County Must Furnish More Scrap Metal

Tons of heavy scrap are still available on Champaign county farms and it is the patriotic duty of the farmers to haul it in to the junk dealers, J. E. Harris, county chairman of farm metal salvage, said Saturday.

Illinois has been asked by the War Production Board to salvage 1,025,325 net tons of scrap metal in the first six months of 1944. Of this amount, it is essential that 155,000 tons be heavy farm scrap.

According to Arnold P. Benson of the Illinois War council, the great need is for heavy welding scrap such as that used in mowing machines and other farm implements.

Benson pointed out that "there are few things we can do on the home front that are more important than to salvage the metal needed by our steel mills for conversion into battleships, tanks and trucks, and a thousand other implements of war."

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

The Marauder bomber Jezebel had just completed a bomb run over Beauvais-Tille airdrome when a Focke-Wulf 190 swept in, pumping two cannon shells into the plane and killing the tail gunner. His face torn by shrapnel, Staff Sgt. Donald G. Maryott of Hooper, Neb., waist gunner, gathered up exploding incendiaries set afire by the hit, and saved the plane from destruction. Are you fighting with that extra War Bond?

Memorial Service For Sergeant Everett Dietrich Is Largely Attended

About 700 people attended the memorial service in the Longview high school last Sunday afternoon for Staff Sergeant Everett Dietrich, who was killed in action in New Guinea on March 20.

The program included organ music by Mrs. A. O. Struck; sacred music by two quartets; and music by the Longview high school band. Rev. Pike Reynolds gave the memorial address, assisted by Rev. D. D. Mumaw. Veterans of foreign Wars gave their ritualistic service.

The following poem written by W. Everett Green, Longview, pays a touching tribute to the deceased:

Everett Dietrich
Everett Dietrich gave his life for his country,
He died in a soldierly way;
A fine lad he was with convictions,
We must fight for the U. S. A.

The Japs and the jungles, they tried him,
So young, yet war turned him so
gray;

He was fearless in the line of his duties,
From his assignments he ne'er turned away.

He had planned to come home on a furlough,
To visit and rest for a spell;
To tell, and to show us his pictures,
Of that terrible jungle of hell.

But the Japs got a line on his
airship,
They riddled his body with lead;
A telegram came from the government,
Saying Sergeant Dietrich was dead.

Our sympathies go to his grandparents;
All praise for this gallant young lad;

At home, he like General Mc-
Arthur,
Did all that he could with whatever he had.

But the Japs got a line on his
airship,
They riddled his body with lead;
A telegram came from the government,
Saying Sergeant Dietrich was
dead.

PAUL BECOMES A MISSIONARY

LESSON TEXT: Acts 13:1-4; 14:8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT: The Holy Spirit said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them.—Acts 13:2.

Men are God's instruments for accomplishing His purpose in spreading the gospel message. They must, for such a high and holy calling, be men called and prepared by Him, faithful to Him, and willing to sacrifice all for His glory. Paul is a great example of such a life. He was—

I. Separated by the Church (13:1-3).

God was about to begin the great missionary enterprise, which opened with the journeys of Paul and continues to this day. The church at Antioch had capable men in its membership, and the Holy Spirit called for the separation of two of these, Paul and Barnabas, for a special work.

A number of interesting things emerge here. It is good to note that the church had men trained and ready for service. Do we?

Observe that the Holy Spirit worked through the church. There are those who do not speak too highly of the place of the church in this matter. Certainly it is true that if the church has lost its vision and message, God may call men even outside of its membership. But the orderly way—and God's way, if the church is ready—is to have the church separate men for service.

The church at Antioch gave its best, without question and without hesitation. It is an example worthy of our emulation.

II. Sent by the Holy Spirit (13:4).

There is a sense in which the Holy Spirit functions as the executive member of the Trinity. His purpose is to magnify the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, to bring men to faith in Him. To carry out that plan, He sends men out to speak of Jesus.

The sent one is always successful, for he goes the way, at the time, and in the power of the Holy Spirit. To be sent by Him is the mark of distinction upon the Christian worker.

III. Serving by Deed and Word (14:8-18).

The story of the healing of the man who had been a cripple from birth centers around that beautiful word "faith."

God is always looking for faith in men and women, and so we who serve Him should learn to be alert for even the slightest indication of a belief in Christ. All too often we blunder along, a bit too eager for action, or too insistent upon a thing being done in just our way, and thus fail to see the gleam of faith to which we may address the gospel appeal.

"Seeing that he had faith" (v. 9), Paul turned all the power of the eternal God loose in the impotent feet of the man, "and he leaped up and walked." God help us to be ready to be channels for the outflowing of His power!

Impressed by the miracle, the people wanted to accord the disciples the worship of gods. One is impressed both by the promptness with which Paul and Barnabas stopped the demonstration and the skill with which they improved the occasion for a testimony for Christ!

The servants of Christ are in far greater danger when men speak well of them and would worship them, than they are in the hour of opposition and persecution. Not that anyone would suggest that a true word of appreciation or honor be withheld from a faithful teacher or preacher, but let it be given for God's glory and not for the praise of man.

IV. Suffering for Christ's Sake (14:19, 20).

The highest praise quickly turns to the most bitter hatred. Finding that they had foolishly attempted to deify two Jewish preachers, and being visited by the Jews who made it their business to pursue Paul to this city, they stoned him.

Incidentally, it is of interest to observe how zealous people can be for an evil cause. Having set out to hinder the gospel they were willing, yes eager, to spend time and money to carry out their purpose. The children of Satan are often more diligent than the children of light (cf. Luke 16:8).

Paul was left for dead; in fact, there are those who believe that he was dead, and that it was at this time he was caught up into the heavens and had the vision spoken of in II Corinthians 12:1-4. If that was the case, the raising of Paul was an actual resurrection from the dead.

For a man so stoned as to be left for dead, to arise and journey on the following day to another city, was a miracle of God's power.

In this case, God delivered His servant, not from his troubles, but through them. We must not always expect to be saved from trial, but we can be sure that God will deliver us either "out of" or "in" our troubles. Let us trust Him!

Millions of Leaflets

Bombings of Germany and her satellite nations are being accompanied by an intensified effort to inform the people of these countries concerning the true war situation by the dropping of many millions of leaflets by Allied airplanes.

The leaflets, printed in the language of the countries on which they are dropped, are designed to impress these peoples with the hopelessness of the German situation and thereby tend to weaken their morale.

And in addition to the leaflets, other millions of copies of the U. S. Army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, suitably translated, also are being distributed by our bombing planes.

This great propaganda effort has enraged Hitler and the German high command, but there is nothing that they can do about it, except to punish their own people who are found reading the forbidden printed matter.

What actual effect this Allied effort may have can not be estimated, but it should do some good, especially in Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria, where a majority of the people are doubtless becoming desperate over the results of their alliance with Germany. The steady advance of the Russian Army, the military occupation of their territory by the Germans and the increasing bombings all clearly indicate that these countries are to be a principal battleground in the very near future.

The printed leaflets referred to should hasten a realization of the stern facts of the situation, especially as the information they contain is backed up by military developments which can no longer be concealed from the masses by lying Nazi propagandists.

Sidelights

Then there was the marine stationed down in the South Pacific who said that he did not mind the mosquitos one bit until they started turning his dog tag over to see what kind of blood flowed through his veins! That's when he got mad.

We are wondering what the bride had to say when her prospective bridegroom, a sailor stationed at Hutchinson, Kan., returned to report that he had not purchased the marriage license for which he had applied. After giving the necessary information to Judge A. B. Leigh at the county courthouse, the sailor was advised that the fee was $3.50. He flew into a rage and stormed out of the office declaring that $2 was enough for the license and he refused to be overcharged.

Claudius is now speechless. Claudius was the talking skull that made it possible for American troops in a New Guinea area to get gifts of food and fresh fruits. The old skull, set up appropriately and provided with a voice by an officer acquainted with ventriloquism, kept the natives awed with its words of wisdom and brought many gifts of delicacies, as directed by Claudius, which kept the soldiers in most excellent spirit. But Claudius has lost his voice—the officer so ideally gifted with the Edgar Bergen technique, has been transferred to another station. The natives are wondering.

Since Pearl Harbor, there have been 1,220,036 persons discharged into civilian life from the armed forces, James E. Byrnes of the Office of War Mobilization has announced. Of this total, 1,036,000 received Army discharges, and the Navy discharged 84,036. Many of these men were discharged as battle casualties. However, the greater portion were found of little use by the armed services because of over age and physical defects, many caused by neglect of their bodies.

What a wealth of interesting information might be revealed by a peep through the diaries kept by Allied soldiers in the European theater of operations that have been ordered deposited with the censor under a ruling just released. The order requires that these intimate day-by-day stories of the fighting men be deposited with the censor's office in a tightening of the rules. The reason for this drastic ruling is that it has been revealed that men captured by the enemy often reveal information of military value through the diaries found on their person.

A Hereford steer has been claimed a hero—and no fooling. Of course his heroic contribution, that caused him to lose his life, was wholly involuntary, however, the results were the same as if he had reached out and snatched from death two French fliers and an American aerial engineer. The airmen, whose names were not disclosed at the Dodge City (Kan.) Army Airfield where they were stationed, reported that their plane, a B-26 Marauder, had cut out on them and they were making a forced landing in a field near their base. It appeared certain that they would end up in a serious crash. As they plummeted toward the ground, their plane struck the animal, the compact forced their plane's nose up and its tail down for a perfect landing. The plane burned after it tore through a fence and skidded into an adjoining field. The three men escaped without injury. The farmer kept the carcass, worth many red points.

"HAD TIME TO THINK ABOUT POST WAR REDDY?"

Time to think about post-war? Sure. Even though mine's a twenty-four hour a day job, with no absenteeism allowed, I do a lot of thinking about post-war, and my part in your better living in the future.

I think about exploiting the possibilities of electrically driven farm machinery, and becoming the farmer's best and cheapest hired-hand. I think about industrial capacity governed only by need, and the power I'll supply it. I think about the conveniences I'll take to your home, where there'll be new and important jobs: television sets; deep-freeze cabinets; air-conditioning units; fluorescent lighting; FM radio, and dozens of other jobs I can do.

Friend, tomorrow, electricity will make common and cheap, what you'd call miracles today. There'll be the same great service, enhanced by long-lasting, low-cost appliances yet to be unveiled.

Sure I think about post-war; that's the lift that gives impetus to my work now, and urges me on to the great days ahead. Try it.

Stick-to-Your-Ribs Dish Is Appetizing

Frankfurter farina dumplings with sauerkraut, pictured above, is a good down-to-earth, stick-to-your-ribs main dish, says the Country Cooking editor of Capper's Farmer, a publication of national circulation.

This dish has lots of what it takes, including vitamins in the fortified margarine and enriched farina. When buying cereals, margarine and other foods which are available with vitamins added, be sure to check that those you get are the enriched ones, advises the Capper's Farmer expert.

Dumplings with Sauerkraut
1 1/2 cups self-rising cake flour
1/2 cup enriched farina
2 tablespoons fortified margarine
3/4 cup milk

3 frankfurters
1 quart sauerkraut
1 cup water
1 large onion
6 to 8 cloves

Sift and measure flour. Stir in farina. Cut in margarine and add milk. Mix lightly with a fork. Slice frankfurters in 1/2-inch slices. Add to dumplings, saving a few pieces to garnish top. Place sauerkraut in a large skillet with cover to fit. Add water and onion in which cloves have been stuck. Bring to a boil. Drop dumplings by tablespoonfuls on sauerkraut. Garnish with pieces of frankfurter. Cover closely. Steam without removing cover 20 to 25 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war stories I like best, Judge, are the ones by the special writers overseas who live right with our troops. They give us a better idea of how our men react to things going on over there and back here at home."

"I agree with you, Sam. I never miss one of those stories in the papers or magazines. And there's one thing those writers seem to agree on no matter where they are stationed with our men...and that is that the men who have left their homes and families to go away and fight this war don't want to come back and find that prohibition has been put over on them while they were away...either nationally or locally. They have heard about the attempts being made and they resent it bitterly."

"I agree with them, Judge, even though I don't happen to drink myself. Furthermore, I don't think it's fair for us at home to be making any major changes while 10,000,000 of our fighting men are away and have no chance to express their opinions."

Non-Specialized Education Need Met at U. of I.

General Division Gives Broad Understanding of World, Life.

To promote anew the ideal of the "well-rounded man," the University of Illinois has since 1940 had a Division of General Studies in its College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

It offers a well-balanced program in the sciences and humanities to the student who desires a general introduction to learning and culture before he enters upon specialized training.

To the student with conflicting inclinations toward several professions it offers an opportunity to explore the main areas of knowledge and to test his own interests and abilities before he decides upon his life work.

If a student in the Division leaves the University at the end of two years, he will have acquired study habits and tastes enabling him to continue educating himself. If he remains to work for a degree, he will find that the general courses have given him an understanding of the principles of his chosen specialty and some knowledge of related subject matter as well.

Those students who wish to enter professional fields may transfer after their first two years into education, journalism, or law.

Establishment of the general division followed more than 10 years of consideration and planning by the university, and is an outstanding recent educational development there. The objective of the division is to counteract the tendency toward narrow specialization by providing "a general education designed to produce men and women of sound intellectual judgment, mature social insight, and sustained moral integrity."

Freshmen and sophomores in the general division take four required courses: verbal expression, history of civilization, biological science, and physical science. They also take two or three other courses: social science, literature and fine arts, or psychology and philosophy.

These courses are not designed or taught to make specialists—speakers or writers, historians or sociologists, biologists or engineers, artists or psychologists, philosophers or teachers—but instead to give an understanding of the work of all people.

Juniors and seniors in the general division select one of four major fields in which to work: mathematics and physical science, biological science, social science, or humanities. They plan and follow a flexible schedule of courses of which at least one-half are in the selected field.

Dean M. T. Herrick, who is in charge of the division, gives as an example of the broad and flexible education available through this general program the case of a young woman who, after taking the required six prescribed courses which gave her a wide basic education in her first two years at the university, decided to become a specialist in correction of defective speech. She chose biological science for her field of concentration and took two years of courses in zoology, physiology, psychology, and speech, getting a rounded preparation for her life work.

Another example he gives is of a young man who wanted to enter law. Upon the broad knowledge of his basic six courses, he decided to concentrate in social science, and took courses in economics, political science, psychology, English, history, and philosophy, before going on to law school.

Civilian Students' Training Not Cut At Univ. of Illinois

While doing a large part of the war effort and providing training and training facilities for thousands of soldiers and sailors, the University of Illinois has not curtailed its instruction for civilian students, President Arthur Cutts Willard has emphasized.

There is no restriction of enrollment or educational offerings and opportunities at the university. Any student who qualifies by graduation from an accredited high school or by entrance examinations may enroll.

Although the men's and women's residence halls, most of the fraternities, and some other quarters have been taken over as barracks for soldiers and sailors being trained at the university, there are ample other living quarters for civilian students. All student quarters are inspected by the Division of Student Housing and must meet the university's standards.

The university is operating on a war-time accelerated schedule of three terms each year on the Urbana-Champaign campus and four quarters on the Chicago campus, where the Colleges of Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy are located.

Remember Pearl Harbor!

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Information: One of this department's close friends is a gentleman of the old school which, of course, means that he is meticulous in regard to his linen. Only in recent years has he deigned to wear shirts with collars and cuffs attached and he still insists that the only proper thing is for both the collar and cuffs to be starched stiffly. A little while ago, his shirts came back from a laundry, which he had patronized through the years, with the collars and cuffs limp, in fact flaccid. When that happened a second time and then a third, he was so irked that he changed laundries. His luck didn't change, however. So, tormented by collars that could not stand up for themselves and cuffs lacking in stamina, he made an investigation. His finding was that in the past, laundries used six different kinds of starch. But now, under the OPA regulations, they are restricted to one. Thus, reason for lack of stiffness, but no remedy.

No Foolin': That wit blooms in the war theater as well as on the home front is the contention of "Senator" Ed Ford, who tells a story related to him by a member of the U. S. maritime service, now home on leave after taking part in the Italian campaign. The service man and a fellow fighter were stationed on gun watch on one of the ships in a convoy waiting in Salerno harbor before the signal for invasion. Both men heard a plane approaching but, because of distance, couldn't tell whether it was enemy or friendly. "That's one of the 'B' planes," asserted the fellow fighter.

"Never heard of a 'B' plane," declared his companion; "What's that?"

"Well, it's going to 'B' too damn bad if it isn't one of ours," came the retort.

One Way: Joel Ashley, who played the young lead opposite Margaret Lindsay in "Another Love Story," was well started in the films before he joined the marines a couple of years ago. (He's out now with an honorable discharge and a pension after a bad accident.) His first chance came when he was working with Warner Bros. as a studio electrician. One day he slid down a rope, from the top of the stage, practically into the lap of Michael Curtiz, the director. Instead of bawling him out, Curtiz promptly signed Ashley for a part in the picture he was making. It seems that he had been searching for actors who could slide down the rigging of a ship and Ashley, all unconsciously, had given an exhibition of what he could do in that line. In short, he slid right into the movies.

Turnabout: Speaking of the movies, petite Connie Haines comes into mind. Six years ago while Miss Haines was singing on the stage of the Roxy theater—at that time she was using her real name which is Marie JaMais—her manager brought back a talent scout. An audition was given and at the conclusion, the scout opined: "She's just fair, and I'm afraid she will never get anywhere." And that was that. Now Miss Haines is the singing star of the Abbott and Costello program. During a recent broadcast, that same talent scout was in the audience. At the conclusion, he wasted no time in rushing to Miss Haines. "You're a wonderful picture bet!" he exclaimed, "Somebody should have signed you a long time ago."

Music Lovers: Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., whose recent singing of the Melisande role in "Pelleas and Melisande," brought high praise from the critics, gave her maid two tickets to the opera the other evening. The next morning, Miss Sayao asked her how she had enjoyed it. "It was fine, Madame," answered the maid, "except for two women in the back of me who discussed recipes all the time."

"Why didn't you tell them to keep quiet?" asked the singer.

"I did," replied the maid mournfully, "but they told me anyone who is really listening to the opera should not be able to hear them talking. So what was I to do?"

Around the Town: All-out Arlene Francis selling war bonds and stamps to customers in the Lyceum lobby before retreating back stage to make up for her role of Russian sniper in "The Doughgirls." "Early to Be" Jane Deering lingering on-stage after every performance to salvage all the bobby pins the other girls leave behind. Al Smith standing up for applause at the Pierre's Cotillion room as Stanley Melba and his orchestra play "East Side, West Side." Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

Baby Need Shoes?

Get More This Year

WASHINGTON.—Twenty percent more shoes for infants, children and teen-age girls was assured for 1944 by the War Production board in an allocation increasing the quantities of upper leather for these shoes. Approximately 38,000,000 square feet were used during 1943, WPB announced.

Illinois State Capitol News

The Illinois state department of conservation has arranged a renewal of the reciprocal agreement between the states of Illinois and Iowa which permits licensed pole and line fishermen from either state to fish anywhere in the Mississippi river proper. A similar agreement is in force between Illinois and Missouri.

Illinois old age pensioners are being asked to raise victory gardens this year, both to provide food for themselves and to increase the nation's total food production. Suggestions on the best kinds of fruits and vegetables to plant and pointers on how to get free technical information on gardening and canning are being sent by the Illinois public aid commission to the pensioners and to other recipients of public assistance.

Unless further delayed by additional rains, oats seeding in central and northern Illinois is expected to be rushed to completion not much more than a week behind the usual time of planting.

Illinois winter wheat came through the winter in fine shape. The stand is excellent and shows little or no signs of ice or water damage. Present indications point to a yield of about 25,000,000 bushels, as compared to last year's crop of 17,000,000 bushels.

Illinois farm stocks of corn on April 1, as estimated by State and Federal departments of agriculture, were 179,630,000 bushels, compared to 208,999,000 bushels at the same time last year, and a ten-year average of 176,491,000 bushels. The number of hogs and other live stock now on feed is larger than usual, and is expected to cause a continuing demand for corn throughout the season. Farm stocks of oats on April 1 were estimated at 37,320,000 bushels; wheat, 2,355,000 bushels and soybeans, 12,002,000 bushels.

Women IN THE CHURCH

by Mary Fowler

Jewish, Protestant and Catholic women of Chicago have organized themselves into "Women of Goodwill," under the auspices of the National Council of Christians and Jews, for the purpose of promoting fellowship, goodwill, understanding and right attitudes among peoples of all races, colors and creeds. This is the creed and pledge of the women: "I hereby dedicate myself to willing good in every human relationship. In my home, I will seek to create an atmosphere of goodwill and understanding toward other members of my own family and toward all members of the family of God. In my community, I will use my influence for justice and fair play against unjust discriminations arising from differences of race, creed, class or nationality. In my country, I will stand for just legislation and equal opportunity for every human being, which is the basis of true democracy. In all my relationships, I will grant to others the rights and privileges that I demand for myself. This determined willing of good, I, as a woman of goodwill, consider my most important contribution to winning the war and the peace."
