Thought for the week:

God is interested in cleaning up this world. There are two ways open to God to do this: THE ONE is the cleansing of judgment, and the OTHER is the cleansing of redemption. God's present method is the cleansing of redemption which is described in I John 1:17: "But if we walk in the light as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth us from all sin!" That is God's method for cleansing the soul.

Murdock Coal Mine Shaft Down 50 Feet

(Tuscola Review)

Work on digging the shaft of the Bell and Zoller coal mine at Murdock is progressing rapidly with 35 men at work the past three weeks. The shaft is down to 50 feet and going according to schedule. The company figures on getting to the coal at the bottom of the 220 foot shaft within the next two months.

After the mine has been developed, there will be plenty of coal for sale for all who need it. However the company will be operating on a small scale during the winter and there will be some coal for sale around the first of December.

When the mine is in full operation about 400 men will be employed.

Plan Special Auto Races During Fall

Plans are now completed between officials of the American Legion Speedway at Fairbury, Ill., where midget auto races are presented every Wednesday evening, and Manager Art Zuiker, for special features to be introduced on the programs each week.

Zuiker also drew up plans for the Farmer City Speedway which he also manages, for the regular Thursday night programs of races held there.

Novelty races and an Australian Pursuit race is to be introduced. Plans call for a race during the Fairbury fair to be held on Friday night, August 23rd. No races will be held on Wednesday night, August 21st, due to the horse show.

Farmer City fair will open with races on Labor Day night and also feature the doodle-bugs on Thursday night. All races start at 8:30 p. m. over the dustless speedways.

Thomas Henson Dies On Sunday Evening

Thomas F. Henson, local retired carpenter, who had been a patient at the Dunn nursing home in Champaign, since last November, died Sunday evening, July 28, 1946. He was 80 years old.

Mr. Henson, who was born Sept. 4, 1865, at Clarksville, Tenn., spent most of his life here. His wife died in 1931.

Surviving are four children, Clark Henson, Broadlands; Virgil Henson, Villa Grove; Avery Henson, Urbana; Mrs. Flora Maxfield, Villa Grove.

Funeral services were held at Dicks Bros. funeral home here on Tuesday afternoon, with Rev. W. M. Robinson, pastor of the local U. B. church, officiating.

Music was furnished by a quartet composed of Mesdames Lillie Bowman and Betty Dicks, and Messrs. O. P. Witt and Charles A. Smith, who sang "Going Down the Valley" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," with Mrs. O. P. Witt accompanying.

Casket bearers were Messrs. Fred Mohr, Roy Bergfield, Ortha Gore, Lonnie Zantow, George Cook and Thos. Bergfield.

Interment was in the Fairfield cemetery, with Dicks Bros. in charge.

Mrs. Edna Struck Is Hostess To G.T. Club

Mrs. Edna Struck was hostess to members of the G. T. Club, Monday afternoon, with 20 members present.

Mrs. Hilda Seider, president, conducted the business meeting, after which the popular game of "500" was enjoyed, with Mrs. Bertha Cook holding high score for the afternoon.

The hostess served refreshments of apple pie alamode and coffee.

Members present were Mesdames Minnie Anderson, Rosa Smith, Hilda Seider, Jennie Nohren, Delia Nohren, Ida Messman, Freda Maxwell, Neva Frick, Juanita Eckerty, Helen Eckerty, Bertha Cook, Eva Boyd, Lillie Bowman, Jessie Bergfield, Edith Woolverton, Irene Witt, Helene Sy, Lorraine Mohr, Irene Wiese and Edna Struck.

Mrs. Gladys McClelland will be hostess to the next club.

JESUS AND THE SABBATH

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:8; Mark 2:23-28; Matthew 12:9-13.
MEMORY SELECTION—This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it.—Psalm 118:24.

"The Sabbath was made for man," and was ordained of God for the good of man's body and soul. It was intended to be a day of glad fellowship with the Lord.

Since the Sabbath—the seventh day—was essentially one of rest and worship, the principles which surrounded it and directed its life may be applied to our day of rest, which is the first day of the week—the Lord's day.

That word "rest" sounds a little strange in this busy world of ours, and yet it is an important one. It means quiet for the struggling one, calm for the troubled, repose for the weary, cessation of labor for the worn-out one.

God in his infinite wisdom saw that without rest man would soon destroy himself, and he made provision for one day in seven when labor should cease and man should be free for that recreation of soul and body which should fit him for the labor of the week.

I. A Day of Holiness (Exod. 20:8).

God gave his people a holy day to balance up their days of labor and to bring blessing to their souls. On that day he decreed that they should come apart from their labors, turn from secular interest and turn their hearts and minds to the unseen and the eternal. Man would become so engrossed in the things of this world that he would soon forget; therefore, God commands him to stop and worship. That should be sufficient to cause his people to "remember" the day "to keep it holy."

Notice that the day of rest was to be not only for the family, but also for servants and for visitors. The employer who unnecessarily operates his factory or office on Sunday violates this commandment. Note also that the man who is to rest on the seventh day is supposed to work on the six days. Some neglect to do both.

This matter of keeping the Lord's day holy is one which has tremendous implications in the lives of our children. Many men and women who have had built into their own characters the stalwart virtues nurtured by family attendance at divine worship have not only forgotten their own continuing need, but are destroying the interest of their children in church attendance.

It is serious enough to go astray in one's own life, but to lead one's children astray is an appalling responsibility. Let's keep the Lord's day as a holy day.

II. A Day of Helpfulness (Mark 2:23-28).

The formalists of Christ's day, the Pharisees, had overlooked the heart of God's law and the holy living which it was intended to produce, and had bound up even the observance of the sabbath (which was intended to be a day of rest and gladness) in such a mass of technical "thou shalt not's" that it was a day of fear.

The accusations against the disciples because they had taken and eaten grain was not on the ground that they had stolen, for the law (Deut. 23:25) guaranteed that right to the one who passed through his neighbor's field. The Pharisees contended, however, that the disciples had worked on the Sabbath in picking and hulling the grain.

God's laws are helpful laws, and it is only when men pervert them, or add to them their own traditions and interpretations, that they become burdensome to anyone who is God-fearing and obedient.

III. A Day of Healing (Matt. 12:9-13).

Jesus made it clear that healing of the body (yes, and of the soul) was most appropriate on the Sabbath day; in fact, that is the very day for it.

The healing of the man with the withered arm revealed that back of the Pharisees' professed concern for the Sabbath was a real hatred for Christ. It is an appalling thing that in the house of worship on the very Sabbath day, these men, outwardly so religious, were plotting against our Lord.

Jesus cuts across human hypocrisy and hatred to declare that the true keeping of the Sabbath is to do the work of God. No work of necessity (like plucking the grain) or of mercy (like healing the withered arm) is ever out of place on the day of rest.

A word of caution is needed, for some have sought to interpret this Scripture as providing biblical ground for doing all sorts of things on their day of rest. That day is for man's good, not for his destruction. His greatest good is served by rest, worship, spiritual development, Christian fellowship, and the doing of deeds of necessity and mercy.

The desecration of the Lord's day in our time is a serious matter. Let us not contribute to it.

Soviet Envoy Talks

In his first interview with an American reporter since arriving in Washington, the new Russian ambassador to the United States, Nikolai V. Novikov, declared that "there is no basis whatever for war between the Soviet Union and the U. S." Some other excerpts from his statements follow:

"I know this—that the people of the United States do not want to wage war against the Soviet Union or any other country. I know the Soviet Union will never start a war against the United States or anyone else. The differences between us must be ironed out. I believe they will be ironed out.

One highly needs mention that the government and peoples of the Soviet Union do not wish any clashes with anyone, including the U. S. A., our ally of yesterday in the struggle against the common enemy."

The only complaint expressed by Ambassador Novikov in his interview concerned what he considered the failure of the Western Powers to give Russia sufficient property from western Germany as reparations. He intimated that in this respect the Potsdam agreement had not been carried out fully by the United States, Britain and France. That he said, would facilitate reconstruction of the devastated territories of the U. S. S. R.

Obviously the answer to this would be that Russia has in many respects violated the letter and spirit of the Potsdam agreement regarding German control and reparations, and has taken an unwarranted amount of property from eastern Germany, Australia and other areas for her own use.

Mr. Novikov's statements were conciliatory enough, and it is doubtless true that Russia does not want war, but, as Mr. Churchill pointed out several months ago, Moscow wants "the fruits of war," of which the lion's share already has been taken.

Sidelights

Why do so many couples, after living together over a long period of time, begin to look alike?

We don't know how they do it. We've tried to do as much and have failed miserably. Scientists say that ants are the hardest workers in the world, but somehow they find time to attend all the picnics.

We learn that there is a belief among Hungarian peasants that to be sat upon by a bear will cure rheumatism. It is our belief that if the bear that does the sitting is large enough it will cure any and all diseases forever.

We wonder if those of you who regularly received catalogs from Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward have noticed that Ward's catalog is about an inch wider and an inch longer than Sears. We wonder if you ever gave a thought to why Sears did not make their catalog as large—they could easily, and generally Sears' catalog has many more pages in it than has Ward's. We have never given it any thought until today when we learned that Sears have a reason for maintaining the smaller page size. We are told that the reason is that a household with both books is likely to park them together and that Sears' catalog, being smaller, will always be on top. Some folks think of everything!

Mrs. Arthur M. Schlesinger, Mrs. Arthur Holcombe, Mrs. Chao Yuen-ren, and Mrs. Horace Ford, all of Boston, Mass., are among the leaders of a group of the city's women engaged in collecting books to restock the ruined libraries of some of China's Christian universities. Six thousand books have already been shipped, and as many more are going eventually. The volumes include dictionaries, encyclopedias, and modern treatises on medicine, the social sciences, literature, history, the fine arts, public health, religion. On reaching Shanghai the books are distributed by China's Minister of Education. Individuals may contribute through the United China Relief.

"Are there students from overseas in your community?" asks Miss Edith E. Lowry, secretary of the Home Missions Council of North America, in a message to the Protestant church women of the United States. Over 10,000 have come to the United States for technical training in colleges and in industrial plants. From India, China, Egypt, Latin America and other countries they have come. Already some have returned to their native lands embittered and hating America because of the treatment they received. They are lonesome, strange, discriminated against, and they judge America by their contacts. They are "unofficial ambassadors." If every student could be entertained in a Christian home and have continuous contact with these friends, goodwill and understanding would result both here and in lands across the sea.

Interesting Notes

When one associates with vice, it is but one step from companionship to slavery.

Household Hints

Keep summer curtains clean by wiping screens often with a damp cloth.

If milk is heated before it is beaten into mashed potatoes, the potatoes will be fluffy and light.

A pail of water in a room freshly painted will help remove the paint odor.

Cook vegetables in little water and do not throw that water down the sink. Put it in the soup pot, farm nutritionists say.

When sewing on the new plastic materials, you will find it much better to substitute paper clips for pins. Avoid basting these materials when possible.

Your broom can easily be transformed into a dust mop by slipping an outing flannel case with a draw string around the broom. The cases are easily fastened on and easily removed for washing.

Soap is still scarce and likely to remain so for quite a while. To conserve the valuable item, scraps of soap bars may be put into a jar, with water added, and the resulting soap jelly will be useful.

Homemakers will find it pays to set aside 15 minutes each day to organize work plans for the day—the meals, the cleaning activities, some time to guide the children's play, a period of relaxation.

Calendar pictures which would otherwise be discarded when out of date can be made into picture puzzles for the children by cutting them into pieces. Make large pieces for very small children. They enjoy piecing picture puzzles together.

Accumulation of useless papers and magazines causes housewives much worry. Don't let used magazines lie around to catch dust and take up space. Pass them on regularly to hospitals, recreation centers and other places needing reading material.

If your furniture is upholstered in wool, don't dress it up for the summer in slipcovers and forget to care for it. Frequent brushing and cleaning of the wool upholstery will keep moths away. If your furniture is covered, it is wise to take a look on the under side occasionally and brush away dust and spots which might provide nests for insects waiting to hatch out.

U. of I. Investment Pays Like Gold Mine

The largest and richest gold mine in the United States is the Homestake Mine, at Lead, S. D. It is a part of the wealth of this nation, but only a part, for there are other kinds of gold mines.

The University of Illinois is a gold mine. Year in and year out, for more years than most of us have lived, this University has paid to the people of Illinois greater tangible dividends, directly traceable to its activities, than the Homestake Mine ever paid its stockholders in its most profitable year.

Out of this University gold mine have come hundreds of nuggets, some large and rich, some small but also rich, and all of them have put real money in your pockets as citizens of Illinois. Out of its research results have come dividends in money, and even greater dividends of spiritual values which cannot be measured in dollars and cents.—Park Livingston, President, U. of I. Board of Trustees.

VALERIE hummed softly as she spooned the coffee into the silex and plugged it in. She was thinking—thinking hard. She knew what was wrong with Monte, but she didn't know what to do about it. The sports writers were calling him a hoary veteran, and the arm they had so short a time before proclaimed as the "greatest" in baseball, they now glibly referred to as "Monte Cleveland's six-inning flipper."

Monte crumpled the paper and strode angrily about the room. "So I've got a six-inning flipper, have I?" he snarled. "Leo is a softhearted old woman for starting me today, is he? Just wait until this afternoon, I'll show 'em a six-inning flipper! And I'll let 'em look at it for a full nine frames, too!"

Valerie was careful that no hint of sympathy should creep into her voice when she said quietly, "I'll wait, honey. And I'll be right there when you show them."

"Atta girl!" He caught her to him in a quick hug of appreciation. "It will help a lot just to know that after the game. You'd better be early, though, there'll be a mob out to watch this play-off. You don't go for that junk, do you, Val?" he asked. "You don't believe the old soup bone is gone . . . that I'm washed up with the game . . . that Leo is a softhearted old . . .?"

"I don't even read it," she interrupted with a lie. "You know your arm is still good, Leo knows you are still a starting pitcher, and after today the sports writers will be telling the world about it."

"You're mighty well right they will!" Monte said between clenched teeth. "What do those guys expect a ball player to do when he reaches 38, hang up his glove and collapse into a wheel chair?"

Monte read the few lines.

But Monte Cleveland knew he was whistling in the dark. Even now there was a painful twinge in his shoulder. And he knew that after two or three innings his arm would be numb. By the end of the sixth he would be tossing them up so any school kid could find them.

As Monte walked toward the mound, Valerie waved her little blue hat at him from the first row in the upper stands.

He pitched carefully. At the end of four innings only 12 batters had faced him. His own team had batted twice through the order and were out in front 2-0.

In the fifth he was forced to bear down all the way, and as he walked to the bench he felt that every ounce of strength had left him. His shoulder was thumping and his arm hung like a piece of lead pipe.

"Here's a note your wife sent down," the coach said, handing him a torn piece of score card.

Monte read the few lines, ripped the paper into bits and flung them away. His eyes were stormy. He looked into the stands. The blue hat was gone. He pulled the peak of his cap low, stepped in on the rubber and sent his famous fireball sizzling across the inside corner.

Monte got set for the next pitch. "Goin' into the sixth and she pulls out to have a cocktail with a friend!" he muttered to himself. "That's O. K. with me!" The crashing impact of his delivery rocked the catcher, Gabe Hart, back on his heels. Monte stabbed the ball out of the air, wound up and whipped a vicious outside hook past the batter for the third strike.

In the last three innings Monte made but 11 pitches—pitches that brought a hundred thousand fans to their feet to scream themselves hoarse.

Valerie was waiting alone at the south gate, and Monte stopped short, astonished. "Where's your friend?" he asked. "You missed a good game."

"Oh, Monte," she said softly, coming close to him. "I'm so happy! I . . . I think I'm going to cry."

"What's the idea of running out on me?" he demanded. "I'm out there biting my tongue out with every heave, and you . . ."

"I didn't run out on you, sweetheart," Val said. "I only moved to the lower stand and took off my hat. I sent you that note to make you fighting mad. You see, honey, as I watched you through the first innings, it occurred to me that the sixth had come to be a bad mental hazard for you, and I felt sure that if you were to get downright mad . . . oh, darling, you were wonderful!"

Smile Awhile

That man, said Smith, came to this town 20 years ago, bought a hand-barrow and began collecting rags. What do you think he's worth today?

I couldn't guess, confessed Jones.

Nothing, said Smith. And he still owes for the barrow.

Hadn't you better go and tell your master? said the British motorist to the farmer's boy, who stood looking at the load of hay upset in the lane by a collision.

He knows, replied the boy. Knows? How can he know? 'Cos he's under the hay!

A lady, after 30 years, decided to join the church. As the deacons plunged her into the river the first time, she gasped: "I believe."

On the second, she chattered: "I believe."

A third time, gulping for air, she sputtered: "I believe."

One of the elders interposed: You believe what, Sister?

She eyed him savagely: "I believe you stinkers are trying to drown me."

An Arkansas farmer was driving down the road with a wagon load of barnyard fertilizer. A tourist from New York chanced to stop him to inquire directions. After obtaining the information desired, the tourist inquired of the farmer what he had in the wagon.

Manure, said the farmer, "go in" to spread it on my rhubarb."

Well, I'll be darned, said the tourist, "and my wife laughs at me for spreading butter on my pie."

Drug Research By Univ. of Ill. To New Fields

Morton Arboretum Becomes Site Of Largest Medical Plant Study in U. S.

Research on the cultivation of drug producing plants by University of Illinois scientists is being greatly expanded by the transfer of these activities from the Des Plaines Agricultural Experiment Station to a new 51-acre tract adjacent to the Morton Arboretum near Lisle.

Ten acres have been purchased from the Board of Directors of the Arboretum and an additional 41 acres have been made available on a long-term lease. Construction of buildings, which eventually will include classrooms, laboratories, greenhouses, drying rooms and living quarters, is scheduled to get underway this summer.

With these new facilities, the drug plant investigations of the University's College of Pharmacy will be by far the largest and most intensive of any in the United States.

Research on the growing of drug plants was begun by University pharmacists in 1942 when the nation was faced with a severe, war-created drug shortage. America has always imported most of its raw drugs from Central Europe and the Far East because American agriculture could not compete with the peasant and coolie labor of these areas. Of the $180,000,000 worth of medicines, insecticides and cosmetics used in this country every year, only about $10,000,000 worth comes from American production.

The wartime researches, on a two-acre tract at the Des Plaines Station, were designed to relieve the immediate shortage of drugs and to stimulate American drug agriculture so that the nation would never again be wholly dependent on other countries for these essential products.

During the war emergency, the experimental plots not only produced a large proportion of the digitalis, belladonna, stramonium, atropine and other drugs used in the University's hospitals in Chicago, but also developed superior strains of some drug plants which give some promise of competing successfully with imports from foreign countries. Digitalis grown on the experimental plots had twice the standard strength, and hyoscyamus four times.

The enlarged research facilities at the Morton Arboretum will permit more extensive study of problems of the commercial growth of drug plants, market demands, plant types, soils, plant breeding and drug extraction and standardization. Part of the teaching of pharmacy students will be carried on at the Arboretum location, and exhibition plots of many kinds of drug plants will be developed for the benefit of the public.

U. I. Refresher Work For M. D.'s, Dentists

To meet the needs of veteran medical and dental officers the University of Illinois Colleges in Chicago have launched a large-scale program of refresher courses. Over 200 army and navy veterans have already taken advantage of this program.

The University's College of Medicine is offering a series of three-month refresher courses for physicians and surgeons who plan to return to general practice. A 36-week postgraduate course in the basic medical sciences provides additional training for the specialties and prepares doctors for hospital residencies.

In the College of Dentistry a series of three-month courses will cover the entire field of clinical and pre-clinical dentistry as well as significant advances of the war years.

Nearly one-third of the Chicago colleges' 1,000 undergraduate students are enrolled under the G. I. Bill of Rights. Eighty-nine former servicemen have enrolled in the College of Pharmacy for the special summer course which will enable them to catch up with regular classes this fall.

Is Your Insurance Equal To Value of Your Home?

"Would I be willing to sell my property for the amount of insurance I am carrying on it?"

Because of the average increase of 50 per cent in construction costs since 1940, this question should be used as a test by any property owner, according to the Bureau of Economic and Business Research at the University of Illinois, which points out that most property now is definitely under-insured.

Illinois State Capitol News

Free admission to the grounds will be the rule for the first three days of the Illinois State fair, which opens Friday, Aug. 9. Beginning Monday, Aug. 12 and continuing for the remainder of the fair, admission will be 30 cents, tax included.

Pointing out that there is no statute authorizing the state department of agriculture to act in controlling weeds, Arnold P. Benson, state director of agriculture, declared that present Illinois laws give town boards, county commissioners, and city and village officials authority and responsibility in the matter of eradicating weeds.

Ideal conditions of heat and moisture during the first half of July boosted the already high prospect for the 1946 Illinois corn crop. A special report by state and federal departments of agriculture estimates the total yield for the state at 488,376,000 bushels, as of July 15, an average of 54 bushels an acre. The July 1 estimate was 461,244,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 391,390,000 bushels.

Action Provides Housing

Many communities have moved on their own initiative to solve acute housing shortages.

Illustrative of direct community action is an organization set up by the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce, known as the Des Moines Housing Corporation. This organization has provided homes for several hundred veterans' families through the use of Fort Des Moines.

In another Iowa community, the Spencer Chamber of Commerce financed a $100,000 housing program to provide veterans with houses for around $4,000 each.
