Why Should We Give Away Our Non-High School District?

Can anybody give a single good and sufficient reason why we should vote to attach the Broadlands non-high school territory to the Allerton district?

Fifty-five voters of the Broadlands non-high school district have signed a petition asking that this very important question be decided by a vote of the people, on Saturday, April 27. The fact that a goodly number of the voters signed the petition because of the reports that had been circulated, has been made known to everyone. Accordingly, many of those who signed the petition have become indignant because of the fact that they have been misled, and have informed us that they will work and vote against the proposition of doing away with our non-high school district.

Here is the report that has been in circulation: a new law which recently became effective, makes it mandatory that all two and three year high schools be done away with and that our teachers had resigned their positions. Another story was that the Sadorus and Pesotum schools had already consolidated because of the new law. However, all of these reports have proved to be groundless. The truth has come out in the "wash." And there is absolutely and positively not a word of truth in the stories that have been going the rounds.

Why would it be very unwise to vote away our non-high school district? Simply because without this territory we would not be able to get enough tax money to keep even our grade school functioning and to keep our community building in operation. And furthermore, it would cause our property to decrease in value and we would soon be on a fair road to becoming another "desolation" like some other villages which were once thriving towns.

Here is predicting that when the proposition is submitted to a vote on Saturday, April 27, the voters will vote overwhelmingly to keep our non-high school district.

Mrs. T. A. Dicks Is Honored on Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest A. Dicks entertained at a one o'clock dinner, Sunday, in honor of Mrs. T. A. Dicks on her birthday anniversary.

Spring flowers decorated the table, and Mrs. Dicks received many lovely gifts.

Those present besides the honored guest were: Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dicks, sons Wallace, Noel and Darrell, of Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hobbs and daughter Miss Barbara, and Joe Smith of Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. Eva Collom, Urbana; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dicks, Robert McClelland, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dicks, Miss Sara Sue and Tom.

Missionary Society Meets With Mrs. Ira Laverick

The Fairfield Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Ira Laverick at Homer on Wednesday afternoon.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Jas. Church. Mrs. Homer McIntyre had charge of the devotions. Her topic was, "The Seven Speeches of Jesus on the Cross," and she presented this timely subject beautifully and reverently.

The Foreign Missions topic was omitted and the entire time given over to the Home Mission topic, "The American Indian." This was given by Mrs. Fuller Freeman, who gave an illustrated map talk and a paper on reservation life, customs, health, education, war records, and mission work among the two hundred Indian tribes.

During the business meeting Mrs. Elbert Job, treasurer, gave a fine report of the past year's business and financial standing of the society. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Hopkins, president of the Homer Presbyterian Missionary Society was a guest.

Free Movies to Start First Saturday In June

The first free out-door movie show at Broadlands will be given on Saturday night, June 1, and will continue for 15 weeks.

Fifteen shows at $22.50 per week will cost $337.50. Local business firms have agreed to contribute $225 to the fund, and this means that about $112 will have to come from some other source. Therefore, people other than business houses are asked to help to the extent of this amount.

Accordingly, a list of contributions will be published in this paper until the amount is raised. Please give all contributions to J. W. Crain.

Thus far good fellows have made contributions as follows:

Ivan Lookingbill, $5.00.
Bill Crain, $5.00.

John O'Bryant Weds Miss Virginia Beard

Mrs. Merton Eddy of Broadlands is announcing the marriage of her brother, John O'Bryant, of Hammond, Ind., to the attractive Miss Virginia Beard, also of Hammond. The wedding took place Friday, April 12 at Clinton, Ind. The bride and groom were accompanied by Miss Pauline Hausman, of Pesotum, and Charles Crain of Chicago Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Bryant will make their home in Hammond, where Mr. O'Bryant is employed by the Red Top Truck Co., while Mrs. O'Bryant is an employee of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

Potluck Dinner Given in Honor of Mrs. O. E. Gore

About fifty friends met at the Village Inn on Thursday night of last week to enjoy a potluck dinner in honor of Mrs. O. E. Gore. Following the dinner, Mrs. Gore was presented a set of dishes, as a gift from those who had been enjoying her cooking for the past eight years. The Gores, who recently sold the Village Inn to the Ralph Gordons and son, Ray, turned the place over to them on Monday.

School Consolidation Meeting Is Held

Another Meeting Will Be Held Tuesday Night, April 23.

The meeting held in the community building, Wednesday evening to discuss the advisability of consolidating School Districts Numbers 147, 148, 153, 200, 202, and 203 with the Broadlands Public school, which is in District No. 201, was well attended.

Bud Struck was chairman of the meeting and County Superintendent of Schools E. M. Harshbarger was the speaker. All 21 of the trustees of the seven school districts were present. Mesdames George Dohme, Robert Luedke, Bus Baldwin, Louis Frick, Floyd Block, Harold O. Anderson, Bud Struck, Fred Messman and Harold L. Smith served a delicious chicken dinner.

Oscar Gallion's barbershop quartet of Newman sang several numbers which were heartily applauded.

Just what progress was made at the meeting is problematical, but some of those present expressed the opinion that a better feeling had been created among all those concerned.

At the close of the meeting, Trustee Harold L. Smith announced that another meeting will be held in the community building, Tuesday evening, April 23, to which all people of the seven school districts are most cordially invited to attend. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock.

"Doc" Smith Having Tussle With Mumps

Believe it, or not, but our "bosom" friend, fellow townsman and mechanic extraordinary, Chas. A. "Doc" Smith, has been confined to his home since last Monday with an attack of the mumps. Naturally, we had supposed that he had taken care of this little chore when a mere boy. And say, "Doc," we're going to bring you a large Dill pickle to munch on.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for April 21

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

TWO FRIENDS TALK WITH CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:13-21, 25-31. MEMORY SELECTION—They said one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?—Luke 24:32.

Fellowship with the risen living Lord is the unfailing source of faith and courage. Such certainty is the very essence of our observance of Easter.

We declare with Paul, "Now is Christ risen from the dead" (I Cor. 15:20), and that He is "declared to be the Son of God with power . . . by the resurrection from the dead" (Rom. 1:4). We would join the apostles who "with great power gave . . . witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 4:33).

Come with us as we join two men who had become bewildered, who felt that all their hopes had been crushed.

We join them as they walk wearily along the road from Jerusalem to Emmaus. Suddenly there is another with the little group. Let us listen to their conversation.

Something is obviously wrong here. These two men are disheartened and discouraged. They are men with . . .

I. Chilled Hearts and Sad Unbelief (vv. 13-26).

Teachers will observe that we are using the full story in Luke 24:13-35.

The two sad men, who had left Jerusalem to go to Emmaus were disciples of our Lord, and they had just been through the crushing experience of seeing Him crucified.

True, there had been some reports on the morning of this third day, that the women had seen Jesus alive (vv. 23, 24). But their hope and faith were at such low ebb that they could not—or did not—believe.

Their hearts had been chilled by the dreadful things which had taken place.

Eyes closed by unbelief; faith hindered by doubt and fear; a despondent heart slow to believe God—how very effectively these shut out the blessing of God and of His Word even to the believer. Even deeper is the darkness in which the unbeliever finds himself.

II. Warmed Hearts and Renewed Faith (vv. 27-32).

Although they did not realize it (how slow we are to appreciate our blessings!) until after Jesus was gone (v. 32), their hearts burned within them as soon as He began to expound the Scriptures to them.

What a Bible exposition that was, as Christ Himself opened all that the Scriptures taught concerning Him! Bible teachers have talked about this and it makes one's heart burn just to read their suggestions (see, for example, G. Campbell Morgan on Luke, p. 278).

The way to have a burning heart is to read God's Word, or to have it expounded by a Spirit-filled teacher or preacher.

When the heart has been warmed by the written Word and by fellowship with the living Word, our Lord Himself, the opened eye of renewed faith follows as day follows night. Now they knew the Stranger who was with them—and He was gone.

How did they know Him? We read that they knew Him in the breaking of the bread (v. 32).

Paul declared that same truth when he said, "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (I Cor. 2:14).

III. Quickened Hearts and Glad Testimony (vv. 33-35).

The seven miles (sixty furlongs), (v. 13) which had passed so slowly as they came over were now quickly retraced. They had glorious good news to bring to the disciples at Jerusalem. How swift are the feet of the one who has good tidings to bear (see Rom. 10:15)!

One wonders why so many professed Christians are so slow about carrying His message. Can it be that they do not yet know the risen Christ? For if we know Him, we will realize that "we do not well" to keep silent in a day of good tidings (II Kings 7:9).

Note in verse 34 that before they could speak, the others gave them the good news of the resurrection. It is proper and delightful that believers share spiritual blessings (Rom. 1:11, 12). That's why we come together in God's house.

Brother in the Lord, Christian sister, how long is it since you had a new and stirring experience of the presence of Christ? Not necessarily something spectacular or exciting, but a real deep, stirring spiritual experience.

God is the same. Our need is the same, yes, even deeper and greater. Why should not we seek out our Lord and let Him warm and quicken our hearts. We would then have a revival in our own hearts. Let's ask Him for it this Easter day.

The Power Of Lewis

Once more John L. Lewis is demonstrating his power to wreck the nation's economic structure at any time he chooses to do so. He is a law unto himself, able to defy a timid President and Congress with impunity.

In view of the large wage increases granted in other industries, it is obvious that the miners are justified in making similar demands. The mine operators have offered them wage increases of about 18½ cents an hour—the "sacred figure" approved by the Truman administration. But Lewis has so far refused to even discuss wages. In fact, he has refused to state specifically what he does want.

He does say he wants a 'health and welfare fund' to be used as he sees fit, and paid by the operators as a royalty on each ton of coal mined; he wants better safety methods in the mines; he wants to organize foremen and other supervisory employees, and he has made other demands, all in such vague terms as to form no tangible basis for negotiation.

While a government mediator, assigned by the Labor Department, entered the proceedings, no progress was reported immediately as a result of his efforts.

Lewis appears entirely indifferent about an early settlement of the strike, saying his miners need a "vacation." Knowing his own power and the pitiful weakness of the government in dealing with labor-management relations, Lewis can sit tight until it suits his will and pleasure to permit the nation to have needed coal.

Osculation Nipponese

Japan is reported making its first movie in which Japanese actors kiss. To many Americans acclimated to the fadeout clinch this news will come as a surprise. But it's true. Except for the few who have learned to imitate Occidentals, the Japanese have not known the custom of expressing affection by kissing.

And there are other peoples also who have their own way of doing or not doing commonplace things Americans and most Europeans take for granted. Some don't shake hands. Others are embarrassed if seen eating. Still others must never look at their mothers-in-law—origin, no doubt of that particular overworked breed of humor, the mother-in-law joke.

There is a timely world lesson here. If peoples and nations can differ so greatly in homely customs, should we be discouraged if everyone does not at once grasp such intangible concepts as democracy, progress by compromise, and tolerance of minorities?

Sidelights

Although it came from their general direction, we haven't yet heard anyone blame that tidal wave on the Russians.

Hussein Ala has been prominent in the news lately. No, Dora, this isn't a town from Alabama—it's the name of the Iranian ambassador.

Conditions in most of the alphabetical agencies—OES, OPA, CPA and others—might be properly described in sailor fashion as SNAFU. Which, in its printable form means "Situation Normal; All Fouled Up."

During a heated argument in the Senate Labor Committee recently, Chairman Murray shouted to Senator Taft: "Subside—shut your mouth, or I'll call the officers and have you put out." Then Taft did a Gromyko—just walked out.

"We have music in our automobiles, music on our streamlined trains and music in airplanes, so why not music in trolley cars?" asks R. J. Ginn, Atlanta, Ga., motorman. Ginn, who received (or took) a fine Japanese music box from Jap soldiers while stationed in China is back on the job piloting his trolley car and has installed the music box so that his passengers might enjoy Strauss waltzes and other tunes as the car rolls along.

Dean Wilfred J. Langlois, of Holy Rosary Church, East Windsor, Mich., knows his shooting irons. Awakened by thugs, who were attempting to burglarize the church, Dean Langlois rushed from the parish house in his nightgown and saw two men run for their car. With a gun in each hand, he opened fire as the two fled. Police later found the car abandoned with several bullet holes in it. A check at the church revealed no losses, but the burglars had left their tools.

Something new in the field of religious education is being developed in a series of "older people's meetings" which are to be held in various parts of the country this summer under the leadership of Miss Virginia Stafford, of the Board of Education of the Methodist Church, of Nashville, Tenn. The gatherings will be for people 65 years of age and older, and will be programs of play, worship, work and study.

In place of "Easter parades" of new clothes and banks of costly flowers in the churches, many women's church groups of all denominations are planning this year to donate gifts of canned foods or used clothing, thru their churches, for relief of the starving millions in Europe and Asia. In Boston, Mass., Dayton, Ohio, New York, N. Y., Los Angeles, Cal., Seattle, Wash., and St. Louis, Mo., the Church Committee for Relief and Reconstruction, serving all Protestant groups, has United Church Service Centers as warehouses for relief supplies. Churches or individuals may send their parcels there for shipping overseas. Roman Catholic and Jewish relief agencies are also gathering materials for overseas use.

Germany Led in Prewar Output, Use of Nitrogen

The leading prewar producers of nitrogen were Germany, Chile, Japan and the United States. German production was nearly three times that of Chile and in fact slightly exceeded the combined production of Chile, Japan and the United States. The production of these latter three varied from each other by less than 20,000 tons a year. Germany also was the largest consumer of chemical nitrogen; the United States, Japan and France followed in order. German consumption was about 70 per cent greater than that of the United States, more than double that of Japan and nearly 3 1/2 times that of France.

Germany ranked fifth with regard to the quantity of nitrogen used per unit area of arable land and fourth on the basis of arable land and permanent meadows and pastures. Consumers of more nitrogen than Germany per unit of arable land were: The Netherlands, more than twice as much; the Belgo-Luxemburg Economic union, 50 per cent more; Japan, about 40 per cent more; and Egypt, about 11 per cent more. Germany in turn used more than 12 times as much nitrogen per unit of arable land as the United States, which ranked 22nd. The Belgo-Luxemburg Economic union, the Netherlands and Japan exceeded Germany in the use of nitrogen per unit area of arable land and permanent meadows and pastures. The United States ranked 13th in this category.

Good Management Brings High Farm Woodlot Return

Cash returns from farm woodlots of $1.33 per hour for labor, $8.50 per acre or 1 1/2 per cent interest on capital investment can be expected when the woodland is properly and efficiently managed, Herbert A. Flueck, state conservationist for the soil conservation service, said. This was the average net income realized by 25 "high income group" operators out of a total of 89 farmers in Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota who kept records on their woodlot operations the past six years.

Records represent the first large-scale source of information on just how much a farmer can expect to profit from his woodland. Net incomes of 39 farmers in the "medium" group and the remaining 25 in the "low" group were correspondingly lower but still high enough to prove that farmers can profit from their woodlot operations, Flueck said. Some management conclusions drawn from the records are: (1) Ordinary farm woodlots produced surprisingly high returns when the operator fully utilized his own labor in getting out wood products. (2) Growing wood is important but utilization is more important. When farmers harvest posts, logs, fuel and other products for sale, they make higher incomes. (3) The more a farmer works in his woodlot, the higher the net return.

Chemical Warfare

The chemical warfare service grew from a temporary expedient in World War I to meet the challenge of German introduction of gas, flamethrowers and aerial incendiaries. The CWS was formally established July 1, 1920, under the provisions of the National Defense act of that year, and is unique among the branches of the army in that it is identified with its own material from the test tube to the battlefield. It conceives, manufactures and uses its own weapons. Though its basic items were designed originally for gas warfare, many of them have been put to highly effective current use. Its bombs now are carrying fire instead of gas to the enemy, other containers release smoke in lieu of lethal fumes and the chemical mortar fires incendiary, smoke and high explosive instead of gas.

Tax Diversions

Oregon in 1919 was the first state to tax gasoline for highway purposes and others rapidly adopted this means of raising revenue. In 1925, this tax was used for something else for the first time. Up to 1932, raising the gas tax was nominal, but in the past 12 years, the states have been dipping in more and more until the staggering total of more than $2,000,000,000 was reached. Figures for 1943 show $155,455,000 diverted from a net total receipt of $1,108,849,000 which came from motor fuel taxes, motor vehicle fees and the like. Among the states making the greatest diversions were New York, California, Florida, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Georgia and Illinois.

London Bridge

There are 15 passenger bridges over the Thames in London county. Oldest and most famous is the so-called London bridge which, though frequently rebuilt, has occupied about the original site of Roman days. It was London's only bridge over the Thames until 1750. The historic bridge, razed in 1831, had been the first of London's stone bridges. It served the city for more than six centuries. Over it crossed the hundreds of Canterbury pilgrims, since before Chaucer's time. Holiday crowds passed over it to the Globe and other theaters, and to the bear-baitings in Southwark. It was the gateway into London for travelers landing a' channel ports,

Some Like Them Bold

By ARTHUR M. YORK
McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

WALTER GATES sat straight as a rod, although it was nearly four hours since he had started waiting to see the managing editor. He was poised hopefully on the edge of the chair, as if he expected each minute might bring back the copy boy with the news that Mr. Pool was ready to see him about the reporting job.

But, instead, the photographer came around the corner for the fourth time from the direction of the clacking city room. Walt stopped him. "You'll never get to see the old man sitting here, Matey," the photographer informed him. "He hates appointments. Funny that way."

"Then how does anyone ever see him?" Walt inquired. His forehead was furrowed deeply, up to the line of his thick blond hair. He explained he had had a little reporting experience before Army service. Now that he was discharged, he wanted to get back into newspaper work. He shifted his weight from one foot to the other, proving to himself again that the artificial legs they pass out these days are no handicap.

The photographer stepped closer to Walt and spoke softly from the corner of his mouth. He suggested Walt break in on the chief. "But don't let on you know who he is," the photographer schemed. "I know a guy who got a job that way, only he didn't know he was talking to Pool, see?"

"But I couldn't do that," Walt protested.

"What's to stop you? Pool's a quiet guy, but he likes 'em bold."

"... But I think the paper is too neutral."

As Walter descended to the pressroom where the chief was, the acrid odor of the etching acid reached him. He had always thought it displeasing. But now he recognized it as part of the nostalgia every enthusiastic reporter has for a newspaper office. It was akin to the unkempt appearance of city rooms and the crippled typewriters about which the reporters always complain.

Walt casually observed the blur of newsprint threading through the presses and, pretending he belonged there, from the corner of his eye he hunted for Mr. Pool. All the men wore the handmade boxlike caps which most pressmen fashion for themselves from a piece of newsprint paper—all except one.

Walt looked at him more closely. He stood with his hands behind his back, doing nothing but observe moaning machines. He fitted exactly the photographer's description of Mr. Pool. He wore large black-rimmed glasses and his graying hair was parted far to one side. Walt strolled casually up to him and they watched the presses together. After waiting for Mr. Pool to speak first, Walt ventured: "There's no end to the excitement of seeing the paper go to press, is there?" He had to shout to be heard. The man merely glanced at Walt coolly over the dark rims of his glasses.

"I like the Post," Walt resumed. "It's a good solid paper. Lot of tradition behind it. But..." here's where he took the photographer's cue. He searched self-consciously for ideas that were not his own. "... But I think the paper is too neutral. It never gets excited about anything. Know what I mean?"

There was still no remark from Mr. Pool.

"It ought to have definite policies. Ought to guide the thinking of its readers on important topics."

"Yeah?" The man looked Walt sternly up and down.

"I think the Post needs new blood," Walt went on. "Young blood." He considered giving himself as an example, but decided against being too obvious. "Of course it's the men at the top who count where policies are concerned. Perhaps the Post needs a new managing editor." He was sorry as soon as the bold words had passed his lips. ut his comments had brought the man's head around with a jerk.

But now, with Mr. Pool glaring at him in apparent anger, Walt could only add weakly, "What do you think?"

"I think you're batty as a loon," Walt felt his cheeks burn. He sought some way to escape as gracefully as possible. "But I wouldn't know," the man added. He brought his hands from behind his back and placed a boxlike paper cap on his head. "I'm only a pressman myself."

Sane Men

Early in March, national press wires carried a story from Washington to the farthest corners of the country, about 16 members of Congress who said they thought the national budget should and could be balanced. They were half-and-half senators and representatives. Seven were Democrats and nine were Republicans and they made it plain by signing a written statement. They are:

SENATE	HOUSE
Byrd	Cox
Bridges	Doughton
Taft	Halleck
Tydings	Knutson
Vandenberg	Martin
Walsh	Taber
Wherry	Whittington
White	Woodruff

My hat is off to these realistic statesmen. I hope their ranks soon embrace the entire Congress.

Our Debts are Huge

America's next chance to have a balanced budget will be in the fiscal year of 1947. It starts July 1, 1946 and ends June 30, 1947. The United States is already in debt for everything it has. This does not mean all the country is worth, but it does mean an amount equivalent to the value of everything the people of this nation have saved since their ancestors started saving.

The national debt is 280 billion dollars. That figure approximates the value of all the farms and farm improvements in the country, all the city real estate and city improvements, all the manufacturing plants in the nation, all the bank accounts, and all the insurance policies, all added up.

Starting Over Again

The United States stands now where some pioneer settler of colonial days might have stood if his log cabin had burned with everything of food and clothing inside. Closer to home: The energetic young family man with two children, who has just finished paying for an $8,000 residence, can depend on starting now to buy it all over again in taxes, paying no more than his rightful share of the national debt which is $2,000 per man, woman and child.

Tax on this enormous debt will be a new, yearly expense for our government. It will be a big one too. Interest on debt alone will cost Uncle Sam more than he ever raised by taxes in any single pre-war year. If there ever was a time when America's common people deserved a balanced budget so they could look frankly and boldly at the truth of debts and taxes, it is now.

Fighting Has Ceased

There are ways to start balancing the national budget and the sooner it starts the better. The war is over and war bureaus can be reduced in size and cost. The number of federal employees can be cut more than most of us imagine. Deficit spending (spending what we do not have) can be stopped also if we really set our heads to do it. By doing this we can save what we do have left.

With all savings gone, we have something left. The settler whose cabin burned had his energy and his good name left. The home owner who must start buying all over again in taxes, still has his credit and a job we hope. Just so the United States, with prestige among nations and a sound economy, has something left; something of value that must be preserved.

Uncle Sam Says

This fool's cap fits none of my nephews, least of all you, who learned during the war that the easy way to save part of your pay was to sign up on the payroll savings plan. I am visiting in Philadelphia today. Philadelphia is the home of the Liberty Bell and Benjamin Franklin, who said a penny saved is a penny earned. If Franklin were alive, he would revise this statement to $3 saved in U. S. Savings Bonds are $4 in your pockets ten years hence. Franklin would agree with me that this fool's cap fits only those persons who think because the war is over it is no longer profitable for them to save by buying Bonds.

Breakfast Menus Ain't What They Used to Be

Today's homemakers still agree with the editors of Practical Housekeeping, published in 1884, that "plucky housewives" should "master their work instead of allowing it to master them." However, the conception of what the plucky housewife is supposed to master has changed radically. Let us compare Practical Housekeeping instructions for a summer breakfast with the menu prepared by a modern hostess.

The 1884 homemaker is directed to set 10 places, with two reserve covers for "accidental guests." The first course is melon which she serves herself. There are exactly 16 other dishes of foods and condiments, including radishes, lettuce, fancy biscuits, dressing, corn muffins, powdered sugar, butter, pickles, dish custard, molasses or maple syrup, oatmeal, loaf or granulated sugar, cake, cold dry toast and white syrup. Foods she is supposed to serve piping hot are broiled mackerel, buttered toast, flannel cakes, whole potatoes and, of course, coffee. If this is the morning meal, imagine her preparations for Thanksgiving or Sunday dinner!

The menu for the breakfast 1945 style is easily prepared and served by the hostess. It includes fruit juice, flannan haddie, corn bread and hot coffee. The fruit juice is poured into generous-sized glasses at the table or is served to each guest as he arrives. Attractive dishes and colorful linens make a gay, but simple, table.

Observe Rules for Safety in Hunting

Practice of the principles of safety in hunting in fields and coverts will save many lives and sportsmen should obey the ten commandments of safety. Here they are:

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the cardinal rule of gun safety.
2. Carry only empty guns, taken down or with the action open, into your automobile, camp and home.
3. Always be sure that the barrel and action are clear of obstructions.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot.
7. Never leave your gun unattended unless you unload it first.
8. Never climb a tree or a fence with a loaded gun.
9. Never shoot at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water.
10. Do not mix gunpowder and alcohol.

Tomato Container

Tomatoes have been considered a good source of vitamin C for many years but recently there has been some controversy over the best type of container to use and save vitamin C. Recent tests show that it is not the container, but the air in the container which affects the vitamin C loss. The less air, the less destruction of vitamin C by oxidation. The container which allows for the least headspace (air space at the top) is best for retaining the vitamin. Likewise the canning method which drives the most air out of the juice conserves the most vitamin C. The old method of heating the juice in an open kettle, pouring it into jars, and sealing without further processing is not only risky from the standpoint of spoilage, but is wasteful of the vitamin content. It permits more air to be canned with the juice than when the hot juice is poured into the jar leaving one-fourth inch headspace, and processed in boiling water for 15 minutes.

Real Jade

Real jade is composed of one of two compounds, jadeite or nephrite. Jadeite is superior, the finest being white and translucent. Jadeite, whose finest form is known as gem jade, is composed chiefly of alumina and soda. Nephrite, composed of lime and magnesia, is less valuable, but in its best quality is also white. Lustre of both is dull and waxlike with few reflecting surfaces. The rarer jadeite can be distinguished by its specific gravity, which is heavier than that of nephrite. Both materials are very hard and feel oily to the touch. Jade is often discolored by chemical elements in the soil producing green, yellow, amber, blue and black stones. Jade with rust-colored veins running through it is called tomb jade, as it is generally found in tombs and has been discolored by organic decomposition.

Brush Gums

Brushing massages the gums, promotes circulation of the blood in them and gives to them a healthy firmness. This massage of the gums produces the greatest benefit if the brush is moved vigorously from high up on the gum surface across the gums and teeth, pulling the brush down when cleaning the upper teeth and rubbing the brush with a firm upward motion across the lower gums and teeth. This is the chief reason dental hygienists insist that teeth be brushed at least once a day and preferably oftener. The chewing of tough, crisp foods also tends to keep the gums healthy and teeth strong.

Governor Dwight H. Green has received the Silver Award, highest civilian citation of the U. S. Treasury department, in recognition of his work in support of the sale of war bonds and stamps from 1941 through 1945.

Illinois winter wheat came thru the cold months in good shape, and its condition is rated at 94, second highest in the last 25 years, according to the April report of state and U. S. departments of agriculture. On a somewhat smaller acreage than last year, present indications are for a crop of 23.8 million bushels, compared to 25.5 million bushels last year. Farm stocks of wheat are only 1.3 million bushels, the smallest on record for this time of year.

Illinois farm stocks of corn as of April 1, are estimated at 145 million bushels. Last year at this time they were 175 million bushels.

Approximately one out of every seven deaths in Illinois last year was due to cancer, according to Dr. Roland R. Cross, state director of public health. The total number of deaths attributed to cancer during the year was 12,161.

Dr. Cross pointed out that early diagnosis and treatment of cancer is vitally important. He stated that 95 per cent of the cases of lip or skin cancer can be cured by appropriate treatment in the early stages of the disease, and that there is hope for 75 per cent of cases of cancer of the breast and uterus if given early attention. He issued his statement by way of encouraging the American Cancer Society's current drive for funds.
