1943 Corn Prospects Cut By 25 Per Cent

Prospects for 1943 corn production in Illinois are approximately 25 per cent below those of 1942, according to estimates made by Illinois Grain Corporation board members in session in Chicago this week. The Illinois Grain Corporation is an associated company of the Illinois Agricultural Association and board members are farmers from various sections of the state.

Estimates made by the board members ranged from 5 percent below the 1942 corn production figure to a 35 per cent reduction from last year. The latter estimate was in the area adjacent to the Illinois River south from Morris.

The board reported that there are thousands of acres of the most productive corn land in Illinois that cannot be planted this year because of flood waters. This is especially true along the Illinois and Kaskaskia rivers. In general, none of the bottomlands below Henry on the Illinois river and Vandalia on the Kaskaskia can be planted to any crop this year. In some cases water will have to be pumped out and the levees repaired before the land is brought back into production.

Cumulative acreage losses that will occur in the central part of the state where large ponds of water have ranged from one to six in each 40-acre field, and that will have to be counted out as far as corn production is concerned, are large. Only hope for some of these acres is discing and planting to soybeans for hay.

The continued showers in the southern part of the state have kept farmers out of the fields and the weed growths have got a head start because cultivation has been delayed.

Illinois Women Contribute Stockings For Parachutes

Illinois women contributed 66,643 pounds of old silk and nylon stockings to make parachutes and powder bags in the six-month period ending May 15. The WPB region of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin contributed 216,408 pounds or 15 per cent of the national total.

Illinois led the region. Wisconsin turned in 60,313 pounds; Iowa, 49,564 pounds; Indiana, 39,888 pounds.

Reverend Robert Frey Receives Appointment Elmer Mohr Is New Master Masonic Lodge

Rev. Robert B. Frey, who has been pastor of the St. John's and St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed churches at Broadlands and Sidney, two years, and who several months ago enlisted in the U. S. Army, informs us he has received his appointment as chaplain and will report July 17 for active duty, at Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass. Following a month's training at Harvard, he will be assigned to a camp.

Rev. Frey has cooperated wonderfully with the Methodist and United Brethren churches; helped organize the Youth Fellowship, Boy Scouts, and participated in all their activities. And as we heard a man remark the other day, what a shame it is that Rev. Frey and Rev. Ferris both couldn't have remained here and help carry on the good work they have started.

Mrs. Frey is also a wonderful church and civic worker, having organized the Girl Scouts, and participated in the work of the Red Cross and the W. C. T. U. She is an accomplished musician and singer.

As we have heard a number of people remark, Rev. and Mrs. Frey are the most active, most popular and best liked young couple ever to occupy the local parsonage of St. John's church.

Rev. Frey will preach his last sermon here on Sunday, July 11.

The Freys will store their household effects when they leave here, and Mrs. Frey will visit in the east during the time her husband is taking his training in Massachusetts. Then when Mr. Frey is assigned to a camp, Mrs. Frey will join him, if circumstances permit.

The good wishes of their many, many friends here will accompany the Freys to their new fields of endeavor.

Rev. Pike Renolds Is New Methodist Pastor

The annual Illinois conference for the Methodist churches was held in Danville last week, and appointments were given out last Sunday. In regard to the Broadlands-Longview charge, Mrs. Kenneth Dicks received the following communication from T. W. Thompson, Champaign District Superintendent:

"This is to tell you that we have secured for Broadlands and Longview an excellent young minister to serve you this year. His name is Pike Renolds, is married and has two little children. He is in school this quarter but after the next four weeks or so he will be out of school to get acquainted. His home is in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. His wife and children will come up as soon as arrangements can be made to live in your parsonage. When he arrives Sunday he will talk to you about when to move, etc. I am happy to think we could get such a splendid young man and I know you will enjoy him and his family."

Ralph Schumacher Is on the Move

Through the courtesy of the Emil Schumachers, we are publishing herewith the following letter, which they received from their son, Corporal Ralph Schumacher:

Friday, June 11, 1943
Dear Folks: We arrived safely in the vicinity of (censored). It certainly was a swell trip although we retraced a lot where I have already been. We came thru Illinois Wednesday night. I thought we might come thru Homer but we hit a different route. It would have made little difference anyway. We did get a glimpse of the Niagara falls and the new bridge they put up. It is similar to the one we crossed when we were there.

It was certainly a relief to leave Claiborne. It is much nicer here and no dust. I hope we stick around awhile. I won't have time to write much or often so don't expect too much.

Ralph.

One Year Ago

So much has happened since last June that it is hard to realize that only a year ago the British Eighth Army was on the eve of its greatest defeat in Africa, in which Marshal Rommel recaptured Tobruk and pushed into Egypt, making his last threat to Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

At this time the Russians were putting up a heroic fight to hold Sevastopol in the Crimea, which the Germans captured shortly afterward. Hitler was beginning his great 1942 offensive in the Kharkov area. The Japanese made their first landings in the Aleutians about the same time.

All the war news had not been favorable for the Axis, however, for the Japanese had been dealt telling blows in the battles of the Coral Sea and Midway, and the RAF had devastated Cologne, Germany, in the heaviest aerial raid in history.

The Allied situation was very gloomy nevertheless, and it was not until in November that a decided turn for the better occurred, when offensives by the Russians from Stalingrad and by the British in Egypt got under way, almost simultaneously with the landing of General Eisenhower's forces in Northwest Africa.

June in each of these three previous years of the war has been marked by momentous events.

June, 1940, saw the fall of France and other countries of Western Europe, when Hitler made his first great mistake in not following up his success with an invasion of Britain.

In June, 1941, he made his worst blunder of all by attacking Russia, whose military power he made the fatal error of under estimating.

In June, 1942, the second German offensive toward the east was delayed by the campaign in the Crimea and a Russian thrust toward Kharkov. The late start of this offensive may have been the cause of its failure.

Now in June, 1943, the Germans hold roughly the same amount of territory in Russia that they held a year ago, although the battle line has changed in various sectors. But in other respects the war picture is far different.

The German and Italian armies in Africa have been wiped out, and the Mediterranean is again fairly safe for Allied shipping. Italy's mainland and islands are being bombed by Allied airmen almost at will, while Germany's vital industrial and military establishments have been subjected to the heaviest air attacks in history. U-boat sinkings have been reduced and Axis air power seems to be definitely on the wane, while the Allies have grown stronger.

This does not mean that an early end of the war may be expected, but it does indicate a great improvement in the Allied position over conditions which existed one year ago.

Few Die From Wounds

American soldiers and sailors wounded in battle now have a far better chance for survival than in any other war, because of the amazing advances in medical and surgical science, as well as improved methods of providing prompt aid on and near the battlefields.

In an address this week before the American Medical Association in Chicago, Major General Norman T. Kirk, the new surgeon-general of the Army, said the American wounded death rate in Tunisia was, "unbelievably small," averaging only about 3 per cent. He said that under similar conditions during the first World War the death rate would have been 15 to 18 per cent.

General Kirk was in Africa until after the Axis surrender of Tunisia and his statement is the result of personal observations in the field, which is borne out by official reports from other battle fronts. He quoted General Eisenhower as saying that "the outstanding service of the whole AEF in Africa was that rendered by the medical department."

Perhaps the greatest single factor in reducing deaths among the wounded is the prevention of infection through the use of sulfathiazole, the miracle drug which saved the lives of so many Americans wounded at Pearl Harbor.

Another life-saving device by General Kirk is a stomach tube, used to withdraw gas from the intestinal tract in the treatment of abdominal wounds. Gas gangrene, which formerly caused many fatalities, was almost unknown among American wounded in the Tunisian campaign, and of 12 cases observed only one resulted in death.

The present record is in sharp contrast with that of wars of past centuries, when severe wounds and many minor ones caused death through infection.

It is some comfort to know that our soldiers and sailors who are wounded in battle have the benefit of such modern and effective treatment that their chances of survival are from 20 to 40 to one.

Religious Life Is Prominent At Univ. of Ill.

First Student Church, First Church Foundation Were At Urbana Campus.

Parents planning to send youngsters to college should realize that in most educational institutions today the religious side of student life is not neglected.

State universities, being by law non-sectarian, are sometimes thought to be neglecting the religious side of student life. Such a belief is certainly untrue today.

Probably the real trend to provide for the religious life of students at state institutions can be traced to the University of Illinois, where the first church especially for students and faculty was established in 1909, and where in 1913 there was founded the first of the church foundations—"church homes away from home"—now existing throughout the world.

Illinois, home of these two "firsts" in student religious life, is an excellent example of the religious opportunities now provided at state universities. At the Illinois campus there are 12 churches attended almost entirely or in large part by students, and two other religious groups which hold regular weekly services but do not have their own buildings. There are seven church foundations in addition to the YMCA and YWCA.

A survey of students in the University of Illinois last fall showed that 9,181 had church preferences as against 935 who did not. It showed that on this Mid-Western campus there were 2,107 students with a preference for the Methodist teachings, 1,383 Catholics, 1,232 Jews, and 1,220 Presbyterians, with more than a score of other Christian groups represented in lesser numbers.

The University YMCA is the oldest student organization at the campus, established in 1873. The YWCA was established in 1884.

In 1906 the University Presbyterian church was established at the University as the first church set up expressly for students on any college campus in the United States. In 1913 the Methodist church at the University organized the Wesley Foundation, establishing a form of student religious center that has been widely accepted.

Univ. of Illinois Helping Victory In Many Ways

Federal Government Calls For Many War Services.

The extent to which the Federal government has called upon the University of Illinois for special war services was revealed by Comptroller Lloyd Morey, who said that special war contracts with the University involve nearly two and one-half million dollars.

They are being carried on in addition to the University's regular activities of instructing students, many of whom are in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, in the enlisted reserves, or in special work preparing them for war service.

Army and Navy officials have selected the University as one of the institutions to be used for the intensive college training programs being inaugurated by the Services.

The war work for the Federal government also is in addition to the University's regular research activity, much of which has war value. It is being carried on despite the fact that nearly 500 staff members have been given leaves for military and war duties.

The largest special activity in terms of persons involved is the Engineering, Science, and Management War Training program being carried on in more than half a hundred Illinois industrial areas by the Division of University Extension for the U. S. Office of Education. More than sixteen thousand workers have been trained or are now in classes.

The U. S. Navy has established a training school for two thousand signalmen, dieselmen, diesel officers, and cooks and bakers on the campus. For housing, laboratories, classrooms, meals, and other services, and for necessary changes in the buildings to meet Navy needs, the Federal government has contracted to pay the University.

The University also has more than a score of research contracts with various federal agencies to carry on work in the physical sciences, chemistry, medicine, and engineering. In addition it is carrying on the training of student pilots for the Civil Aeronautics authority.

X MARKS THE SPOT

It marks the spot where the declining cost of Electricity crossed the rising cost of living.

That was many years ago, yet even now—with higher operating costs and heavy federal taxes which (unlike tax free government and municipal power systems) we pay to speed the victory—the cost of Electricity is less today than ever before.

And this is possible because of close cooperation between trained men and women experts and management working together as a team—faithfully producing adequate electricity to cope with emergencies and still maintain the standards of Electric Service essential to the American way of living and winning.

IF YOU HAVE NO CANNER, MAKE ONE

"All authorities on home canning advise that non-acid vegetables be canned by processing (cooking in jars) in a steam pressure cooker because a pressure cooker is the only household utensil that can retain a much hotter than boiling temperature. High temperatures are desirable when canning beans, peas, corn, greens, etc., because they insure more certain destruction of bacteria and the canning can be done more quickly. But, says Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, who heartily approves using a pressure cooker whenever possible, "the time is at hand when we must be practical. Don't worry if you can't buy a pressure cooker for surely you can find a wash boiler, lard can, baby bath tub or some deep container in which water can be boiled. Tack a few strips of wood together to make a rack or platform to hold the jars about one-half inch from the bottom of the container. Find something, even if it has to be a board, to use as a lid. Then you will have a water-bath canner for those Victory garden vegetables.

"You are afraid to eat vegetables canned that way? Nonsense! A lot of folks who say a water bath can't be used were raised on vegetables canned by that method. But let's get three things clear before we go any further: first, there have been a few instances of poisoning from eating canned vegetables; second, all such danger can be avoided by boiling the canned vegetables 15 minutes before tasting or serving—they should be re-boiled before serving if left from one meal to the next; third, a pressure cooker is not a guarantee against spoilage. There will be spoilage if the pressure gauge registers too low or if poor judgment is used in the selection, preparation, and packing of food into the jars. And don't let anybody tell you otherwise.

"Now, back to the water bath. The water should be steaming but not boiling when the jars are lowered into it and deep enough to cover the tops of the jars two or more inches. No water won't get into the jars if directions are followed.

Payroll Savings Buys Comfort For Your Fighting Relatives

Not all of your payroll savings and other War Bond purchases are used for tanks, planes and gunpowder. A part of your investment goes for the comfort of your father, brother, son or friend.
Put your war bond buying through your payroll savings plan on a family basis to do the most effective job in providing for the care and safety of your men in the armed forces. Figure it out for yourself how much beyond 10 per cent of the aggregate income of your family you can put into war bonds above the cost of the necessities of life.
Remember a single $18.75 war bond will buy for a fighting soldier on the front: Two cotton undershirts at 44 cents; two pairs of cotton shorts at 76 cents; two pairs of cotton socks at 34 cents; one pair of shoes at $4.31; a cotton khaki shirt at $4.64; pair twill trousers at $4.16; one web waist belt at 23 cents; two cotton neckties at 44 cents; 2 khaki caps at $1.26 and one twill jacket at $2.16. Total $18.74.
An $18.75 war bond should make a marine comfortable for the night with a 23-pound mattress at $4.20; two blankets at $13.54; a pillow at 56 cents and two pillow cases at 30 cents. Total $18.60.
Or he could be provided with a rubber poncho at $4.77; a helmet with its lining and other items of its assembly at $5.62; a rifle cartridge belt at $2.15; a marine corps pack consisting of haversack, knapsack and suspenders at $5.10; a canteen and its cover at $1.05. Total $18.69.
Those of you who worry about the comfort of your boy in service can help insure his comfort by buying war bonds. And 10 years from now you'll take back $25 for every $18.75 you put in.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Battle Wagons
When Japan attacked at Pearl Harbor we had 17 battleships in service and 15 building. We were making preparations but the war did not wait. These 32 battle wagons cost American taxpayers three billion dollars for a two ocean navy. The war seemed far away then.

Now fifty million Americans have a personal stake in this war. It has been brought home to them. That's why everyone is increasing purchases of War Bonds.

Fifth of Real Estate Here Government Owned

Uncle Sam is one of the greatest landowners in the world. Through its various real estate holdings the federal government now owns one-fifth of the land in the United States.
This land comprises the public domain, national parks, and monuments, sites for post offices, court-houses and other federal buildings, army camps and military posts, naval and marine stations and bases, national cemeteries, national forest purchase units, and lands held temporarily by the federal government as the result of foreclosures.
The public domain alone comprises about 1,800,000,000 acres. There are about 20,000,000 acres in federal parks, monuments and wildlife reserves.
Indian land holdings comprise about 50,000,000 acres.

"White Dwarf" Stars

"White dwarfs" is the name given by scientists to newly-discovered stars, white because of their intense heat and dwarfs because of their size. It is estimated that one cubic inch of each star weighs 620 tons. A fragment the size of a pinhead would break a man's back.

Corn—Home-Canned to Keep!

"Corn, a favorite food of man, beast, and bacteria, is the victim of defense propaganda and I am not talking about war." Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, made the above statement and went on to explain, "Persons who refuse to take the time and trouble to understand corn, defend their canning failures by claiming that it refuses to keep. The truth is, corn is more than willing to be canned, but is doomed to spoilage unless right tactics are used, because it has no acid to protect it against the invasion of bacteria. Tactics? Why," says Miss Kimbrough, "they can be summed up in one sentence: i. e., learn what is to be done, begin at the right time, keep things moving, and turn on the heat."

The first thing to be done is to get jars, lids, rubbers, and canner ready. If you have no pressure cooker, get along with a water-bath canner. Examine every jar and lid to see that it is in good condition—remember glass top seals and two-piece metal vacuum seal caps won't work unless the top edges of the jars are perfect. Wash everything clean; cover jars, glass lids and zinc caps with luke-warm water and put on the stove to heat. Cover vacuum seal lids and rubbers with boiling water and leave until needed. When everything is ready, gather the corn—bring in no more than needed for one canner full. Keep in mind that canning too much too late is a common cause of spoilage. Place the corn on a board and use a strong sharp knife to cut the husks (shucks to you in the Middle West and South) off at each end just where the corn begins and ends. There shouldn't be any worms if you have followed Victory garden directions, but if there are worms in the tassel end, cut deep enough to leave them with the husks. The husks will come off easily and bring most of the silks with them.

Examine every ear of corn and use only those having plump, glossy, juice-filled kernels. Remove all silks; rinse the corn and cut it from the cob. One or more cuttings may be made, but scrapings should not be used unless processing can be done in a pressure cooker, because the scrapings make a thick mass that heats through slowly. Cover the corn with boiling water, using about half as much water as corn; cook five minutes; then pour immediately into clean, hot jars. A generous amount of water helps the corn heat through quickly and aids in preventing its sugar from caramelizing and causing a brownish color. Add one teaspoon salt to the quart and seal jars according to manufacturer's directions. Then put into the canner and process.

If possible, use pint jars, as they heat through more rapidly—the quicker the jars can be heated through, the more certain the destruction of bacteria. Process pints and quarts 70 minutes at 10 pounds pressure or by boiling 3½ hours in hot-water bath. Remove the jars from the canner as promptly as possible after processing; finish sealing all jars that require rubber rings; set jars as far apart as possible on folded newspaper or cloth so they can cool quickly, but be sure they are not where a breeze will strike them.

The jars should be examined after twelve hours in order to make sure they are sealed. To do this, remove bands from glass top seals and metal vacuum seal caps (leave the bands off when the jars are put away). Test the glass top seals by pulling gently on the lids with the finger tips. Vacuum seals are tested by pressing down on them with the fingers—if sealed, they won't move under this pressure. "Lightning" type are tested by holding upside down and watching for leaks. There won't be any leaks if instructions are followed and there won't be any spoilage if you keep in mind that Vigilance means Victory. Furthermore, you will never know how good canned corn can be until you have tasted your own home-canned brand.

Otters Are Intelligent

Naturalists who have raised pet otters, rank them as second only to dogs in intelligence. Though swifter than many fish, otter cubs dread water, have to be forced into it by their parents. They are the most playful of wild creatures. A family will make a mud slide down a steep bank, go down it time after time. So curious are they that photographers seldom can snap tame ones. They insist on pawing over and sniffing the camera.

Food of Kangaroos

The food of kangaroos is wholly vegetable. The larger species graze together like cattle. The family contains a wide variety of forms and sizes, including the wallabies and rock kangaroos, and the tree-climbing, or rat, kangaroos.

Illinois State Capitol News

Nature hikes and lectures, conducted free of charge by experienced guides, are available to visitors daily this season at Pere Marquette state park near Oregon and Deer and Starved Rock state parks near Utica. This service, which gives visitors an opportunity to see and identify a wide variety of birds and plants, is reported as increasingly popular.

The bass fishing season is now open in northern Illinois, and good sport with both largemouth and smallmouth black bass is anticipated during the summer. Fishing is especially popular with war workers and others who are planning recreation which does not involve a great deal of travel.

The Fox Chain O'Lakes, the Hennepin Canal, Lake Senachwine and the Kankakee, Kishwaukee, Fox, Rock and Mississippi rivers and their tributaries are the main bass waters in northern Illinois.

A threatened delay in mailing out new ration book No. Three to downstate Illinois residents is being overcome through the prompt action of Gov. Dwight H. Green in arranging for five hundred of the convicts at Stateville penitentiary to help with the work. The convicts, who volunteered for the job, will be busy for several weeks filling out the ration books and placing them in envelopes ready for mailing. Experts from the post office department and the OPA are at the penitentiary to oversee the task.

The services of the convicts are expected to make it possible for the OPA to get 3,500,000 books mailed to downstate Illinois addresses before the coupons in book One and Two expire.

There is still time for important planting in your garden. The Illinois Victory Gardens Food Preservation committee suggests that on the basis of normal fall frosts, garden crops may be planted as follows: beets, carrots, Chinese or celery cabbage, sweet corn, tomato and pepper plants, late cabbage, parsley, kale, cauliflower, Swiss chard, kohlrabi, New Zealand spinach, head lettuce, summer squash and pickling cucumbers up to about

July 1 in northern Illinois, July 15 in central Illinois and August 1 in the southern part of the state.

Leaf lettuce, turnips, endive, bush beans, broccoli and collards may be planted up to about the middle of July in northern Illinois, and until the middle of August in southern Illinois.

Liked the Hard Way

Some business men are such slaves to habit that they continue to do work in accustomed ways when they might do it more easily by daring to be simple. The story about the experience of the man who ordered a ham sandwich at one of those streamlined shops may be only slightly exaggerated.

Give me a ham sandwich, he ordered.

A what?

A ham sandwich.

Ham sandwich isn't on the menu, but I can give you a sandwich with ham in it . . . like a midnight special.

What's a midnight special?

A triple decker with ham, onion, cheese, tongue, bologna, tomato, lettuce, pickle, mayonnaise, on raisin bread toasted, with cole slaw on the side.

Look! Have you any ham?

Yes sir!

Could you place a piece of ham between two slices of white bread and serve same to me on a plate?

Why, sure!

Then, turning and addressing a soda-jerker, he sang out: "One midnight special. Make it on one deck. Hold the cheese, bologna, tongue, tomato, lettuce, onion, pickle, mayonnaise and cole slaw, and make the raisin bread white, untoasted."

Wheat from Canada and food from the U. S. has cut the number of deaths in Athens, Greece, by a thousand a day.
