USO Strikes Keynote of County Campaign

The USO strikes the keynote of Champaign County's Home and War Chest campaign—cooperation. And as the keynote agency it has been allotted slightly more than half of our National War Fund budget this year, about $34,000.

The USO was undertaken as a cooperative venture of welfare agencies of different faiths, operating under one banner to serve the nation's service men and women. And it has continued as a cooperative endeavor from the last crumb of homemade cake served men and women on leave behind the lines to the last laugh gleaned from traveling Broadway shows by battle-weary men in combat zones. Today there is scarcely a person in the country who is not affected by this organization, either as a contributor, as volunteer worker or as recipient of its generous services.

The salaried workers on duty at each USO are reduced to the minimum necessary for continuity of service. The volume of service is made possible by the generosity of volunteers. But the USO does far more than entertain lonely soldiers on leave; it performs countless morale-sustaining services everywhere. Traveling expenses are met for the many units of camp shows; trucks are provided to carry men from isolated out-posts to urban centers for recreation; nurseries are established for the children of service men whose wives must work. These are but a few of the tasks of the USO.

Champaign county maintains three USO centers—Champaign, Urbana, and Rantoul, and thru the doors of Champaign and Rantoul centers alone more than 40,000 service men pass each month. The attendance of the Rantoul Club swells this number to an astonishing figure.

Last year $20,000 was raised by separate campaign to carry on this work. This year in order that there may be no duplication of time or effort, the USO has been included in the National War Fund and its allocation increased. For as the war effort grows in intensity, the number of service men and women will be increased. And our obligation to provide a semblance of normality and home life for these men and women will be increased proportionately.

And let us not forget: As we contribute to the Home and War Chest, we are helping to write "Welcome, soldier" on the USO units scattered all over the United States and in every battle area in the world to serve the men from our town—as well as those from other communities—wherever they may be.

Letters To The Editor

Oliver General Hospital, Augusta, Ga. Oct. 30, 1943.

Dear Joe—I am back at O. G. H. and I am doing the same work, surgical dressings. I have 34 patients, of which some are from overseas. They tell us some very interesting things about the other side.

Tell my friends Hello, and that I hope to see them in 6 months.
Cpl. L. A. Sy.

Dear Joe—

There is a sign in the window of Bergfield Bros. Grocery Store this week which reads, "This store will be closed Sundays hereafter." As a minister, I could not restrain myself from making public comment concerning this action. Under normal conditions, there is no reason why the merchants of our town should have to stay in their stores or garages all or a part of the day. I hope that there are other merchants who will take this opportunity to follow suit, and close their business all day Sunday.
Yours truly,
Pike Reynolds.

Baldwin's Opening A Grand Success

The celebration of the opening of E. L. (Bus) Baldwin's new addition building in Broadlands last Saturday proved to be a grand success from every viewpoint. The village was packed to overflowing with people who came to attend the affair and parking space was at a premium. Gene Trimble's band furnished music and a large number of people enjoyed refreshments and dancing until a late hour.

Miss Lois Taylor Is Bride of PFC Lowell A. Pugh

Allerton—Miss Lois Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor of Homer, was united in marriage to Pfc. Lowell Pugh, son of Elmer and the late Grace Allen Pugh, Friday, Oct. 29.

Rev. R. H. Barstead, Tuscola, read the single ring ceremony in the Presbyterian Church at 2 p. m. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Max Krukewitt of Homer.

The bride was attired in aqua with brown accessories and wore a corsage of white roses and gardenias. The maid of honor wore a two piece suit of blue with brown accessories and pink roses.

Pfc. Lowell Pugh returned from overseas about a month ago and is now stationed at Camp Butler, N. C.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pugh are graduates of the Allerton high school. They left immediately for Chicago for a short visit with a brother, Private Max Pugh, stationed at Great Lakes. Lowell has a 20-day leave.

THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-26, 38-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—1 John 3:15.

Human life is sacred—and there is a very important reason why that is true. It is not because of any law of man, but finds its foundation in the fact that God created man in His own likeness and image. Because that is true, no man has any right to take the life of another for any cause except at the direct command of God. Only by the orderly process of law for the protection of society and in accordance with the Word of God may there be any such action by man toward man.

Both of these truths are declared in Scripture in God's covenant with Noah (Gen. 9:5, 6), which was made possibly a thousand years before the Ten Commandments were given to Moses.

One cannot deny that human life is held rather cheaply in many places today. War helps to create that attitude on the part of nations which makes them count boys and girls, yes, mere babies, as "war material."

But not only in war is life carelessly destroyed. We decry the "slaughter of innocents" on the highway, unnecessary death in industry, yes, even in the home.

I. The Prohibition of Murder (Exod. 20:13).

The word "kill" in this commandment is one which means a violent and unauthorized taking of life, and is therefore more properly translated "murder."

Not all killing is murder. A man may kill another entirely accidentally, or he may be the duly constituted legal officer carrying out the law of the land in taking the life of one who has forfeited his right to live because he has slain another.

There is also the right of self-defense, be it individual or collective as in war. But these are the only exceptions; let us not attempt to justify any other.

Murder is more prevalent than most of us suppose. Some years ago we were told that there was a murder every forty minutes in our land. With the general increase of crime, and of drunkenness (which so often incites murder), the current figures would probably show an increase.

Do not forget the deaths, the destruction of life, by avoidable automobile accidents. Some of these were really murder because the one responsible drove with defective brakes, dangerous tires, or while he was intoxicated. Add to these the deaths in industry caused by failure to provide proper safeguards or healthy working conditions, and by the exploitation of child labor, and we say that we should cry aloud, "Thou shalt do no murder."

II. The Provocation to Murder (Matt. 5:21, 22).

Murder finds its provoking cause in the heart of man. Our Lord was concerned about correcting the desires rather than to apprehend the offender after the act had been committed. It is the better way, and the more effective one.

In this matter of murder, Jesus cut right through the outward aspects of the matter and pointed out that an angry hatred in the heart is the root of all murder. If we hate, we have murder in our hearts. Circumstances may hinder its fulfillment, but the danger is always there until we remove the cause.

Just being angry—calling our brother "raca" (the modern equivalent of which is "nobody there"), and calling him "thou fool," which classifies him as "morally worthless"—these are the three dreadful downward steps to murder. And they begin in anger.

May God help those of us who have strong feelings that we may not yield them to the devil in such anger against our brother!

III. The Prevention of Murder (Matt. 5:23-26, 38-45).

Prevention with God means more than putting up a barrier to keep us from killing. He deals with the heart, and thus puts the whole life right. It is not even a question of how we may feel against our brother. If he has aught against us we are to do all we can to win him. He may be unreasonable, grasping, and unfair. However, the spirit that will win him is not that of retaliation or sullen submission to the inevitable, but rather a free and willing going even beyond what is required.

It is clear from other scriptures that our Lord does not mean that wicked and unscrupulous men are to be permitted to defraud and destroy God's people. At the same time, we must be careful not to explain away the heart of our Lord's interpretation of this great commandment.

We who believe in Christ are to be in deed as well as word the sons of our heavenly Father (v. 45), loving not only those who are kind to us, but even our enemies.

U. S. Plane Records

According to a recent official report by the Office of War Information, United States Army and Navy planes have destroyed nearly four enemy aircraft for every one we have lost since Pearl Harbor.

Up to September 1, Army aircraft had flown on 223,758 missions, dropping 105,649 tons of bombs, positively destroying 7,312 enemy planes and probably damaging 2,196 others. American losses were 1,867 planes during the same period.

Definite figures were not given for the Navy's air force, but it is estimated that its record was equal, if not somewhat better, than that of the Army, the number of planes in action being considered.

The most notable achievement by any one group of American airmen was made by a comparatively small force commanded by Major General Claire L. Chennault in China, which during 13 months destroyed 442 Japanese planes, probably destroyed 166 others, sank 41,000 tons of shipping and damaged 35,000 more. Chennault lost only 51 planes.

Russia's Grain Crop

One of Russia's most serious problems just now is getting this year's grain harvested, according to a correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, who quotes the Moscow newspaper Izvestia to the effect that harvesting and threshing has been delayed by the lack of farm machinery and manpower.

The crop is generally reported good in areas not occupied by German armies this summer, and some grain is being saved in regions recently liberated, but the harvesting has largely depended on labor of women and children, as most of the men are in the army or in war industries.

In many communities the grain has had to be cut with hand sickles and threshed with primitive flails on baked clay threshing floors. Some replacements of farm machinery have been received from America and Britain but both machinery and farm animals are inadequate to save the crops promptly.

In spite of difficulties, harvesting and threshing has been completed on schedule in vast areas, but in others thousands of acres of grain remain uncut.

Izvestia, which is a government organ, warns that every available machine must be used to its fullest capacity and that threshing must be organized so as to be carried on day and night. It also declares that the loss of crops under the snow would be a crime against the Red Army and the Soviet people.

The final duty of farm people is the earliest possible delivery of grain to the government, and where farm transport is insufficient to maintain a steady flow it must be supplemented with wagons and trucks, mobilized in cities under the direction of local and party organizations.

The correspondent states that the grain crop remains the basis on which the Red Army and Soviet industry will continue to fight the war, and this will not be a winter of plenty.

From the foregoing it appears that Russia's third winter of the war will be another most trying one, especially if there should be a failure to save any considerable portion of the grain crop.

Sidelights

What his friends want to know is—does the injury received by Aviation Cadet Leon David Conklin, of Barin Field, Pensacola, Fla., entitle him to the Purple Heart award. Conklin was recently forced to bail out of his plane over the Gulf of Mexico, when engine trouble developed. He floated about in his rubber boat for 24 hours before being rescued. His only injury was a lacerated big toe which he received when bitten by a fish after kicking off his shoes when he landed in the water.

Vernon Margetts, advertising expert of Melbourne, Australia, has found a source of forceful ad copy of which he was not fully aware. Recently, Margetts became interested in his Bible and inspirations for advertisements come to him from God's word, the hard-headed executive states. He is spending his own money—not his clients'—for newspaper advertising space in which to quote the Bible and it is said that he has the largest group of readers of any advertiser on the continent "down under."

All censors are not hard-boiled as evidenced by a letter received by little Dolores Kleitz from her father, Pvt. Edward N. Kleitz, now serving with U. S. forces overseas. Dolores and her four brothers and sisters are in the Children's Home in Mishawaka, Ind., and their mother is a tuberculosis patient in a hospital nearby. Private Kleitz enclosed two $1 bills in his letter to Dolores, which he said should be shared by her with her brothers and sisters. When the letter arrived it contained three $1 bills instead of the two. An appended note said: "Here is an extra dollar for you—The Censor."

Things have come to a sorry pass in South Carolina. At least that's the belief of that state's Congressman James P. Richards. Mr. Richards has filed a protest because hominy grits are not to be had. The habit of eating grits three-times a day is an old South Carolina custom, the Congressman stated as he complained before the House membership. "Take away most of our gasoline, and tell us when we can buy a pair of shoes or a pound of sugar, when we can kill our hogs and drive our automobiles, but, Gentlemen, never deprive a South Carolinian of his grits!" was Representative Richards' appeal.

A Lyons, Kan., woman kept after her husband to buy her one of those little turtles you see in the pet shops, so recently he bought her one—in fact he bought four of various sizes. He took them home, hid the larger ones and gave her the small one. A few days later he switched a larger one for the small one and his wife became elated over the growth of her pet. A few days later another switch to a larger turtle was made and the wife was thrilled beyond words. Finally, the largest turtle was placed in the turtle pen (or whatever turtles are placed in) and the wife became very happy. Then the husband reversed the process and his wife almost went crazy trying to keep her pet from withering away. We have no report on the man's physical condition when he let his spouse in on his little joke.

Do You Know Illinois?

By Edward J. Hughes
Secretary of State

Q. When was a county called Knox first created in the Illinois Country?

A. June 20, 1790 by Arthur St. Clair, Governor of the Northwest Territory.

Q. What did the original Knox County include?

A. About half of the present State of Illinois, all of Indiana, that part of Ohio west of the Great Miami River, the greater part of Michigan, and a considerable part of Wisconsin.

Q. How long did this original Knox County endure?

A. On February 3, 1801 its boundaries, along with those of Randolph and St. Clair, were altered by Governor Harrison of the Indiana Territory. Knox remained thus until April 28, 1809 when Nathaniel Pope, Secretary of the Illinois Territory, divided the territory into two counties, Randolph and St. Clair.

Q. When was Knox County established under authority of the State of Illinois?

A. January 13, 1825. The Knox County thus created was one tier of townships smaller on the north than its present size.

Q. When was Knox County first settled?

A. February 1828 a small colony settled in Henderson Grove.

Q. What was the Galesburg Colony?

A. A religious colony under the leadership of Rev. George W. Gale of Whitesboro, N. Y. Gale's idea was to establish a college which combined manual labor with study.

Q. How much land did the colony acquire?

A. 10,746 acres at a price of $15,094.84. A town was located in Knox County and called Galesburg in 1835.

Q. How was the property divided?

A. 560 acres were reserved for town property and 104 acres for college and theological uses. The balance was divided into farms, appraised upon an average of five dollars per acre, and nearly half sold to purchasers, most of whom never had farmed.

Q. What was the original name of the college established by the Galesburg colony?

A. Prairie College. February 15, 1837 it was incorporated as Knox Manual Labor College. The words "Manual Labor" were shortly dropped and the college assumed its present name.

Q. What effect did the founding of the Galesburg Colony have on the character of the population of Knox County?

A. Until 1836 settlers were predominantly southern. After 1836 the influx was from the east.

Paints Must Be Dull

Paint used on war equipment is largely dull, to avoid highlights that might attract the attention of the enemy. Paint manufacturers could easily make a dull paint, but it was found that dullness alone was not enough for some of the wartime uses. For example, a type of dull paint might not reflect telltale light from a given angle of view, but would reflect it from larger angles. Consequently, paint chemists were called upon to make paint that would be dull at all angles. They solved the problem and now are using instruments known as glossmeters, sheenmeters and goniphotometers for measuring the reflectance factors of dull paints at all angles in incidence.

Early Animal Cures

A review of early livestock books offers perhaps the most amusing method of discovering the progress modern science has made in protecting the health of farm animals. For example, a book published in 1798 tells that a greasy dish-cloth is a good treatment for saddle sores. A curious cure for red water in cattle consisted of drenching them with milk in which a red-hot iron had been quenched. Turnip poultices were also recommended as a cure for all sorts of ills. One of the most interesting comments was the suggestion that the livestock owner continue to try different treatments until he found the right one. And one might add—if the animal lived long enough.

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

Mariners: At the beginning of the present war, a British skipper, who had been retired because of his years, was called back into service and placed in command of a freighter. His four sons are also men of the sea. Eventually, two found berths on their father's ship. That was satisfactory indeed to both father and sons. It would have been far more satisfactory, however, had the other two been with them. But that was not to be. As a matter of fact, as the war progressed and it became more and more difficult for mariners to keep in touch with their families, the father lost track of his other two sons completely. For more than two years, he did not hear a word from them. Recently, the veteran skipper brought his ship into the port of New York. And on the ship at the pier next to the one at which he docked was one of his two missing sons.

Reunion: Naturally the coming together of the three brothers and their father caused a celebration. Then arrangements were made for shore leave for the captain and his sons so that they could go sight-seeing together. Maybe it was just co-incidence. Possibly Fate took a hand in the matter. But whatever the motivation, in the course of the evening the captain and his three sons went to the Merchant Marine Canteen at the Ritz Tower—and well, you've guessed it, the fourth son was there. Witnesses said that the father was so overcome that he went all to pieces. But he soon recovered and the five spent the rest of the evening singing songs, slapping one another on the back and reminiscing. As this is being written, the captain and his sailor sons are making arrangements for another evening out together.

Darndest War: At the traffic light at 72nd and Broadway, the taxi driver suddenly turned his head and remarked, "This is the darndest war I ever heard of. Can't dope it out at all. In the last World war, I enlisted in the coast guard and got sent to the Philippines where we saw no action at all. So I thought it a nice safe service and got my kid to enlist. And what happens? Well, this morning the wife and I get a letter saying he's been one of the first to land in Sicily."

Ramblings and Ruminations: Two girls looking admiringly at a costly gown display in a Broadway window . . . The short one remarking to her tall companion, "Maybe we could wear clothes like that if we were defense workers instead of hash slingers" . . . and the tall one averring, "What I need most of all is a new pair of feet." . . . Two soldiers wandering up Broadway munching apples . . . One comments that fruit from the orchard back home tastes much better . . . and the other, his eyes on a platinum blonde, remarking more or less absently, "You said it, buddy." . . . A young sun-burned soldier busily making snapshots of Broadway throngs with a miniature camera . . . Probably his first visit here and he's collecting something to send to the folks back home . . . A 42nd street pitchman doing a brisk business in potato peelers . . . and suddenly shutting up shop when he sights a cop.

The proprietor of a hole-in-the-wall souvenir store chasing away a couple of bootblacks because they detract attention from his window display . . . The horse of a mounted policeman, who has dismounted to speak a few words to a motorist who evidently has committed some infraction of the rules, stepping up onto the sidewalk and giving the eye to each passing pedestrian . . . Maybe the horse is studying to be a detective . . . A display in a restaurant window reminding me that again I have missed the Michigan melon season . . . and cantaloupes are my favorite fruit . . . Horse players huddled about a Broadway bookmaker whose office is right on the street . . . Broadwayites back from vacations displaying their sun tans.

Feminine fall hats displayed in Fifth avenue windows lead me to the belief that there is no hope because women will wear anything that can be balanced on their heads . . . Something mighty nifty in mink with a price tag of $4,500 . . . Takes a lot of dough to keep some ladies warm . . . A soldier and a civilian engaging in what looks like a game of fistcuffs in the shadow of the Pulitzer fountain . . . But, to the disappointment of those who stop to goggle, it turns out they are merely taking a bit of friendly exercise . . . and they depart arm-in-arm.

Mass Feeding Project Clicks

Caterer Serves 6,500,000 Meals Every Month to Federal Employees.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Seven hundred twenty million paper cupfuls of coffee is a lot of coffee in any language, but that's only one item dispensed by the Welfare and Recreational Association of Public Buildings and Grounds, the world's largest food caterer!

The association, ruled by the attorney general as "a government-controlled agency," contracts to prepare and serve meals to federal employees in 59 cafeterias located in government buildings, ranging from the huge Pentagon building down to the Senate office building.

Serving 6,500,000 meals a month in metropolitan Washington, the Welfare and Recreational association is one of the most efficiently organized agencies in the capital.

Largest Users of Paper Cups. The association is the largest single user of paper cups and plates in the world. Last year it used 930,900,000 paper cups, and 101,000,000 paper plates in its mass feeding project.

Some idea of the staggering quantities of food handled this past year by the association may be obtained from these figures: 4,000,000 pounds of all kinds of meat, 600,000 pounds of cheese, 2,068,820 pounds of butter, 960,000 pounds of shortening, 63,600,000 paper cupfuls of milk, 126,492 loaves of bread, 8,000,000 pounds of canned fruits and vegetables, 3,000,000 pounds of frozen fruits and vegetables, 240,000 pounds of dried fruits, 4,320,000 pounds of sugar, 240,000 gallons of fresh cream, 240,000 pounds of fresh fish.

The Welfare and Recreational association, though incorporated in 1926, is the result of an earlier attempt during the First World War. The contractor at that time, however, failed to meet specifications.

The present organization is headed by Capt. F. W. Hoover, and the elected trustees are all men in responsible government positions.

Bainbridge K. Foster, chief of the purchase and supply division, is the dynamo around whom the entire feeding system revolves.

Inspected Daily. Captain Hoover inaugurated the current "health and sanitation program," according to Foster, placing each cafeteria under the management of a college-trained dietitian.

"Army, navy and marine authorities are exacting in their inspections daily," he said, "because the feeding problem in overcrowded Washington is most important to health and morale. Like ourselves, these inspectors are out to prevent epidemics, and virtually insist on food being served in paper."

"For this reason," said Foster, "we conducted a detailed research program, and discovered that paper cups, containers and dishes are more sanitary, end labor problems, eliminate breakage, are far more convenient, and save space and materials."

According to Foster, Washington would today be a "hellhole of disease" were it not for the Welfare and Recreational association program.

"Restaurants in Washington," he said, "can't even take care of evening meals, let alone lunch and breakfast. The hours of labor saved by this service in government buildings alone would total a fabulous sum."

Ponies Used to Solve Transportation Problem

MANLIUS, N. Y.—The Hodges family has solved the problems of transportation and family peace with seven ponies. Seven ponies for seven children.

Alvah Hodges, the father, drives a 25-mile round trip daily to his war job in an old rubber-tired buggy, drawn by two of the ponies. Hodges says the "spanking pair" costs him about $2 a week instead of the $2.50 for gasoline and oil. However, this old-new mode of locomotion does not save time, and sometimes when it rains, Hodges returns to his car for transportation.

Dreams of Fried Chicken

When Lost in the Jungle

ALEXANDRIA, LA.—What are the poignant thoughts of a bombardier, lost with his comrades in the jungles of Australia for three days?

Capt. Donald C. Miller of the Alexandria army air base supplies the answer:

"He thinks of Southern fried chicken."

His plane ran out of gas over Australia. That's how he happened to dream about the Southern fried chicken. A Catalina flying boat rescued the bomber's crew.

Two Cousins Meet for First Time in England

LONDONDERRY.—Two cousins in the United States armed forces traveled over 3,000 miles to meet here for the first time in their lives.

They are Capt. George O. Ludcke Jr. of Minneapolis, Minn., of the Marines, and Staff Sergt. Lee J. Ludcke of Oakland, Calif., of the 8th Airforce.

Sally's Scribblings

There seems to be difference of opinion among folks as to what constitutes Indian Summer and just when it comes to us. But it's the opinion of this writer that we are just now in that grand season. The days have a last lingering brightness. A sort of a Farewell to Summer caress. The air is filled with a sort of smoky, hazy shimmer impossible to describe. If you have seen McCutcheon's many-times-reproduced Injun Summer in the Chicago Tribune you will know what I mean. A friend said to me recently, "This is a day right out of Paradise." Yes, it gives you that sort of feeling.

Until recently, I had always thought of Indian Summer as belonging exclusively to America. But now I find other countries have a similar season, under different names. Some of these are St. Martin's Summer, All Hallow Season or Old Woman's Summer.

Much as we love this season it doesn't bring us a joyful feeling as spring always does. It is more of a nostalgic sweetness; a homesickness for Heaven and unseen friends. A regret for our futile, illicit days, for lost opportunities, forgotten ideals and friends that have failed us, and that we have failed. But as we watch the leaves falling in great red and golden heaps, we know that another spring will replace them, and also new opportunities will come to us. Today is a beautiful day. Today is a sunny Indian Summer day. Let us drink in all of its beauty and its sweetness.
