9:30—Sunday School.

10:15—Divine Worship.

Sermon: "The Last Journey of Jesus to Jerusalem."

Beginning on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 19, we shall have a weekly Lenten service at 7:30 p. m.

The sole business of the Christian Church is to make men aware of the pardon available in Christ. This complete, full salvation was wrought by the blood of the cross.

At no time of the year is the appeal greater than during Lent: "Come be ye reconciled to God."

St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church

Chicago Groups Aid Activities Of U. I. Branch

Situated near Chicago's "Loop," the Chicago Undergraduate Division of the University of Illinois at Navy Pier has developed a program to take full advantage of the city's cultural and social facilities.

The Art Institute of Chicago, on an indefinite loan basis, has given to the Undergraduate Division at Navy Pier 25 pieces of art work, among them 16 original Greek and Roman stone fragments. These pieces will enable the students of architecture to study the various orders from the original Greek and Roman fragments; art students will use the pieces for work in still life.

The Museum of Science and Industry, as well as other museums in the Chicago-area, has co-operated with the University of Illinois by arranging special exhibits as teaching aids for both faculty and students of the Navy Pier branch.

Theaters, lecture and concert halls, have extended special low rates to the faculty and students of the Chicago Undergraduate Division.

Longview High School News

This semester the home economics class is studying "Personal Grooming."

The sophomore class will entertain Longview high students at a Valentine's party Saturday, Feb. 15 at 7 p. m.

Longview students, suffering from the cold and snowy weather, have had to forego some of their usual extra-curricular activities. Two basketball games were postponed; the home game with Pesotum was played Tuesday night of this week; and the Tolono game will be played Feb. 17 there.

In a hard-fought battle last week Buddies Spotshots ran over Tony's Nightmares by a 27-16 score. Coay scored a total of 15 points and thus broke the record of any player in the tournament for a single game. He is now leading scorer for the entire tournament. Howard Block trailed his teammate by a narrow margin with 10 counters.

Battery FAILURE

CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB RECOMMENDATIONS ON HOW TO AVOID IT IN COLD WEATHER.

BEFORE STEPPING ON THE STARTER

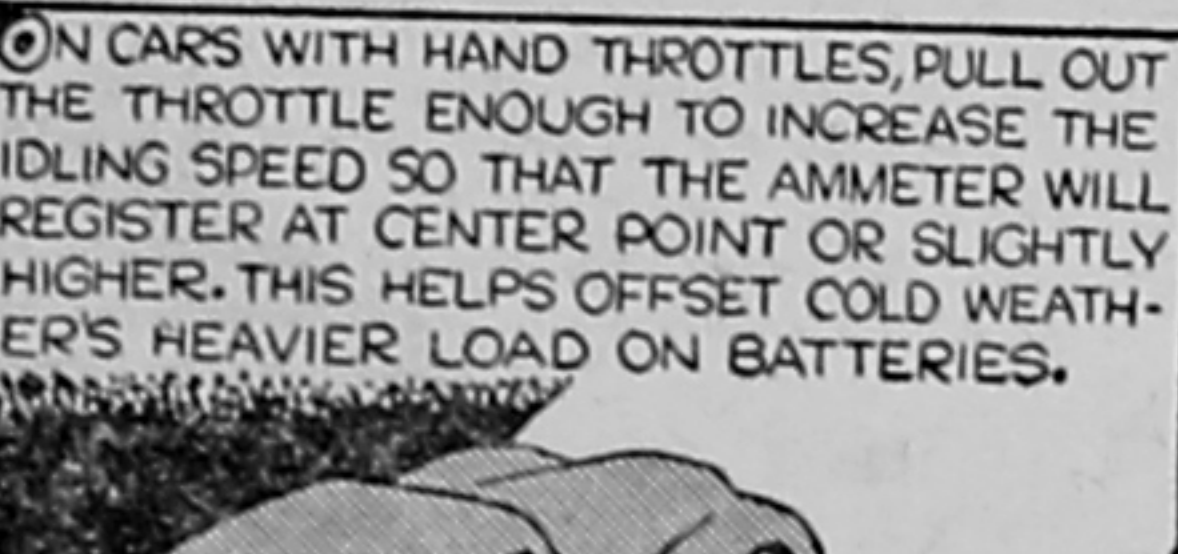

THROW OUT THE CLUTCH, PRESSING IT ALL THE WAY TO THE FLOOR, TO DISENGAGE THE STIFFENED TRANSMISSION AND LIGHTEN THE LOAD IN STARTING THE MOTOR.

DO NOT HAVE LIGHTS, RADIO, ELECTRIC HEATER OR OTHER ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT ON WHEN STEPPING ON THE STARTER OR WHEN THE ENGINE IS NOT RUNNING.

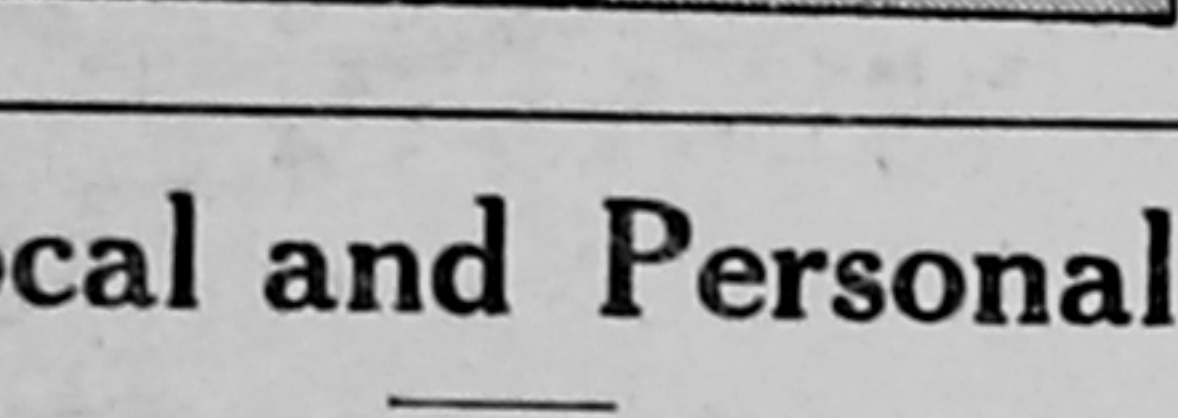

ON CARS WITH MANUAL CHOKE, PULL OUT THE CHOKE SLIGHTLY BEFORE SWITCHING OFF THE IGNITION AS A PRECAUTION AGAINST FROZEN FUEL LINES AND TO INSURE A SUFFICIENT CHARGE OF GASOLINE IN THE MANIFOLD WHEN STARTING.

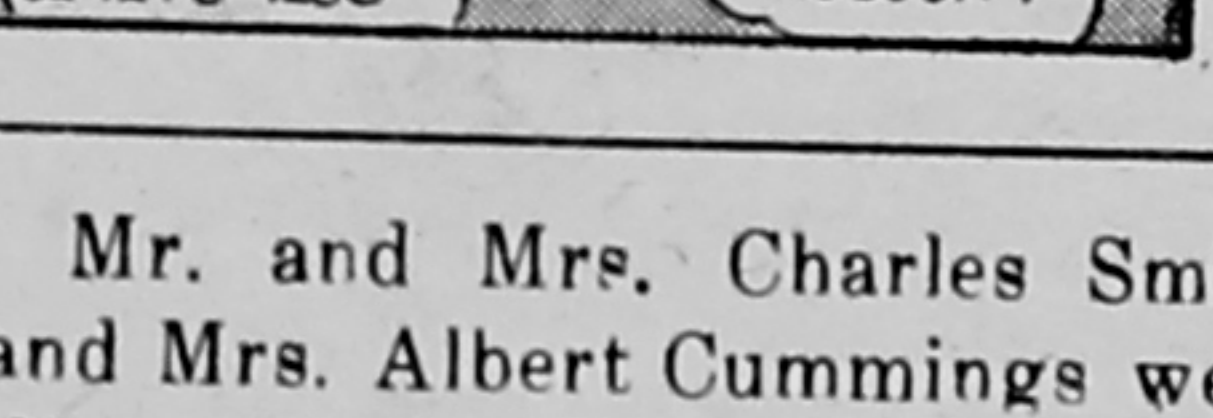

ON CARS WITH HAND THROTTLES, PULL OUT THE THROTTLE ENOUGH TO INCREASE THE IDLING SPEED SO THAT THE AMMETER WILL REGISTER AT CENTER POINT OR SLIGHTLY HIGHER. THIS HELPS OFFSET COLD WEATHER'S HEAVIER LOAD ON BATTERIES.

HAVE YOUR BATTERY CHECKED EVERY TWO WEEKS, WATCHING PARTICULARLY THE DISTILLED WATER CONTENT AND KEEPING TERMINALS AND CABLES FREE OF CORROSION.

PUBLIC SALE

George W. Smith will hold a public sale on Wednesday, Feb. 19, beginning at 10:30 a. m., on what is known as the Jess Roller farm, three miles south and 1 1/2 miles east of Broadlands. Lloyd Cole, auctioneer; O. P. Witt, clerk. Read ad in this week's issue.

Mrs. A. A. Gaines Is Called Beyond

Funeral services for Mrs. A. A. Gaines, 85, who died at her home in Chicago, at 4:50 p. m., Saturday, Feb. 8, were conducted at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jess Ward, north of Broadlands, with Rev. W. H. Loyd, pastor of the local Methodist church, officiating. Joe Ward of Mansfield sang "When I've Done My Best" and "Take My Hand Precious Lord," accompanied by Mrs. John Mathews of Longview. Interment was in Fairfield Memorial cemetery, southeast of Broadlands, with Dicks Bros. of Broadlands in charge. Casket bearers were Messrs. Eugene Ward, Anthony Mayo, George and Charles Smith, Wm. Seider and O. P. Witt.

Mrs. Gaines' illness was of one day's duration, she having suffered a light paralytic stroke on the morning of her death. Dora Wilhoit Gaines was born in Greenville, Tenn., March 15, 1861. While still a young child her family moved to Ridgefarm, Ill., where she lived until she completed her high school education. Later she married George Thomas and moved to Rockville, Ind. To this union one daughter was born. Several years after the death of her husband, she and Anthony Albert Gaines married and moved to Broadlands, Ill., as pioneer settlers.

During the approximate forty years of her life in this community, she was not only an active member in the Methodist church, but participated in all local activities. In 1923, Mr. and Mrs. Gaines became residents of Chicago, and a year later transferred their church membership to Grace Presbyterian church. In keeping with her former characteristics, she continued to live a full and rich life, strongly marked by its simplicity. For many years she maintained membership in the Woman's Aid Society, and for several years she was treasurer of the Vincennes Improvement Club.

Although she lost her husband in 1932, her keen interest in other people and her family never wavered. On Saturday, Feb. 8, 1947, at her home, Dora Gaines died as she had lived, quietly and peacefully. Her memory will always be cherished by her four daughters, Madge Wheeler, Mary Mayo, Mable Duke and Helen Ward; her thirteen grandchildren; ten great grandchildren; and her innumerable friends.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

JESUS AT THE FEAST OF TABERNALES

LESSON TEXT—John 8:12-16, 31-36; 9:1-5.
MEMORY SELECTION—I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John 8:12.

"The Light of the World is Jesus!" Who does not remember with what delight we as children sang, "Come to the light, 'tis shining for thee . . . The Light of the World is Jesus." How precious was the truth that thus flooded our souls!

Has the passing of the years dimmed the beauty and glory of that light in our hearts and lives? Do we need it renewed? God is willing and ready. Jesus is the light, and just as the sunlight sheds its glory on an awakening world at dawn, so Christ sheds abroad the light of God in the hearts of believing men. The writer of these lessons pens these words with the prayer that as this portion of God's Holy Word is studied and taught, that light may break forth on many a soul lost in the bewilderment of this dark world.

Our study centers around three simple words fraught with beauty and rich in meaning.

I. Light (John 8:12-16).

The text says, "Then spake Jesus." When? Just after he had silenced the hypocritical accusers of a woman taken in sin, and had spoken the word of peace to her troubled soul. She was to "go and sin no more" because she had met him who is the light of the world. They that follow him "shall not walk in darkness"; they are the children of light, they have the very light of life.

How sad it is that with the light of the world shining in all its brightness, men loved their own darkness. The Pharisees, instead of receiving the Light, had to argue, and to do it on a low, fleshly plane. They even accused Jesus of being a liar. Think of that!

So it is that men may reject the Light of God and go on into a darkness made deeper because they have seen the light.

Now we look at our second beautiful word. How sweet it sounds as we repeat it—

II. Freedom (vv. 31-36).

Free! Four letters, but what a depth of meaning! Chains have fallen off, prison doors are open. The one who was bound is free. But here we are concerned with an even more important liberty, the freedom of the soul. Many there are who boast of their independence, but who are merely slaves. Jesus said: "Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin" (v. 34) not its master.

How shall they be freed? Note three things in these verses. (1) A condition—"If ye continue in my word." This means not only a profession of faith, but a daily appropriation and realization of his truth in life. (2) A promise—"Ye shall know the truth." The philosophies of men profess to be a seeking after truth, but how few there are who look to the one place where it can be found—in Jesus Christ. (3) A result—"The truth shall make you free." Truth always sets free.

Men are enslaved because, as in some foreign lands, they have not had the opportunity to learn the truth (we have failed to send it), or because they have rejected it.

Freedom and light can lead only to

III. Vision (John 9:1-5).

This is one of the most instructive passages in Scripture. A man born blind is seen by Jesus. His disciples note his interest and begin to theorize on a theological question. They had learned so little of the compassionate spirit of Jesus that they saw in this blighted life only an illustration of a theological problem. May God help us that we may never be so blind.

Jesus goes at once to his blessed work. He was in the world to do the works of God, He and the Father always work. Let us follow his blessed example. The King's business requires haste. Let us work "while it is day, the night cometh when no man can work."

By a loving and gracious act, Jesus stirs in the heart of the man that faith which causes him to go, to wash, and, glory to God, he sees!

Such a personal experience of the divine power of the Son of God leaves no doubt in the man's mind that the One who caused him to see "is a prophet." All of a man's doubts concerning the deity of Jesus Christ disappear when he becomes his Saviour.

Do not fail to read the remainder of the chapter and note how this man's faith was victorious in the face of trials, persecution, and even of excommunication; for outside the temple he met Jesus and took him as his Lord. As Dr. Scroggie puts it, "His excommunication was a promotion. He went from the synagogue to the Saviour."

End of A Gangster

"Scarface" Al Capone, who died from pneumonia recently following a stroke of apoplexy, at his home near Miami Beach, was the most notorious gangster and racketeer of the prohibition era.

During Capone's reign as king of the Chicago underworld in the 1920's, it is estimated that from 250 to 500 members of his and rival gangs met death in bitter feuds. Capone himself lived in constant fear of death, and rode in a steel reinforced automobile with bullet-proof windows, surrounded constantly by bodyguards.

He received many millions of dollars from the profits of the illegal liquor and beer traffic, and other organized vice and crime, but evaded the law until 1930, when he was indicted on a charge of income tax evasion.

On May 5, 1932, Capone entered the Atlanta Federal penitentiary under an 11-year sentence, and was later transferred to Alcatraz in San Francisco Bay. With time off for good behavior, he served about seven and a half years.

While in prison he suffered a mental illness and in his last years was said to have had the mentality of a child. He lived with his wife and son at his island estate, surrounded by walls, to which few were admitted, from the time of his release until his death.

Although Al Capone rode high for a time, he became a striking example of the fact that in the long run "crime doesn't pay."

A-Bomb's Use Defended

Nine men made the decision to use the atomic bomb against Japan, former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson has revealed.

They say "this deliberate, premeditated destruction" was "our least abhorrent choice." Stimson said, in an historic article in Harper's Magazine entitled "The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb." He estimated a million American casualties were saved.

And the decision, the former secretary said, had these results. It ended the Japanese war, removing the "ghastly specter of a clash of great land armies."

It also, through use of the atomic bomb, "made it wholly clear that we must never have another war."

These are the men, Stimson wrote, who made the decision to use the atomic bomb, without previous warning of its nature:

President Truman, who approved the decision of a so-called interim committee which "was charged with the function of advising the President on the various questions raised by our apparently imminent success in developing an atomic weapon;" and these committee members:

James F. Byrnes, former secretary of state, but then a private citizen, as special assistant to the President.

George L. Harrison, special assistant to Stimson, who acted as chairman of the committee in Stimson's absence.

Ralph A. Bard, undersecretary of Navy.

William L. Clayton, assistant secretary of state.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of Carnegie Institute.

Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University.

While full responsibility lay with these men, they were advised and assisted by a scientific panel, made up of Dr. A. H. Compton, Dr. Enrico Fermi, Dr. E. O. Lawrence, and Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer.

Women IN THE CHURCH by Mary Fowler

Miss Alice E. Cary, missionary to Japan, tells of a recent evangelistic meeting she and Dr. Kagawa held among the women of Osaka, under the auspices of Japan's Church Women's Federation, 500 attending. The question period, she says gave indication of the thinking of these women today. "Not only were there all sorts of questions on every conceivable topic such as how to handle the problems of our young people; what we mean by democracy and how we can teach it to our children; what about our schools; what is freedom and how can we check the selfish use of it.

Much time was given to sincere and heartfelt expressions of appreciation for the food and supplies given by America, for the continued friendship of the church people in spite of the actions of Japan, and even from one woman thanks for the considerate treatment given her son at a relocation center in America."

Mother's Love

By Elaine Francis

WNU Features.

AS A baby-sitter she certainly got around, Minerva reflected ringing the bell of the imposing Labonn home. All types of doors had opened for her in the past few months, due to the shortage of servants, but none more interesting than this one.

"Come in, my dear Miller," Tanya Labonn cried, "You're just in time to watch me rehearse."

Minerva gaped. Not at the "Miller" which Mrs. Labonn always called her in continental fashion, but at Tanya's exotic beauty.

Chattering rapidly, for the former ballerina was always friendly, always informal, Tanya led the way through the spacious drawing room to the equally large sunroom stripped of all its furnishings except the radio-phonograph. This she snapped on and began to dance.

"Miller, you like it?" Tanya inquired. "So does Billy Dunn. He was my agent before the war and tomorrow night he brings movie scouts and big shots to our show. You know about the benefit, yes?"

"A plush, lush affair, they call it," Tanya giggled. "But it is luck for me. All those years when Don, my husband, was at war, I could not dance. I had to work for victory. But now . . . Don does not mind that I become a glamour puss and go to Hollywood. He says to spread the wings before it is too late. Ah, Bonnie . . ." She swooped over to the door and kissed her daughter.

Suddenly it seemed incredible to Minerva that this 13-year-old was Tanya's child. The contrast was painful. Bonnie's mudblonde hair, the braces on her teeth, the dainty frock accentuating adolescent bulges. . . . And her face was sullen and dull. What was wrong?

Minerva gaped at Tanya's exotic beauty.

IT WAS not until late that night that Minerva learned the answer. People always confided in Minerva, once they had pierced her shabby exterior, and Bonnie was no exception. "Mother is gorgeous, isn't she?" she asked wistfully. "A cinema cinch, her agent says."

Minerva's movie going had been limited, but she agreed heartily.

"It's selfish," Bonnie cried, "but I wish she'd flop. I loved our life just as it was--now everything is spoiled. Mother gets younger every day and I feel more like a Mack truck. . . ."

Minerva could not sleep that night, thinking of Bonnie's unhappiness. At this particular stage she was apt to be permanently affected by her mother's fame. Previously, she had been adaptable. A few more years and she would be self-reliant. But right now. . . . If only she could help the child. There was one way, tomorrow. . . . She tried hard to dismiss the idea.

Nevertheless, at four the following afternoon, the plan was in motion. Having sent Bonnie to the summer house for her supposedly mislaid spectacles, Minerva searched for the phone. Strangely, it seemed to have moved, but she found it just as Tanya returned from the beauty parlor. Picking up the receiver, Minerva said loudly, "I feel sorry for Bonnie, claims it will ruin her life if Tanya makes a hit. Sure, she's hipped on Hollywood. Oh, 'bye."

AS TANYA stood and stared at her, Minerva did not have to act ashamed. She actually felt it. "Didn't hear you," she explained feebly. "My, your hair is pretty."

"Miller, how could you discuss our affairs this gossipy way? I am disappointed," Tanya said coldly.

That night she crept into her seat at the Civic auditorium and watched the curtain rise on Tanya, a whirl of blue. But her performance was so mediocre that Minerva, recalling yesterday's fiery dance, was amazed. At the finish Tanya bowed, smiling straight at the box where her husband and Bonnie sat with three disgruntled gentlemen. The talent scouts, no doubt, and then Minerva understood that Tanya had deliberately danced that way, sacrificing her career for her daughter's sake. But what or who had changed the ballerina's mind.

During the intermission, Bonnie came running to Minerva. "I have a message from mother. She said to tell you the telephone is portable and wasn't plugged in, but thanks anyway. Whatever that means. And Minerva, mom doesn't want to be a star. Isn't that super!"

Find Cure For Malaria

A cure for malaria has been found by medical science as a result of an unprecedented research program in which inmates of Stateville prison were the subjects for human experimentation. The research involved 13,276 laboratory experiments at universities and private laboratories throughout the nation, preceding the testing of the drugs on some 445 Stateville prisoners who volunteered to undergo the dangerous experiments.

The experiments resulted in the discovery of a new drug, pentaquine, which proved effective in curing vivax malaria, the relapsing type common in the South Pacific and China-Burma-India theaters in the recent war.

Scientists declare this drug holds a definite promise of relief for an estimated 300,000,000 persons annually infected with malaria throughout the world. The disease has claimed an average of three million lives a year.

The prisoners chosen for the tests were infected with vivax malaria through the bites of infected mosquitoes. The disease was allowed to run its course until the acute stage was reached, with some patients registering temperatures of 106 and 107, and one case 108 degrees. Then the new drugs--never before administered to humans--were tested while scientists checked and rechecked their effects upon the patients. Many patients became violently ill, some new drugs being so toxic that white blood cells were destroyed. Several were expected to die but all survived the experiments.

As a result of the success of the Stateville experiment, and the contribution made to it by the prisoners, Gov. Green has asked the state Division of Correction under chairmanship of W. C. Jones to conduct a study "to determine what consideration should be accorded those prisoners who volunteered to submit to these dangerous experiments."

Chairman Jones has advised the Governor that special hearings would be held at Stateville starting Feb. 27 for 159 of the prisoners who took part in the malaria experiments.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

That Ring Around the Bathtub

Jeb Crowell blew his top the other day. Seems that for weeks he's been trying to get his youngsters to scrub out the bathtub after using it. And this night he sees two rings around it—one where young Sonny left off, and another about Pinky's level.

He raves and rants—and takes it out on the missus for her lack of discipline. And later that evening he sees her quietly polishing the hardwood table that's right by his chair. She's removing the rings he's left there with his evening glass of beer!

From now on, Jeb's careful to put his glass down on the table cover—like the missus does. And I hear he's a little more forgiving about rings around the bathtub. Just keeps on patiently reminding.

From where I sit, there are little annoyances in every family—conflicting habits and opinions in every community. A little patience—a little more "forgive and let live" is the only antidote.

3 MINUTE FICTION
Dumb Dora
 By Nick Kushta

WNU Features.

DORA'S my girl and I guess I can call her dumb, but she's my girl and nobody but me can call her dumb. She's a brunette and a cute little thing, all cuddly and nice and I want to marry her. I come out of the army all set to get hitched but she says no, I ain't man enough for her.

Her brother, Dick, is the model for the kind of man she wants. Well, I'm only a truck driver and not much up on the brains department but Dick ain't half as smart as I am.

"Dora," I says to her, "I been out of the army a month now and every minute of the 18 months I been overseas I've been thinking of coming back and marryin' you right off. You say no." And Dora says, "I like you Joe but I don't know if I'll be happy with you. You see, Joe, my Pops ran a gymnasium and he was really muscled. Dick is just the same way. I'm so I expect it of a man, Joe."

I finally propositioned her, "Listen, kid, if I get to show you I'm as much a man as Dick will you marry me?" She looks at me for a long time. "Sure," she says, "I like you, Joe. I like you a lot, but I wanta marry you without any doubt in my mind."

Well, the first idea I get doesn't work out too well. I ask Dora and Dick to go out to the beach. I'm a pretty good swimmer and something might happen. A kid might be drowning and I could save him. You can't tell, and it's worth a try.

But when you size me up next to Dick I see it's a mistake to come out to the beach. This is my first time out and my skin is all white and I gotta admit it, I look flabby.

Nobody but me can call her dumb. She's a brunette and a cute little thing.

Dick's got a physique I would have admired if he weren't my problem. The next brain wave I get is when I go to the gym with Dick. He fights a little and exercises with the barbells, lifting them over his head like nothing. I went over to the boxing ring. The gym's got a weekly card and some punks are sparring with balloon gloves, trying to get a place on the card. I watch them for a while and before I know it I'm hollering bits of advice to one of the kids.

"SAY, why don't you go into the ring," some guy suggests, and I'm in a pair of trunks sparring away. I don't know much more about fighting but what I learned from common sense. Common sense means a lot in the ring, though, and pretty soon I'm actually enjoying it up there. I collected a nice crowd.

So I'm signed for the Saturday night card. I figured it's okay because I can get Dora there, and she'll see me knock out my opponent and we can get married. As simple as that. But what I ain't figured on is that they put Dick up to fight against me.

Dora's sitting at the ringside. Before the fight she said, "May the best man win," and her lips trembled and her eyelids fluttered. I wanted to walk out, but it was too late, and she wants both of us to win!

In the first round, I hopped Dick hard. He's pretty muscle bound and can't move fast. I hear Dora in the first row hollering at me, "You baboon. Crook. Double-crosser." And those aren't nice things to say. "Hit 'em hard, Dick. Knock him out!"

I look in her direction and Dick hits me with a terrific punch. I fall down but wait until the count of nine so I can get rested a little. All this time I'm looking at Dora and she's hollering, "Atta boy, Dick, atta boy!" And she's waving her hands, smiles all over her face.

This is too much, even for me. I don't care for nothin' now. I get up from the floor, feeling disgusted, disgraced and mad. Some driver friends are betting pretty heavy on me. I had been thinking of letting Dick walk away with the fight when I saw Dora wanted him to win, but not now! Nuts to these fickle dames!

I look at Dick's chin and let him have it. Dick crumples. I win. I walk to the dressing room, shower and dress. I'm in a terrible mood 'cause I feel I lost even though I won, but Dora ought to be more reasonable!

"Congratulations!" someone says, as I'm walking out. It's Dora. "My hunk of man." She melts in my arms and I kiss her good. Oh boy! This plan has worked.

Dr. A. C. Ivy New U. of I. Medical Activities Head

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, new vice president of the University of Illinois, has instituted an expanded program of teaching, research, and service to the people of Illinois through the University's colleges of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy and its hospitals in Chicago's west side medical center.

Dr. A. C. Ivy

Dr. Ivy, head of the University's Chicago Professional Colleges and hospitals, is one of the world's leading physiologists and clinical investigators. He is author of more than 750 publications dealing with the gastro-intestinal tract, gall bladder, brain, and glands of internal secretion.

Born Feb. 25, 1893, in Farmington, Mo., Dr. Ivy was graduated from State Normal School, Cape Girardeau, Mo., and later received B. S., M. S., and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Chicago. He obtained an M. D. degree from Rush Medical College, Chicago.

After teaching at the University of Chicago and Loyola University, Dr. Ivy joined the staff of Northwestern University. From 1925 to Sept. 1946, when he assumed the newly-created position of vice-president of the University of Illinois, he was head of the department of physiology and pharmacology at Northwestern.

He is a member of more than 25 national medical societies. He is the discoverer of two hormones—cholecystokinin and enterogastrone, the first a substance which forces the gall bladder to contract, the second a recently-announced cure for peptic ulcers.

Dr. Ivy held numerous technical consultant capacities during the war and was director of the Naval Medical Research Institute at Bethesda, Md.

In 1946, he served as American representative of an international commission to study Nazi war-time medical experiments, and served as medical adviser to testify on the ethical principles of medical investigations, studies, and experiments conducted by Nazi doctors on trial for war crimes.

Dr. Ivy consistently cites the need for continued and expanded medical research in the interest of humanity. His particular interests, aside from the gastro-intestinal tract and the gall bladder, are geriatrics (diseases of the aged), chronic illness, cancer, analgesia, and the need for animal experimentation in all phases of medical research.

A Negro who had been exploring chicken coops heard that the sheriff was after him. Hastily he sought the railway station and asked for a ticket on the fastest train.

"The fastest train left just five minutes ago," he was told. "Well," gasped the Negro, "jes' give me a ticket an' point out de track."

"Dr. W. J. Mumm, Research Director for Crow's Hybrid Corn Company, demonstrates how Film-Coating can insure a good stand of corn, even under bad planting conditions. The seed corn in this tray was planted in old corn soil and kept quite wet while it was stored in a cold chamber at 46 degrees for 21 days. The tray was then moved to a warm germinator to see how much seed would grow. The Film-Coated seed grew 92%, while similar seed which had received the usual dust treatment, grew but 20%."

Seed Corn Grew 96% After 14 Days in Cold, Wet Soil

Note the great difference in germination of seed corn planted on each side of this tray. Seed in both sides was taken from the same bag—soil was from a field where corn had grown 3 years. Tray was held at 47 degrees for 14 days—then given normal temperature—note the results.

CROW'S FILM-COATED SEED CORN

This is a sensational, new discovery for hybrid corn. Insures seed protection in cold, wet soil. Unlike chemical "dusting," Crow's Film-Coated Corn sends the entire seed treatment into the ground with the kernel. The corn stays alive—produces a good stand—more vigorous plants—a better crop for you. Place orders now for spring delivery.
