Future World Capital Sketched by U.N. Planners

How the future "world capital"—the Headquarters of the United Nations in New York—will look is shown in this drawing of the general architectural layout. The 40-story skyscraper (left) will provide offices for the U.N. staff, while the low buildings nearby, overlooking the East River, will contain meeting halls for U.N. organs. A proposed building (right) to house national delegations to U.N. would be constructed at the north end of the 18-acre site. The general layout, approved by a 10-nation Board of Design Consultants, which worked with U.N. planners, headed by Wallace K. Harrison, will be followed by more detailed planning of the group of buildings.

Eppa Cain and Raymond Wolfe also reported quite a little damage at their farm homes, where trees were blown down, and a brooder house was damaged at the Wolfe place.—St. Joseph Record.

Senator Peters Introduces Bill to Outlaw DST

Springfield, June 3—A bill to outlaw daylight saving time was introduced Tuesday by Senator E. R. Peters, St. Joseph Republican, who declared, "I'm trying to put the state of Illinois on one time."

Senators Ora Oldfield of Centralia and Rice Miller of Hillsboro, both Republicans, joined Peters in sponsoring the bill, which would require all public offices and business places to go on central standard time thruout the year. It would prohibit local governments from adopting daylight saving time.

"My objection is to the confusion, not to the idea of daylight saving time. I think we must have one time for the state, and I don't think it would be practical to require anything but standard time, unless daylight saving could be adopted on a national scale," Mr. Peters said.

(Editor's Note: Hurrah for you, Senator Peters. If you can outlaw this silly, asinine, daylight saving time, you will have done the people of Illinois a great service.)

Corn Planting In Illinois Ten Days Late This Season

The progress of corn planting in Illinois has been highly irregular this season. In some sections of the state the crop is up, while in other localities farmers have not been able to plant because of wet fields. In general, planting is a week to ten days late, according to state and federal departments of agriculture, with delays most marked in areas from Pontiac and Watseka on north, and in the lower east central part of the state.

Last year an excellent crop of corn was matured in eastern Illinois despite the fact that wet weather delayed planting until the first week in June.

Crop experts point out that cool, wet weather has hindered development of the corn borer, so less damage from that source is expected this year.

MAKING REFORMS SUCCEED

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 22:10, 11; 23:1-5. MEMORY SELECTION—Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law.—Psalm 119:34.

God can bring blessing out of the most unpromising of circumstances. Yes, and men can make chaos out of God's greatest gifts.

The good Josiah became king at eight years of age, and was surrounded by godly counselors who helped him become an outstanding ruler for God. When he was sixteen he had a real religious experience (II Chron. 34:3), and at twenty he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem of idols and wickedness.

I. A Book Found and Read (22:10, 11; 23:1, 2).

The Word of God had been neglected for about sixty years. How sad! Yes and how sad that in our homes the Bible is so often neglected—on a book shelf, or in a trunk, or gathering dust on a living room table. A lost Bible, and a people living in sin! How much we need to push aside the rubbish in our lives and bring out our "lost" Bibles.

Observe that they not only found the book, but they read it. That was true of the ones who found it as well as of those to whom they passed it on. What a good thought we have there: read the Bible, yes, but be sure to get someone else reading it too.

In Josiah's day it was thus first received

1. By the King. The ruler or rulers of the people need to return to God's Word in our day. It is all too often neglected in the council chambers of the nations.

Josiah was moved by what he read to real repentance. He realized that the judgment of God must come. Inquiry at Jerusalem brought word from Huldah the prophetess that it would come, but not in Josiah's day.

The king was not content to keep this word to himself, and insisted that it be read

2. By the religious leaders.

The priests and the prophets who were doubly guilty in neglecting it were now brought face to face with God's revelation.

Who will say that the great need in America is not just this, that its preachers and denominational leaders get back to the reading and teaching of God's Word. Book reviews, lectures in economics and politics, discussions of one world—almost anything but the Bible. Such is the fare of many of our preachers. No wonder that they and their people are spiritually starved.

Josiah knew what was needed and the Word was now read

3. By the people.

Applying that to our day, it is true that the Bible is our best seller, that it is available to every home, and that most decent households have not one but many Bibles. But are they being read? The answer is obviously no. Let's correct that dreadful situation. Read your Bible!

II. A Book Believed and Practiced (23:3-5, 21).

Josiah saw that it was not enough to read and rejoice over the Word of God. Something must be done about it, and he did it.

1. The king made a covenant with God.

Standing in a prominent place before his people, he humbly and solemnly renewed his consecration to the Lord, and promised to abide by his Word with all his heart and soul (v. 3). Such a leader could not but inspire his people to do the same.

What a blessing it is to us when we hear of some man prominent in the affairs of the nation or state who loves the Lord, and keeps his commandments. He is not only an inspiring example, but a real witness for God.

2. The priests cast out the idols (vv. 4, 5).

The king required this of them, and they proceeded thus to cleanse the places of worship and prepare the way for a true devotion to God.

Here again we say that when religious leaders get back to their first devotion to God and put away the empty philosophies of this world, we shall see a revival.

What did the people do? Josiah saw that they needed some positive expression of their faith. It was not enough to tear down the idols; they must re-establish the true worship of God. So we find that

3. The people kept the Passover. This was the great feast of the Jews which spoke of redemption from bondage. It pointed forward to Christ the Redeemer from sin. He is our Passover (I Cor. 5:7).

In these dark and bewildering days people are looking to Christian leaders to prepare a feast of remembrance of the death of Christ and of his glorious redemption. Let the people gather round him and, cleansed by his precious blood, keep the feast with joy and purity of heart (I Cor. 5:8).

Palestine Inquiry

At the special session of the United Nations General Assembly recently concluded, an 11-nation inquiry committee was set up to further study the troublesome Palestine problem. The committee will hold preliminary meetings in New York to devise a plan of work and map out an itinerary.

The Big Five nations were not given representation on the Palestine committee as it was considered best to have the inquiry made by smaller nations. Those represented on the inquiry committee are Australia, Canada, Sweden, Peru, Czechoslovakia, the Netherlands, Iran, Uruguay, Guatemala, Yugoslavia and India.

This new committee will have access to reports and documents of previous studies of the Palestine question, and will also be aided by members of the regular U. N. secretariat staff, headed by Dr. Victor Hoo of China, assistant secretary-general.

It is probable that the committee will visit a number of camps for homeless Jews in addition to making a tour of Palestine. The committee will report the results of its inquiry, with recommendations, to the next regular meeting of the U. N. General Assembly next fall.

Then it will be the aim of the U. N. to work out a plan whereby the long-standing and bitter controversy between the Jews and Arabs of Palestine may be settled. The Arabs object to further Jewish immigration into the Holy Land, while the Jews desire to establish an independent national home there, under their own government.

Palestine has been governed by the British under a mandate granted by the League of Nations since 1923, during which the Jewish population has reached about 445,000, principally by immigration. The total population of Palestine is estimated at about 1,800,000.

Birth Rate High

Shortly before the war, studies by experts indicated that the United States might reach its peak in population by 1980, after which it would decline. The estimated figure for 1980 was 159,000,000, but the higher birth rate during and since the war has caused an upward revision of this estimate.

The experts now expect the population to reach more than 165,000,000 in 1990, with little indications of a decrease after that.

In 1939 the monthly average of births was 188,799, but the number gradually increased until in January, 1946, it had reached 225,000. Then the increase became more rapid, and an all-time peak of 343,000 births was shown last December. The total number of births registered during 1946 was 3,625,000. In 1939 the total was only 2,265,558.

In the entire United States, the number of births is approximately twice the number of deaths.

Household Hints

To keep moths from getting into the felt of your piano, place a camphor bag inside the case.

Brushing blankets after laundering brings up the nap and keeps them soft and fluffy.

To make raisins extra plump and juicy for use in fruit cups or salads, rinse them in hot water.

When making hamburgers for a crowd, time and trouble may be saved if you season your meat then flatten to the desired thickness and cut with a biscuit cutter.

Rag rugs dipped in a light starch after washing have more body and lie flat on the floor. Wash them in rich, warm suds and rinse thoroughly before starching.

Potatoes will bake faster if they are washed in hot water and allowed to stand in it a few minutes. To make them crisp and brown when done, brush with drippings before placing in the oven.

Foods to be preserved by freezing should be frozen at temperatures of 15 to 20 degrees below zero, then held just below zero. Owners of home freezers should not put more food into the unit at one time than will freeze in 24 hours.

MOST HOTELS ADMIT GUESTS WITH DOGS

68 Per Cent Have Favorable Policy, Survey Indicates

The chances of a traveler accompanied by a dog or dogs finding lodging in a hotel is good, a survey by the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City, indicates.

Returns on a questionnaire sent by the Center to a list of 200 representative hotels scattered throughout the country show that 68 per cent admit guests with dogs. An Illinois hotel stated its policy thus, "The dog is man's best friend and we welcome friends of our guests."

A number of the hotels stated that they permitted only small, well-behaved dogs, while quite a few mentioned that they required guests with dogs to sign a statement of responsibility for any damage done to hotel property. Some have special rooms set aside for the use of guests with dogs. Quite a few of the hotels welcoming dogs either have special kennels or have plans to install them. One manager remarked that he allows dogs in a guest's room as long as the dog departs himself well, but if a disturbance is caused, the dog is banished to the hotel's kennels.

Even of the 32 per cent of the hotels that do not permit dogs, about half said they make a practice of arranging for guests' dogs to be cared for at a nearby kennel.

The manager of an up-state New York hotel suggested the following set of rules for dog-owners as a means of overcoming the most common objections by hotels to the presence of dogs:

1. Dogs should be kept on leash when in public rooms and passageways. (This to prevent possible fights between strange dogs and other disturbances.)
 2. Dogs—"Seeing Eye" dogs excepted—should not be taken into dining rooms.
 3. Owners should exercise and care for their own dogs and not make kennelmen of the bell boys.
 4. Guests should expect to pay for any damage done by their dogs to hotel property.
- The Gaines Dog Research Center urges dog-owners traveling with canine pets to make mention of this fact when making reservations. If he plans to stay at a hotel having special rooms set aside for guests with dogs, this guest usually finds it advantageous to occupy one of these rooms, since they are generally located for convenience in taking the dog in and out of the building for exercising.

 Later a gesticulating Italian farmer appeared and demanded payment. Unable to make themselves understood, one of the soldiers took a scrap of paper from his pocket and carefully wrote something on it. This satisfied the complainant for the moment, but the next day he was back.

Uncle Sam Says

All of us would like to put dad on a pedestal on Father's Day to show him how we feel about him the year round. I like to think of all American fathers in the role of Minute Men, standing guard over the security of their families. Certainly they could do no better than to assure the happiness of themselves and their homes than by buying United States Savings Bonds regularly.

Two automatic bond buying plans are available now. If dad is on a payroll, the Payroll Savings Plan will assure him days of ease when he gets ready to retire. If dad is a professional man or self-employed, he can use his checking account to buy a bond a month.

Garden 'Greens' Can Be Continuous

Plenty of leafy vegetables, raw and cooked, are necessary in the diet of both children and grownups in order to promote vigor and well-being. In a home garden they can be continuous for many months if various kinds are grown.

Leaf lettuce is one of the first green things to appear. The young leaves can be picked for the table when only a couple of inches in length while the smaller inner leaves are left to grow. The same is true of spinach; the tender new leaves are as good raw as cooked when chopped and served with oil and vinegar dressing. Or, treat them the same as "wilted lettuce" by pouring over them a mixture of hot bacon fat, vinegar, and bits of cooked bacon. To vary the flavor of these greens, add a small amount of peppergrass. The frilled curly foliage of this upland cress is as easy to grow as lettuce.
 For long season greens swiss chard is a winner. No leafy vegetable stands hot weather better. The outer leaves should be kept picked, the inner ones left to continue growing, and the result will be tender, brittle stalks and leaves for a long time.
 Of the numerous root tops used as greens, beet, mustard, and turnip are increasingly popular. Like all vegetables they are best when young. Mustard and turnip particularly should be used for greens only in the early stages. The tops of mustard and turnip combined are appetizing—a favorite of grandmother's day.
 By sowing seed of kale in spring or summer in the North and August to October in the South, fresh greens can be picked from the garden even after the coming of frost and light snow. In fact, some frost improves the texture and flavor of kale, making it a real treat for late autumn and winter meals. Dwarf Curled Kale is one of the best varieties for home gardens.

Got Pass
 The story is told of a farmer who walked into the office of William F. Hallstead, general manager of the Delaware and Lackawanna Railway, and asked for a free pass to New York and return. Mr. Hallstead reasoned with his visitor and said: "Suppose I dropped in on you at your farm and asked you to hitch up and drive me to Scranton and back, what would you think?" The farmer surveyed the situation: "Well, I'd think you had your nerve. But, if I was driving to Scranton anyway, and you asked me for a ride, what would you think of me if I refused?" He got the pass.

How to Go to Sleep

We were sitting around Bill Webster's parlor Friday evening and the talk turned to the best way of overcoming sleeplessness...like breathing real slow and deep, imagining that you weigh a ton, or simply throwing away the pillow.

The consensus favored counting sheep. But right away was the question: what kind of sheep? There were some votes for countin' Merinos, Shropshires, Oxfords and Dorsets. Ed Mapes said he had best luck counting crossbreeds.

Finally, Bert Childers spoke up with his formula: A light snack and a mellow glass of beer at bedtime. Sort of puts you in the mood for quiet thoughts and peace of mind. Lets you relax . . . and "ho hum," off to pleasant dreams!

From where I sit, there's nothing like a temperate glass of beer to smooth away the creases of the day, relax a body, and pave the way for a good night's sleep. Try it, and see if I'm not right.

Visitor—"How did your horse happen to win the race?"
 Jockey—"Well, I just kept whispering into his ear, 'Roses are red, violets are blue—horses that lose are made into glue.'"

Young Wife—"Now Bill, I want you to go around to the minister's and arrange to have the baby christened."

The G.I. wrote home from Japan that he was planning to marry a Japanese girl. His parents, in return, inquired if she were a Christian, a college grad and a Republican. The G.I. replied he was sure about the first two 'and I think she's a Republican because the first time I tried to kiss her she said "I know Dewey."

He was an extra small Japanese soldier. His uniform hung limp like a scarecrow's trappings. A marine on Orote Peninsula asked him why he surrendered.
 "My commanding officer told us to fight to the last man," the prisoner answered.
 "Well?" queried the marine.
 A look of wounded innocence spread over the Jap's face as he declared, "I was the last man!"

Two small boys had taken the clock apart to see "what made it tick." After examining each part very carefully, they put the clock back together again.
 During the night their father was awakened from his sleep when the clock began striking. It struck 117 times without stopping.

Cindy, he said to his wife, excitedly, "you'd better get up. Darned if it ain't later than I ever knowed it to be."

We have learned that alcohol is a very poor and even dangerous remedy for snake bite. However we have considerable respect for the Kentuckian, who was stumbling home on a mountain trail after a too liberal sampling of the dew from a neighbor's still.

Falling over a root, he found himself staring a coiled and angry rattlesnake in the face. Looking the buzzing reptile in the eye, he said, "Strike if you must. I never was in better condition."

Camping on an especially muddy locale, several of our soldiers in Italy appropriated a stack of straw from a nearby farmyard to serve as flooring for their tents.

Later a gesticulating Italian farmer appeared and demanded payment. Unable to make themselves understood, one of the soldiers took a scrap of paper from his pocket and carefully wrote something on it. This satisfied the complainant for the moment, but the next day he was back.

The paper had been inscribed, "Good for 100 rides on the merry-go-round at Coney Island."

Neil Gow was a whimsical Scotch musician addicted to the whiskey bottle. His chief diversion was playing the violin at country dances.

One night Neil contributed his cheerful talents to a dance a few miles distance from his village. About mid-morning on the day following he arrived back at his cottage, much worse for wear.

"Well, Neil," observed a neighbor, "I'm no surprised to see ye so late getting home. It wae a long walk."

"Ah," replied Neil, "I didna mind the length o' the road; it was the uncommon breadth o' the thing that wae ma ruination!"

Uncle Sam Says

All of us would like to put dad on a pedestal on Father's Day to show him how we feel about him the year round. I like to think of all American fathers in the role of Minute Men, standing guard over the security of their families. Certainly they could do no better than to assure the happiness of themselves and their homes than by buying United States Savings Bonds regularly.

Two automatic bond buying plans are available now. If dad is on a payroll, the Payroll Savings Plan will assure him days of ease when he gets ready to retire. If dad is a professional man or self-employed, he can use his checking account to buy a bond a month.
