soon outdistanced him. Others made futile attempts to stop the beast as he sped down the street. Finally, an old-timer standing at the curb, seeing the runaway horse approaching, decided to do his bit in an attempt to stop him. As the horse came near he yelled: "Whoa." The horse stopped instantly. It's all in knowing how, we guess.

We agree with Joseph Celsy, an Italian-born cigar store proprietor of Detroit, who states that he sees no patriotism in well-to-do men buying war bonds in order to reap the high rate of interest paid by a generous government. He agrees that they should be purchased—yes, in large numbers and in still larger amounts and Celsy is buying all he can and as fast as he can. But, Celsy explains: "The government won't let me buy them and accept no interest, so, what do I do—I buy the bonds, figure out what the interest will be at maturity, then send that much money to the Army-Navy Relief Fund." Celsy is a true American citizen.

Open Letter to the Fellows Back Home

(Villa Grove News)

The following rhyme was written by Pvt. Lester Zimmerman and Corp. Honor, Battery C. 190 Field Artillery, Camp Sutton, N. C. They call it "An open letter to the fellows back home."
"I am writing this short letter
And every word is true
Don't look away, draft dodger,
For it's addressed to you.
You feel at ease, in no danger
Back in the old home town,
You cooked up some pitiful story
So the draft board would turn you down.

You never think of the real men
Who leave there day by day,
You just think of their girl friends
Whom you get while they're away.
You sit at home and read the paper,
You jump and say "We will win."
Just where do you get this 'we' stuff?
This war will be won by men.
Just what do you think, dodger,
That this fine nation would do,
If all our men were slackers
And scorned to fight like you?
Well I guess that's all, Mr. Slacker;
I suppose your face is red.

America has no place for your kind
And it's true every word I said.
So, in closing this letter, draft dodger
Just remember what I say
Keep away from my girl friend,
for believe me
I will be back some day."

CREAM, LIKE BREAD, BECOMES MOLDY WITH AGE

Everyone is familiar with the dark mold found on old, moist bread

Cream held too long gets moldy while acquiring musty, cheesy or rancid flavors

Most every adult is familiar with mold in bread, but mold in cream is another matter. More farmers than will admit it know little about this common and serious dairy problem. There is nothing mysterious about mold. Mold is a common indicator of food that is old or on the way toward spoiling. Cream as it ages tends to get moldy. The use of a dirty separator and storage of cream in high temperatures or in dirty cans or other utensils are factors favorable to the growth of mold in cream. The presence of excessive mold in butter makes the product subject to U. S. condemnation. The government's mold mycelia test quickly spots such butter. This test is applied regularly to butter picked up on the open market, long after the farmer has put in considerable time, work and money in getting the cream to market, and the creamery has bought, handled and manufactured it into butter. Here is terrific food waste and trouble and loss to all concerned simply because somewhere along the farm production line the cream had been carelessly handled.

According to the agricultural experiment station of Purdue University, dirty utensils are the main source of mold in cream. It is essential, therefore that all utensils with which milk and cream come in contact be thoroughly cleaned between milkings. First rinse out each utensil with cold or lukewarm water, then clean thoroughly with a good washing powder. Rinse again and flood the utensil with boiling hot water. Dry by draining only—without a rag—and place it where dust and flies (which carry mold and bacteria) will not reach them.

TO RELEASE FLOW OF LIVER BILE

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts tonight. Half an hour before breakfast, take as much as will lie on a dime in a glass of water (hot or cold) or in your morning cup of tea or coffee and keep this up for 30 days. Kruschen taken this way helps relieve such symptoms as sick headaches, bowel sluggishness and so-called bilious indigestion when due to insufficient flow of bile from the gall-bladder. You can get Kruschen, a famous English formula made in the U. S. A., at any drug store. You must be satisfied or money back.

Illinois State Capitol News

A special examination designated to speed the entrance of Illinois nurses into Army and Navy service will be held in October.

Illinois is making a splendid response to calls for nurses, but the demand is growing month by month, Capt. Danielson, Army Supervisor of nurses, declared.

The State of Illinois has changed its requirements with a view to getting more student nurses.

The time limit for filing applications for consultant nurse for maternity hospitals has been extended by the State Civil Service Commission to midnight, Sept. 12. These positions carry salaries of $150 to $200 a month. On account of war time exigencies, the Commission will accept persons who are not registered in public health nursing, provided they are registered in general nursing, and urges qualified nurses to apply.

During August the State of Illinois received $3,383,921 from motor fuel tax collections. In August last year this tax yielded $4,282,252. The twenty-one per cent decline reflects the diminishing use of cars and trucks.

Occupation (sales) tax collections for August were $6,559,821 compared to $7,701,092 for August, 1941. This decline is accounted for by the fact that much of the tax last year was at the old three per cent rate.

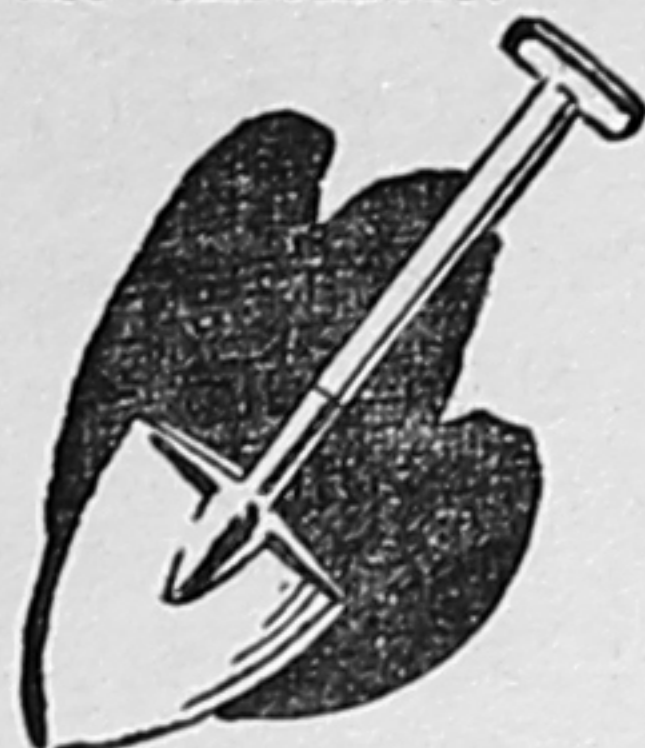

"One hundred and fifty-five years have passed since that historic occasion," Governor Dwight H. Green said in his proclamation designating Thursday, Sept. 17 as Constitution Day, anniversary of the adoption of the United States Constitution. "During that time sweeping changes have come over the world. Proud empires have fallen; forms of government in many lands have been transformed. But our Constitution endures; the United States, its priceless liberties safeguarded by this great charter, has become the most powerful nation of the world."

Still showing in long-unused Dickson cemetery, Rock Island, are little mounds of earth, six or eight inches high and perhaps three feet apart, marking the hills of an Indian corn field of many years. The Rock Island region was once a center of Indian life.

The State of Illinois recently purchased Dickson cemetery, which contains less than two acres, as a worth while addition to Black Hawk park. An ancient trail worn by Indians crosses one corner of the plot. The cemetery will probably be used as an out-door museum, supplementing Hauberg museum, which contains an exceptionally fine collection of Indian relics and artifacts.

Service stripes

A job well done, devotion to a cause, hard work, fearlessness are virtues of the kind for which Service Stripes are given.

Today no Service Stripes are more significant than the great spans of power lines which unite our nation in a mighty all-out effort.

These wires are Service Stripes that represent the work of crowded busy days for men who plan the distribution of electricity. They symbolize the tirelessness of engineers whose cots stand by their drafting boards, the sweat of diggers, right-of-way men, foresters and linesmen who clear the paths for the high voltage lines which carry vital Electric Power through wilderness and over plains to training camps, munitions plants, to cities, towns and homes.

The HIGH LINES are the work AND Service Stripes of those who toil and fight for freedom and for better living the Electric Way.
