The Farmer Buys War Bonds

by O. B. Jesness
Chief, Division of Agricultural Economics
University of Minnesota

FARMER Brown does not have to ask himself whether he ought to buy War Bonds. He knows that every citizen with an income should lend part of it to the government to help win this war. The real question which Mr. Brown and all his fellow farmers must decide is how large his investment should be. The simplest and best answer to this is "buy all you can."

But what are some of the points which a farmer needs to weigh in deciding what that amount is in his particular case? Farm income certainly is one. Most farmers are receiving considerably larger cash incomes because of the war. Some of the increase may be needed to pay pressing debt. Higher taxes will take some. But most of it ought to be salted away in War Bonds for future use.

Part of the current cash income represents wear and tear on machinery and equipment. War shortages prevent farmers from buying machinery or building freely. Less money can be spent for these purposes now, but more cash will be needed later on because of this. Each farmer ought to figure the amount which this involves. The best storage place for the money which prudent farmers will set aside for this use is War Bonds.

Farm homes will need new equipment as well. Electricity has recently been installed in many farm homes and more will get this service as soon as possible. Funds saved up now can be used later to buy things to add to the comforts of the home and to ease the drudgery of farm work.

War prices will not last forever. The future will bring years of low prices or bad crops as well as good years. Some of the present income will come in mighty handy in times of low return. Farmers also are saving for educating their children, for old age and for the proverbial rainy day. Each family should think about all of these needs and set aside money to meet them. There is no safer place for such savings than War Bonds.

Should debts be paid before Bonds are bought? Each farmer must answer for himself. Due and pressing debt should be paid. If necessary, long-term debt should be reduced to a point where it can be carried. After that, available income better go into Bonds. Your own conscience will tell you when you are using debt merely as an excuse for neglecting to do your share in buying Bonds.

What about buying land? Can you handle more land profitably? Is it worth the price asked? Can you pay for it out of earnings when prices drop? A speculative boom in land may get out of hand. Better buy Bonds than speculate in land.

"What about the farmer who says 'I prefer to keep my funds in cash?' Stop to think, brother, how smart is that? Do you believe it good business to have idle dollars lying around? If they are hid away somewhere, they may get lost, stolen or destroyed. Put them to work and make them produce a return for you. War Bonds are the safest investment available. They are backed by the same government as the dollar. One is as safe as the other. While farmers buy Bonds intending to hold them, the E, F and G Bonds ordinarily bought by individual investors can be redeemed for cash if need arises. Unlike the liberty bonds of the last war, these cannot be sold on the open market and, hence, will never sell for fewer dollars than they cost.

Farmers have done a good job in buying War Bonds. They can make an even better showing if each one will buy all he can. Remember, you help yourself as well as your country.

Governor Proclaims Tuesday, May 30 as Memorial Day

Declaring that it is both our duty and our high privilege to observe the occasion, Governor Dwight H. Green proclaimed Tuesday, May 30, as Memorial Day throughout Illinois.

"Memorial Day is a traditional time for especial honor to the memory of American soldier and sailor dead," the Governor's proclamation said. "Each passing year adds to the meaning of this patriotic day of recollection.

"Now, in the midst of a great war, we can appreciate more keenly than ever the devotion of the brave men who offered their lives that our republic might be whole, free and independent. In honoring their memory, let us resolve to guard and keep that for which they fought and died."

Corn Planting Two Weeks Late on Most Illinois Farms

Corn planting in Illinois was started ten days or two weeks later than usual because of wet weather, but now is making rapid progress. Power machinery is a big factor in speeding up the task. Farmers are working long hours and on many Illinois farms tractor-drawn plows and discs are being operated through the night to get the ground ready for the corn planter.

CORINTHIANS

LESSON TEXT—II Corinthians 4:5, 16-18; 5:1, 5-8, 14-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might become rich.—II Corinthians 8:9.

"Nothing is certain but uncertainty," so says the modern philosopher. But man cannot be satisfied with constant change and confusion. That is why, in our day of unheard-of disruption of ordinary life patterns, men and women especially need the message of the gospel, for in Christ we find the answer to our quest for certainty and stability.

Paul writing to encourage the church at Corinth assured them that life may be steady, useful and true because they are Christians. He presents:

The Christian—a Servant of Men for Christ's Sake (II Cor. 4:5), Having—

I. A Vision Which Lightens Affliction (II Cor. 4:16-18).

Any honest person knows that in the temporal world round about him everything speaks of death. All things tend to run down, to wear out, to decay, including the body of man. He sees his mental as well as his physical powers coming to a certain maturity only to go into decline.

At the same time he is conscious of the deep burden of affliction and sorrow which seems to press down on all the world like an almost unbearable and crushing weight. What can he do about it? Shall he try to dissipate the clouds by artificial cheerfulness? It will not work.

Our text gives us the answer. "For this cause we faint not," says Paul. The things which press us down are only temporal—they are of this world. God's world is eternal. The weakness of the physical body only makes the strength of the spiritual life more evident. The affliction which seems so heavy is only a "light affliction" when one remembers the "eternal weight of glory."

Is this just a bit of "escapism"? Is it only some wishful thinking? No, indeed. Have not men learned anew in the war that the only possessions you can keep are those which cannot be bombed to pieces or stolen?

Obviously, that is true in the highest degree of the one who knows Christ, and whose riches are those of eternity. How triumphantly he can meet decay and sorrow! He is of the other world, and nothing here can be more than a light affliction, which seems negligible in the light of the glory of eternal things. Ah, but it's great to be a Christian in such days as these!

II. An Assurance Which Removes Fear (II Cor. 5:1, 5-8).

Of all the fears which afflict mortal man the greatest and the ultimate one is the fear of death. He knows that it is so absolute and final that it terminates everything and separates him from all that he has known and held dear in this world.

That is just the point, death does end everything (except the awful fear of judgment for a wasted wicked life!) for those who live only for this world. Man, however, was never intended for just this present life. He is a being who has eternity written in his very personality.

What if this "earthly tabernacle"—my body—does give up, says Paul. I have a "building of God," something which man did not make with his hands, an eternal home in glory.

That gives a man confidence. While he is here in the body, he lives and walks by faith, but when absent from this body, he is "present with the Lord." How altogether delightful and marvelous is the future, even beyond the grave, for the believer. Hence, we "sorrow not as others which have no hope" (read I Thess. 4:13-18).

III. A Hope Which Makes Him a Living Testimony (II Cor. 5:14-19).

Worldly people sometimes wonder what tremendous and tireless motive power keeps Christians working for the Lord in the face of impossible difficulties. We have that motive named in verse 14—"the love of Christ constraineth us."

There is no compulsion about real Christian testimony and service. There is no feeling that one must do this or that in order to please God. No, the compelling force here is the love of a dying Saviour. It is the supremely powerful and all-persuasive influence of love.

Christ died for all, and those who realize that, know that they cannot "henceforth live unto themselves" (v. 15). The social standing, or family connections of our fellow men, no longer control. Christ died for them and we must bring them the word of life.

Notice in verse 17 that it is the born-again-one who has this hope. Many church members whose lives are powerless and sinful are so because they have never been born again. "Except a man be born again" (John 3:3) he is not a Christian. That is the place to begin. Take Christ by faith.

Sidelights

Pre-invasion jitters have taken a firm hold on the Germans, all reports coming from Fortress Europe indicate. A copy of the Cologne newspaper Westdeutscher Beobachter, which found its way into the hands of the Office of War Information, advises all Nazis suffering from the malady occasioned by the continuous bombing of their homeland to take cold foot baths or cold showers to calm their raging nerves. It is well that they should take cold baths now because very shortly they will be in hot water.

The irony of fate enters the scene as a back-drop to the trial in Washington of the 29 defendants charged with sedition conspiracy. George Sylvester Viereck, one of the group and who has been convicted on a charge of serving as a German agent without registering with the State Department, has just been advised that his son, George Sylvester Viereck, Jr., was killed in action March 24 in Italy while fighting the Nazis as a member of the U. S. army. The Germans, whom the elder Viereck served to the detriment of his own country, have now claimed the life of his own son.

The recent rumors that have spread throughout the nation indicated that there were a large number of "basket cases" in our armed forces. By "basket case" is meant where a fighting man has lost both arms and both legs. Also spread was the rumor that thousands of our boys were being blinded. It is good to learn that neither rumor is based on fact. Officials report there is not a single "basket case" in the entire armed forces. There are cases where a man has lost both legs or one leg and one arm, but no case is more severe. It is also reported that after 2½ years of war our armed forces have suffered only 75 cases of total blindness.

Household Hints

Lawn clippings are excellent for mulching tomatoes and other plants in the home garden.

Machine oil stains may be removed by touching the spots while fresh with chloroform or ether.

Mixed cinnamon and sugar sprinkled over muffins gives them a fine spicy flavor.

Sugary jelly can be used to sweeten and flavor dried prunes, dried peaches, or other dried fruits.

If sewing machine needles become blunted they will sharpen by stitching a few times through fine sandpaper.

A worn anklet makes a good cover to pull over the old wax applicator when it needs freshening.

Darn a worn rug with a rug wool carefully matched in color. This will take away much of the shabby appearance.

To avoid losing a handkerchief under the pillow in a sick room at night, sew a pocket on one side of the pillowcase.

Prolong the life of rubber footwear by keeping it away from light, heat, grease and cleaning fluid.

Take the shine off your clothes with sandpaper. First, sponge the spot with a cleaning fluid. When the fabric is dry brush with a small piece of sandpaper to lift the nap. Don't brush too hard or you may remove the nap entirely.

Cool Eggs
Heat sets up germination and renders a fertile egg inedible. But this may be prevented by disposing of all male birds during the summer and thereby producing only infertile eggs. Eggs are highly perishable and cannot be subjected to heat without destroying quality. When laid, the temperature of an egg is about equal to that of the hen's body—104 to 107 degrees Fahrenheit. Therefore, proper cooling is essential. During the summer, eggs should be gathered two or three times daily and placed in a wire basket for cooling.

Chicken Roll (with apple rings)

There's nothing like the chicken that's served on the farm. There are great heaping platefuls of it, brown, juicy, and tender. Much of this appetizing appearance and flavor can be attributed to the cooking; and while roasted chicken used to be the most popular method, broiled chicken is fast becoming its rival. Many farm homes have stoves with broilers, thanks to "bottled" or "tank" gas which gives modern gas service to suburban, small city and farm areas.

Leftover chicken often reappears in tasty dishes which are substantial and satisfying, and best of all, require no meat points. Our suggestion for today is Chicken Roll.

Chicken Roll
2 cups ground leftover chicken
1 small onion, ground
1 teasp. salt
¼ teasp. pepper
1 teasp. bottled horse-radish
¼ cup chicken gravy
2 cups baking powder biscuit dough top milk
Combine chicken, onion, salt, pepper, horse-radish and gravy. Roll out baking powder biscuit dough, using two cups as a basis, into a rectangle about 9" x 12". Spread chicken mixture on dough and roll up, jelly-roll fashion, pinching edges together. Place on greased baking sheet, brush with top milk and bake at 450 degrees for 25 minutes or until done. Serve sliced with a cream sauce garnished with finely chopped chives. Serves 6.

Sufficient Seed for 1944 Victory Gardens

"Will there be seed enough to go around?" is again a vital question in the minds of the nation's Victory Gardeners as Uncle Sam asks for a substantial increase over the 20,000,000 vegetable gardens raised in the United States last season.

A confident reply comes from Ferry-Morse Seed Co., largest growers and distributors of garden seeds in the world.

"We are ready for a sizeable increase over last year's output for Victory Gardeners," they declare, "in spite of tremendous handicaps and labor shortages."

Seed of some varieties of certain vegetables is still on the short side, but this is a situation which is bound to occur even in normal times. Wise and experienced gardeners, however, know that if the dealer does not have the variety he has been accustomed to getting, there is always another of equally excellent quality to take its place. Take snap beans, for example. Whether round-podded or flat-podded, green or wax, each group is made up of several varieties differing but little from each other in form and growing habits. All are stringless, and in flavor and texture it puzzles even the experts to tell them apart. The same is true of numerous varieties among other kinds of vegetables.

While every Victory Gardener should grow as big a crop of vegetables as is practical to meet the needs of his family, buying more seeds than are needed will be a definite detriment to the 1944 War Food Program. Any seeds left over from early planting should be put in as repeat plantings or sown in mid-summer for fall harvesting. Be sure that the seeds are stored in a dry place, such as a tight-covered fruit jar, until time to use.

As during the past successful season, Victory Gardeners will do well to confine their efforts to standard vegetables, especially those that store, dry, or can to good advantage. During 1943, approximately 4,300,000,000 jars of fruits and vegetables were put up in this country, and the government hopes that this figure will be surpassed in 1944.

Estonia, Land of Forests, Streams, Lakes, Marshes

The native Estonians are chiefly of Finno-Ugrian stock, unlike the inhabitants of neighboring Latvia and Lithuania, but related to the Finns and Hungarians. It is believed they came originally from the Ural mountains, between Europe and Asia, with other tribes that wandered westward to settle finally in Finland and other European countries. The tribes that chose Estonia for their home found a land of forests, streams, lakes, and marshes. Low and flat, it is especially suited to some kinds of agriculture, despite its northern climate, with snowfall often crowding the harvest season. About 70 per cent of the Estonians make their living by farming and dairying. Before the war butter, eggs, and bacon were exported to Estonia's best customers, Great Britain and Germany.

The chief crops are rye, wheat, barley, oats, flax and potatoes. Estonia lives up to an old description of it as a "fair land of potatoes and stone." Rock-dotted, it normally produces so many potatoes that nearly a ton could be given annually to each inhabitant. Forests are still abundant, and in peacetime provide many articles of export, including lumber, matches, furniture, carved toys. Oil shale is important in the national wealth, yielding asphalt, pitch, lubricating and fuel oil, some benzene and gasoline for motor cars and planes.

Rheumatic Fever Strikes Children, Impairs Heart

Rheumatic fever generally follows an illness of streptococcal type, such as scarlet fever, tonsillitis, pharyngitis and certain kinds of colds. Usually the rheumatic symptoms appear two or three weeks after a youngster has contracted one of the foregoing diseases. Symptoms fairly typical of rheumatic fever are: inflammation of the joints which is shown by redness, swelling and tenderness in the joints; small hard lumps, or rheumatic nodules, formed under the skin mainly over bony surfaces and about the joints; and Saint Vitus' dance (chorea), due presumably to the effect of the rheumatic process on nervous tissue.

Whatever outward form the disease takes, its inner work is usually the same. It causes inflammation and swelling of the heart valves which regulate the flow of blood, and frequently as this heals, it leaves the valves puckered and inefficient. Children are especially susceptible to rheumatic fever, but adults are by no means immune. In an average year it kills five times as many youngsters as infantile paralysis, and kills more people between the ages of 5 and 44 than pneumonia.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Did you hear that Tom is going to be inducted into the Army next week, Judge?"

"Yes, Frank told me this morning down at the barber shop. Our town's got a lot of men in the service now, Jim. In fact, all towns have. I was just reading in the paper where there are more than 10,000,000 men away from their homes in the armed forces. And, from all reports, they're doing a grand job bringing victory closer every day.

"We folks at home have a mighty big obligation to those 10,000,000 fighting men. We've got to produce the food to keep them well fed. We've got to keep them supplied with the ammunition and equipment they need to finish their job. We've got to help the Government pay for all these supplies our men need by buying more and more War Bonds. We'll have another big chance to do that by helping to put the 5th War Loan drive over the top, Jim.

"And, in addition, we must be sure that, while they're away and can't express their opinions, we don't go voting on and deciding any things that will displease them when they come back."

Harmon Tells Of Fierce Fight

Former Football Star Shot Down Two Zeros, Then Lost Own Plane.

WASHINGTON.—It took Tommy Harmon, former football star, just a few minutes to shoot down two Zeros and then lose his plane and half his pants, but 32 days to get back to his base from the Chinese lake into which he parachuted.

Telling about the experience at a press conference, Harmon, now an air force lieutenant and a P-38 fighter pilot, went into detail about the air battle over the Kiukiang docks and warehouses last October.

But about his escape, he wouldn't say a word—not even to identify the lake.

"It would just mean reprisals by the Japanese, and maybe put a rope around some other pilot's neck," he declared.

"The mission began," said Harmon, "with four P-38's going out to dive bomb the target, and four more flying top cover. Capt. Lowden Enslin of Springfield, Mo., squadron commander, led the attack.

"I was flying tail-end Charlie for the top cover men," Harmon related. "We were just about at the rendezvous point with the dive bombers when (Captain) Bob Schultz (of Sandusky, Ohio), leading the top cover, suddenly called out: 'Six Zeros at three o'clock!'

Looked All Around.
"Well, the moment anybody calls out, you automatically look all around. I started looking, and when I cocked up my left wing, I saw six more, so I called 'six Zeros at nine o'clock.'

"The dive-bombers were just starting their run when the Zeros hit. It was one beautiful trap—they had been tipped off before we came in.

"Schultz and his wing man, and my lead man, went into the six Zeros ahead. I turned into the six behind me. We estimated there were something more than 20 Zeros in the sky. The dive-bombers got jumped, and they got four of us.

"When I turned back into those Zeros, I busted right in between two of their three-plane formations. The three on my right turned off to their left, and the first and second planes of the other formation turned off to their right, but their No. 3 man turned left and came directly into my sights. I cut loose with some tracer, and tore off the cockpit. Then I cut loose with the cannon, and the whole thing exploded.

"I was in a dive, and didn't know the dive bombers had gone on their run, so I turned back into the fight. I saw a Zero up ahead, came up beneath him, tore off a chunk of his left wing near the fuselage, closed in to about 50 yards, and let everything go, and he went up like a matchbox.

Heard Something Ring.
"Then I started looking around again, and didn't see anything but I heard something ring on my armor plate. That was the first shell. The second hit under my seat, and the third between my legs. It started a gasoline fire in the cockpit, knocked my feet off the controls, and blew my pants off above the knees.

"I had turned the ship over, and saw where this guy had been working me over from underneath. I tried to smother the flames with my hands, but it was no good, so I loosened my safety belt and jettisoned the cockpit cover.

"I was going at such a speed that it pulled me right out of the plane. I didn't know the altitude, so I opened my chute immediately. That wasn't good. I was at about 5,000 feet, and two Zeros started circling me. Why they never turned into me and let go I'll never know, unless it was because when I saw them circling, I folded over and played dead.
"After I landed in the lake, they came over three or four times, and each time they did, I'd duck under my chute. Finally they went on back to their airport."

Saddest of Messages

Trailed by Good News
BOSTON.—The Hyde Park Thorntons had a dramatic week-end with a happy ending.

First the family received the saddest of all messages: "We regret to inform you." The information was that Lieut. Daniel P. Thornton, 22, was missing in action in the India-China-Burma area where he was serving with the air force.

Within an hour after receipt of the message, his young wife, who was uninformed of its contents, was taken to Carney hospital and gave birth to a son.

Then came another message from the war department that Lieutenant Thornton had landed in friendly territory and was safe.

WPA 8-Year Spendings

Total Nearly 13 Billion

WASHINGTON.—The Work Projects administration spent $10,136,743,293 in WPA funds and $2,837,713,394 in sponsors' funds during its eight-year existence—from June 30, 1935, to June 30, 1943—and supplied employment to 8,500,000 persons, Administrator Philip B. Fleming said in a report transmitted to congress. Designed to provide emergency employment, WPA has been liquidated under direction of the President.

Univ. of Illinois Is Air-Minded For Post-War

Constructing Airport: Aeronautics Will Touch Every Part Of Institution.

To meet the needs of an aviation-minded post-war world the University of Illinois is planning a program of aeronautical education and research which will reach into almost every part of the institution. Led by President Arthur Cutts Wilard, himself an internationally-known engineer, the university has intensively studied and considered the problems and opportunities which aviation is bringing to higher education.

As a laboratory and hub for its aeronautical activities, the university has purchased 800 acres of land south-west of the Urbana-Champaign campus and is constructing one of the nation's better airports, adequate for the largest planes. Additional acreage will be added if needed.

Initial construction includes three 5,300-foot long paved runways each 150 feet wide, a control tower, administration building, hangar, shops, and classroom space. Space is available for extending the runways to 8,300 feet if needed, for additional runways, and for expansion of all facilities.

The field is being built to Civil Aeronautics administration and Army standards. It will be open for military and commercial use probably by Fall. After the war it will be open for commercial and civilian flying as well as being a laboratory for educational and research activities of the university.

It will be the center of activities reaching into every college and department of the university, not only those at Urbana-Champaign, but also the Colleges of Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy and associated hospitals and institutes located at the Illinois Medical center in Chicago.

Research in aeronautical medicine already is in progress there in Chicago, with the Colleges of Medicine, Engineering, and Agriculture co-operating to study the effect of temperature, humidity, and diet upon the human body. Other units showing great interest in aviation, in addition to medicine, engineering, and agriculture, include law, commerce, fine and applied arts, and others.

Aeronautical aspects of instruction at the undergraduate level in the University will probably be carried on by adding aeronautical options into present curricula and adding courses in existing departments. Special degrees in aeronautics may be conferred for advanced work.

Students at the university will have the benefit of the institution's 75 years of experience in teaching and research, its plant valued at $43,900,000, and its staff of 2,300 persons experienced in every field of human activity or interest.

In undertaking co-operative research in aeronautics the university will have the benefit of a quarter of a century of co-operative studies in many fields, some of the oldest of them in railroad and highway transportation. The airport and aeronautics program will extend this work into the third transportation field of airways.

U. of Ill. Scholastic Leadership Shown By Many Societies

The leadership which the University of Illinois holds in scholastic and professional fields is demonstrated by a survey which reveals that more national honorary and professional societies were founded at Illinois than at any other of the nation's educational institutions.

A total of 19 such organizations were founded at Illinois. High scholarship is a prerequisite for membership in many. Among these are the two national scholastic honorary organizations for university and college freshmen, Phi Eta Sigma for men and Alpha Lambda Delta for women.

These two organizations whose parent chapters are at Illinois now have a combined total of 89 chapters. Thomas Arkle Clark, world's first dean of men, established Phi Eta Sigma in 1923, and Miss Maria Leonard, dean of women at the University of Illinois, founded Alpha Lambda Delta there in 1924.

Other scholastic and professional fraternities founded at Illinois are in the fields of chemistry, law, architecture, engineering, military science, education, medicine, business, and agriculture.

NEW LIBRARY HEAD

Robert B. Downs, formerly director of libraries at New York University, is now director of the University of Illinois library and Library school. He succeeded Carl M. White, who resigned to accept the librarianship at Columbia university.

The first free show of the season was given in Broadlands on Saturday night.

Better Than Medals

By ETHELYN PARKINSON
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

IT WAS the final day of his leave, and at last he'd found time to visit the shop. He stood in his mother's office, wishing Mom weren't so cool about things. Taking a hero son in stride was one thing. But you'd think Mom had never heard of Tunisia, or the "Battle of William Carson!" You'd think Alicia Fashion Shop's mail was more important than medals and banquettes, reporters, speeches—Sherrill. Especially Sherrill!

"Just think, Mom!" he said. "Until now, Sherrill Ralston was just a rotogravure figure, remote as a star! It's like meeting a fairy princess, when you've never believed in fairies! She looked like one last night, too—in turquoise tulle, all shot with silver stars. I felt a little dazed!"

Mom smiled. "Of course, William. Things change. A year ago Sherrill was engaged—for the third time. And you weren't a hero, dear, to anyone but me. Besides," she glanced toward the outer office, "I really thought you and Mary Lee had an understanding."

"Oh, Mary?" Bill laughed unsteadily. "Mary's a grand girl, Mom. But one grows up. After all, when you've done things—"

He stopped as the door opened. "Hi, Bill!" Mary said.

Bill listened to the familiar talk. The Alicia Fashion Shop had fed and clothed him for twenty years. It had given him two years at law school before the Army interrupted. "Is there much to deliver, Mary?" his mother asked.

"Especially you, Mary."

"Ten rush orders. And Miss Stanton wants to return the hat she took on approval."

The words brought Bill sharply to attention. "Do they still take clothes on approval, wear them and return them?" he demanded.

"They would change that?"
"We've red cards," Mary said gravely. "The customers sign, guaranteeing that returned articles haven't been worn."

"It doesn't help much," Alicia Carson said.

"Of all the crooked tricks," Bill exploded. "When this blasted war's over, I'm going to do something about that—" he broke off. "Don't smile, Mother! I'll run deliveries tonight," he said softly, "the way I used to. Then I'll pick you up here, for supper."

Bill whistled as he sorted the packages. Suddenly he stopped. One formal handkerchief for Miss Sherrill Ralston! A rush! When had Sherrill discovered the place?

Boxes in hand, Bill went slowly into Mom's office. "Mom, I—"

"Doesn't Sherrill know about the shop?"

Bill gasped, colored. "Mom, no one asks what you were before the war. Nothing counts farther back than a uniform."

"Still, everyone is really just what he was before, just what he's going to be afterward. Give me Sherrill's handkerchief, dear. Mary does canteen duty out that way for two hours before she goes home."

Canteen duty. Mary probably knew quite a few soldiers. Possibly some of them had medals, too. He remembered now that Mary hadn't said good-by. He must stop at the office. But the empty room mocked him. Mary had gone. He wouldn't see her again. A queer coldness enveloped him.

Just after eight, Bill entered Mrs. Carson's office. There he stopped short, his heart pounding. Mary was bending over the cluttered desk. "Oh, your mother said you're to run along, Bill. I'm going to close up."

Something was wrong, and suddenly Bill knew what. "Mary—" he began, then came toward her. He picked up a red card from the desk. "I guarantee that this article has not been worn..."

"Mary," he said, "let's go to supper. Where we can talk."

"Until ten o'clock, Bill?"

"I guess I've been a little mixed about what I was fighting for. I thought it was medals and things. But all the time it was for Mom—and you. Especially you, Mary." He reached for her. "Mary?"

"Yes, Bill?" Her eyes were shining through tears. "Oh, darling, we've been so proud!"
It was better than medals. Better than anything! He caught her in his arms. But first he tossed a red card back upon a cloud of turquoise tulle, all shot with silver stars.
