Japs Welcome New "No War" Constitution

Tokyo, May 3—(AP)—Japanese welcomed their new "no war" constitution today by happily mobbing Emperor Hirohito in Imperial plaza while their band played the famed U. S. military march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

Without uttering a word, the emperor who becomes a mere 'symbol of state' under the MacArthur-approved constitution was the star attraction for 5,000 Japanese at the constitutional rally.

The little emperor arrived in a chill rain. He walked solemnly and jerkily to the front of the platform.

He stood there a moment. Emperor and subjects faced each other in mutual silent embarrassment. Then Hirohito started to lift his hat, thought better of it, and put it back on his head.

That brought a roar from the crowd. The emperor smiled, removed his hat like an awkward suitor and bowed slightly.

This gesture from the man before whom all Japanese once bowed brought another roar from the crowd.

R. M. Hood Dies

Illinois State Capitol News

Governor Dwight H. Green has proclaimed Sunday, May 11, as Mother's Day throughout Illinois.

"The love, devotion and self-sacrifice of our mothers inspires our fondest memories," the Governor's proclamation said. "The affection which all sons and daughters have for their mothers should be given tangible expression."

The high financial rating of the state of Illinois is attested by the successful flotation of $300,000,000 of veterans' service recognition bonds, which has just been completed at interest rates well below the limit set by the statute authorizing the issue. This was the largest single issue of bonds ever offered to the public by any state in the Union.

The bonds have been sold to a group of more than 250 financial and investment firms headed by large Chicago banks.

The state industrial commission has awarded $530,120 to the families of the victims of the Centralia mine disaster. All of the 111 cases are covered by the award, making the average payment per family $4,775. Details of the payments, which will be made by the Centralia Coal company, owners of the mine, are now being arranged.

This is the largest aggregate award ever made in the United States by an industrial commission on an industrial accident, according to William E. Kaiser, commission chairman.

Fire Destroys Barn at Lutheran Parsonage

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn at the Immanuel Lutheran parsonage, north of Broadlands, Wednesday morning. The fire siren sounded at about 9 a. m. and a large crowd quickly gathered at the scene of the conflagration. However, the fire had gained too great a headway to be extinguished, and the building was quickly consumed.

The News is $2.00 per year.

Allerton Veterans Organize VFW Post

Allerton—Local veterans have organized the Dayle Potter Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and have applied for a charter from the state department. The post plans to meet the first and third Tuesdays of each month.

The local post was named for Tech. Sgt. Dayle C. Potter, the first war casualty from this community. He was an engineer on a bomber and was killed in action in the Solomon Islands on July 10, 1943, at the age of 28. He graduated from Allerton high school in 1935, enlisted in the army air corps at Chanute Field, and was sent overseas in March, 1943.—Sidell Journal.

To Start Search For Oldest Chevrolet Truck

Detroit—A nationwide search to find the oldest Chevrolet truck still in active service in the United States was announced here today by J. W. Burke, manager of commercial and truck department, Chevrolet Motor Division, General Motors Corporation. The owner of the oldest vehicle will be presented with a new truck from the "Advance-Design" line of trucks which will be introduced by Chevrolet in the near future.

"We expect old truck entries from every section of the country," said Burke, "and may find the vehicle in farm service or doing a hauling job on a city street. Owners are urged to enter their oldest truck as it may be the winning vehicle."

Rules of the contest provide that the truck must carry 1947 license plates, and be driven to a Chevrolet dealer for official registration. Age of the trucks will be determined by the serial number of the vehicle. The search will begin May 10 and end June 15.

Mrs. Thelma Clem Is Hostess to Ladies Aid

The U. B. Ladies Aid met at the home of Mrs. Thelma Clem on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Juanita Eckerty led the devotions, the topic being "America the Beautiful." The program consisted of songs, readings, scripture and prayer.

Mrs. Erma Wood conducted the business meeting.

Mrs. Clem gave a report on the quarterly meeting held recently.

Chinese checkers were played and refreshments of ice cream, angel food cake and coffee were served during the social hour.

Those present were Mesdames Erma Wood, Leona and Jessie Bergfeld, Ruth Henson, Juanita Eckerty, Elizabeth Elston, Belle Smith and Thelma Clem.

James Warnes and Ivesdale Girl Wed

Miss Mary Camille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Auth, of Ivesdale, and James J., youngest son of Robert Warnes, of Longview, were married in St. Joseph's church in Ivesdale, at 2:00 p. m. April 26, with the Rev. Fr. Charles D. Martin reading the double ring ceremony. After 200 guests were assembled in the church, Sister Marie Trease, O. S. B., accompanied by Mrs. B. J. Alblinger, sister of the bride, sang "Ave Maria," and played the processional for the entrance of the bridal party. The altar was decorated with Easter lilies, palms and lighted candelabra.

The bride wore a gown of egg-shell satin with a long train, and a fingertip veil falling from a tiara of rhinestones, matching her necklace. She carried a bouquet of pink camellias, and was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Esther Current, Effingham, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore a gown of blush pink satin made with a snug bodice and full skirt, long lace mitts, and a hat made of sweet peas matching the muff she carried.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mary Ellen Eckstein, of Ivesdale, Miss Mercedes Maley, and Mrs. Ted Dyar, Champaign, sister of the groom, wore similar dresses of coral, ice blue and green. They wore caps of sweet peas and carried muffs of matching flowers.

Mary Lee Nonman, flower girl, wore a floor length gown of pink with a hat to match and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. Bobbie Joe Alblinger was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a street length beige crepe dress with hat and gloves to match, and a corsage of American beauty roses.

Delbert Warnes, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Richard Auth, brother of the bride, Bernard Alblinger, brother-in-law, and James Edwin Hanley, nephew of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held for 160 guests in the American Legion club rooms in Sadorus. The table was decorated with pink and white snapdragons, and a three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with pink rosebuds. Later the couple left for a 10-day trip through the East, and on returning will make their home in Longview.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's Academy in Nauvoo, and Chicago College of laboratory technique. She has been employed as a laboratory technician at Burnham hospital. Mr. Warnes graduated from Longview high school, and from Illinois Commercial College in Champaign. He served four years in the armed forces, and is now employed in the office of C. S. Johnson Co. in Champaign.

IMPROVED
UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

BEING LOYAL TO TRUE RELIGION

LESSON TEXT—1 Kings 18:20, 21, 30-39.
MEMORY SELECTION—Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart back again.—1 Kings 18: 37.

God meets the challenge of unbelief and sin through the ages in its different forms. In the days of Elijah it was the awful power of the false religion of Baal which threw its pall of heathenish immorality over the people.

The prophet was God's man of courage in a day of unbelief and sin. To be courageous means to steadily meet perils of which one is keenly conscious, doing so because of the call of duty. Courage holds a deeper and nobler meaning than bravery, carrying with it the idea of moral strength and, in the case of the Christian, faith in God as one devoted to his cause.

The account of the conflict with the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel is a dramatic and instructive story. It shows that when God's man meets God's enemy there is an open, above-board, honest victory.

I. Nothing Hidden (vv. 20-21, 30).

The appeal to Israel cut no corners and made no compromises. They must choose between the true God and the false Baal. They could not hold to both or halt between two opinions. The same is true today of our relationship to Jesus Christ.

The direct challenge at Mount Carmel follows the same pattern of out-in-the-open dealing with the problem.

Men whose deeds are evil love darkness rather than light. God does not have to work in the dark. All of his workings are in the open sunlight. Everyone is welcome to "come near" and see what is done.

Elijah knew God and he acted like God's man. What a tragedy it is that not all of God's servants have followed his example. If we had the open and above-board dealings of Elijah in the affairs of our churches, we might see more of the fire and power of his ministry.

Certain it is that the administration of church affairs which has to be carried out in hidden corners by whispered conversations and by secret manipulations behind the scenes is not God's work at all, it is the work of man.

II. No Favors Asked (vv. 33-35).

Elijah rebuilt the altar himself. He asked no help of the unbelieving prophets of Baal or of apostate Israel. How old-fashioned he seems in this day when so much stress is laid on a false unity of the faiths, and there is so much solicitation and acceptance by the church of the help of unbelievers in financing the supposed work of God.

Note also that Elijah invited his enemies to make the answer to his prayer more difficult by pouring water on the sacrifice. This was not an act of bravado; it was for the purpose of demonstrating that there was no fraud. He was willing that the enemies of the truth should make the demonstration more difficult if that would be to God's glory.

There is a delightful old-fashioned flavor about that act, too, in these days when men are frequently willing to compromise with unbelief and even with sin, in order that the work of the church may be carried on without too much difficulty. Here again we have an explanation of the lack of spiritual power in our times.

The victory which came was a glorious testimony to the living reality and the infinite power of God. It left

III. No Glory to Man (vv. 30b-32, 36-39).

A man of bravery usually wants recognition for himself, while the courageous man asks only that the cause for which he fights shall be successful.

Elijah had long since demonstrated that he was absolutely fearless, and sought no favor or glory (read the entire story). Now in the tenseness of this moment, he carefully rebuilds the altar of the true God (v. 30), makes it a testimony of unity to a divided Israel (v. 31), and he does it all in the name of the Lord (v. 32).

His prayer (vv. 36, 37) is a profoundly simple expression of a complete faith in the true God and his power, on the part of a man who recognized himself as being only the divine servant. He made no plea that God would vindicate him or his ministry, but he did plead that the name of the Lord should be honored in the midst of an unbelieving people.

"The fire of the Lord fell." The lying prophets of heathendom were routed. Many recognized Jehovah as the true God. While Israel did not long remember the lesson learned here, the story has continued as a testimony that will strengthen the people of God as long as time continues.

Rebuke to Wallace

One of the most astounding performances ever put on by a former high official of the United States was that recently staged in Europe by Henry A. Wallace. His speeches during the past few weeks might well have been written or dictated by the Soviet Politburo in Moscow.

In a speech in Manchester, England, Wallace declared that the United States had embarked on a program of "ruthless imperialism," which if unchecked would stretch the American empire from China to the Near East and from pole to pole.

This is only a brief sample of the misrepresentations and falsehoods being spread by this American renegade against his own country, and which are being hailed with glee by the Russian press and by Communists all over the world.

Wallace takes the position that Russia has been right and the United States wrong in the negotiations that have been going on since the end of the war. He opposed the loan to Greece and Turkey, and instead advocates a 15 billion dollar loan to Russia, which would really be a gift to our most dangerous enemy.

How he got that way is beyond comprehension, unless he is seeking revenge against President Truman for kicking him out of the cabinet for disloyalty, or has simply gone haywire.

When he arrived in Paris recently, Wallace was enthusiastically welcomed by a delegation of French Communist leaders, under whose auspices his speeches in France were made. He has now signified his intention of making a nation-wide speaking tour of the United States.

What he hopes to accomplish is difficult to conceive—certainly he cannot hope to further his own political ambitions, for he has taken sufficient rope to hang himself politically already.

The severest rebuke Wallace has received is seen in the vote of 67 to 23 in the Senate in favor of the Greek-Turkish loan, which he has so violently opposed.

Greek-Turkish Aid

Principal provisions of the Greek-Turkish aid bill recently passed by a vote of 67 to 23, are as follows:

1. Loans and gifts to the two countries, in such form as may be fixed by the President, in the amount of $400,000,000, to be expended before July 1, 1948.

2. Of this amount $300,000,000 would go to Greece for relief and for military purposes, and $100,000,000 to Turkey for strengthening of that country's military forces. The bill also authorizes the giving of some of the used American military equipment now in Europe to the two countries.

The distribution of this money and equipment would be supervised by American officials, to be appointed by the President.

The bill now goes to the House and it is expected to be finally passed within the next few days.

The vote on this measure again illustrated the fact that President Truman's foreign policy has the support of a decisive majority of both parties in Congress, as well as that of the people generally. One of the most powerful influences in bringing this about has been the stand taken by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican president pro tem of the Senate and chairman of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee.

During debate on the Greek-Turkish bill he several times left the chair to take the floor in support of the measure, answering critics of the President's foreign policy with telling effectiveness. On the last day of the debate he read a cablegram sent him by Secretary of State Marshall from Moscow, strongly urging the bill's passage.

Both Vandenberg and Marshall, as well as Mr. Truman and all others who are informed concerning Russian tactics and ambitions, are aware of the stern necessity of opposing the Soviet policy of aggression and expansion before it is too late.

Sidelights

We suggest that some local junk yard follow the example of a concern in Denver which has erected at railroad crossings signs reading: "Go ahead—take a chance. We'll buy what's left of the car."

With controversies raging between nation and nation, between union and employer, and between groups and individuals, we can fully understand the feelings of a certain fellow who was becoming very hard of hearing. A friend advised him to consult a doctor before he completely lost his hearing. After a visit to the doctor, his friend asked what the physician had to say. "Well," said the one hard of hearing, "he told me I would have to quit drinkin' or become stone deaf. I been athinkin' and I like what I been adrinkin' so much better than what I been ahearin' that I think I'll just keep on adrinkin'."

We hesitate to tell you of an incident that occurred in one of Chicago's better hotels a few days ago—but here goes. A salesman went to the cashier's window to pay his bill and when presented with his statement, almost lost his power of speech. When fully recovered, he looked up at the young lady and asked: "That's a necklace, of course?" Rather startled, the cashier fingered the decoration about her neck and said: Why, yes. Why do you ask? Well, everything is so high around here, I just thought it might be your garter, was his parting remark.

When the bridegroom gets most of the attention, that's certainly page one news. And so it was with Gus. Gus' former mate died a short time ago and since then he has been moping around. Experience shows that Gus alone could or should be the sole authority on selecting another mate—otherwise there might be a fight to the death. You see, Gus is the swan that has been the pride of Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Los Angeles, and realizing his dire need for a mate, he was flown to Boston where he was given the opportunity to woo and win his bride, Henrietta. Gus and Henrietta are now honeymooning back in California after a most eventful plane trip which created widespread interest and brought a number of news cameramen to the honeymoon plane prior to its take-off. The newlyweds posed for their pictures just before entering the plane where the crate that was Gus' private berth going East, was enlarged for two for the return trip.

The World's Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to be held at Asbury Park, N. J., June 5 to 10, will draw temperance missionaries and official delegates from every continent. The convention will be presided over by Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Brooklyn, N. Y., world president. Delegates are already en route from New Zealand, England, India, Egypt, Burma, Malaya, South Africa, Scotland, Ireland, Chile, Bermuda, Argentina and other nations. Plans for a worldwide campaign against the manufacture and use of alcoholic beverages will be made by the women, most of whom are also active in churches. Following the world convention, the national (American) convention will be held in Asbury Park under the presidency of Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin of Evanston, Ill.

Madame Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic, and sister of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, is the head of the China Welfare Fund, which with generous funds from church groups and agencies in America, supports eight nurseries in North China, including the famous Los Angeles Nursery. These nurseries care for 3,000 Chinese children, most of them orphaned by the war. The organization has assisted in the setting up of four plants which produce vaccines and other drugs. The China Aid Council (American) helps finance Madame Sun's fund.

If you do not believe in Providence, watch the average lady drive and try to figure out what else saves her.

The thing that keeps a lot of men broke is not the wolf at the door, but the silver fox in the window.

A mother of thirteen children was asked, How in the world do you have time to care for thirteen?

Well, she replied, 'when I had only one child it took all my time; what more can thirteen do?'

The prodigal son had returned. Father, he inquired, are you going to kill the fatted calf?

No, answered the old man, looking the youth over carefully. No, I'll let you live. But I'll put you to work and train a lot of that fat off.

Sunday School Teacher—Why, Willie Wilson. Fighting again! Didn't last Sunday's lesson teach you that when you are struck on one cheek you ought to turn the other to the striker?

Willie—Yes'm, but he hit me on the nose, and I've only got one.

The newly-rich woman was trying to make an impression.

I clean my diamonds with ammonia, she said, my rubies with Bordeaux wine, my emeralds with Danzig brandy, and my sapphires with fresh milk.

I don't clean mine, said the quiet woman sitting next to her. When they get dirty I just throw them away.

Children, said the teacher, I want you to write an essay in which you tell something about every day in the week.

One bright little fellow wrote: Since meat has come back we have it every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

And after a moment's further thought, he added: And Sunday, too!

Her allowance had run out, so she wrote home for more money. Feeling uncertain as to the impression it would make, she opened her letter and wrote: 'P. S. —I did not like writing to you. In fact, I ran after the postman to get this letter back.'

Several days later she received the following reply. "Dear daughter: You'll be glad to know that I didn't get your letter. —Dad."

Watch Beauty Care During Housecleaning

DON'T forget beauty care during housecleaning, Jean Gray advises homemakers in an article in nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer.

"Too often good natures as well as rooms are upset by taking out rugs and moving furniture," she writes. "The family will be happier in the cleaning confusion if you remain unruffled and well groomed. And feeling neat will keep your spirits high as you attack the grime!

"Even though it may be old, your cleaning dress can be clean, neat and mended. Wear an apron or smock that can be whisked off to reveal a clean dress.

"Protect your skin from dirt by applying a powder base before starting to work. After dusty duties, wash vigorously with a turkish washcloth or complexion brush—this in addition to usual morning and evening washing.

"Benefit from the exercise of cleaning. When dusting and making beds, stretch your middle, keep it tense. This keeps muscles firm. When sweeping or running the vacuum, keep shoulders back and don't bend in the middle. Carrying your body straight and tall is slenderizing since much waist thickness is slump. If you get tired, lie down for 15 minutes with your feet on a couple of pillows."

Household Hints

Protect your scissors from rust in damp weather by wrapping them in waxed paper.

On a rainy day clean out bureau drawers occasionally and throw away worn out and unnecessary items.

Use precaution when selecting a lining for a coat or jacket. It should last as long as the garment.

To prevent rust marks on bathroom or kitchen fixtures where scouring powder can rest, dip bottom of can in hot paraffin.

Iron rayon jersey lightly and don't pull the garment. Avoid having the iron too hot or the result may be disastrous.

Choose colored thread slightly darker than the fabric on which it will be used. When stitched it will match the fabric.

To get ready for spring housecleaning and to obtain more storage space, start now to weed out old kitchen utensils and other odds and ends which are no longer useful.

For cleaning aluminum pans which are discolored boil a cream of tartar solution in the pan. Use one teaspoon of cream of tartar to each quart of water for best results.

It takes a lot of paint to cover bricks because they are porous and soak up the linseed oil. The first coat should be permitted to dry for a week or ten days before the second one is applied.

Cheese-Hoop Hassock

A round cheese box may be made into an inexpensive, attractive hassock to match a slip-covered chair, according to the Rural Home editor of nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer. Pad the lid; cover with material. Cover hassock with matching fabric. The hassock with its removable lid can double as a box for children's toys.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Where's the Argument?

You should have heard Ed Carey and Spike Miller debating the merits of Guernseys versus Holsteins. Ed's our firechief, and Spike handles hardware—but to hear them argue you'd have thought that they'd been dairying for life.

Finally they put it up to Sam Carter, who breeds dairy cows! Sam hems and haws . . . and concludes there's a lot to be said for Holsteins, and about as much for Guernseys . . . take your pick!

Actually, Ed and Spike were like people arguing about—say, beer versus buttermilk. Folks who've never tasted beer will sometimes get mighty vehement about their choice of beverages. And folks who've never tasted buttermilk will be equally pig-headed.

From where I sit, it's in things we know nothing about that we get bigoted and stubborn. But when it comes to things we know a lot about, we're able to see both sides . . . be tolerant and reasonable . . . and above all, understanding.

3 MINUTE FICTION
Fixin' Daddy
By R. H. Scanlon

WNU Features.

"ADDY, you're so funny," Carol's shrill laughter filled the room. "There's the salt shaker—right there." She pointed a chubby finger in front of Jim's plate, but his hand had groped past it and was wandering in the middle of the table—toward the milk pitcher. There was a crash and milk flooded the cloth. Janet came running in. "Daddy spilled the milk! Daddy spilled the milk!" Carol chanted. "Carol!" her mother gently commanded, "sit down and finish your cereal."

"I can't, there's milk on my chair." Janet wiped the chair dry. "Now, hurry up or you'll be late for kindergarten."

"I want some more milk first," Carol insisted. Janet took the pitcher out and filled it. When she came back Jim was gone.

She found him standing by the open window seemingly staring into the street.

"Jim, Carol didn't mean anything. You know how youngsters are."

"Yeah, truthful." Jim turned on her. "Is that why you sent Carol over to mother's last week? Were you afraid of what she'd say to her blind father? 'Our second honeymoon,' he mocked, 'that's what you called it. Keep the kid away for a while, she'll tell him the truth. Huh, I've been wondering what kind of a spectacle I've been making."

"Mummy, mummy, come here," Carol's voice came from the basement.

"That's not true. You're talking crazy."

"Crazy," he said, throwing the word back. "All right, I'll talk straight. Jan, I'm not going to be pampered. If I'm a blundering idiot, a spectacle to my own child, then don't try to hide it."

They ate lunch together in silence. When Jim finished he abruptly left the table.

"Darling," he stopped and turned. "What?"

"I've got to do the shopping after I do the dishes. Carol's coming home around two. Will you keep an eye on her?"

"Sure, both of them," he muttered and turned away.

Janet stared at her shopping list and felt the wall between them growing higher and thicker.

When Carol came in Jim was sitting at the radio. She stopped in the doorway eyeing him gravely.

"Hello," she ventured.

"Hello," he said switching off the radio. He leaned forward holding out his hands to her, "Come here, Small Fry."

Carol came forward slowly. "Mama says you lost your eyes, but you didn't, did you?"

"Wouldn't you like me if I didn't have any eyes?"

Jim started to hug her, but suddenly she pulled free and ran out.

For a moment the blind man stood uncertainly in the middle of the room bewildered and confused, then slowly the expression of bewilderment melted into one of resolution.

When Janet returned the living room was empty.

"Jim!" she called, but there was no answer. The house was strangely quiet.

"Carol! Carol!" she cried.

"Mummy, mummy, come here," her daughter's excited voice answered from the basement door.

"Oh, darling, darling," Janet sobbed, but Carol was too busy tugging at her mother's dress to be cried over.

"Mummy, come an' see!"

Janet wiped the tears and basement-gloom out of her eyes and there in the middle of the floor surrounded by screw-drivers and wrenches sat Jim with Carol's bicycle wheel tucked between his knees. He was grinning from ear to ear and had a big smudge of grease on his nose.

"Hi, honey," he said with the old familiar chuckle. "Sit down and watch my mechanics. 'Small Fry' and me are setting up a partnership. She breaks 'em and I fix 'em."

He reached up and pulled her pig-tails. Carol jerked her head away, indignantly and regarded her mother wisely.

"Mummy, daddy has too got eyes. See, he's fixin' my bicycle."

Clear the Decks

During a recent trip to the nation's capitol, I found the air filled with talk of reducing the budget. Many legislators are now becoming economy conscious. However, one item of the budget—national defense—has been given a respectable detour by many Congressmen. Although its proposed $12.7 billions represents almost one-third of the 1948 budget, most legislators seem content to economize only on the other two-thirds.

National defense has been given a "halo" of untouchability. Current thought trends believe that any reduction of defense appropriations would cripple our military and naval potential. John Q. Public will gladly pay through the nose to avoid the unpreparedness experienced in the early stages of World War II. Estimates of defense cost by the military forces are accepted without question.

Waste Hangover

However, there is every indication that wartime waste and extravagances still exist in peacetime operation of the armed forces. During the war the over-all annual cost for each fighting man was $6960. This included everything consumed in combat—ships, guns, planes and ammunition. The proposed budget calls for an annual average of $6790 per man in uniform. Only $170 less for the peacetime soldier than when he was maintained in a round-the-world conflict.

In January, 1947—the third year of peace—the Army and Navy had 1,006,577 civilian employees. Two civilians for every three soldiers. During World War II there were two civilian employees for every fifteen soldiers—this during the most wasteful war in all history. The civilian employees represent a yearly outlay of $3 billion. There should be no room in an efficient fighting force for a costly "bureaucracy."

Excess Baggage

No sane admiral or general would take his force into battle without making it as efficient as possible under existing conditions. Confusion and inefficiency within his own ranks are more deadly than any enemy. He must clear his decks of anything which will get in the way and keep the guns from firing smoothly. We must now use the same technique in peacetime to fight financial suicide.

The armed forces have everything to gain in pruning away their deadwood. The result will be a more efficient and effective defense force. Also, this will promote the confidence of a public that knows its tax money is being wisely spent. A future forced cut might come at a time to really cripple defense operations.

Fighting Weight

It is not a matter of cutting appropriations that would result in a weakened Army and Navy. The reverse is actually true. First, efficiency must be created within the operations themselves. Then the path is open for expenditures more in line with sane economy. Efficiency of operation, public confidence, and sensible financing all depend upon each other. None can stand alone.

This is one of the first steps in bringing our wayward economy back to earth. In our zeal to spend recklessly for national protection, we should acknowledge the presence of more than one type of enemy. It is sure folly to pour an endless stream of money into a wasteful machine to protect ourselves from an outside aggressor, only to result in financial chaos within our own borders. A good deal of economizing can be done within the services without crippling our defense.

List 10 Don'ts For the Man Who Drives Tractor

To help cut down the rising toll of tractor accidents that occur on Illinois farms at this time of the year, W. W. Whitlock, director of safety and public health of the Illinois Agriculture Association, today listed 10 don'ts for farm tractor operators.

1. Don't refuel while engine is running because of fire hazard.
2. Don't try to cross deep gullies or ditches because of danger of tipping.
3. Don't allow extra riders, especially children, to ride with you.
4. Don't make adjustment on tractor or implement while machinery is running.
5. Don't carelessly remove radiator cap because of danger of spouting steam and hot water.
6. Don't have exhaust pipe in a position where you will breathe its fumes.
7. Don't try to spin tractor crank. Pull upward on crank only.
8. Don't drive at excessive speeds.
9. Don't follow too closely behind other vehicles.
10. Don't ignore traffic rules on roads. They apply to tractors as well as other vehicles.

'Wish You Wouldn't's' Apply to Parents, Too

SINCE turn about is fair play, any list of "Wish you Wouldn't's" for teen agers should be accompanied by a few "Don'ts" for parents, too, Holly Miller points out in nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer.

Discussing the teen agers' viewpoint, she writes: "Seems as if 'I wish you wouldn't' is the preface to a good many statements by the older generation. 'The way you dress, eat, walk, talk—gadzoos—nothing seems to please them.

"But before you get too huffy and cast their admonitions to the breeze, go into a huddle with yourself. Down deep you may find the grace to admit that a lot of so-called characteristic adolescent behaviorisms are not calculated to make the populace love you. And that just because simply everybody acts a certain way is not sufficient reason for anybody as special as you to follow suit."

Among the "Don'ts" which Miss Miller says teen-agers might suggest to parents are: "Don't laugh at us. We're self-conscious enough. Tho our plans may seem a little fantastic and some of our actions silly, it's probably part of being young. Don't you remember?"

"Don't treat us like kids. You can help us grow up by treating us like grown-ups. Trust us a little more. 'Never, never say, 'I told you so.' It's too curdling. And we have to learn the hard way to make it stick."
