A Substitute for Hell

Somewhere in New Guinea these wounded soldiers await evacuation. Flat on their backs, in the steaming heat of the jungle, where mosquitoes plague the air and ants and mosquitoes torment weary bodies, they dream of home . . . of clean white sheets and the touch of cool, comforting hands. You can help provide modern hospitals and the medicines they need for their recuperation by putting every dollar you can into War Bonds during the Third War Loan.

Ten Point Health Program For Schools

As a new school year begins, plans to protect the health of our children are being made. The ten point health program, which has been used for five years is to be used again. Under this program all school children in Champaign County, outside the cities of Champaign and Urbana, are given ten point pins if they can meet the following requirements:

1. At least one physical examination while in grade school.
2. Small pox vaccination.
3. Diphtheria immunization.
4. Naturally good or corrected vision.
5. Good hearing.
6. Proper nutrition.
7. Good posture.
8. Birth certificate.
9. No throat condition.
10. Clear skin.

ISRAEL MARCHES TOWARD CANAAN

LESSON TEXT—Numbers 10:11, 12, 29-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come thou with us, and we will do thee good.—Numbers 10:29.

There is a time to wait before God, to be instructed and prepared for holy living. There is also a time for action. When God says, "Move forward," His people are to arise and be on their way.

Israel, who had now been more than a year on the way from Egypt to Canaan, had been resting for a time at Mt. Sinai, there receiving instruction and being organized into a nation. They had set up a place of worship in their midst, and now they were ready to go on. That is God's will for His people. They are to

I. Move Toward the Goal (vv. 11, 12).

God had a schedule. He wanted them to move forward on a certain day (v. 11). Since the Jewish religious year, referred to here, began with the spring equinox, this was about the middle of May. The dry season was ahead—a good time to travel.

Those who think the purposes of God for men are nebulous and uncertain, and that He has no real plan for us, are obviously mistaken. His plan is good and acceptable and perfect; let us find and follow it.

We do not have a pillar of cloud and fire to move before us. We do not need it, for we, unlike the Israelites, have God's Word for our guide, and His Holy Spirit as the One who will tell every responsive soul when and where to go.

The important thing is to obey, promptly and willingly, and we shall have the blessing of God.

II. Bring Others With You (vv. 29-32).

Those who go up to the promised land should not go alone, they should bring others with them.

Moses, who had been in touch with the family of his father-in-law (known both as Jethro and Raguel or Reuel), now sees the value of having with him his brother-in-law, who was so acquainted with the great and terrible wilderness through which they were to pass that he could be invaluable as a guide and helper.

In giving him the invitation, however, Moses stressed the opposite thought—that it would be good for Hobab if he came with them. That was doubtless true, but it was not the right approach.

Men do not respond to the opportunity for advantage in spiritual things as readily as to the challenge to usefulness. The motive of acquisition is strong, but the best folk are not as interested in what they can get as what they can give.

The church may stress too much its value as a place of refuge and not enough the unparalleled opportunity it affords for sacrificial service.

When Moses changed his plea and revealed his need of Hobab, the response was immediate. He had thus won a friend and a helper.

III. Follow God's Guidance (vv. 33-36).

God gave special guidance on this occasion. The ark which commonly was found in the midst of the people, now moved out before them.

It was the symbol of God's presence. As they went out into the wilderness (which Deut. 1:19 calls "great and terrible") it was as though God Himself went before them.

Is not this always true? The "Captain of Our Salvation," Jesus Christ, is not One who carries in safety at the rear and sends up orders for us to attack life's problems. He goes before us!

The pillar of cloud hovered over the people as though to give them shelter from the beating sun of the desert. God is mindful of the road His people must travel, and in His loving-kindness provides for their protection and care.

In our day there are many who are tempted to question whether God knows of their trials and afflictions. He does, and He will not permit them to be tried beyond their ability to bear it.

When the ark went forward, their leader, Moses, addressed God in the stirring words of verse 35. The people whose God is the Lord may count on Him to scatter their enemies.

All of human life is either a journey or a battle, and often it is both. We must arise and make valiant war against the forces of evil if we are to move forward for God. But we must recall that our foes, as Christians, are also God's foes.

The battle is not ours, but God's, and we do well to call on Him to rise up and smite the enemy.

Note that after the forward march came a time of rest. God always gives His people an opportunity for needed rest.

Disloyal Japs

When it was decided to evacuate and segregate the Japanese from West Coast areas as a precaution against spying and sabotage by those whose sympathies might be with Japan, about 110,000 were removed to ten relocation centers in California, Arizona, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and Arkansas.

In the beginning it was not possible to distinguish the loyal from the disloyal with any satisfactory degree of accuracy, but investigations have been in progress with that end in view. In a registration after questioning about six months ago, a considerable number of these admitted sympathy for Japan, while a large majority professed loyalty to the United States.

An effort is now being made to separate the loyal Japanese from those who either admit or are suspected of disloyalty. Accordingly, about 15,000 of those considered disloyal are to be segregated in a relocation center at Tulelake, Calif. Their removal to Tulelake begins this month and is expected to be completed in November. Most of these were either born in Japan, or born in the United States but educated in Japan, although a few who were born and educated in this country are included among those whose loyalty is questioned.

The problem of handling these Japanese is a difficult one, and there is no doubt that many who were born in the United States are entirely loyal, but the government did not consider it wise to take chances with potential enemies. Considerable numbers who gave satisfactory evidence of their loyalty have been released to take jobs outside the relocation centers, however, and some were taken into the armed services.

There has been a good deal of criticism of the War Relocation Authority, the government agency which handles Japanese in the United States. It has been charged that the internees at some of the centers have been coddled too much, and that they have been furnished an overabundance of food and other supplies in a wasteful manner.

However this may be, the principal object of segregation has been achieved in the prevention of sabotage.

Victory At Kharkov

In the recapture of Kharkov recently the Russians scored a victory whose significance goes far beyond the mere fact that another great city has been wrested from the Nazis. For Kharkov was the most vital rail road center and supply base for all German operations in Southern Russia.

It was from Kharkov and its vicinity that Hitler launched his tremendous offensive last year, which carried his armies to Stalingrad and the Caucasus. While the city itself is largely destroyed, it has great importance as a rail and highway center from which to conduct future Russian operations, being second only to Moscow in rail facilities.

Kharkov has changed hands four times during the present war, having been first captured by the Germans on October 24, 1941, and held until retaken by the Russians on February 16, 1943, near the close of their brilliant winter offensive. The Nazis came back to again take the city less than a month later, on March 14, and occupied it until they were driven out by the Red Army August 23.

Before the war Kharkov was the third largest city of the Soviet Union, and a great steel and industrial center with a population of more than 800,000. When its capture first became imminent in 1941, the Russians removed vast quantities of its machinery and raw materials to safety beyond Moscow and to the Ural region, in the most notable effort of its kind ever witnessed.

It now seems unlikely that Kharkov will again fall into German hands, and there are good prospects that additional areas of the rich Ukraine, with its fertile soil and vast mineral resources, may soon be freed from the ravages of the invaders and restored to the Russian people.

Fire Losses Higher

Fire losses in the United States are rising again, according to a recent survey, and it is estimated that they may reach 350 million dollars this year, and possibly more. While fire losses in this country have always been extremely high, there was a notable decrease between 1930 and 1940, since which time they have increased.

The worst decade for fires in our history was that of 1921-1930 when the annual loss averaged more than 500 million dollars. The least yearly loss since the beginning of the present century was 146 million in 1903; and the greatest was 519 million in 1906, due largely to the great fire which followed the San Francisco earthquake in April of that year.

From 1933 to 1940, inclusive, annual losses never exceeded 285 million.

The increase in fire losses are probably due to greater industrial activity because of the war, but the primary cause of fires is carelessness. It is said that not a single fire since the war began can be traced to enemy sabotage.

More appalling than the property damage is the fact that an average of about 10,000 human deaths result from fires each year. Burns account for one out of every four accidental deaths of children under five years of age.

Many agencies, including fire departments, insurance companies, safety councils, newspapers and others, are continually striving to impress upon all citizens the necessity for guarding against fire and other accidents. Some good is accomplished by these efforts, but too many seem to trust to luck instead of taking sensible precautions.

Water Camel

Thirst is one enemy of armies and navies that may be frustrated by a generous supply of water. Typhus, another dreaded plague is another enemy that must be subdued in Africa, in the jungle islands of the Pacific.

So the "Lister Bag," more often called the "water camel," or just "camel," is used. The "Lister Bag" is a khaki colored canvas bag having a capacity of about 30 gallons. It will require many War Bonds to provide enough "camels" for our fighting forces at home and abroad. Yours too! "Back the attack with War Bonds." U. S. Treasury Department

Do You Know Illinois?

By Edward J. Hughes
Secretary of State

Q. How long did it take to re-establish the city water supply following the Chicago fire of 1871?

A. The fire started Oct. 8 and continued through Oct. 10. On Oct. 17 one engine started pumping water into the mains and by Nov. 30 all were working at full capacity.

Q. What was the Chicago Relief and Aid Society?

A. It was an organization initiated Oct. 13, 1871 to distribute the food and clothing and expend the money pouring into the city following the great fire.

Q. How much money did the Chicago Relief and Aid Society raise?

A. About $5,000,000.

Q. What phenomenal work in providing shelter for the homeless was accomplished by the Society?

A. By Nov. 7, 1871 the Society had constructed 4,000 two room frame cottages and expected to build an additional 7,000.

Q. What was the property loss of the Chicago fire?

A. One-third of the property, about $200,000,000 in value.

Q. How much insurance had been carried on this property?

A. $88,000,000.

Q. How much of this insurance was paid?

A. Between $45,000,000 and $50,000,000.

Q. How many fire insurance companies had done business in Chicago before the fire?

A. About 250.

Q. How many suspended and failed following the fire?

A. About 70.

Q. How did those which did not fail pay claims?

A. A few paid losses in full, others made partial payments, some paying as little as three to eight cents on the dollar.

Household Hints

Raw green cabbage contains vitamin C—the greener the leaves the more vitamins and minerals.

If jelly becomes sugary, use it to sweeten and flavor fruits—prunes, dried peaches, or other fruit.

Paint will keep indefinitely and in good condition if the lid of the can is replaced tightly and the can turned upside down.

Cut small mats from old felt hats to use under vases, ornaments and book ends. They prevent scratching of polished furniture.

Use a small metal coffeepot for keeping paraffin for jelly. The paraffin can be heated and can be poured easily over the jelly at any time.

If a dress which has a circular skirt is hung on a hanger for a day or two before hemming it will stretch the hanging and not after it is finished.

If rain spatters on the windows from flower boxes, cover the top of box lightly with gravel. This can be pushed aside when you wish to stir up the dirt.

Don't put away a frying pan that smells of onions, fish or some other strong flavored food. Put some vinegar in the pan and bring to a boil. Then wash as usual.

Buck Moves On

By RICHARD H. WILKINSON
Associated Newspapers—WNU Features.

"WELL, Buck," Boss Killian said, "it looks like you ain't so smart as you thought you was."

Buck Jennifer, tall, lean, sun-tanned, looked levelly at the owner of the Bar 10 cattle spread. A month ago he had come here in response to an urgent plea by Killian to the Cattlemen's Association, boasting that within a fortnight he could rid the range of the rustlers who had been conducting profitable operations at the Bar 10's expense.

"I guess," he admitted, "I ain't got no room for argument, Mr. Killian. Still, I'd like another whack at it. Give me one more week, at my own expense."

Boss Killian gestured elaborately. "What can I lose? Go ahead. If you fail, I dunno what I'll do. If you succeed, there's a thousand in it for you on the line."

Buck rode into the town of Sunscorch that evening and headed for the Sagebrush saloon. He had no definite plans in mind for the forthcoming week, and it occurred to him that brooding about the situation for an hour or two over a shot of red eye might at least temporarily ease his tense nerves.

He was hoisting his second one when someone tapped him on the shoulder. It was Luke Cross, the big foreman of the Triangle Slash.

"H'yuh, Buck!" Cross cast a furtive glance about the room. "Listen, I got a tip. There's a big raid planned tomorrow night on Bar 10 cattle down on the south range. Don't thank me. My outfit's been losing so much stuff the old man's ready to hand me my papers. Anything you can do will be considered a personal favor. If you need any help, sing out."

"I won't," Buck set his glass down carefully. "But thanks anyhow, Luke. Have a drink?"

The next afternoon Buck selected nine of the Bar 10's best men and headed for the south range. Toward dusk they reached a likely camping ground, close by the cattle, and built a fire. One of them put water on to boil and began slicing bacon.

"We'll keep guard in shifts of three," Buck told the cowboys. "At the first sign of anything wrong, cut loose with your six guns. Maybe there's nothing to this tip, but we can't afford to take chances." His voice sounded confident and authoritative, but that was far from how he felt. He was still puzzled and suspicious.

Just before midnight, with the moon hanging above the western horizon, the alarm came. The sharp report of a six-shooter cut the night silence. It was followed by another and then another.

Buck sprang from his blankets, reaching for his smoke-pole, and the cowboys not on guard did likewise. In the dim light, Buck made out a group of bunched riders, heard, above the chattering of guns, the lowing of cattle, and rumble of their hooves.

Seconds later the situation became apparent. Three rustlers had attempted to start the herd moving and had been discovered by the cowboys on guard. The trio were now cutting across some open country in full flight.

Buck didn't like it. Why were the rustlers sticking to the open? Why were they cutting back and forth, pausing occasionally to attempt beating off pursuit when the odds were so great against them?

Presently the trio fled toward a butte. Buck and his riders, yelling and shooting, followed. The moment, however, that the butte had obscured them from view of the camp, he called a halt.

They returned quietly, bunched together. And the instant they rounded the butte an astonishing sight met their eyes. A half dozen riders were skillfully hazing the cattle off in the opposite direction.

"Come on!" Buck cried hoarsely. "Let's get 'em." He set spurs to his own mount, leading the chase. There was a new grimness in his face, for he had perceived among those half dozen riders one that was big and tall, a familiar figure in every detail.

The rustlers, taken completely by surprise, were unprepared. They turned when the alarm was finally sounded, but too late. Between them and safety was the slowly moving herd of cattle.

Six guns blazed and roared. Men cursed and yelled. Above it all, adding more confusion, was the thunder of a thousand hooves of cattle.

Buck singled out the tall form of Luke Cross and rode directly at him. "Well, Luke, the jig's up. You got one chance, and that is to get me afore I get you."

Luke grabbed at the one chance, but his shot went wild. He slumped in his saddle, then tumbled to the ground, clutching at his chest where Buck's bullet had torn a gaping hole.

Boss Killian slammed a hand on his desk. "Buck, I owe you an apology. You did it and made a complete job. How about hanging around here as foreman of the Bar 10?"

Buck shook his head, smiling now. "Thanks, Boss, but it looks to me like things would be pretty tame in this vicinity from now on. I crave excitement, so I reckon I'll be taking my thousand bucks and moving on."

The Third War Loan is your loan.

The securities on sale fit your purse. Check the one which is applicable to you and buy it to the point of personal temporary sacrifice. Always keep in mind your sacrifice is only temporary because you do not give your money away when you "buy" War Bonds; you lend your money at interest. Your money is not even frozen. In the event of an emergency—and the record shows that Americans are not redeeming their Bonds except in the event of true emergencies—your Bonds are redeemable.

The United States Government has never in its history repudiated a Government Bond. As further evidence of the strength of this country to guarantee repayment of your money, United States potential wealth amounts to $89,000 per capita. Even with the heavy current war expenses, our national debt is only $1100 per capita.

Only a country like ours could make such a deal with its citizens: repay you with interest for a loan of your money to protect you and your family against enemies which would murder, rob, or enslave you.

The number one "buy" for you is the familiar Series E War Bond. Twenty-seven million American workers are buying Series E Bonds at the rate of $120,000,000 a month. Your Third War Loan duty is to buy at least one extra $100 Series E Bond above your regular buying. Buy more if you can.

Keep these facts in mind about the Series E Bonds:

They come in $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000 denominations. They sell for 75 per cent of their maturity value. They pay you $4 for every $3 invested if held until maturity, which is 10 years from issuing date. You may redeem them at any time 60 days after issue without notice at stated redemption values. Every Bond carries this redemption table.

Hurry!
Hurry!
Hurry!

THE END of September is in sight.

And the end of September brings us close to the end of the 3rd War Loan drive.

If you haven't bought $100 worth of extra War Bonds—extra, mind you—dig up that money and buy your share today!

Men who are fighting for you... bleeding for you... ready to die for you... are waiting for the news that you people at home are backing them up 100%.

They know what invasion costs in blood and lives. They know, too, what it costs in equipment, munitions, supplies, that must reach the front in a never-ending stream. And they're counting on you for the money that goes to keep that stream flowing.

No matter what you have to sacrifice... no matter how much it pinches... you cannot let them down!

They're calling on you to hurry, hurry, hurry! Get that $100 extra into War Bonds before the drive is over.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS Services

On Sunday morning as you sit in church and see the vacant places in the choir and wonder where the war has taken the young people from your community you may feel certain that they are attending divine services if circumstance permits.

Chaplains and choral leaders are found on the larger ships and even abroad in the Army centers. Millions of hymnals have been distributed to the men and women of all services and you may rest assured that a portion of the savings you are placing into War Bonds is used for their spiritual welfare.

The Cooper Airport at Tuscola Shows Activity

(Tuscola Review)

The Cooper Airport on Route 45, at the southwest limit of Tuscola and conducted by P. L. Cooper, is located on a nice level field and the visitors can see planes arising and alighting at almost any time. About twelve students are enrolled and students are graduated every few days. This gives Tuscola a distinction for being modern.

The big oval roofed hanger 80x150 feet, will house several planes and five or six are in service now making hourly trips over Tuscola. As these student planes sail away into the blue sky it seems wonderful, but in comparison to the great fighting bombers, they are only small craft.

Trained Dogs to Help Guards at Chanute Field

German shepherd dogs will soon help guards at Chanute Field, School of the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command in maintenance of post security. Four of the dogs, King, Jingo, Ring and Skip have "reported for duty." Others are expected soon.

The dogs, on leashes will accompany the sentries on certain posts at night. Because of their ability to detect strange persons and unusual noises, they can warn the sentry as well as aid if he should be attacked.

The dogs were brought to Chanute Field from a war dog training center at Front Royal, Va. During their training they have been taught to sit, heel, lie down, and to lunge at strangers.

I kindly ask that those who have been putting their tree limbs on the street north of my residence to discontinue the practice.—Mrs. Hannah C. Luth.
