PAUL TRAINS FOR HIS LIFE WORK

LESSON TEXT—Acts 9:19b-22; 11:25, 26; Galatians 1:17-24
MEMORY SELECTION—And straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God.—Acts 9:20.

The regenerating grace of God had made Paul into a new man, one who now had no greater delight than telling others of the redeeming grace of God.

In preparation for that fuller ministry which was to follow, Paul first gave witness in the place where he had been persecuting the Christians, in fact, in the city to which he was bound when the Lord met him. But now instead of breathing out threats and violence he met these former associates and friends with the new message of the gospel.

He had to meet them sooner or later, and it was well that he met them now. A clean break with his past makes a man ready for future service.

I. Paul Faces His Past (Acts 9:19b-22).

What a surprise it must have been for those persecutors of the Christians at Damascus to find that the one to whom they had looked for leadership was now a Christian. What a testimony that was—right to the point!

"Straightway"—what a good word to apply to the servant of the Lord. Paul did not hesitate to declare his faith in Christ, to proclaim that the One who had redeemed him was able to save others.

It is the normal and proper expression of Christian faith to give testimony to others. That should be true of every believer. With Paul there was the added element of his call to preach, for God had ordained that he should be his chosen vessel for that purpose (Acts 9:15).

Paul's message was Christ. He proved to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ (v. 22), the One of whom their Old Testament Scriptures spake and for whom they professed to be looking. He declared him to be the Son of God (v. 20).

They were unwilling to accept the message. They were "amazed" at Paul and "confounded" by the truth he proclaimed, but they rejected both it and him, and he had to escape for his life.

Although our lesson only indirectly refers to it (see Gal. 1:17, 18), it should also be noted that Paul went up to Jerusalem before he went to Antioch, as indicated in our next portion of Scripture.

There he faced suspicion on the part of the believers, who knew him as their enemy.

Having faced his past we now see that

II. Paul Faces His Future (Acts 11:25, 26).

He was God's chosen instrument to bear his name to the Gentiles (see Acts 9:15), and at the invitation of Barnabas he came up from his home city of Tarsus to minister at Antioch, the place which now became his real spiritual home, and the center from which his great missionary enterprise was carried out.

It is interesting to note how this came about in the providence of God. Persecution spread the believers abroad (Acts 11:19), and like the scattered brands of a beaten fire they carried the flame of Christianity far and wide. Thus the gospel came to Antioch, the third greatest city in the world of that day. A revival broke out and Barnabas was sent from Jerusalem to be of help.

Good and spiritual man that he was (Acts 19:23, 24), Barnabas did nothing to hinder this work of God, but admonished the people to "cleave unto the Lord"; that is, to follow him closely. Would that all spiritual advisers had such a spirit and such sound judgment.

He was also wise in sensing his need of help. So he went after Paul, the very man to teach these young Christians and to lead them out into a radiant and abundant life for the Lord. Here it was that the beautiful name of "Christian" was first used.

III. Paul Faces His Lord (Gal. 1:17-24).

Many years after he had been called to Antioch, Paul wrote this letter to the Galatians to warn them against Judaizing teachers and to urge them to hold fast to salvation by faith. He declared this to be a message which he received from God and not from men.

Before Paul went out to preach and teach he went up into Arabia to be alone with the Lord, as he took what we might call his postgraduate course in theology. He learned—alone with God.

His life had been transformed. His attitudes had been completely changed. His thinking about Christ was diametrically opposite to his former beliefs. He needed time alone with God to prepare himself for the stormy but triumphant years ahead.

Roosevelt's Estate

Figures recently made public show that the late President Roosevelt left an estate appraised at the gross value of $1,940,000, nearly one-half of which was inherited from his mother, and much of the remainder from his father.

The estate consisted largely of real estate, stocks, bonds, cash, and about $100,000 worth of personal effects. The latter included his valuable stamp collection, which was appraised at $79,267, but actually brought $212,847 when sold at auction in New York a few months ago.

Mr. Roosevelt's investments were distributed among some 50 corporations, which included oil, banks, railroads, chemicals, tobacco, food industries, electric manufacturing, retail stores and utilities. He even had a small investment in a utilities holding company that was subject to the 'death sentence' law of early New Deal fame.

The ancestral Hyde Park estate comprises 1,170 acres, from which more than $100,000 worth of property, including the home and Roosevelt Library will go to the government, besides about $25,000 worth of furniture, pictures, books, silver, china and other personal effects.

These personal belongings, with the Roosevelt state papers and other records of his more than 12 years in the White House will be permanently displayed at the residence or in the library, where they may be seen by the public.

Mr. Roosevelt's Georgia property will go to the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis sufferers, which he founded, and it will also receive the proceeds of more than half a million dollars in insurance which it carried on his life.

By the terms of the will, Mrs. Roosevelt will receive the entire income from the remaining estate during her lifetime. At her death, half of the principal is to be divided equally among the five children, and the other half is to remain in trust, the income to be divided among the children or their heirs.

While the late president was considered by his opponents as being radical in his political views, he was quite conservative in his personal affairs. He is said to have left a small amount of worthless stocks, but his investments were for the most part in sound business enterprises.

U. S. Fleet's Mission

In formal statement recently, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal frankly told the world that the United States would keep a fleet of warships in Mediterranean waters indefinitely to support American foreign policy. In this our warships will serve a two-fold purpose:

1. To support the Allied occupation forces and the Allied military government in the discharge of their responsibilities in the occupied areas of Europe.

2. To protect U. S. interests and to support U. S. policies in the area.

While Mr. Forrestal did not specifically say so, it has been evident that keeping American warships in the Mediterranean was decided upon because of differences with Yugoslavia over Trieste and other matters; the unrest in Greece, and a probable diplomatic clash with Russia over Turkey and the Dardanelles.

The British also have several naval vessels in the Mediterranean area for the same general purposes, but this is not unusual, as Britain has long been the dominant sea power in that area, with important bases at Gibraltar, Malta and Alexandria, along her lifeline to the Far East.

No threat to any nation is implied in the maintaining of Anglo-American warships in the Mediterranean, but it does give notice to Russia that any attempts at encroachment would meet resistance. This may tend to diminish rather than increase, the probability of hostile action by the Soviet Union or its satellites against Turkey, Greece or Italy.

Sidelights

Paul Porter, OPA chief, has agreed to decontrol oats, according to news reports. The item must refer to the cultivated kind as wild oats have been out of control for generations.

It is reported from Washington that after a check-up of the capitol, Senate and House office buildings that a rodent authority advised that these handsome structures housed not less than 2,000,000 rats.

Why is it that a man can look into an old family album and nearly split his sides laughing at some of the pictures he finds of himself and then look in a mirror without so much as a grin? Man, a most peculiar animal.

The only person we have heard of recently who got her money's worth out of a dozen eggs was Miss Michael Finn, of Cubh, Erie. While preparing a meal, she broke an egg into the frying pan and heard a most unusual metallic sound as the egg struck the pan. Close examination revealed that a silver coin, a shilling, was in the yolk. How the shilling got there was a secret that the hen kept to herself.

What's going to happen to the brick-layer? A newly developed brick-laying machine developed by a Chicago firm is reported to lay 20 times as many bricks a day as is possible with hand labor. With a 10-man crew the machine is said to lay 100,000 bricks in eight hours on long heavy walls. Weighing 2,000 pounds, the machine moves along a track, lifting the bricks from a conveyor belt.

A review of the patent records in Washington are most interesting but the strangest thing of all is that almost invariably modern conveniences that are manufactured to lighten women's work in the home were invented by men. It is possible that men got busy with this inventing business just as soon as the little wife asked them to wash the dishes, sweep the floor or do some other odd job they thought effeminate.

Edward J. Denny, of Childress, Texas, is a patient man. Patience in his case seems to have paid off for, Denny, an ex-private in the United States Army, has just received word from the War Department that his claim for travel pay and subsistence allowances has been approved. He is to receive a check for $374.30. He's been waiting for it since 1899. The matter of Denny's claim, it seems, has engaged the personal attention of four Presidents of the United States, in addition to a host of lesser officials. Private Denny was discharged in the Philippines in 1899 after the Spanish-American War. He returned to this country by the way of Japan and he had to finance his journey and rations.

The prospective lodger was looking the room over, and saw no washstand. And where, he inquired somewhat haughtily, do I perform my ablutions?

Not here, certainly, retorted the landlady. Only last week an acrobat broke two of my best chairs.

Alice, who was five years old, was often asked to run errands for her mother. She went willingly if she could pronounce the name of the article wanted, but dreaded the laughter which greeted her attempts to pronounce certain words.

"Vinegar" was one of the hardest for her. She never would go for it if she could help it, but one morning her mother found it absolutely necessary to send her.

Entering the store she handed the jug to the clerk and said: Smell the jug and give me a quart.

Hats off, my countrymen, to your newspaper boy. Once a year, we set aside Newspaper Boy Day to honor his thrift and enterprise. On Newspaper Boy Day in 1943 the late President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, paid him tribute for his inspiring work of selling nearly two billion ten cent war stamps. Today he rates a salute for setting an example in training for success. He is now enrolling in Treasury Department Newspaper Boy Thrift Clubs by which he invests his earnings in U. S. Savings stamps and bonds, which will pay him $4 for every $3 ten years hence.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

from Marriage?

Alvin Blake went south on his vacation, for some fishing, and left his Missus to enjoy a vacation from the corn cob pipe, clothes in a heap, and solos on the harmonica.

First few days, Martha enjoyed it—house neat and quiet, top back on the toothpaste, no morning mess from Alvin's midnight snacks (Al's partial to a bit of cheese and beer at bedtime).

Come the end of the week, she began to fidget; couldn't even read the Clarion, it looked so unmissed; didn't have any appetite with nobody to cook for. She was about to wire Al, when he barges home a week ahead of time, and she almost cries for gratitude. ("Felt the same way myself," says Al.)

From where I sit, those differences of habit and opinion—whether they have to do with corn-cob pipes, a glass of beer, or playing the harmonica, seem mighty trivial when you're separated. And they are, too!

Now Is the Time

By JOHN BROBERG

McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

VIRGINIA sat at her desk just outside the boss's office and filed her nails furiously to keep from biting them. In a few minutes that strange anonymous voice would call her on the telephone. The man had called every day for two months, ever since her first day on the job. He always wanted the exact time—to the second. That was all.

Who was he? Virginia didn't have the ghost of an idea, and her curiosity was rapidly becoming tinged with fear. She was as jumpy as a cat. It was the timing that was responsible. The call came at the same time each day, just at 4:55—five minutes before the five o'clock whistle.

Virginia had once read a mystery story about a man who was driven stark mad by water falling on his head drop by drop. Perhaps the unknown was trying to drive her crazy, even if it took a couple of years. At this rate, she thought bitterly, it wouldn't take that long. And suddenly she made up her mind to find out who was at the other end of the line, no matter what the consequences.

Mr. Harsh had warned her repeatedly not to ask questions, only to answer them. He was president of the plant and hated gossips. But, Virginia argued, what if the strange caller was a saboteur? The thought frightened her. She had been over all this before. Once she even dreamed it had happened. All the buildings, with their precious war output, their peacetime production plans, were flying in the air through pink glares of fire and lurid puffs of smoke. She, her desk and her typewriter were tumbling in the sky in a clutter of lunch buckets, workers and machines. And Mr. Harsh was there, too, sitting on his desk shaking his fist angrily at her. It was all her fault. She had returned to earth with a jolt, awakened in a dither.

Suddenly she knew what to do. She would tell Mr. Harsh and let him worry about it. Then, if some day the plant was blown up at 4:55, she wouldn't be to blame.

She put her nail file in her desk drawer, shoved back her chair and marched resolutely up to the door marked PRESIDENT. For a moment she hesitated, then knocked loudly. A voice boomed, "Yes?" And she walked in.

Mr. Harsh glowered at her. "Yes, Miss Black?" he said impatiently.

Virginia bolstered her courage with a deep breath. The story came out in a rush. At first Mr. Harsh seemed bored, then he sat up straight. "Well," he said, chewing his cigar, "that's very interesting. Same time each day, huh? Tell you what. When he rings up today, if he does, let me speak to him. Transfer the call to me."

Virginia was greatly relieved. She felt very patriotic when she sat down at her desk and looked at the clock. It was 4:50—five minutes to go. The hands had never moved so slowly. She had work to do, but she just couldn't put her mind on it. She watched the clock—and waited.

The hands crept on slowly, inexorably. And just as the minute hand touched 4:55 the bell rang shrilly. Never before had it sounded so loud. Virginia's hand trembled as she lifted the receiver.

"Mr. Harsh's office," she said, her voice sounding to her ears like the screech of a terrified bird. At the other end the deep masculine voice with an alien accent asked the same question it had asked for two months. "Say—what time is it by your clock?"

Quickly, without answering, she pressed a button—kept the receiver at her ear.

She heard the click in Mr. Harsh's office, and then his voice. "Hello," he said calmly.

The man repeated, "Say—what time is it by your clock?"

"Who the devil is this?" Mr. Harsh roared.

"This is the power plant. I call every day at this time to check with your clock so that I can blow the whistle at the right time. My watch ain't too accurate."

Mr. Harsh groaned. Virginia went limp. Then her boss began to laugh. She could hear him through the partition as she put the hand set back on its cradle. Then the door marked PRESIDENT opened and Mr. Harsh appeared, his face red as the sun. "Virginia," he inquired politely, trying hard to keep his face straight, "is our clock right today?"

Virginia went crimson to the roots of her hair. She had never felt quite so foolish in all her life. "I think so, Mr. Harsh," she stammered. "You see I've always checked it by the five o'clock whistle."

Japs Control Disease

Until the turn of the century, armies invariably lost four times as many men from disease as from weapons. These figures appalled the Japanese government, which sent thousands of young Japanese all over the world to study sanitation. The report of the Japanese army at the end of the Russo-Japanese war showed the wisdom of this policy. Seven per cent had died in battle, 1.5 per cent from disease.

Longview Hi News

Doris Davis was voted into the advanced band last Wednesday night. Members of the band are happy to have another cornetist.

Members of the foods class have been cooking macaroni and spaghetti in various ways. The clothing classes are still working on their dresses.

Two new members were added to the freshman class this week: Wilma Laley, who was unable to attend school the first six weeks because of illness, and Bernard Porter, who has recently moved from Hammond, Ind.

More than 50% of Longview's honor roll for the first six weeks was composed of freshmen. The number of students on the honor roll for this year was considerably more than at the same time last year, Mr. Jarman announces.

Those on the honor roll are: Seniors—Maurice Buddemeier; juniors—Rita Bergfield, Delores Hedrick, Shirley Smith; sophomores—David Coay, Mary Rose Donley, Evelyn Hartwig; freshmen—Jeanette Barker, Doris Davis, Tom Dicks, Eleanor Hartwig, Patricia Hood, Wilfred Laley, David McQueen, Irma Williamson and Hope Zenke.

For the second time this season the Longview Hornets trounced Seymour, 27-12, with Hank Bosch scoring two of the four touchdowns and an extra point. This victory moved Longview up to third place in county standing.

The two captains were called to the center of the Seymour gridiron for the toss. Seymour won the flip and chose to receive. Dave Coay did the kicking due to the absence of Tony Bosch, all-star end and co-captain. The Hornets held the weak Seymour team and forced them to kick.

Steve Ashby ran it back from the 40 to their 30. The ball was given to Dave Dalzell who went 20 yards for a first down. Ashby plunged over for the first touchdown. Buddie Buddemeier, quarterback, chucked Hank Bosch a 15-yard pass and Hank went 20 yards for another touchdown.

In the second quarter with the score 12-0, Karr, Seymour quarterback, chucked a pass to Eakin and scored for the first time. Seymour kicked off to Longview, Dalzell brought the ball back to the 40-yard line, and Ashby took off around end for 15 yards. He fumbled and the ball was picked up by Smith of Seymour who ran a 30-yard touchdown, only to be called back for off-side.

In the third quarter Buddie completed a pass to Bosch who scored again. Before the touchdown Buddie completed a 15-yd. pass to Mathews who brought it to the 15-yard line. Buddie completed the pass to Hank who was standing in the end zone. Dalzell threw a pass to Hank for the extra point. Kicking off to Seymour, Karr brought it back to the 40-yard line where, on the next play, he completed a pass to Smith who went for a touchdown, but failed. Dalzell took off on an end run and made a touchdown. With Buddie holding, Dalzell place-kicked the extra points, making the score 27-12 going into the fourth quarter.

Damages Skin

Aside from pain, discomfort, and loss of time from work, actual damage to the skin may result from an overdose of sun. Prolonged exposure may cause the skin to become scaly, inelastic, wrinkled, and old before its time. Mild burns cause a hot, drawn, uncomfortable feeling in the skin which is dry and red. These symptoms will disappear in about 24 to 36 hours. Severe burns are more painful and contact with bedding or clothing is unbearable. Shock, chills, fever, nausea, very rapid heart beat may all be present. The more severe the burn the longer time required for recovery. It is important that severe burns should receive medical attention from a physician. In the meantime, the application of cod-liver oil, caron oil and ice cold compresses of mineral oil are helpful.

London Today

England suffered much during the war. Many blocks in the heart of the great city of London, completely razed by the Nazi "Luftwaffe," remain unrepaired. All parts of the city sustained scattered damage from the raids. They took much punishment bravely, and they are industriously setting about to repair their country.

Perhaps it is partly Britain's proximity to continental troublemakers and the consequent disaster, although some of these trouble spots have been pawned as well as threat during her history, that gives the people such an awareness of foreign relations. They have learned the defenses that are usually provided by a good foreign office, and have developed shrewd international statesmen. There is little apparent disunity in their foreign policy.

Nonetheless, war came to them, and their sufferings were great. Reconstruction in Britain is moving slowly. A long time will be required for complete rebuilding, even of her damaged streets and destroyed buildings. Materials are short, and rationing diverts most materials into home building, which is proceeding slowly also.

Rationing Slow-Down
Most Britons feel that rationing of materials has slowed production. The government is meticulous about "filling out forms," and the proper approval must be had to obtain each different type of building material. Sometimes brickwork must stop because the bureau controlling glass has not approved and returned the forms for buying windows.

The London press announced while I was there that building contractors were being granted extra gasoline rations because of the additional travel required to get their numerous forms filled out and circulated to wholesalers and retailers, which they found necessary to do in order to complete a building.

All rationing seems to move slowly. For instance, I had to obtain food points to give the hotel for the week I was in London. Upon the advice of the hotel manager that I should report at the rationing office when the doors opened at nine o'clock, I arrived at 8:45 and found a long queue already waiting. Eventually I found myself in a special room for foreign visitors, with only a few of the waiting applicants, and had to wait only about an hour. The speed of the ration clerks reminded me of some of our own paid clerks during the war: it was evident they were not paid by the number of customers they served and that they had no fear of competition.

Queues and Bread
England is experiencing a greater shortage of food, clothing, and gasoline than during the war, and therefore rationing has not been eliminated. On the contrary, some items are now rationed which were not under rationing during the war. Queues of from 50 to 300 people were constantly on the streets, at most all hours, waiting to get rationed articles.

I was actually hungry every day I spent in England. Bread counts as one of the three courses available for a London dinner, and if bread is ordered this eliminates either the soup or sweet. During my last day in London a hotel waiter was fined $20 for inadvertently putting a roll on the table for each of two men who had not ordered bread. They chanced to be inspectors.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller of Hope were visitors here Wednesday.

Alonzo Zantow and James Wilson attended a meeting of the Masonic lodge at Oakland, Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Cable and daughter, Miss Jo Marilyn, of Chicago, spent Sunday in the homes of Mrs. Alice Cable and Mrs. Minnie Boyd.

Mrs. Anna Fieldbinder, Longview, is a guest in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Cable and family, due to the illness of her granddaughter, Sandra Lou, who has a severe cold.

La Befana

Christmas in Italy is known as Natale, and is considered a feast, but the real equivalent of Santa Claus there is "La Befana," a legendary old woman of Palestine who brings gifts to the children on January 6, Feast of the Epiphany. According to the legend she would not leave her household duties to see the Three Wise Men as they passed on their way to visit the Christ Child, saying she would see them as they returned. But they returned another way and she is still waiting to see them.

Store Fruit Juices
Fruit juices for jelly or beverages may be canned or frozen and kept until needed. The juice can then be "made up" in small batches as needed. Flavor and color will be better for beverage juice if sugar is used at the rate of 1 cup to 8 cups of juice, but juice for jelly should be preserved without sugar so that later measurements may be accurate. Always use stainless steel knives, wooden spoons, kettles and containers of heat-proof glass, and good quality aluminum or enamelware. Copper or iron utensils cause loss of vitamin C and give the juice a metallic flavor. Select well-ripened fruit if the juice is to be used as a beverage, and slightly under-ripe fruit if for jelly. Never use over-ripe, off-flavored or moldy fruit, as a very small amount will cause off flavors in the entire lot.
