So that is what God did, he put up a cross to cover the cost of our redemption. By it he canceled our debt. "It is finished" means "Paid in full."

We may not understand, but we are asked to believe. The mystery need not be a stumbling block. The Christian knows that even in his physical world, reality is always greater than his comprehension, and is always attended by mystery.

Letters To The Editor

Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Illinois, 3-22-44.

Dear Joe—How is everything going along in the old home town? O. K. I hope. Things are humming along around here. They really keep us busy around this place. The C. P. O. told us yesterday that we would have more to do after this coming Monday. I thought we were busy enough now but he said we didn't have a good start yet. He seems like he is tough, but still gets as much kick out of a good joke as the next fellow. When there is work to be done he aims for it to be done up in nothing flat. We were told by him and his assistant that they were going to make us the best company in this battalion. I don't know if they can do this or not. (Some job.)

Tell the boys around there that this naval boot training is sort of tough, but I said there are some it would be good for, and besides when the war is over they would be able to walk down the street and say that they didn't slack any when the critical time was written on the face of this good old United States of America. It is a shame to see some of these fellows around here, that wouldn't be here if it wasn't for slackers. I don't feel sorry for myself because I had a chance to stay home, but there are some around here that I really feel sorry for.

My buddy's name is William Walters. He used to work for Walter Pogendorf when he lived around there. A fine fellow and we have a lot of fun together.

There are 139 men in this company. About 50% of them are under 19 years of age, about 30% between 20 and 30, and the other 20% are over 30 years old. If you think it isn't hard for a man past 35 years old to go through this training you are mistaken.

Your friend,
Fritz Thode.

To The People of Illinois:

As the war goes on, military uses of paper and paper products are expanding. The demand for waste paper is steady and urgent.

Many Illinois communities are already taking part in the national campaign for waste paper, yet much still remains to be done. As Governor and as Chairman of the Illinois War Council, I urge all our citizens to help in this timely effort. Once the need for waste paper is fully understood, the response should be open handed and unanimous. We have done many harder things; I am sure we shall not be lacking in this patriotic service.

Sincerely yours,
Dwight H. Green,
Governor.

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

When war broke out, Marine Sgt. Maier J. Rothschild of New York City was studying journalism at night, selling stocks in Wall Street daytimes. On December 31, 1941, 24 days after Pearl Harbor, he enlisted. He's been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received in hand to hand bayonet combat, and the Navy Cross for fighting off and killing 95 out of 150 of the enemy storming a machine-gun emplacement. He's not giving up until we win. And you? Are you still buying that extra War Bond?

Illinois State Capitol News

Illinois farmers are busy overhauling their tractors and other farm machinery, cleaning seed and making other preparations for spring field work. As soon as the ground is dry enough, the sowing of oats will be general in central and northern Illinois. Some oats were sown during February in the southern part of the state.

Illinois highway accidents during January and February increased sharply over those in the same period last year. Total fatalities for the two months this year were 243, compared with 210 in 1943. The increase is particularly marked in pedestrian and in railroad train accidents. Tire trouble is also causing a growing number of accidents.

A live Illinois beaver, probably the rarest of all the wild animals to be found in the state, will be exhibited by the department of conservation at the International Sportsmen's show in Chicago, April 22-30. The animal was rescued from a whirlpool in the Mississippi river bottoms by the field conservation workers, and will later be released at the state game farm.

During the last sixteen months more than 13,000 women, representing every county in Illinois, have received the free hospital and medical services which the Illinois department of public health provides for the wives of men in the nation's armed forces. Under the plan, sponsored by Gov. Dwight H. Green, the wives of men in the four lowest pay grades of the military forces may receive free pre-natal and obstetrical care, while free medical and hospital care is given to their babies under one year of age in cases of acute illness.

SAUL BECOMES A NEW MAN

LESSON TEXT: Acts 9:1-9, 13-19a.
GOLDEN TEXT: If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature.—II Corinthians 5:17.

The lives of great men inspire us with an eagerness to make our own lives count for God and for country. Particularly is that true of the life of the apostle Paul, for he combined personal greatness with an absolute surrender and devotion to Christ, which made his life doubly effective.

We recall, however, that this peerless leader for Christ was at first the bitter enemy of everything Christian and we ask, "What changed this man?" The answer is—the redeeming grace of God—but that is the story of our lesson. He became a changed man as he went—

I. From Threatening to Trembling (vv. 1-7).

The enemies of God and of our Christ are often loudmouthed and terror-spreading individuals, who, for a time, strike fear into the hearts of men. Such was Saul of Tarsus, and such are the antichristian leaders of our day. They seem to be so powerful and able to sweep all before them.

But wait! Luther said of God's archenemy, "One little word shall fell him," and it is true. See what happened to Saul. Off on his journeys of persecution and destruction, bold and determined, he met Jesus on the Damascus road, and the great threatener is found to be "trembling and astonished" (v. 6).

The Lord is still on His throne, and one day every mouth shall be stopped (Rom. 3:19), and all His enemies shall tremble before Him. Would that they would do it while there is time to repent.

II. From Persecuting to Praying (vv. 2, 8, 9; see also v. 11).

Paul utterly devoted to the rooting out of this hated sect of Christians was on his way with letters authorizing their imprisonment. It was all very official, zealous and marvelous in men's sight, until he met Jesus, and it all blew away.

Ananias, that faithful layman (may his tribe increase!), was called of God to go and speak to the stricken Saul. When he feared to go, God encouraged him (v. 15), for the powerful persecutor had now become a penitent pray-er (v. 11). That's what a face to face meeting with Jesus did for Paul—yes, and will do for any man or woman.

III. From Scoffing to Suffering (vv. 1, 13-16).

Saul doubtless gloried in the breathing out of threatenings and slaughter of which we read in verse 1. He was riding high in the seat of authority and of official approval. It was satisfying to his fleshly pride to make known his dreadful purposes of destruction and imprisonment for these helpless Christians.

Did we say helpless? Oh, no, they had on their side all the power of the Eternal One. He who touches the people of God touches the Lord Himself. Paul thought he was fighting a little sect of Christians, but found that he was fighting the Lord Himself (v. 5).

But now that he had met Jesus and was ready to turn in devotion to His sacred cause, he was to learn what it meant to suffer. Let us note well that suffering for the sake of one's faith may be entirely within the will of God, yes, and for His glory.

IV. From Spiritual Death to Spiritual Life (vv. 17-19).

Men have tried to explain the experience of conversion on the ground of psychology, as a cataclysmic change in the life of an individual who has gone through some great sorrow or trial, but it simply will not go down. There is in real conversion a regeneration which means a completely changed life.

Saul did have a sudden and moving experience on the Damascus road, but it was not just because of a blinding light and a mighty voice. It was a light "from heaven" (v. 4), and the voice of the Lord.

Saul was "filled with the Holy Ghost," and received his sight. He was ready now to be used of the Lord as the greatest missionary evangelist and theologian that the world has ever known.

This change was one which reached down into his inmost being and transformed his beliefs. The Jesus he had hated, now became his all consuming passion and love. He no longer looked to his works to save him, for now he knew the personal Saviour.

What happened within showed itself in his attitude toward those without. It always does. He now came to love the very people he had hated and persecuted, and turned every bit of his strength and ability into the task of working with them in the spreading of the gospel throughout the world.

Men and women—yes, boys and girls—today need this same change from death to life. Too long have we been trying to polish up the exterior of lives unchanged within.

De Valera's Folly

In refusing the request of the United States that German and Japanese diplomatic representatives be expelled from Ireland, Premier De Valera still persists in the folly which has characterized his attitude toward the Allies since the war began.

De Valera's stubbornness is all the more reprehensible because Britain and America afford the only protection Eire has against German aggression. If Britain had been conquered by Hitler in the "blitz" of 1940-41, Eire also would have fallen under Nazi domination.

Although De Valera refused to permit the Allies to use Irish ports in combatting German submarines, thus costing the lives of many American and British seamen and the loss of much allied shipping, Britain nevertheless began in December, 1941, to supply Eire with anti-aircraft guns, cannon and other arms and munitions for her defense. De Valera ungratefully declared at the time that these armaments were received with the understanding that they would be used against "any aggressor, no matter who he might be." Meaning that he would use them against Britain or America if he saw fit.

De Valera protested against the landing of American troops in Northern Ireland (over which he had no jurisdiction) on Jan. 26, 1942, claiming that this was a move intended to force Eire into the war. As a result of this hostility the U. S. Army for a time forbade its soldiers to cross into Eire when off duty, as a means of avoiding personal "incidents."

In short, both America and Britain have until now respected Eire's neutrality at a great sacrifice to the Allied cause. In the meantime Eire has harbored Axis diplomats and spies, and still refuses to get rid of them.

Now the patience of the United States and Britain appears to have been exhausted, and steps are being taken to isolate Eire from the rest of the British Isles as a protection against these enemy agents. If De Valera persists in indirectly aiding these spies, it seems likely that shipments of wheat, coal and other necessities for which Eire depends on America and Britain may be discontinued.

No attempt has been made to force Eire to enter the war or permit the use of her ports or other facilities by the Allies. All that is asked is that enemy agents be expelled, and this is only for the protection of our great invasion force now assembled in the United Kingdom.

Nothing can be gained by Eire in refusing this reasonable request, for she certainly can expect nothing from Germany now or at any future time. De Valera's attitude, therefore, can only be described as stubborn and stupid, and its inevitable consequence will be hardships and suffering for his own people.

U. S. Soldiers Abroad

In their contacts with civilian populations abroad, especially in Britain, the free and easy ways of American fighting men have caused considerable resentment. This has come about to a considerable extent because of the much higher pay received by our men, which enables them to indulge in luxuries denied to soldiers of our Allies.

Army post exchanges in England, which are not available to British soldiers or civilians, provide American service men with many items which the British have long done without. The free spending and unconventional courting habits of our men are very attractive to British girls, who are largely monopolized by them, to the discomfort of His Majesty's soldiers.

The situation is similar in Australia and New Zealand, but it is more acute in England, where the number of American troops is proportionately greater. In all three countries the economic and social effects of lavish American spending are causing much irritation, which the cockiness of many of our men in uniform has served to accentuate.

General Eisenhower recently ordered stricter discipline for his men, warning against excessive drinking, loud and indecent language, discourtesy to civilians, and other unseemly conduct. A good many of his soldiers have gotten into trouble over such offenses as disregard of blackout regulations, failure to have identification cards or proper passes, drunkenness, association with loose women, wearing of improper uniforms, failure to salute, and the unauthorized or improper use of government motor vehicles, according to the United States News.

It is doubtless true that only a minority of our soldiers flagrantly indulge in these forbidden practices, but those who do have created an unfavorable impression.

Sidelights

As proof that the Allied Nations are cooperating on every hand, comes word from the Fiji Islands that a two-year-old native boy swallowed a shiny 2-shilling piece, which caused an uproar with international repercussions. The coin stuck in the child's throat, almost choking him. The British consul appealed to the Allied commander of the area, who sent a special plane manned by a Royal New Zealand Air Force crew, which flew the boy to Suva where a Scottish doctor called in an American Army doctor who removed the coin with deft surgery.

We have read where Alabama's aluminum sales tax tokens have long been used as washers but we learn from W. A. Gates, Medford, Ore., grocer, a new use for the red and blue plastic ration tokens that have just recently made their appearance. Gates had been wondering why so few of the new tokens had been returned to him when a woman came into the store and asked him if he could spare 200 or 300 of the pesky little things, explaining: "They make the finest poker chips. The blues are a nickel and the red ones a penny."

A most lucrative racket was nipped in the bud at the New Cumberland (Pa.) Army Reception Center recently, and as a result seven corporals and sergeants no longer wear stripes. It has been revealed that these non-commissioned officers have been "selling" weekend furloughs to greenhorn inductees. Post regulations provide a weekend pass for all inductees after seven days in service. And this was not the only racket the non-coms were engaged in. The group were also collecting fees for guarding the new inductees' belongings in their absence. Col. Herbert L. Grymes, post commander, has announced that not only were the rackets stamped out and the non-coms broken in rank, but they were transferred to other camps—in fact seven different camps.

Some months ago we told of Robert Pinckney, a 15-year-old Harvard, Neb., boy, who purchased the city jail for $1.50 at a tax sale. After keeping the property since last July, Pinckney sold the jail recently to O. E. Hunt, the Harvard ice man, to use as a cooler, the sale netting him approximately $60. Last summer, while on a trip to Hollywood, Pinckney sold the jail to Charlie McCarthy, the wooden comedian, for the purchase of a $10,000 War Bond, and later Charlie returned the jail to Pinckney. But what now burns Pinckney up is that the City of Harvard is attempting to assess him $17.80 for trimming trees and cutting grass on the jail property. However, to combat the city's assessment, Pinckney has ordered his attorney to file suit charging trespassing, on the grounds that the city used the jail after he purchased it. Some fun eh?

Household Hints

When linens are stored for a long time they should not be starched.
Carrots blanched two or three minutes in boiling water will peel easily.
Lemons will not wilt or shrink if stored in a covered jar in the refrigerator.
Long cooking destroys important nutrients in cabbage. Short cooking retains them.
The oven will stay hot longer if the door is kept closed except when placing or removing food.
A pair of dark glasses worn when hanging out the family wash will save eyes from glare of the sun on white clothes.
Slip covers for toy cats, dogs, and other homemade toys, keep them clean. The covers can easily be removed and washed and the children will enjoy changing them.

Bright checked or printed kitchen toweling makes attractive spring curtains for the kitchen and when no longer used for curtains they can still be used for dish towels or dust cloths.

Antients Used Cork
The elder Pliny in the First century A. D. wrote about cork in his famous "Naturalia Historia." Pliny states that cork was "used for swimming, ship anchors, fish nets, as stoppers for jugs and winter shoes for women." Virgil and Horace in their classic writings refer to cork, the former to its use on the roofs of houses and the latter to its use for sealing wine vases. Early monasteries were provided with cork lined walls and ceilings to protect the monks from the intense heat of the summer sun. Peasant natives in the cork producing areas for centuries used cork slabs for roofs of their houses and to provide soft floors that were warm to the touch. In later times, cork was mixed with earth and used to form the walls of buildings.

PROTECT YOUR MOTOR
WHERE IT BREAKS DOWN FIRST

Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote a poem about a remarkably built "one-horse shay," which "ran a hundred years to a day," and then "went to pieces all at once . . . all at once and nothing first . . . just as bubbles do when they burst."
Unlike the "one-horse shay" the motor in your auto, truck or tractor doesn't "go to pieces all at once." The valves, rings, pistons, cylinder sleeves are usually the first to fail.

LUBRI-GAS CLEANS AND LUBRICATES AS IT POWERS YOUR MOTOR!

By using only LUBRI-GAS motor fuel you can give extra protection to the valves, rings, pistons, cylinder sleeves, and make them last much longer—because LUBRI-GAS cleans and lubricates as it powers your motor. LUBRI-GAS loosens carbon and sludge deposits, keeps vital engine parts protected with a clean oil fog, reduces friction and wear.

Enjoy These Benefits

LUBRICATION THROUGH FUEL gives your motor: More power; more pep; more miles per gallon; reduced oil consumption; longer life; freedom from breakdowns and repair bills; Anti-knock; Freedom from carbon and sludge deposits; Increased compression; Cooler, sweeter-running performance.

Get LUBRI-GAS at the sign of the
LUBRI-GAS CAMEL

To demonstrate the remarkable protection LUBRI-GAS gives, we make a "camel car" by removing the radiator and fan from an automobile and we operate it without damage as long as only LUBRI-GAS is used in the fuel tank!

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS . . .

"I was just tellin' my brother Fred this morning, Judge...there's never been a time in our lives when we got to live up to that old sayin' 'United we stand, divided we fall' more than we have to today."
"How true that is, Herb. And for the life of me, I can't figure out why, at a time like this, some folks insist on raising a question like prohibition. I can't imagine anything that would tickle our enemies more than to get us folks over here taking sides against each other, arguing about an issue like that. We've got a he-man's job on our hands to win this war and we can't be wasting our minds, our money and our strength fighting about something we tried for nearly 14 years and found couldn't work."
"I say there's a time and a place for everything, and this is no time or place to be doing any fightin' except the kind that's going to win the war."

U. of Ill. Dean Gives Picture Of After-War

An after-the-war picture as seen by H. T. Scovill, acting dean of the University of Illinois College of Commerce and Business Administration, includes the following:

"Inferior substitutes in textiles, hardware, and furniture driven off the market; but other substitutes, such as plastics, which appeal to buyers, continuing indefinitely.

"Use of powdered metal having considerable effect on metal manufacturing industries by reducing man hours and machine tool hours.

"The rubber industry, after taking care of delayed war production, in a position to meet consumer needs more satisfactorily than ever before.

"Life insurance companies with the two-fold problem of meeting federal social security competition and of meeting expenses while holding low-yielding investments.

"Employment in its usual ups and downs, with public works as buffers; tariff and foreign trade affecting materially the employment situation.

"Foreign trade in turn affected by tariffs and trade agreements, adjustment of monetary systems and exchange, education of business leaders to the customs, habits, and practices of foreign peoples, labor rates permitting competition, and transportation facilities.

"Rationing and price control continuing until production is adequate to avoid price inflation.

"Spasmodic unemployment during the change-over from war production, depending upon the rate of conversion and of discharge from the armed forces and war industries.

"Public works capable of absorbing surplus labor keeping unemployment at a minimum if synchronized with restoration of civilian production.

"Ample capital for new projects by financing from small savings now widely dispersed, while the wealth of the formerly wealthy is reduced."

Potent Drug Plants May Free America From Alien Sources

Chicago, Ill.—To save America from the loss of its plant drugs in future wars, University of Illinois College of Pharmacy scientists are working to develop plants with two or three times the drug yield of the past. If America has high-yielding drug plants, then it can compete with cheap European labor for the peace-time drug market.

Twice in a generation, in World War I and again in the present war, America has been cut off from its drug sources. American farmers who sought to cultivate drugs during the first war lost their markets in peace to cheap foreign competition. With better plants they could compete.

While drug plants alone would not be big business for farmers, many have other uses than for medicine, and this market also could be held by American producers.

The university experiments are being carried on by Dr. E. H. Wirth and Dean E. R. Seales on two acres of the university's Cook county agricultural experiment station. Last year they raised enough of six drugs to supply 600 bed patients and 140,000 out-patients of the university's research hospital.

The digitals they grew had twice the strength required by the U. S. Pharmacopoeia, and the hyoscyamus four times. This is a development into a field in which there are not more than half a dozen experts in the United States.

Illinois' University Value $43,971,932 At Latest Report

Plant and equipment of the University of Illinois are valued at $43,971,932 in the latest financial report of Comptroller Lloyd Morey. The report marks the university's seventy-fifth year. Income of the university during the past year was $12,309,886, and expenditures $11,893,878.

The university has 2,383 acres of land, including the campus at Urbana-Champaign, campus at Chicago, agricultural experiment farms of 1,127 acres at Urbana-Champaign and other farms totaling 700 acres in 24 counties; 74 major buildings and 70 other buildings, utilities, and equipment.

The portion of the university's income used for educational and general purposes was $11,040,392 last year, of which appropriations from state tax revenues provided $6,578,795, or 59.6 per cent. In the preceding year state taxes had provided $6,772,123, or 65.8 per cent.

U. of I. SAVES PAPER

Nearly 13 tons of waste paper are provided every month to the nation's salvage by the University of Illinois. Baling and selling waste paper is a regular policy of the university, which salvages scrap ranging from the contents of waste baskets to the boxes in which supplies are received.

Women IN THE CHURCH by Mary Fowler

Church women in Tyler, Texas, are opening their homes for a number of "war weddings," and more than twelve couples have recently taken advantage of the privilege. Tyler women, working at the USO, learn from a service man that his bride-to-be is expected in the community for their coming marriage, and the women extend the privilege of a home if desired. Sponsored by the Council of Church women, community surveys have been completed, visitation of new people undertaken, and churches opened as lounges for service men. An Episcopal church is available where army wives sew. A fellowship tea for 500 was held in a Methodist church, with army wives as guests. In return for this hospitality, the wives of enlisted men held a style show for Tyler women displaying curtains, braided rugs and clothing which they had made or remodeled.

April 21 Is Arbor Day

Friday, April 21, has been proclaimed as Arbor day for Illinois by Gov. Dwight H. Green.

The Governor's proclamation pointed out that the wartime demands are arousing the public to a keener appreciation of our country's natural resources, and that the trees of Illinois are valuable for ornament, for erosion control and as a source of fuel and lumber.

The same proclamation designated Friday, October 20, as Bird day. The Governor requested that both these days be observed by special programs in the public schools.

My left arm was pretty well torn up, but the shell happened to miss the artery and nerve, so I can use the arm. It will be possibly ten months before it heals, and will then be almost as good as new. We have some wonderful surgeons here. The Major who takes care of me is supposed to be the best on the island. Tell everyone not to worry, I will be seeing you."

Donald was among the group who received the award of the purple heart and says: "The general who presented the medals also gave me his autograph on my cast," the left arm and chest being in a cast.

Smile Awhile

Don't worry if you stumble—a worm is about the only thing that can't fall down.

A hen is the only creature on earth that can sit still and produce dividends.

I saw your wife down town yesterday with a black patch over her eye. What happened?

Nothing. That was her new hat.

Now, my son, said the father, tell me why I punished you.

That's it. First you pouned the life out of me, and now you don't know why you did it.

Mamma, do people who lie ever go to heaven?

Why, of course not, Willie. Gee, I'll bet it's awful lonesome up there with only God and George Washington.

An attorney was examining a conscientious witness in a pig stealing case and asked him to repeat the exact words of the defendant.

Witness—He said, sir, that he took the pig.

Attorney—Did he say, "He took the pig," or "I took the pig?"

Witness—He said he took it. Your name wasn't mentioned at all.

Special Announcement

Mrs. Eva Walker, Pres.

Coal Bins

Unfortunately many coal bins are so located that coal must be wheeled or carried in—which takes additional labor and increases costs for the buyer. The coal bin should be conveniently located in relation to the driveway and the furnace.

A coal bin should be built on the driveway side and have two windows equally spaced of ample size, and set as close to the outside grate of the bottom window as possible. The bin should be made of cement, and big enough to hold a season's supply of coal.

Ice Cream Manufacture

In the batch freezing method of making ice cream the mix is poured into a large container with a revolving beater inside. The beater whips the mix to make it smooth and fluffy. Around the freezer is a closed jacket through which ammonia circulates, causing the mix to freeze. Fruits and nuts are added after freezing begins. Usually the batch freezer is used for small orders. By the batch methods, two thousand gallons of ice cream can be made in one day in each freezer.

Trouble-Shooters Aid Navy

A detachment of civilian "trouble shooters" on duty with the navy daily is getting new ships into war service and restoring older ships speedily and expertly. Recently, an expert on main drive gear equipment flew from Pittsburgh to Houston, Texas, approximately 1,500 air miles, to repair a submarine chaser. The chaser was restored to service in a few days. Under usual procedure, it would have been necessary to disassemble the equipment and take it ashore for repair—a task which would have taken the craft out of service for a month. Hops to Hawaii, Alaska and South America are common occurrences.
