The cost of old age pensions paid in Illinois during May was $5,134,889, according to the Illinois public aid commission. Pensions were received by 127,038 persons. There were 362 fewer names on the roll in May than in April.

The cost of allowances to dependent children for May was $1,841,420.

The wartime maternity and infant care program for the wives and infants of enlisted men, which has been carried on in Illinois since November, 1942, will begin to close June 30, according to Dr. Roland R. Cross, state director of public health. No one not eligible on that date for such care will become eligible thereafter.

Medical and hospital bills for the prenatal, delivery and post-natal care of approximately 65,000 wives of enlisted men have been paid under this program.

New regulations make it necessary for all livestock exhibited at Illinois fairs to have official health certificates, according to officials of the state department of agriculture. When animals from other states are shipped to Illinois fairs, a copy of the health certificate must be sent to the division of livestock industry, Springfield. Illinois animals being shown must be accompanied by a health certificate issued by an accredited veterinarian and approved by the superintendent of the division of livestock industry.

Sidney Boy, 9, Saves Boy, 3, From Drowning

Sidney, June 9—James Walker, 9, wore a mythical hero's wreath Monday, after he had saved the life of Hans John Miller, jr., 3, by pulling him out of the racing waters of Salt Fork creek in the northwest part of Sidney about 7:30 p. m. Sunday.

The Miller child and his brother, Herman, 4, children of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Miller, both tumbled into the creek from a foot bridge near their home. Herman climbed out himself, but Hans was swept under the bridge and was rescued by the quick-thinking Walker boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Walker.

Mrs. Miller credited young Walker with speedy thinking in going after her small son instead of running for help. With the creek branch swollen and fast because of recent rains, any delay in pulling the Miller child out might have resulted in his drowning, Mrs. Miller said.

Sidney Woman Found Dead In Bed Monday

Sidney—Mrs. Jennie Armstrong, 71, was found dead in bed at 7 a. m. Monday, June 9, at her home here by Mrs. Lysle Armstrong, her daughter-in-law, who lived with her. Death was caused by a heart attack in her sleep, the second attack she suffered since Friday of last week.

The body was taken to the Dicks Bros. funeral home at Broadlands.

Jennie Trees was born March 19, 1876, near Thomasboro, daughter of Ephraim and Mary Martin Trees. She came to Sidney at the age of 14, and on December 23, 1894, was married to Frank Armstrong, who died on May 15, 1942.

The family lived on farms near Sidney until moving to town in 1928. She was active in the Sidney Church of Christ, the Ladies Aid society, and the Jolly Woman's club.

Surviving are her son, Lysle; and a granddaughter, Mrs. Randall Plotner, and a great granddaughter, both of Sidney; a sister, Mrs. Louis Arnold, Eldora, Ia., and a brother, Marion Trees, Plain City, Ohio. Her parents, husband, one sister and four brothers preceded her in death.

The Y & O Class Meets at Church

The Y. and O. class of the U. B. Sunday school met Tuesday night at the church basement with Rev. and Mrs. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hen-son as hosts.

Mrs. Raymond Wood had charge of the devotions and Mrs. Fred Eckerty conducted the business meeting.

It was decided to have a picnic at Crystal Lake park, Urbana, June 22.

Refreshments of strawberry sundaes, cookies and pop were served.

Those present besides the hosts were Mrs. Bud Comer, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stutz, and Mrs. Fred Eckerty.

Ed Maxwell's Tool Shed Is Destroyed By Fire

Fire of unknown origin destroyed Ed Maxwell's tool shed about 4:30 p. m. Thursday of last week. Mr. Maxwell used the shed to house his truck, but fortunately there was only a small amount of seed corn, about 10 gallons of paint and some repairs for machinery in the shed when it burned. Fire trucks from Allerton, Homer and Longview answered the alarm but the fire was beyond control when they arrived. The building was not insured.

JUDAH'S APPROACHING DOOM

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 38:2, 3, 28-31; II Kings 24:14.
MEMORY SELECTION—The fear of the Lord prolongeth days; but the years of the wicked shall be shortened.—Proverbs 10:27.

The decline of a nation from strength and glory to weakness and shame is always a sad thing to contemplate. Still worse is the evident cause of such decay in the sinfulness of the people and their stubborn rejection of God's mercy and grace.

The religious reforms in Judah under Josiah were only temporary in their effect on the people; partly because of their own insincerity, and partly because Josiah was soon killed in battle. Yet God did not leave his wandering people without good counsel, for it was in those days that the great prophet Jeremiah ministered. He had been the helper of Josiah in his good purposes; now he continued to plead with Judah to submit themselves to God and to his will.

His efforts proved to be fruitless as far as Judah was concerned, for we see that

I. Judah Would Not Respond to God's Mercy (Jer. 36:2, 3).

God commanded his prophet to write down his words in order that the people might not only know the inevitable impending judgment, but especially be reminded of God's desire that they should turn from their evil ways and be forgiven.

One would have thought that they would have responded to such mercy with an immediate and grateful return to the Lord, but they did not. Jeremiah, a unique man of great ability, was so tenderhearted that he has often been called the weeping prophet. Do not infer that he was a weak, emotional character, for he was strong in the Lord, and courageous in the face of rejection and persecution. He urged upon Judah the necessity of submitting to Babylon, to whom God had given power, and above all to the Lord, for a spiritual cleansing and revival.

Our second section brings before us the further sin of King Jehoiakim, who led his nation on to destruction. We see that

II. Judah Would Not Receive God's Word (Jer. 36:23-31).

At God's command Jeremiah and his scribe Baruch had prepared the scroll with God's Word upon it. One of the nation's leaders was moved by it, and through his urging, the scroll was brought to the attention of the king.

Jehoiakim, sitting before the fire, heard only part of it, and then in defiance of God he took a penknife and cut it up and burned it.

One cannot help but think of those in our day who call themselves modern thinkers, or liberals, who have also used their penknives on God's Word. They cut out of the Bible everything they do not like, and offer the hungry people the stone of their own philosophies in place of the Bread of life. Think what their judgment will be!

God's Word is not so easily gotten out of the way! The prophet was commanded to rewrite the scroll, and in it to declare the awful judgment of God upon the one who mutilated his Word.

To try to destroy God's truth by fire and violence is as fruitless as to try to tear the stars from the heavens or to keep the sun from shining. The wicked leaders of a great nation have tried that once more in recent years, and they now lie dead for their sins, with the nation a subject people, broken and all but destroyed.

One wonders why those who profess to serve the Lord will engage in such activity, even as one wonders at Judah, a favored people of God, refusing to receive his Word.

God is not willing to give up, and now tries chastisement. But we see that

III. Judah Would Not Recognize God's Providences (II Kings 24: 1-4).

Jehoiakim had become the vassal of Babylon, but after three years he decided to try to throw off the yoke of his oppressor, Nebuchadnezzar. He was not able at the time to deal with the situation, and so he incited marauding bands from various other nations to harass Judah.

We see, however, that this came about at the commandment of God (vv. 2, 3). Evidently he was now using the distressing experiences of life to turn Judah back to him; but once again it proved to be in vain.

God does deal with men through what we call his providences, and these may include not only his mercies, but his chastisement. Trouble and sorrow may be God's means of leading us to the place of repentance and blessing.

What folly it is to disregard the hand of God in our daily lives, or to become embittered at the circumstances which are intended to bring us to God's place of blessing. Happy is the man or woman who, being reproved in this way, profits by the Lord's admonition (Heb. 12: 11).

Hemisphere Defense

President Truman recently asked Congress to give him broad authority to cooperate with other nations of the Western Hemisphere in standardizing military equipment and training in a program for mutual defense.

The legislation proposed is similar to that contained in a bill approved during the last session by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, but not further acted upon. Mr. Truman told Congress that world developments in the last year made this legislation of still greater importance than before. It would authorize the following steps:

1. Transfer arms, ammunition and implements of war to the 20 Latin American republics and Canada.

2. Train their military, naval and air personnel in the methods used by the United States.

3. Maintain, repair and rehabilitate their planes, tanks, guns and ships.

The United States could transfer surplus Army and Navy equipment to the other nations "on such terms as the president shall find satisfactory."

Nations receiving the equipment would be required to pay the cost of any new materials manufactured specifically for them.

Earlier in the year, the inter-American Defense Board recommended complete standardization of Western Hemisphere armed forces. The board is an organization of military, naval and air representatives of the American republics.

The United States and Great Britain disclosed Dec. 9 that they had agreed "in principle" to a similar program of standardization of military equipment.

Shortly afterwards, the U. S. and Canada announced that their war-time cooperation in matters of mutual defense would be extended to peacetime operation.

The plan recommended by the President is a far-reaching one, and if approved by Congress and the other nations concerned it would probably take several years to put it into operation. The program is manifestly designed to resist the encroachments of Communism among the nations of the Western world.

More Old People

Victor Roterus, social scientist, of the University of Michigan, is authority for the statement that by 1975 the United States will have three times as many persons 50 years of age and over as there were in 1920. At present about 22 per cent of the population is over 50.

The average age expectancy of the American people has been gradually increasing for many years, due to better living conditions and the advance of medical science.

Less than 100 years ago, the average life expectancy at birth in Europe was only about 34 years, and in England it was about 40 years. Today, in the United States the average life-time is well above 60 years.

In former times, the death rate among very young children was appalling, due to the many diseases of childhood, which were little understood and consequently improperly treated.

Queen Anne of England, born in 1664, had 17 children, but only one of them survived infancy, and he died at the age of 11. The queen herself lived to a comparatively old age for those days and died of apoplexy at 50.

Dr. Roterus points out that as older persons become more numerous there will be greater demands for social security and old age pensions on a more liberal scale. In fact, these demands have been growing for several years and must be reckoned with by the politicians.

It is unfortunate that a large percentage of all aged persons are dependent upon relatives or the public for the necessities of life when they are no longer able to earn their own living.

While many of these are victims of misfortune beyond their control, a great number are impoverished in later life because they never learned the lesson of thrift.

More Nazis Hanged

The 48 Nazi war criminals hanged by American soldiers recently at Landsberg prison in Germany, were executed for atrocities committed at Mauthausen concentration camp, where more than 700,000 prisoners were killed during the war.

The executions were ordered after the Nazis had been convicted by an American Military Court, which declared they had written "an irrefutable record of death by shooting, gassing, hanging and regulated starvation" of their victims. Most of the condemned men had been guards or foremen at Mauthausen.

Last year 61 Mauthausen guards were convicted of murdering prisoners, of whom 49 were executed and 12 were given life imprisonment. How many Axis war criminals have been executed after sentence by the Allied courts may never be known, and there are more to follow.

Landsberg prison, the scene of the recent executions, is the prison in which Adolph Hitler was held after the Munich "beer hall putsch," at the beginning of his bid for power. During his imprisonment Hitler wrote "Mein Kampf," which became the Nazi "bible."

German authorities did not take Hitler seriously at the time, and after five months released the monster who was destined to wreak death and destruction upon the world.

Dramatic Gains Made In Fight Against Tuberculosis

Dramatic gains are being made in Illinois in the continuing battle against tuberculosis. Last year there were twelve Illinois counties which did not have any deaths from that disease, according to the state department of public health, and thirteen other counties that reported only one death each. Prior to 1940 it was rare for any Illinois county to go a year without a death from tuberculosis.

Last year the state as a whole had 2,896 deaths from tuberculosis. Ten years ago, in 1936, there were 4,050.

This gratifying improvement is attributed almost entirely to two factors—the discovery of cases early, and the hospitalization of patients. The County and city tuberculosis sanitarium boards, the tuberculosis associations, and the state and local health departments are doing the work that is conquering this dreaded disease.

The state now maintains two fully equipped x-ray buses which go all over Illinois, giving free chest examinations. Thousands of persons are reached in this way, and those who are found to have evidence of early tuberculosis are instructed regarding prompt treatment. Such treatment helps them to recover quickly, and prevents spread of the disease.

The importance of iodine in the diet for the control of certain types of goiter has been one of the outstanding developments in recent medical science.

Women IN THE CHURCH
by Mary Fowler

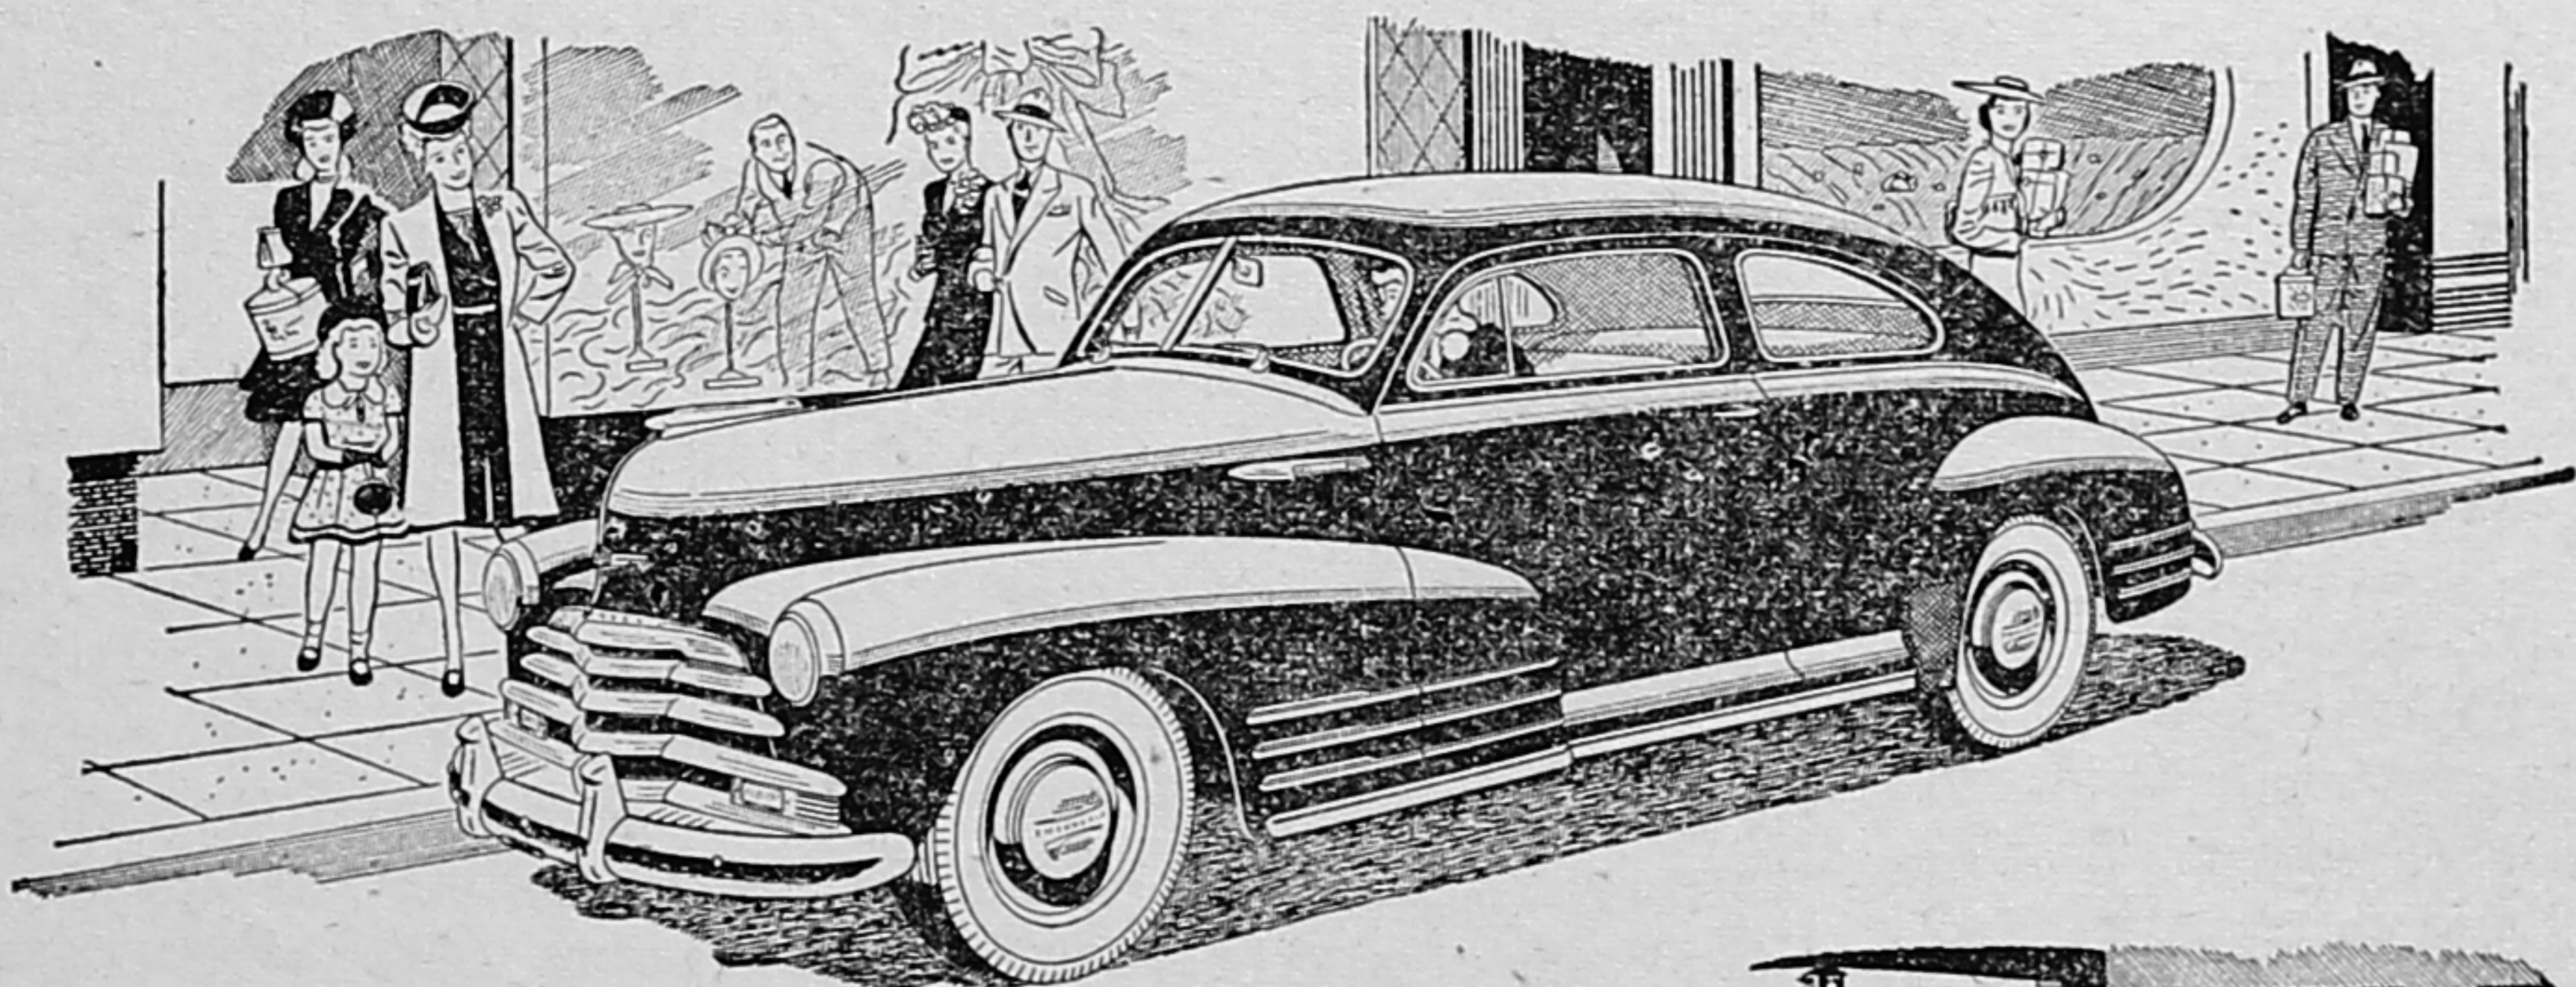

The United Council of Church Women is urging that church women in local communities, especially through their city and state councils, organize systematic "calling campaigns" among women students and the wives of students, now scattered in all kinds of living quarters, and attempt to integrate them into local church life. In college communities throughout the country, says the United Council, students, many of them married veterans with children, are housed all over town, in every conceivable space large enough to hold a bed; in attics, basements, garages, storage rooms, trailers. The Veterans Administration estimates that there will be large numbers of married veterans in colleges and universities for the next five years. These students and families will welcome callers from the churches, the Council adds.

3 MINUTE FICTION
Smiling Annie
 By Sue Reckefus

THE GIRL behind the counter wasn't pretty. She knew it and she didn't mind. It was easier to talk to the soldiers who came in for a sandwich and coke between trains. Not being pretty, she could joke with them and listen to their stories without flirting with them. When you were pretty, you felt you had to flirt a little.

They called her Annie. Annie with the smile. She wasn't smiling now as she wiped the counter. The place was empty and she had a chance to think about this morning. Mr. Jacobs had been mad, and sorry he was mad, which made him sound even worse. He had worked hard for his tiny restaurant and he was proud he was finally making a profit. He often spoke of his son overseas and how much he wanted enough money saved to give his boy a start when he came back. Lately he had begun losing money and it was Annie's fault.

She had begun in a small way not charging a few boys for their food and putting the money in the cash register herself. She couldn't resist the look on a boy's face when he realized a stranger was being kind. For the last few weeks, however, she didn't have enough to balance and Mr. Jacobs had found out. He had given her the last warning today. Once more and she would have to leave.

The girl wasn't pretty. She didn't mind. When you were pretty, you felt you had to flirt a little.

The door opened and a soldier walked in. He was tired, but he had a glow about him and his eyes were smiling.

"Hello," he said. "I know just what I want. I'll have two tall glasses of orange juice. Real orange juice not canned or anything else. I want to see you squeeze them and I want to smell the rind."

"Golly with the build-up, I hope we have some. I'll have to look."

She opened the refrigerator and peered into it. Way in the back were a dozen of the biggest oranges she had seen for a long time. Funny, she didn't know they were there. She must have missed them so far back.

WHEN THE first big glass was in front of him, he said, "Now I know I'm home. I wasn't too sure for a while." He slowly drained the glass and put it back on the counter.

He finished the second glass with a sigh of satisfaction and stood up to pay. Annie said recklessly, "It's on the house, soldier."

Turning toward the door, he said softly, "Yep, I'm really home."

Mr. Jacobs stopped by his restaurant to get some things he had left in the refrigerator and to see how Annie was making out. He gave her a cheerful greeting.

"Annie, did you see the oranges I asked you to save? I am sure I put them in here."

"I am sorry, Mr. Jacobs, I forgot. I gave them to a customer; a soldier. He was thirsty," she added helplessly, "I'm awfully sorry. I'll go get some more."

In a tired voice, Mr. Jacobs said, "I waited in line early this morning for these. They were the best in town. By the way, what did you charge for them?"

"Can't you please take it out of my next week's salary? I won't give for free any more. I couldn't help it this time. It was different somehow."

"It always is," he said flatly. "This was the last time. I'm sorry, too, but I'll have to let you go."

He walked out the door, not wanting to see her bleak eyes. Halfway down the block, he started to run toward a tall figure in khaki. He hugged his son and they started laughing together and sat down talking.

"Say, Pop, I stopped by the place before I got home. I thought maybe you would be there. But I couldn't have had better service if you had. A really swell girl made me some orange juice, just like I used to dream about. I knew I was home then. Boy, it was something. And by the way, she didn't charge me. That made me feel even better. If that kind of thing is your contribution to service morale, you couldn't have picked one better."

"You don't know how many fellows get on the beam again, just from somebody being nice to them who doesn't have to."

Smile Awhile

A young liar will be an old one.

The debt habit is the twin brother of poverty.

Two little girls walking home from Sunday school were discussing the Bible story they had heard.

Do you believe there is a devil? one asked the other nervously.

Oh, no! answered the other with conviction. It's like Santa Claus—it's your father.

I consider, said the motorist to the stout woman with whom he had collided, that the fault was entirely yours, madam, for standing gaping about in the middle of the road in that manner.

I was not gaping about, retorted the irate woman. I was inhaling a taxi.

A man on trial for his life was being examined by a group of alienists. Suddenly one doctor jumped up and shouted at him: "Quick, how many feet has a centipede?"

The man came back in a dry voice: "Gad, is that all you have to worry about?"

As he strolled around the garden the retired British army officer was feeling very content with things. Presently he came across the gardener, a very old employe.

Oh, Smith, beamed the major, you'll be pleased to hear that my son has been called to the bar.

Smith straightened his back carefully before making any comment.

Well, sir, he replied, from what I know of Master Jack, he wouldn't need much calling.

Queen Victoria was visiting an English town one day on a tour of inspection, with the Princess of Battenberg. They were accompanied by the local mayor and his young wife.

When they were asked to sign the visitors' book on one of their stops, as was her custom, the Queen wrote the one word, Victoria. The Princess followed with Beatrice.

The mayor's wife hesitated the merest part of a second, then she wrote Jane.

A slightly inebriated writer of radio commercials entered a one-arm joint, fixed a rolling eye on the counter girl and declaimed in his best Barrymore manner: Give me some ham, piping hot, fragrant with the rich aroma of cloves, brown sugar and steaming sauce. Serve it between slices of brown and crackly crusted bread. Draw me a cup of rich, flavorful coffee and add to it some thick, rich cream.

The counter girl shrugged, turned toward the kitchen and hollered: "Pig on rye and java with."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

 the Women-Folk!

There's a line at the heading of the Woman's Column in my paper that reads:

"Women through the years have stood Keepers of the flame . . ."

Pretty easy to see what it means; whether it's the flame on the hearth, or the candle in the window, or the feeling of warmth that surrounds a home.

It's the women who are guardians of the things we cherish about homelife—who are tolerant of ashes on the rug; the rings a glass of beer can leave on tables; or the comfortable but too-worn chair that we can't bear to throw away.

From where I sit, those little satisfactions become more and more important in this world of strife and change. Smoke rings curling from a mellow pipe; a glass of beer; a comfortable chair before the fire. And I'd like to salute the housewives—"keepers of the flame"—whose tolerance and understanding helps preserve them!

Grapefruit Dessert Bans 'Sugar Blues'

"Although we all join in the chorus of 'Sugar Blues' these days, you can change those blue notes to gay notes by serving grapefruit for dessert!" the Country editor of nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer tells housewives.

"Nary a grain of sugar is used on this trio of grapefruit halves," she writes in the magazine read by 1,300,000 farm families. "Topped with jams, jellies and preserves, they merrily sing out good eating. So strike up a new tune by having grapefruit for dessert."
