For the first time in history, an Illinois corn crop has topped the half billion bushel mark, according to state and federal departments of agriculture. This season's yield of 515,508,000 bushels is about 71,000,000 greater than the best previous record, established in 1937. The state's soybean crop, estimated at 74,119,000 bushels, also sets a new high record.

Many more pheasant hunters than in recent years and a heavy kill of birds in central and northern Illinois are being reported by conservation field men, according to Livingston E. Osborne, state conservation director. In central and southern Illinois the hunters are bagging large numbers of quail. Osborne says reports of the shooting of hen pheasants are being received, and warns that such violations of the state game code will be rigidly prosecuted.

C. T. Henson Is Elected Director of TB Association

C. T. Henson, of Broadlands, was elected a director of the Champaign County TB Association at the annual meeting of the membership held on Friday afternoon at 505 S. Fifth Street, Champaign.

A person who knows he has received infection from TB germs need never develop active tuberculosis in an advanced stage. This is the only good thing about TB, declared Dr. A. T. Cole who spoke on TB—An Unnecessary Disease.

When everyone in Champaign County has had a chest x-ray there will probably be about ten per cent who will need to have a routine x-ray once a year but, not even one in a thousand in this group need ever have active TB in an incurable stage. By routine x-rays trouble would be detected before the germs could cause serious damage to the lungs, said Dr. Cole.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

PAUL IN ATHENS AND CORINTH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:22-28a; 18:1-4; 1 Corinthians 1:22-25.
MEMORY SELECTION—For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.—1 Corinthians 3:11.

History repeats itself, in spiritual things as well as in secular events. The experiences of Paul at Athens and Corinth are peculiarly applicable to our day, for here he encountered the very problems which face (and have apparently stopped) the church today.

The cities were not far apart in miles, and they were both pagan, but they differed widely in their cultural and commercial development.

Athens was the home of a godless culture. Corinth was a prosperous commercial center known throughout the world for grossly licentious living.

What did the gospel accomplish in such cities? We shall soon see.

I. Godless Intellectuality Meets the Gospel (Acts 17:22-28a).

Paul was alone in Athens. He had been separated from his companions Silas and Timothy (Acts 17:14), and was to await them at Athens. While he waited he looked the city over and found it wholly given to idolatry (v. 16). This was no idle observation of a scientific mind, for it caused Paul's spirit to stir in him.

It is a bad sign when a professed Christian can live in the presence of sin and false worship and not be deeply moved by it.

Paul did something about it! He went into the great daily gatherings of philosophers and gave them some solid Christian philosophy to work on. They were curious to know more, and when the opportunity arose, Paul preached the sermon on Mars Hill.

He found them superstitiously religious, but religion does not save. They even feared lest they had forgotten some god, so one altar was "to the unknown God" (v. 23). This gave Paul his opportunity, for he declared the one true God—unknown to them—as the answer to their question.

The intellectual felt superior and had an idea that God needed him, a kind of snobbery which is as current in 1946 as it was in Paul's day. How effectively he disposed of that attitude appears in verses 24 and 25. They needed God, and without him they could not draw a breath!

Moreover, the pagan intellectual then as now would swell with pride as he thought of the race and people to whom he belonged. They were superior—a master race. Paul declares God's truth that all men are of one blood, and that the nations are in his hands (v. 26).

What they had to do, and what the godless intellectuals of our day need to do, is to seek God in humble repentance and faith; then lives can become fine and noble and useful (vv. 27, 32-34).

II. Sophisticated Immorality Meets the Gospel (Acts 18:1-4).

To Corinth Paul came (evidently still alone) without friends or funds. Like all well-bred Jewish boys, he knew a trade. He was a sail maker and tent maker. Rather than have the ungodly men of Corinth hinder his preaching by the criticism that he was doing it for money, he supported himself.

The minister who is eager for rich financial return, and who is willing to accept the gifts of the ungodly that his work may prosper, has closed the door for his testimony to many who do not believe. In fact, one wonders whether he has any real testimony to give.

In this wicked city, given over to vice and fleshly pleasure, Paul made his way to the synagogue and began to preach Christ. He reasoned and persuaded and won some for the Lord as he continued with them for a year and a half (Acts 18:11).

Paul's letter to the Corinthians reveals the struggle of the believers at Corinth to maintain moral standards and spiritual warmth in such a city, but it also clearly indicates that the gospel of Christ is "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth" (Rom. 1:16), even in the midst of sin and corruption.

III. The Gospel Meets Sin—and Is Victorious (I. Cor. 1:22-25).

The wisdom of this world—for which Athens stood in a special way—becomes foolish in the eyes of men, as it is already in the sight of God, when it stands up against the gospel (read vv. 18-21).

The preaching of the cross, which looks foolish to the worldling (v. 23), is the wisdom and the power of God, and by it men are saved.

Whether Jew or Gentile, whether seeking signs or wisdom, whether "up-and-out" by way of pagan intellectualism or "down-and-out" by way of immorality—no matter what man's race, or his problem—the answer is in the gospel which we are privileged to teach and preach, for it is the gospel of "Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God" to all who are called by him.

Why Sugar Is Scarce

Like most other scarcities, the shortage of sugar is primarily due to the war, but sugar will be one of the last food products to reach a normal supply because of several different factors. The present acute sugar shortage has been caused by the diminished world production, aggravated by a lack of transportation and strikes.

Before the war, the Philippines shipped about a million tons to the United States annually. Not only was all this cut off by the war, but the Japanese ruined most of the Philippine plantations, and it is estimated that they will not be able to furnish sugar in pre-war quantities until 1948 or possibly later.

Java formerly exported about 1,250,000 tons to other countries, and the Japanese occupation had a similar effect there as in the Philippines. Great Britain and other countries which received sugar from Java have had to depend principally on Cuba, as has the United States.

The Hawaiian sugar industry has been crippled by a long strike of cane-field and sugar-mill workers, and the disastrous maritime strike in this country stopped imports for many weeks. Raw sugar on board tied-up ships in our ports could not be unloaded until the strike ended.

It is expected that sugar will be available to stores in about the same quantities as before the strike in five or six weeks, but the general shortage will continue until the new Cuban crop is available about next May. A plentiful supply may not be obtainable until 1948, and all controls will probably not be removed until then.

Before the war, Americans used an average of 100 pounds per capita annually, and it is estimated that they would now use 110 pounds if they could get it. It is not expected that sugar will be available at the rate of more than 70 to 75 pounds annually per capita for several months.

Marketing A Gadget

Inventing a new and useful gadget comes easy for some people, but promoting its sale by modern methods is something else again. Kent Richards humorously explains some of the difficulties of the present-day inventor in a current magazine.

It used to be you could invent something like a light bulb and people bought them—and that was that. But now when you invent something you have to call in financial and advertising experts and industrial designers. These last are wizards who are supposed to doll up whatever you have invented and make it look like something else.

You invent a good pancake turner, for example, and an industrial designer looks it over and says, "Nope, it won't do." When you politely ask why, he looks at you pityingly and says, "No eye-appeal." Eye-appeal, you learn gradually, is the difference between your Aunt Minnie and Lana Turner.

When you give in on that point the industrial designer hands you another jolt. "Your pancake turner is sub-functional," he says. By that, you discover, he means that it is good only for turning pancakes—which is what you had in mind all along.

In defense of your simple gadget you mutter something about "making a better mousetrap," etc., but the designer retorts, "Not in today's market," and explains:

A mousetrap that won't also dice vegetables, open cans and whip cream is no mousetrap. To your pancake turner you'll have to attach a bottle opener, a set of measuring spoons and a three-minute egg timer.

After enumerating some other probable suggestions of the designer, Mr. Richards concludes: "What the industrial designers might have done to Thomas Alva Edison's simple little light bulb I leave to your imagination. And if you imagine anything less than a V-2 rocket you're not half trying."

Sidelights

We are told of a tourist in Kentucky who felt that he had traveled far enough to have reached his destination and seeing an old resident beside the road stopped to ask how far it was to Lexington. The old gentleman stroked his beard, thought a moment and replied: "I don't rightly know, mister. It used to be about 25 miles, but the way things have gone up around here it might be nigh on to 40 now."

This may not have been life's most embarrassing moment but we are certain that it comes high on the list. We are told that a certain bridge club was meeting when the hostess, hearing the patter of little feet on the stairs, raised her hand for silence. "Hush," she said softly, "the children are going to deliver their goodnight messages. It always gives me such a feeling of reverence to hear them . . . listen!" There was a pause . . . then, shyly: "Mama, Willie found a bedbug!"

One need not attend school to learn logic and to presume that a child can be led wilfully into drawing false conclusions may cause an awakening with a rude jolt. Apparently a certain Sunday school teacher we heard of failed in putting over her lesson. When she finished her talk on behavior and what we must do to go to heaven, she asked one of her pupils: "Now, Tommy, tell me what we must do before we can expect forgiveness of sin." Tommy thought a bit then replied: "We gotta sin." That's logic.

Women IN THE CHURCH
by Mary Fowler

In normal times, the YWCA in each country is self-supporting, says Mrs. Maurice Moore of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations. But the devastations of war in many countries, the social and economic dislocations in others have handicapped the valiant women who are trying now to create a better post-war world.

The university students struggling back to the former occupied zones of China, the women of Manila holding citizenship forums in a ruined city, the heroines of the Dutch underground, and the women of the Resistance in Czechoslovakia are struggling in the face of personal hardship, malnutrition, and lack of everything but courage to achieve the spiritual, vocational, cultural and social growth for which the Y. W. C. A. stands. To answer their call for help the Y. W. C. A. is launching its Round-the-World Reconstruction Fund of $2,100,000.

Queen Victoria ruled England for 64 years—longer than any other monarch before or since.

It is estimated that one out of every five women in England will be a spinster as a result of the war.

Household Hints

Nylon fabrics make a better appearance when ironed on the wrong side while slightly damp. Always use a warm—not hot iron.

When sweet potatoes are to be used in vegetable dishes or desserts, they should always be cooked with their skins on to save vitamins and minerals.

Thorough rinsing is one of the most important laundry steps because soap left in fabrics may cause yellowing or weakening of the fibers.

A cool, dark, dry place is best for storing your canned goods. If a dark room cannot be provided, glass jars may be covered with brown paper.

Coffee holds its flavor best if kept tightly sealed. Coffee that comes in paper packages may well be transferred to tight tins or jars after it is opened.

When you are tempted to pour some used fat down the drain, remember that fat wasted postpones the time when you can get all the soap, nylons and many other important things you want.

Busy housewives may save quite a bit of the time usually required in preparing a meal by having a variety of bread 'mixes' ready to cook. Biscuits, corn muffins and pastry may be kept ready in the refrigerator.

CIO Seen As Center Of Communist Power

American Communists have been more successful in seizing power in the Congress of Industrial Organizations than in the American Federation of Labor, according to the report on Communist activity by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Noting that Communists have achieved some strength in AFL unions in New York and Los Angeles and scattered control elsewhere, the report adds: "They have achieved real footholds in the painters' union, in the hotel and restaurant unions and in the film and stage unions. They are seeking with some success, to infiltrate some of the independent railroad unions and the International Association of Machinists. "But their stronghold is the Congress of Industrial Organizations."

Pheasants and Quail Are More Plentiful

Pheasants and quail are somewhat more plentiful in Illinois this season than they were last year, according to Livingston E. Osborne, state director of conservation. The department has released 115,000 pheasants in central and northern Illinois this season, and 37,000 quail in central and southern sections of the state to supplement the native birds.

The open season on pheasants began November 11 and will close at sundown November 25, with a daily limit of two cock pheasants, and possession limit of six. The quail season, which also opened November 11, will extend through December 11. Daily bag limit is 12; possession limit 36.

Siamese History

Siam traces its history to the Lao-Tai tribesmen driven from their homes in China's Yangtze valley by Kublai Khan. These fugitives took root in northern India, in eastern Burma, and in the valleys of the Salween and other rivers. Fusion with other peoples produced the race that has ruled Siam since the founding in 1350 at Ayutthaya of the first capital of the Siamese Kingdom. Until 1767, when invading Burmese conquered and razed the city, Ayutthaya was the seat of government. Tonburi, opposite the site of Bangkok (Krung Thep) was the capital for a time; Bangkok was established in 1782 as the seat of national government—just a few years before Washington was chosen as America's capital.

An abundant turkey crop for 1946 promises that the nation will observe Thanksgiving in the established tradition. But not every family will dine on a gobble chosen "on the hoof." Felmlee presided in the selection.

Smile Awhile

Most girls attain their ends by not exercising sufficiently.

Only Americans have mastered the art of being prosperous though broke.

Son—Dad, what is experience?
Father—Generally speaking, my boy, experience is what you have left after you've lost everything else.

What's the use of it all, said the rooster, leaning against the barn door, "eggs yesterday, chickens today, and feather duster tomorrow!"

Personnel telegraphed a flourishing sergeant: "Move heaven and earth, but be here Friday!"

He replied: "Am raising hell; will get there Saturday."

Mrs. Brown showed her husband a lamp shade which she had just bought, saying, "Isn't it lovely, dear?"

Brown, looking anything but pleased replied, "If you wear that to church tomorrow, you'll go alone."

A young man and his wife, only recently married, had a love spat while driving along the country road. Neither spoke, until a mule brayed.

One of your relatives? he asked.

Yes, snapped his wife, by marriage.

The judge was giving his regulation lecture on the evils of gambling. So you see, he concluded, what a wicked thing it is to shoot craps, especially on the Sabbath. Have you nothing better than that to do on Sundays?

Oh, yessuh, Judge, replied the prisoner. Most gen'ally ah caddies fo' you when you plays golf with Mistuh Smith fo' a dollah a hole.

Well, mister, the farm woman replied, when the census-taker inquired about the political faith of her family, we'uns is kind o' mixed up. I'm a Republican, my husband's a Democrat, the baby's a Wet, the cow's a Dry, and the dog belongs to the Reform Party.

To the Reform Party? queried the solicitor.

Yes, mister, the woman affirmed; you see he don't do nothing but set around all day and howl.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Why Bert Won First Prize

Folks weren't surprised when Bert Childers won first prize for his corn at the county fair.

Yet the judges admit it wasn't just because Bert had the finest ears of corn. He knew how to display them: neatly arranged, with the husks cleanly trimmed, and the tooth white and spotless.

"Trimmings" sure make a difference no matter what you're offering—as Andy Botkin, keeper of the Garden Tavern, well knows. Andy doesn't just sell good beer. He sells it in a place that's clean and attractive...in nice surroundings that belong with the enjoyment of a wholesome beverage of moderation.

And Andy, of course, is a whole-hearted supporter of "Self Regulation." That's the system by which the Brewers and tavern keepers themselves make sure that taverns selling beer are clean and orderly.

From where I sit, people like Andy also rate a "First prize." Not just for the quality of the product—but for the "trimmings" too.
