METHODISTS WIN TOURNAMENT TROPHY

All Four Games of Tourney Are Thrillers; St. John's Win Second Place.

The Second Annual Community Church Basketball Tournament came to a close in the local gym, Saturday night, Jan. 2.

The preliminary game of the evening was won by the United Brethren, who defeated the Lutherans, by the score of 23 to 17. There were two good teams in the battle and it was anybody's game until the 4th quarter was finished.

Then came the battle for the trophy in which the Methodists won over the St. John's by the score of 30 to 26. It was a battle royal from start to finish. And the Methodists were awarded the trophy which was won by the United Brethren in the tournament last year.

In the opening games of the tournament which were played on Tuesday, Dec. 29, the Methodists beat the Lutherans, 28 to 24, and the St. John's beat the United Brethren, 29 to 24. Both games were real thrillers.

There were four good teams in the tournament and the large crowd of fans in attendance had the pleasure of witnessing four thrilling battles. It has been estimated that there were about 300 fans in attendance each night of the tournament.

The proceeds of the tournament were $139.01. After all expenses were paid, a balance of $113.11 was left with which to purchase equipment for the community building.

Congress Adjourns

After being in continuous session for virtually the entire period of its two years of life, the 77th Congress was adjourned, leaving a few important but not urgent bills on its unfinished calendar. The new Congress convened on January 6 and the President presented his message on the state of the Union in person the following day.

It is well that the members of both houses had an opportunity to get back to their constituencies for a few days, so that they could obtain direct information concerning the people's views on many questions with which they will be faced during this session.

They probably heard many complaints about stupid and unreasonable bureaucratic rules and regulations which emanate from Washington in an unending stream, particularly in connection with price-fixing and rationing; not because the people object to restrictions which are really necessary, but because of the unintelligent methods whereby these restrictions are being imposed.

They heard of the bewildering and burdensome government demands for the keeping of complicated records and the making of senseless reports, which serve no purpose except to gratify the whims of bureaucrats and waste time which might be better devoted to useful tasks.

They heard more about farmers and small business men being deprived of workers through ever higher wages paid by government and war industries, which private employers cannot meet and remain solvent.

They heard that "economic stabilization" has stabilized neither wages nor prices, and that the cost of living is constantly increasing to the detriment of all except those especially favored by legislation and government such as the War Labor Board.

They heard many other things which should be heeded if our national economy is not wrecked and our war program hindered to a dangerous extent.

The people are willing to make all necessary sacrifices if the burdens imposed by the war can be distributed on something approaching an equitable basis. But the present chaotic condition which has been brought about by government coddling of certain elements, while penalizing others, is daily growing worse.

Whether the new Congress can or will do anything to abolish, or at least relieve in part, some of the inequities which exist, and at the same time bring about a reduction in bureaucratic red tape, remains to be seen.

Basic legislation for the war program appears to be nearly completed, with virtually all the powers of Congress already delegated to the executive branch of the government.

The foreign and military policies of the administration have been on the whole most commendable, but our domestic affairs are still in a deplorable mess, and should have Congressional attention.

Roy Hurst, successor to Earl K. Eckerty, places an ad in this issue.

A Heroine Remembered

At Bamorough, England, a celebration was held September 7 in commemoration of a girl heroine, Grace Darling, who with her father performed one of the most notable feats of seamanship in sea annals just 100 years before.

In a raging storm the British vessel Forfarshire bound from Hull to Dundee was wrecked on the rocks off the Northumberland coast, with 63 men, women and children on board. The pounding of the waves broke the ship in two, and the after portion was swept into the sea, all in that part of the vessel being drowned.

One woman and eight men in the fore part of the Forfarshire managed to clamber onto a small rock surrounded by water, to which they clung in terror.

Grace Darling, daughter of the keeper of Longstone lighthouse, a mile away, saw their plight and determined to attempt their rescue. She and her father launched their small boat, and after a terrific struggle brought the nine through heavy seas to safety, in two round trips.

For their brave deed, father and daughter were given medals and large gifts, and Grace took her place among the greatest heroines of all time, becoming the subject of paintings, books and poems. She was 23 at the time of her gallant feat, and died four years later of tuberculosis. She is buried in the churchyard of Bamborough Castle.

The Grace Darling Museum at Bamborough contains her famous little boat and many other relics connected with her life.

Do Not Tell The Troop Units of Yanks

Washington, Dec. 26—On battle fronts every day men risk their lives to discover the location and strength of the military units of the enemy. Yet at home too many of us are presenting the enemy with information of the same military value, the office of censorship says.

This is the information which newspapers and individuals are asked not to tell the enemy:

Do Not Tell the names of ships upon which sailors serve.

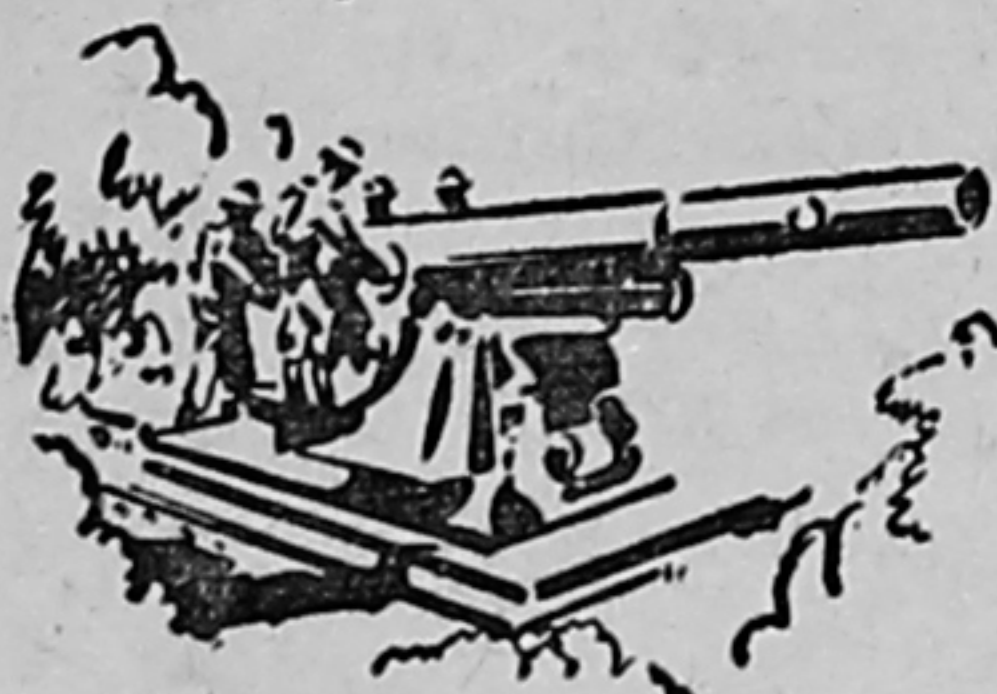

Do Not Tell the troop units in which soldiers serve overseas.

There is no objection to revealing that Private John Jones is in Australia, or that Seaman Tom Brown saw action in the Atlantic, but there is military information which endangers the lives of American fighting men in stating that Private John Jones, Company C, 600th Infantry, is in Australia, or Seaman Tom Brown, "Aboard the U. S. S. Wisconsin," is in the Atlantic.

The office of censorship says: "We ask editors not to publish these troop identifications, and we ask parents and relatives not to reveal them. Don't give the enemy anything that may lengthen the war!"

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The biggest field gun in the Army. That's the 240-mm. howitzer. It's twenty-feet of barrel and must be pulled into position by tractors. After it is rolled into place, its own wheels are removed and the Big Bertha is set upon its emplacement ready to fire at its target some twenty miles away.

The cost of these huge guns runs into thousands of dollars but we can assure the Army of obtaining them by our purchases of War Bonds. Ten percent or more of your income is necessary. The easiest way is to join the Payroll Savings Plan at your office or factory. Let's "Top that ten percent."

Do You Know Illinois?

By Edward J. Hughes
Secretary of State

Q. What was the early attitude of the State toward gambling?

A. Laws were passed repeatedly from 1819. In 1825 the purchase or importation of packs of cards or other gambling devices were punishable by fine. In 1827 gambling debts were made recoverable at law at treble value by the loser, or if he did not act, by any other person.

Q. What were the "Sunday Laws" of 1810?

A. Persons fighting, working, shooting, or hunting on Sunday were liable to fines of $2.00 each. Persons swearing oaths were liable to fines of from fifty cents to $2.00.

Q. What were the provisions for Negroes entering the State as laid down by the first General Assembly?

A. Free Negroes were required to present certificates of freedom for recording by the clerks of the circuit courts. Any person bringing in Negroes to be emancipated were required to give bond of $1,000 for each.

Q. What was done in cases of Negroes entering without certificates of freedom?

A. Such Negroes were advertised in the newspapers and hired out for a year. If no owner appeared within that time the Negroes were given certificates of freedom.

Q. How was Edward Coles (Governor 1822-26) affected by the Negro legislation of 1819?

A. Coles, through ignorance because the act had not been published brought his servants into Illinois without giving bond. He was sued in 1823, on behalf of Madison County and a verdict of $2,000 returned against him. The next legislature passed a bill releasing all judgments under the Act of 1819.

Q. What laws grew out of the prevalence of kidnapping free Negroes?

A. In 1819 kidnapping was made punishable by a fine of $1,000. In 1825 this was increased to a fine of $1,000 and 25 to 100 lashes.

Q. What early legislation was there in the matter of marriage between whites and blacks?

A. By Act of 1829 Intermarriage between the races was prohibited under penalty of stripes, fine and imprisonment.

Q. What was Senator Stephen A. Douglas' attitude toward the fugitive slave law?

A. Douglas was absent from the U. S. Senate when the law was vetoed in, but afterwards, in a meeting at Chicago, assumed full responsibility of an affirmative vote pleading that refusal to return a slave to his master was a violation of the constitution.

Q. What was the action of the Chicago Common Council with regard to the fugitive slave law (1850)?

A. The law was formally pronounced unjust and unconstitutional. A resolution that the city police should not be required to render any assistance for the arrest of fugitive slaves was passed.

Q. What was the effect of Douglas' eloquence at a meeting in Chicago after the passage of the Fugitive Slave Act?

A. The audience was induced to vote an express repudiation of the resolution passed by the Chicago Common Council.

Interesting Notes

The death of Frank Schraut, 72, of St. Louis, revealed his unusual hobby. Sixty-two canary birds shared his four-room flat. Two of the rooms belonged solely to the birds.

For the first time in 34 years John Drury, teacher in the school at Belfountain, Can., was absent from his classes recently when illness forced him to remain at home.

Because of the steep grade on Bank Street in New Milford, Conn., officials of the town are considering the installation of hitching posts for cars on the street to keep parked vehicles from rolling away.

Engineer Orlie Clayborn was pulling his passenger train out of Carmi, Ill., when three girls began waving at him. He waved back at them, but they motioned so frantically that he thought something was wrong and brought the train to a stop. One of the girls wanted to mail a letter—and did.

George R. Byrum, Jr., a Birmingham city official, praised a local hospital for the fine treatment accorded him by everyone in the institution while he was sick. He thought it was spreading it on a little thick, however, when his nurse said on his departure: "You have been a good patient and I hope we have you back again soon."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Save now to buy later, after the War. That's good common sense because if you spend now, you help to drive prices up for everything you buy. Durable goods are scarce so invest in War Bonds today and do that house remodeling when Victory is won.

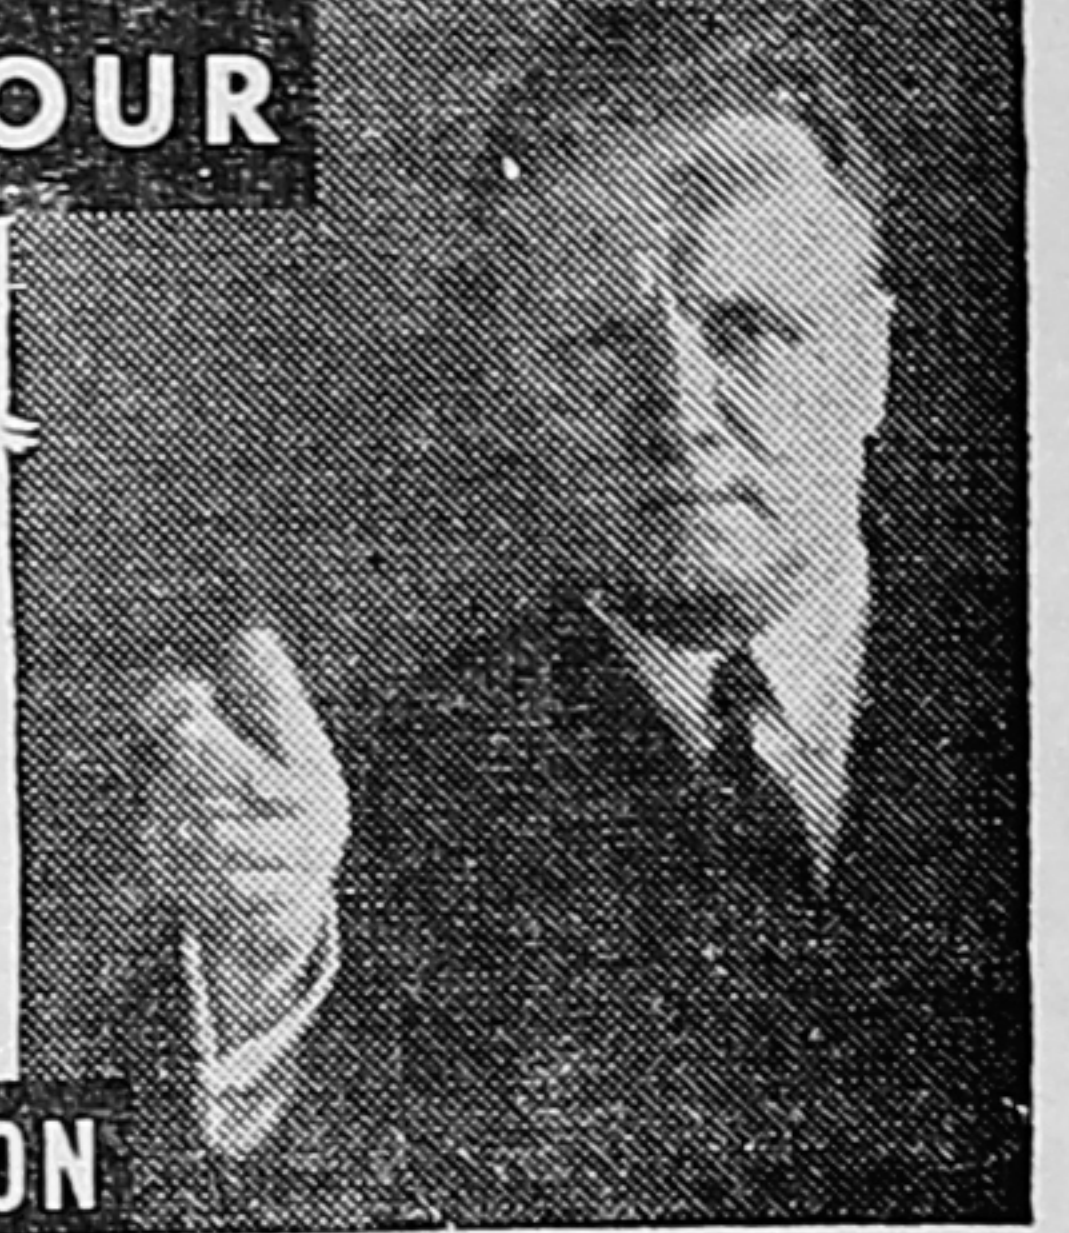

If you have not done so, join a Payroll Savings Plan at your office or factory. If you are not investing at least ten percent in War Bonds, increase your regular deductions on your Payroll Savings Plan. Let's "Top that ten percent."

and a rather distressed expression on his face.
"My I use your 'phone?" he asked. "I was on my way to Westmorland Park and I find I've run out of gas."
"Come in," she smiled, holding her sudsy, oily hands out at right angles from her body. "Is this a closeup of one of my heroes of the imported limousines?" she asked herself a little breathlessly, but a second later, she looked out and saw a most modest, inconspicuous little car drawn up to the sidewalk.
"You look as if you were having a time this morning, too," he said sympathetically. And why Florence doesn't know to this day, but she heard herself telling all of her woes to the perfect stranger who had merely asked to use her 'phone.
"I declare, that's a shame. You poor kid," he said, in his soft Southern voice. "I tell you what let's do. Why don't you and your mother come along and get a little air? The change'll do you both good. I'm going to Westmorland to see about some surveying."

FLORENCE NEWTON sighed as she sat on the steps of the little vine covered porch of her home and watched the magnificent cars speed by. She wished that one—just one—might stop and the well-dressed crowd would jump out and say: "Come along, Florence, let's go for a spin. It's too hot to play golf." Or, "Let's run out to the club this morning for a foursome." Of course, she knew nothing about golf or country clubs or taking spins, but these were the things she imagined.
Florence had always been lonely, but lately her loneliness had been accentuated by the opening up of a new super development with country club, golf course and snobbery all included. Her street was the most direct route from town to this development and it had suddenly become alive with endlessly passing cars of great splendor and price. In the cool of the late summer evenings she would watch them rushing past and sometimes, late at night, a car would flash by with the inside lights on and she would glimpse exquisite coiffures and gorgeous gowns and jewels that sparkled like the flash of a myriad infinitesimal electric lights.
If only one would stop; one gorgeous, gleaming car. But none did. They all hurried along quite unmindful of Florence or the steps, often laughter floating out behind them to smite the ears of the lonely girl.
There came a wretched Thursday when everything had gone wrong. Her mother had suffered with sciatica and Florence had been awake for hours putting hot applications on the aching spots. Then the milk man had failed to come in time for breakfast and she had been forced to put on a street dress and run around to the corner grocery. And while she was gone, the oatmeal had burned. After breakfast when she finally got her father off to work fifteen minutes late she had taken mop and furniture oil into the living-room and had promptly let the bottle slip out of her hand. It fell crashing to the floor letting its greasy contents escape on the best rug. In the midst of all her troubles the doorbell rang and she hastily got up off the floor where she was mopping the rug with suds and hot water and went to answer the bell. A young man was standing outside, hat in hand, a neat young man with humorous blue eyes

American flyers with the RAF are raining demolition bombs on Nazi cities today. These instruments of destruction so important in razing Nazi war plants, interrupting railroad transportation, and other war objectives, range now unto several tons.

The 500-pound demolition Bomb is one of the lighter ones. Bands are attached to facilitate handling and the fins are not attached until the Bomb reaches the airfield, because bending would injure accuracy. They cost up to $500. Your purchase of War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan will help provide Bombs for our airmen. Let's "Top that Ten Percent."
U. S. Treasury Department

What You Buy With WAR BONDS
The tradition of American cavalry threads back to Indian warfare days and although modern armies are largely motorized today, the cavalry still plays an important role. Sturdy, well trained horses and excellent equipment and trappings are necessary.

When men are in the saddle for hours, their saddles, saddle rolls and other equipment must be made to stand the wear. Complete with carbine and helmets, the equipment for the cavalryman runs into hundreds of dollars. You can help provide this with your War Bond purchases. If you have not done so, join the Payroll Savings Plan and put ten percent of your income into War Bonds.
