Capt. Robert Frey Writes Letter From France

The Emil Schumachers and other friends here have received letters from Captain Chaplain Robert B. Frey, who is now located in France. Mr. Frey was pastor of the local St. John's church, when he enlisted in the army. In part he says:

We have been here a few days now, long enough to get rather comfortably settled in the fields of these French farmers. The particular field I am in was a pasture. Others are camped in apple orchards, wheat fields and even in gardens. They are all very small, probably divided this way by hedges years ago when the feudal land-owners let out fields to serfs who in turn divided them among their sons. The soil is rich so this has been a productive dairy area. The cattle look good, but the few pigs around are scrawny with long back legs and elephant ears flopping down over their eyes. I see no evidence of corn land in this part of the country.

All of us have had interesting times trying what little French we know on the peasants. They are friendly and patient with us. After four years of German occupation they have learned, I suppose, to be friendly to occupying troops. It is funny to see a soldier with his book out trying to make himself understood to a Frenchman while a large group of G I's stand around listening.

I visited a nearby church last Friday. Of course it was Catholic as nearly every one is here. The ladies were decorating although the church was beautiful enough without additions. Some said the building was 500 years old, others have given older and younger ages. But it is old, and like all the homes and barns, it is built from stone with a slate roof. One of our Catholic Chaplains held his Masses there last Sunday.

My services, two for nine companies, were held in our fields. About 400 came since nothing else interfered for once. That figure is a little under 50% of the Protestants in those companies. Usually our attendance is much less than that, for many reasons of course.

We have good food, some of it dehydrated, some canned, and some fresh. Right now the quantity is small but that will be remedied as soon as the transportation shortage gets ironed out. The Red Cross supplemented our ration yesterday by serving coffee and donuts in our area. Tomorrow the army distributes its packages containing candy, cigarettes, razor blades, soap, etc., to each man. This is to take the place of post exchange facilities. This package comes free once a week.

Men come to me with fewer personal or family problems now. It is impossible to do much about them over here anyway. But many are trying to locate their brothers who are in France. This also is impossible because the whereabouts of task forces cannot be made known.

Best wishes to you all for a good harvest and a pleasant autumn.

(Newman Independent)

Miss Martha Shephard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ed Shephard, Newman, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles DeWitt, also of Newman, at a lovely wedding held in the home of Miss Bertha Mann, at Glencoe, Ill., at noon on October 4.

The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. David Johnson of Wilmette. The Reverend Stubbs of the Union Church, Glencoe, read the vows of the single ring ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends.

For her wedding the bride wore a princess-style gown of violet crepe with a corsage of pink gladioli. The matron of honor was attired in a pink suit with a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The unique autumn ceremony was performed before the open hearth with an altar of yellow and white chrysanthemums, snapdragons and dahlias.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was served by friends of the bride. The bridal table was decorated with a bowl of white dahlias and yellow candles in twisted white candlesticks. Narrow yellow ribbons led from the centerpiece to a chrysanthemum at each place.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

RELIGION IN EDUCATION

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 7:7-12; Luke 6:39-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.—John 8:32.

Education without religion will make America a pagan nation in a generation or two. Even worldly-minded educators are concerned about the neglect of and opposition to Christianity in many branches of our country's educational system.

Christians will want to be informed and to act as they have opportunity to bring Christian influence to bear on the education of children. They will want to give their hearty support to real Christian education.

I. Seek Wisdom from God (Matt. 7:7-11).

We have made great progress in the improvement of educational equipment, in the construction of fine school buildings, and in the provision of trained teachers. There have been earnest efforts to develop the most effective courses of study adapted to the needs of our day.

All this is commendable—except for one thing, and that is really a foundational error. We have given little, if any, attention to the development of character, without which the skills of hand and of head may be actually dangerous. Theodore Roosevelt is said to have observed that "to educate a man's mind without educating his conscience is to make him not a social asset, but a social liability" (Douglass).

The teaching in our schools of the evolutionary theory as though it were fact when it has never been proved has provided a foundation for all manner of denial of God and of the truth of His Word.

What shall we do? Surrender? Not at all. Let us look to God for His wisdom and grace. The promise is that the one who asks, receives, when he asks in faith and for God's glory (cf. James 1:5-8 and 4:3). Prayer is vital in real education.

II. Use Wisdom with Men (Matt. 7:12).

Education has as one of its important goals the ability to get along with our fellow men. As the Lord enables us to grow in wisdom and knowledge, it should show in our treatment of those who look to us for guidance and help.

This so-called Golden Rule is a high standard of conduct which many profess, but which only the grace of God can accomplish in a man's life. To always be positively doing for and to others what we would have them do for us is far more than the negative thing which most people assume it to be. They reverse it and are trying to avoid doing things to others that they would not have done to themselves.

Note again that this is on the positive and the active side. We are to go about doing good, such as we would desire for ourselves.

III. Follow Wisdom in Humility (Luke 6:39-42).

If the teacher is spiritually blind he will lead his equally blind pupil into the ditch. That is exactly what is happening in many schools and colleges. No pupil will rise higher than his teacher (v. 40).

Real education makes a man humble. He is not ready to destroy his brother's eye because it has a speck in it, for he recognizes his own weakness and sin. He needs the grace of God in his own life first; then he is ready to give help to others.

There is something fine about the genuine sweet humility of a man who is really educated. He is not pompous and proud, parading his learning so that the populace may be impressed. He is humble and teachable. Real scholarship calls for genuine faith in God.

IV. Find Wisdom in Godliness (Luke 6:43-45).

Every tree brings forth its own kind of fruit. Christian character is a fruit which grows only on the tree of Christian doctrine. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom (Prov. 9:10). That means that to be truly educated a man must be a Christian.

That which is good and noble and upright can be brought forth only from a mind and heart of which the same things are true (v. 45). An evil man will teach others evil, a good man will teach them that which is good. Hence, the folly of thinking that if a teacher only has a brilliant mind, and is versed in the technical learning of his profession, it makes no difference what his morals are nor how he lives.

That theory has brought ruin to thousands of young lives, and it is high time that all who have to do with educational work demanded godly character as the first requisite of the teacher and made it the leading subject in the curriculum. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Army Air Force Data

Some approximate figures concerning operations of the U. S. Army Air Force were made public by its chief, Gen. H. H. Arnold, covering the period from the attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, to Sept. 28, 1944, on which date the weight of bombs dropped reached one million tons.

Of this total, he said, about 175,000 tons had been concentrated on aircraft factories and airfields, 140,000 tons on oil plants, ball-bearing works and other industrial targets, and the remainder against shipping and military installations, and in direct support of ground troops.

In addition to the bombs dropped, AAF planes used 238 million rounds of ammunition to destroy more than 27,000 enemy airplanes, probably destroy 6,000 more and damage 10,000 others.

Army planes overseas flew nearly 14 million hours, using two billion gallons of 100-octane gasoline. No estimate of miles flown in this country is given.

Losses of men and planes by the Army Air Force have been heavy. There have been 72,000 battle casualties and 5,300 non-battle casualties among air personnel, including killed, missing, prisoners, and wounded. No breakdown of figures for the several categories of casualties was made.

All aircraft losses total approximately 42,000, of which 14,600 were lost on combat missions. An additional 9,900 airplanes were lost overseas from non-combat causes.

The most surprising fact revealed by Gen. Arnold was that 17,500 planes have been lost in the United States through accidents during training, routine flights and from other causes.

Historic Aachen

Recent events on the western front have largely centered about Aachen, the first sizable German city to be entered by an Allied army. The garrison ignored Gen. Hodges' ultimatum demanding its surrender, and the stronghold was subjected to a terrific bombardment. The American commander desired to spare the city and its remaining civilian population, but the Germans' decision to continue resistance left him no alternative but to proceed with its destruction.

Aachen had a peacetime population of about 160,000, and is situated just inside the western border of Germany, 40 miles southwest of Cologne. It is a city of historic associations, and made the capital of his dominions by Charlemagne, who died there in the year 814.

From the time of Charlemagne until 1531, all the German emperors, some 30 in number, were crowned at Aachen. During these six centuries it became one of the most important imperial cities, but after the removal of the coronations to Frankfurt and the disastrous fire of 1656 it declined.

Aachen was ravaged by the Normans in 851, and again in 882. The city was occupied by the French in 1793 and remained in their possession until the fall of Napoleon in 1815, when it passed to Prussia.

The Aachen Cathedral dates from the time of Charlemagne, who erected the central octagonal chapel between 796 and 804, and is buried there. This edifice was destroyed by the Normans and later rebuilt.

In 1370, the Town Hall, a splendid Gothic structure containing the famous coronation hall, which alone has nearly 10,000 square feet, was completed on the site of Charlemagne's palace.

Aachen was the imperial capital nearly 500 years before Berlin appeared on the map as an insignificant fishing village on the Spree.

Dog's Prestige At a New High

Canines Win Added Respect For Contribution On War Front And Home Front

After 30 months of war the prestige of the dog in America is at a new high, states a report of the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City. Principal reason for this, of course, is the outstanding contribution made by dogs on every front where Americans are fighting. They serve in many branches of the armed services—as sentry and attack dogs, messenger dogs, scout dogs, Red Cross dogs, sledge dogs and pack dogs. Already many of the dogs have given their lives in the performance of their duties and in order to save the lives of the men to whom they were assigned. But America's dogs are serving their country equally well on the home front. Their companionship is a stimulus to morale in the home. They are helping fill that empty place in the family circle, and they are protecting homes from which men have gone to war. An estimated 15 million dogs are in America's homes today. Just how integral a part of the home the dog has become is indicated in a recent survey which showed that 42 per cent of America's dog owners feel their dogs mean more today than they did in peacetime, in addition to 50 per cent who said they had not changed their high opinion of their dogs. The same survey also sought to find out what owners would do if the production of dog foods were cut down. Fifty-eight per cent of the dog owners questioned said they would share the family rations with their dog, and an additional 38 per cent said they would keep their dog and make the best of it. Only an infinitesimal six-tenths of one per cent of dog owners said they would dispose of their dog. America's experience with dogs as a morale factor closely parallels that of wartime England. After the war broke out in 1939, the British discouraged the keeping of canine pets. The undesirable effect this action had on the nation's morale—the British, like the Americans, are a great dog-loving people—soon led to a reversal of policy, and today the keeping of dogs in the British Isles is not only encouraged but their required food is specially provided for.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The war stories I like best, Judge, are the ones by the special writers overseas who live right with our troops. They give us a better idea of how our men react to things going on over there and back here at home."

"I agree with you, Sam. I never miss one of those stories in the papers or magazines. And there's one thing those writers seem to agree on no matter where they are stationed with our men...and that is that the men who have left their homes and families to go away and fight this war don't want to come back and find that prohibition has been put over on them while they were away...either nationally or locally. They have heard about the attempts being made and they resent it bitterly."

"I agree with them, Judge, even though I don't happen to drink myself. Furthermore, I don't think it's fair for us at home to be making any major changes while 10,000,000 of our fighting men are away and have no chance to express their opinions."

Ripen Keiffer Pears Before Canning

If you want your Keiffer pears to be tender and fine-flavored after canning, says Mrs. Esther K. Thor, Home Adviser, give them two or three weeks of cool ripening beforehand. Only at a temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees F. does the flesh of this variety of pear become soft, and the full pear flavor develop.

Pears placed either in a warm or in a cold place never ripen properly, but will remain tough, woody and poor in taste. Pick the hard pears from the tree, then keep them cool and well ventilated until they are in condition to can, cook or eat fresh.

Soldier of the Soil

(Drawing courtesy Quaker State Oil Refining Corp.)

VICTORY begins with the American farmer, working from long before sunset until long after nightfall. Upon him falls the burden of feeding the fighting forces . . . the civilian population . . . and hungry mouths in war-torn countries.

To the challenge of producing more food than ever, American soldiers of the soil have responded with heroic effort. Despite shortages of help and equipment, they have established records. They have contributed mightily towards winning the war.

Now you are asked to help your fellowmen in another way . . . to contribute money to give men in the armed forces needed recreation, to give books and sports equipment to prisoners of war, to give nerve-shattered men in the merchant marine a chance to recuperate. To give unfortunate people abroad and at home a chance to have life, liberty and happiness.

The dollars you can give are needed more than ever this year. Please give generously. And be ready with YOUR contribution when solicitors call at your door.
