10 Ladies Work Monday

The following Red Cross workers folded bandages on Monday afternoon last: Mesdames Ruth Henson, Edna Struck, Anna Laverick, Anna Seeds, Margaret Anderson, Minnie Anderson, Eva Boyd, Leanna Miller, Leona Bergfeld; and Miss Lyla Mae Witt.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Daisy Gore and Mrs. Margaret Anderson.

"The Brides' School," operated by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (Congregational) in Chilesso, Portuguese West Africa, enrolls sixty prospective brides, most of them Christian girls from native villages, who are taught Christian doctrines, Bible stories and Christian songs. Many of these girls marry native Christian boys who go out into the villages as preachers, teachers, or medical assistants. So popular has the Brides' School become that the mission is calling for a woman educator, a doctor, nurse and a married couple for evangelistic work, to help enlarge the Christian service program.

Local Men Enjoy A Moonlight Ride

Kenneth Church, Dean Kruke-witt, John M. Smith and O. P. Witt, members of the Tuscola Saddle Club, met with other members of the club on Sunday, July 2, at the John Ponder home in Tuscola. They rode to Patterson Springs where they enjoyed a luncheon, then returned to Tuscola, and rode through the streets, attracting the attention of many people who came out on their porches, and others looked from upstairs windows. There were 47 men and as many horses in the ride, and all seemed to enjoy the affair. The riders met at five o'clock p. m. and rode about 15 miles, the ride ending at midnight. They called it their moonlight ride and really had a fine evening for it.

Mrs. Lena Biesterfeld Hostess to Ladies Aid

The Ladies Aid of the Immanuel Lutheran church held their June meeting in the church basement, with Mrs. Lena Biesterfeld as hostess.

TAKING POSSESSION OF CANAAN

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 14:6-14; Judges 1:20, 21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou hast wholly followed the Lord.—Joshua 14:9.

Companions in battle usually means friends and comrades for life. Joshua, of whom we studied last week, had such a friend in Caleb. Together they had faced the crises of life.

Caleb is one of the characters about whom the Bible does not say much, but in every case the word is one revealing high and noble character. Consider such passages as Numbers 13:6, 30, 14:7-9, 24, 30; 26:65, as well as our lesson for today.

The background for our study is the story of Caleb's courageous stand with Joshua when the spies returned from their visit to Canaan, which is related in Numbers 13.

Note first of all Caleb's

I. Perfect Obedience (Josh. 14: 6-9).
"I wholly followed the Lord my God." Such a testimony from a man like Caleb is no idle boast, no effort to parade his faith and piety before others. In saying it he was repeating what God and Moses had both said about him. In his heart he knew it to be true.

It is God's will for each of His children that they should come to such a place of simple trust and complete obedience that in every circumstance of life they need to know only one thing—God's will, and then in faith to go and do it. It is a life beautiful in its transparent simplicity and powerful in the strength of God Himself.

II. Promised Inheritance (v. 9).
"Surely the land whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance." Such was the promise of God through Moses. Forty-five long years had elapsed, but down through this period of wilderness wanderings and the conflict in subduing Canaan the promise had lived in Caleb's heart. He knew it would be fulfilled, and he waited serenely for God's time.

Such also are the promises of God which keep the heart singing in our hours of trial and sorrow, which lighten the dark ways, which strengthen the heart of His children. Learn God's promises, cherish them in your heart, expect God to fulfill them.

III. Preserved Strength (vv. 10, 11).

"The Lord hath kept me alive . . . and I am . . . strong." Here was a man kept of God, in full vigor in his eighty-fifth year, "like a rock in a changeable sea, like a snow-capped peak in a change of cloud and storm and sun" (Meyer). No doubt there was here what our forefathers liked to call "the longevity of the antediluvians"; but even apart from that, let us recognize that life and strength come from God, and that those who walk with God in holy living may count on Him for the renewed strength of Psalm 103:5.

An incidental but extremely important lesson we should learn is that God has no age deadline. The church has frequently sinned against Him and against His faithful servants by "shelving them" for younger men, when they would have brought blessing if the church had encouraged and used them. The writer of these lines is a young man, but he would speak here a word of loving admonition regarding his honored brethren who have gone on before to bear the brunt of the battle.

IV. Powerful Assurance (vv. 12-15; Judg. 1:20-21).

"If . . . the Lord will be with me, then I shall be able." Caleb asked for no easy task. He was ready to go up against the giants of Hebron. Read Deuteronomy 3:11, and you will find that there were men in those days who needed thirteen-foot beds. But Caleb was not afraid. He counted not on his own strength, but on the power of God.

It is significant that, while the other sections of Canaan were only partially conquered, Caleb brought his formidable adversaries entirely under control, so that "the land had rest from war" (v. 15). The verses in Judges 1 indicate that Caleb was as good as his word. He was a doughty, God-fearing 85-year-old. His faith is here contrasted with the shameful unbelief and failure of Israel.

The spiritual application to our day is evident and appropriate. There are giants in the land. Corruption—social and individual—raises its brazen head. Drunkenness and vice leer at us with the impudent suggestion that we cannot control them.

There are giants "within us—greed, selfishness, love of ease, lust, passion, cruelty" (Blakie).

Are we to do nothing about them? If we are to meet them in the strength of the flesh, we might almost as well do nothing. But in the power of God, we are like Caleb—able. In His name we may do something about it! For His glory.

Fifth June of War

This is the fifth June of World War II, and like its predecessors it has been marked by momentous events, a few high points of which may be briefly reviewed:

June, 1940—Following the surrender of the Netherlands and Belgian armies and the evacuation of British forces from Dunkirk, Italy declared war on the Allies June 10. On the 16th, Prime Minister Churchill proposed a federation of Britain and France, which Marshal Petain rejected, and instead asked Hitler for peace terms the following day. France signed an armistice with Germany on the 22d, and with Italy on the 24th.

June, 1941—Hitler made the greatest of his many blunders of the war by attacking Russia on the 22d. Hungary, Rumania, Finland, Slovakia, Albania and Italy immediately joined Germany in the war against Russia, and Franco later sent a division of Spanish troops to aid Hitler.

June, 1942—Battle of Midway began on the 4th, resulting in an American victory, but we lost the airplane carrier Yorktown and a total of 92 officers and 215 men of our sea and air forces. A Japanese attack on Wake Island began on the 6th, in which Washington claimed the destruction of several enemy carriers and damage to three battleships, four cruisers and three transports, one U. S. carrier was hit and some planes were lost. A Japanese force landed on Kiska on June 7. During the month the Germans inflicted severe defeats on the British and Free French in North Africa, capturing Tobruk and driving to within 100 miles of Alexandria, Egypt. The Germans also scored great victories on the Russian front and virtually completed the conquest of Sevastopol.

June, 1943—In this month there was a temporary lull on the Eastern front, as Russians and Germans sparred for the advantage in preparation for summer offensives. The air war over Western Europe was being waged with devastating effect, however, and in late June tremendous raids were made on eight successive nights, climaxed by the hurling of 2,000 tons of bombs on Cologne on the 29th, as a foretaste of what has followed. In the last half of June, 15 German U-boats were sunk, and by this time 95% of our Lend-Lease materials were getting through.

June, 1944—The long-awaited invasion of Western Europe began on the 6th with landings of the Allied Expeditionary Force on the Normandy coast of France. Developments of the highest importance are taking place on all fronts throughout the world, and this month may prove to be the most decisive of the war up to the present time.

A dash of cinnamon, a few chopped nuts, and a little cocoa added to water in which plain oatmeal is to be cooked give a different flavor which children like.

Household Hints

A clean chamois skin is excellent for polishing windows.

Peanut oil is a good substitute for butter in frying eggs.

A pin placed through the cork of bottles containing poisons will serve as a safety identification.

To remove fresh paint stains from windows and mirrors, sponge with cloth dipped in hot vinegar.

Never use metal mesh or wire scrapers to clean enameled ware.

They discolor, scratch or might even chip the enamel.

Keep medicines in their original bottles, tightly corked and clearly labeled, in the medicine cabinet to avoid confusion in selection.

Bath towels, pot lifters, dust cloths and dish towels need no ironing if they are rolled or folded as they are taken from the clothes line.

The housewife can renew her energy for housecleaning day if she will stop occasionally long enough to sip a glass of fruit juice or eat an apple or banana.

A new medicine dropper for measuring liquid food coloring when making candy saves time and makes an accurate measurement of the exact drops wanted.

Pieces of stale bread run thru a food chopper will remove meat which has stuck and then may be used to make more hash or loaf.

A thumb tack placed at each lower corner on the back of a picture frame will keep the picture frame from leaving a dust mark on the wall.

PICKLES GIVE ZEST TO WARTIME MEALS

Some persons look upon the pickle family as "food value squander bugs," but Gladys Kimbrough, authority on canning and Home Service Director for Ball Brothers Company, gives sound reasons for including them in every home canning plan. In a recent interview, Miss Kimbrough said, "Pickles and relishes are important because they add color, flavor, and zest to ration-limited meals."

"A spoon or so of finely chopped mustard pickle stirred into rich brown gravy gives high point value to low point meats. A bit of chili sauce and minced dill pickle blended with mayonnaise or with cooked salad dressing and poured over an accumulation of vegetables prevents the old acquaintances being recognized, particularly so if the vegetables are blistering hot."

"It's fun to find a tiny gherkin tucked in a mold of cottage cheese and tomato soup, and a bowl of cream of corn soup loses its bland blankness the moment small rafts of corn, beet, or red pepper relish laden toast are floated on its surface."

"But," said Miss Kimbrough, "don't expect any pickle to do its share unless you are willing to give it the right start on its colorful career. If members of the cucumber family are made to grow too fast, or if left out of brine too long, they are likely to expand with indignation until they are all hollow! They go soft and slippery when the brine is too weak or does not cover every cucumber, and scum makes them ill—it must be removed from the brine every few days. Cucumbers and their small cousins, the gherkins, shrivel and shrink when there is too much salt in the brine and if given too much sugar at any time."

Cucumbers must be cured in brine for several weeks, in order to be firm, solid, crisp, and olive green throughout. Persons who are not too concerned with quality use short cuts, but Miss Kimbrough expressed the opinion that those who do not want to go to the trouble of brining should confine their efforts to relishes, fruit pickles, and sauces, all of which are simple to make. However, it should be kept in mind that good relish makers test by taste because even the most reliable of recipes may require more or less spice and vinegar than indicated. The vinegar should be not less than 40 percent nor more than 60 percent grain strength. Unless the recipe calls for another kind, use apple-cider vinegar.

REPUBLICANS ADOPT CONSTRUCTIVE AND SOUND PLATFORM

The platform adopted by the Republican Convention at Chicago contains no "weasel" words. It is a frank and simply worded declaration of purposes with no opportunity for any misinterpretation. It outlines in definite terms a constructive program designed to relieve the people of bureaucratic regimentation; to put a stop to prodigal spending with continuing deficits; pledges the reestablishment of constitutional government, the free enterprise system and our American way of life.

Win the War Pledge.

The preamble is a tribute to the men and women of the Armed Forces with a pledge to prosecute the war, in cooperation with our Allies, until the Axis powers have been completely and decisively defeated; with no interference with the General Staff of the Army or the Office of Naval Operations as to the conduct of the war. With the final defeat of our enemies it promises the return of all those serving in the Armed Forces whose enlistment periods have expired and who do not volunteer for further overseas duty. It says: "We declare our relentless aim to win the war against all our enemies; for our American security and welfare; to make and keep the Axis powers impotent to renew tyranny and attack; for the attainment of peace and freedom based on justice and security. We shall seek to achieve such aims through organized international cooperation and not by joining a world state."

Postwar Foreign Policy.

It favors full responsible participation by the United States in post war cooperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world. It proposes definite methods of accomplishing such results, and very definitely proposes that the United States shall not sacrifice any of its sovereignty by becoming a part of a world state. While the platform would have this country assume a fair and full share of the responsibility for the rejuvenation of the world, and a maintenance of world peace it proposes methods of accomplishing such purposes through international cooperation, and not through the establishment of any super-government. On the prosecution of the war and the establishment and maintenance of world peace it leaves nothing to be guessed about or misinterpreted.

Farm Plank Definite.

On no subject is the platform more definite and emphatic than that of agriculture. It calls for full production at all times, without interference of any kind or any form of farm regimentation. It insures a price for farm products that will mean farm prosperity. It would provide that price through tariff protection for the whole market; the establishment of support prices on the part of the government; commodity loans to the farmer; the development of new uses for farm surpluses; support of farm co-operatives; crop insurance; a soil conservation program, and other practical provisions to insure the farmer an income fair and equitable in comparison with labor, business and industry. It opposes subsidies in any form or any interference with farm management or farm production. It proposes to provide a market at a profitable price for whatever the farmer may produce and in whatever quantity. The farm program calls for the development of paved roads and the extension of rural electrification.

That farm plank provides for a practical solution for the farm problem without imposing bureaucratic regulations. It would make of every farmer, owner or tenant, a free and independent individual.

Restore Free Enterprise.

The Republican Party proposes to restore and maintain the free enterprise system with business free from bureaucratic control. It would take the government out of business competing with free industry. It would dispose of, on an equitable basis, all government owned industrial plants; provide such legal regulations as to prevent monopolies; to protect the public, and especially small business which the platform pronounces "the basis of American enterprise." It would protect small business against discrimination and provide equality of opportunity.

The platform does not stop with such declarations but proposes definite methods of accomplishing such purposes.

Reduce Taxes and Waste.

On the subject of taxation and government expenditures the platform is decidedly definite and emphatic. With the ending of the war it calls for an immediate reduction of the rates of taxation on individual incomes, on corporations and consumption to such an extent as is consistent with the payment of the expenditures of an economically operated government, with a promise to eliminate from governmental costs every wasteful and unnecessary expenditure, including the discontinuance of the many duplicating government bureaus and agencies, and a reduction in government pay-rolls.

That plank definitely, and in no uncertain terms, rejects the New Deal theory of restoring or maintaining prosperity through government spending and deficit financing.

The above is a very brief summary of but a few of the planks of what is a truly remarkable and constructive platform. Those responsible for its preparation did not write words in criticism of the past, but confined their efforts to providing constructively for the future. It is an unusual political document that fully meets the needs of an unusual time in the history of the nation.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The men overseas don't mince any words about the way they want to find this country when they come marching home... do they, Judge?"

"They certainly don't, Herb...and they shouldn't. They're doing a masterful job fighting over there to protect our rights and they have good license to expect us to protect theirs back here at home. One thing they're mighty clear on is their stand on prohibition."

"Their position on that subject was stated very emphatically in a poll taken recently among American service men in England by the British Institute of Public Opinion. When hundreds of men were asked point blank how they would vote on prohibition, 85% of them stated, in unmistakable terms, that they would vote against it. There's no doubt about it, Herb... the men overseas don't want any action taken on that subject while they're away."

"And they're 100% right, Judge, because I know how I felt when I came home after the last war---only to learn that we had been over there fighting for so impractical a thing as Prohibition."

Wood Sugar
In the interval between the two world wars, Scholler of Germany worked out an improvement in wood hydrolysis technique. The subdivided wood waste is packed in large, tile-lined, steel cylinders that are stationary and equipped with a filter cone at the bottom. Successive batches of hot dilute sulphuric acid are introduced at the top of the converter under pressure and percolate through the wood mass to the bottom of the percolator where they are successively drawn off in the form of sugar solutions, cooled, neutralized, fermented to alcohol, and distilled. By carrying on this process through a number of acid batches, all of the cellulose and hemicellulose content of the wood can be converted to simple sugars and recovered in fermentable form with a very high yield.

Pin-up for the girl back home!

She's Johnny Doughboy's pin-up girl, this home front fighter, but she has her own special pin-up photo, too. And she gets a thrill out of looking at it daily, for it's the fine, modern electric kitchen in the home that she and Johnny will someday share, and for which she's planning now!

Awaiting his return and looking at her pin-up kitchen, Johnny's girl knows that someday it will be a REAL kitchen in a REAL home . . . instead of just a pin-up! And she is practical enough to realize that the War Bonds and Stamps which she buys regularly with her earnings, will help to make it the attractive, efficient kitchen of her dreams.

REPUBLICANS NAME DEWEY AND BRICKER

Both Selected as Unanimous Choice at National Convention.

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

For PRESIDENT:
THOMAS E. DEWEY of New York
For VICE PRESIDENT:
JOHN W. BRICKER of Ohio

That is the ticket unanimously named by the 1,059 delegates, with an equal number of alternates, at the Republican national convention in Chicago. Those delegates received no direction or instruction from political leaders. They had been sent to Chicago by the people in their home states, the Joes, Johns, Dicks, Harrys, Marys, Janes and Sallys, to do the bidding of that great rank and file body of Republican voters of the nation.

The home folks, from Maine to California, from the Canadian line to the Gulf, knew the man they wanted as a leader, the man they wanted in the White House, and would brook no compromise with their demands. They demanded Governor Dewey, and the delegates they sent to Chicago did the bidding of those who sent them, and drafted him as they were directed.

So far as the selection of a candidate for president, of a leader, the convention was over before it started. The few states in which the people thought otherwise, and the limited number of delegates, who had thought of other candidates, recognized the general demand, and before the first session of the convention had opened on Monday morning such a preponderance of delegate votes had lined up for Governor Dewey there was no question of whom the people wanted and demanded as a leader, and other candidates accepted the verdict.

Unity Predominant

In that great gathering on no subject or any point was there any evidence of even the slightest friction. There was a universal spirit of unity unusual in any great national partisan gathering. With that unity was displayed a steadfastness of serious purpose expressed by wild demonstrations of approval. They had gathered in Chicago to do those things needed to save the American way of life, to preserve American freedom, to maintain constitutional government.

I have seen many conventions of both of the major political parties of the nation. I have never before attended a convention in which there was such an entire freedom from friction, such an entire unity of purpose and approval of leaders and policies, such a sense of patriotic devotion, such an utter absence of political squabbling, such an entire submission to the will of the mass of the people. The atmosphere was more that of a great religious revival than a partisan political gathering.

There was but a limited amount of even mild "viewing with alarm," no time wasted in violent denunciation of the opposition though the opportunity offered was great. The thoughts of the delegates, the selected officers of the convention and the speakers, were centered on the constructive moves and methods needed to restore to the people the freedoms guaranteed by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

A People's Convention

Of the 25 national conventions of the two major political parties I have reported since 1896 the Republican gathering of 1944 was remarkable for the serious consideration given to the needs of America at this time of war and during the formation of that lasting peace that must be provided for the future. It was unique, also, for the determination to follow the wishes and demands of the people with no effort or thought to promote the interests of political leaders. It was in every sense, a people's convention in which ballyhoo had no place, but an extreme patriotic enthusiasm was manifest.

The formalities of the convention followed the established procedure of such gatherings. Harrison Spangler, Chairman of the National Committee, called the convention to order shortly after ten o'clock on Monday morning. At that session Gov. Earl Warren of California was elected as the temporary chairman. At the Monday evening session Governor Warren presided and delivered a ringing Republican keynote address that was far more constructive than condemnatory.

In that address he sounded the program of constructive legislation the party promised the people of the nation, legislation that would mean the preservation of constitutional government, and relief from the bureaucracy and extravagance of the present administration. When on Tuesday, Representative Jos. W. Martin, of Massachusetts, was selected as permanent chairman, he, too, promised the same kind of legislation. That such a program was what the delegates from all states were asking in the name of the people they represented was demonstrated by the wild acclaim with which such promises were received. The American people wanted a constructive program that would relieve them of the regimentation under which they were living, an assurance of a continuance of the freedoms they had enjoyed, of their way of life. That is what the Republicans were offering.

At Tuesday night's session former President Herbert Hoover, in a stirring address, assured the vast audience of the Republican guarantee of a continuance of the 30 freedoms provided by our Bill of Rights rather than the limited four of the Atlantic Charter. His presence, and assuring words, were greeted by prolonged cheering that Chairman Martin had difficulty in quieting so the speaker might continue.

Constructive Addresses

Following Mr. Hoover, Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce, in an address directed especially to the women, created the same kind of patriotic enthusiasm. The same enthusiastic reception was given each of the many addresses delivered during the sessions from Monday to Wednesday night when Governor Dewey, who had flown from Albany after his nomination, accepted the call of the Republican party for his leadership. He received, as of course he would, a wildly enthusiastic ovation. He was the leader the Republicans wanted and demanded. He was the man they would follow.

Two other Republican leaders came to Chicago with a very considerable following, Governor Bricker, of Ohio, and former Governor Stassen of Minnesota. When it became evident that the greater demand was for Governor Dewey the names of neither of these two outstanding men were presented to the delegates, and Governor Bricker seconded the nomination of Governor Dewey when his name was presented to the convention by Governor Griswold of Nebraska.

Gov. Earl Warren, of California, had a strong following for the vice-presidential nomination. He, like Governor Dewey, had insisted that he did not wish the nomination, and on Tuesday definitely announced he could not accept it, by chance, the nomination was offered. He could be of greater service in California. Governor Bricker had not wanted the second place on the ticket, but when he announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the first place nomination, an appeal was made that he sacrifice personal interests and inclinations and accept the vice-presidential place as a service to the cause of free government.

Both nominations were made without a contest and both were the overwhelming choice of the delegates whose job was that of choosing standard bearers for the Republicans of America for 1944. They did the job exactly as they had been told to do it by the people who had sent them to Chicago, the people who will vote for Dewey and Bricker in November.

Do You Know Illinois?

By Edward J. Hughes
Secretary of State

Q. What was the so-called "Winnebago War"?

A. It occurred in 1827 and was the first Indian disturbance in Illinois subsequent to the War of 1812.

Q. What were the terms of the treaty of Nov. 3, 1804, between the U. S. and the Sac and Fox tribes?

A. The U. S. assumed the payment of the sum of $1,000 per annum in perpetuity and in consideration the Indians ceded all the territory lying between the Wisconsin River, the Fox River of Illinois, the Illinois and Mississippi Rivers, together with a tract comprising the eastern third of the State of Missouri.

Q. What was the acreage of this ceded territory?

A. About 50,000,000 acres.

Q. What clause of this treaty was the ostensible cause of the Black Hawk War of 1831-32?

A. The provision that as long as the ceded lands remained the property of the U. S. the "Indians belonging to the said tribes should enjoy the privilege of living and hunting upon them." Increasing encroachments of the white settlers roused the Indians.

Q. How seriously was the "Winnebago" disturbance regarded?

A. Wild rumors of massacre caused the Governor to call out the militia, companies were raised in several counties, and Gen. Henry Atkinson appeared on the scene with a force of 600 infantry of the U. S. army and 130 mounted riflemen.

Q. What was the final dictum of the white man concerning the lands which brought on the Black Hawk War?

A. A deputation headed by Keokuk, a Sac, proceeded to Washington where it was told by President Jackson that all lands embodied in the treaty of 1804 must be surrendered and all Indian inhabitants remove to the Western side of the Mississippi.

Q. What is the name said to have been applied to the village neighboring the present Peoria by the French?

A. Opa.

Q. When did the French first occupy Peoria?

A. 1711.

Q. How long did the original French occupation of Peoria continue?

A. 1711-1775. This site was a short distance from the present site of the City of Peoria.

Q. When was the first house built in the present City of Peoria?

A. 1778.

Dress With Charm —Save With Bonds

Pink roses and bow knots give this dress a faintly Victorian flavor. In spite of the romantic print, the design is modern in its clean-cut lines. The gathered neckline and skirt, buttoned shoulder and placket make it a smart dress to sew and wear. Every penny saved by sewing helps buy another War Bond. This or a similar pattern is available at your local store. Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before.
