They Plan the World Police Force

Illinois State Capitol News

Research that was started by the state geological survey at Urbana under wartime conditions and carried on after the conclusion of hostilities has opened a new market for more than a million tons of Illinois coal a year. The coal is being used for coke for steel mills.

This appears to be a banner year for babies in Illinois. Almost 25,000 more births were reported during the first five months of this year than in the similar period of 1946. Dr. Roland R. Cross, state director of public health, says if this rate is maintained 1947 will break all previous yearly records for Illinois births.

The official forecast for the Illinois corn crop, based on conditions as of Sept. 1, was lowered 54,000,000 bushels because of August's heat and drought, to stand at 852,000,000 bushels, according to the latest report from state and federal departments of agriculture. The expected total is approximately two-thirds of last year's record crop.

Governor Dwight H. Green has called the fourth annual Governor's Conference on Exceptional Children, to meet in Springfield on Friday, October 24. The conference is sponsored by the Illinois Commission for Handicapped Children. The Governor's call was made in a proclamation urging all interested groups, agencies and individuals to attend the meeting.

Oscar Limp Administrator of Son's Estate

Oscar Limp, Broadlands, has been appointed administrator in probate court, of the estate of his son, Stewart Limp, who was killed in a traffic accident at Broadlands on August 9.

The estate consists of a claim for wrongful death against Wayne Dalzell or Helen Dalzell. The administrator stated he had an offer to settle the claim for $750 which was satisfactory to him and the court gave permission.

First Shipment of Midwest War Dead to Return Soon

Escorted deliveries of an estimated 37,000 casketed remains of middle-western servicemen killed overseas in World War II, will begin late in October with the arrival in Chicago of nearly 500 bodies from Hawaii, Lt. Col. Carroll J. Grinnell, Chief of the Chicago Distribution Center announced recently.

Colonel Grinnell added that although no remains would be returned to next of kin for final burial during the holiday season, a steadily increasing flow of deliveries will be made during November and early December.

Each of the remains will be accompanied by a specially selected escort from the branch of the service in which the deceased man or woman served. The escorts are now being assigned and will report for duty the first week in October.

Violate Speed Limits

Chicago and 14 suburbs are unique among Illinois communities for rigid enforcement of the state and local traffic laws, Chas. M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club has warned motorists today who are prone to violate speed limits and traffic regulations.

Accident experience also suggests that many motorists are unaware that on state highways in all Illinois municipalities under 500,000 population they are restricted by state law to speeds of 20 m. p. h. in business districts, 25 in residential areas, and 35 in suburban districts, Mr. Hayes reported.

Longview High School Enrollment Is Record 92

Gasoline Tax More Monthly Than Total Revenue in 1847

Each month the federal gasoline tax costs American motorists substantially more than the total tax receipts of the national government a hundred years ago according to H. G. Swanson, the chairman of the Illinois Petroleum Industries Committee. He made this comparison in a statement in which he urged that the federal gasoline tax be repealed.

Mr. Swanson pointed out that receipts from the 1½ cent federal tax on each gallon of gasoline have averaged $32,500,000 a month for the first five months of 1947, while for the entire year of 1847 receipts of the federal government from all revenue sources amounted to only $26,495,769.

Lt. Thode To Attend Law School In Texas

Lieutenant Wayne Thode, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Thode, jr. of Urbana, left recently for Austin, Tex., where he will attend law school at the University of Texas. His wife and two-year-old daughter, Sharon, who have been residing in an apartment in the Thode home in Urbana, will join him there as soon as he can secure living quarters.

Lieutenant Thode is a graduate of the U. of I. While serving in the Philippines he contracted arthritis, and for the past year has spent much of his time in army hospitals. He is now greatly improved and expects to receive his army discharge within a short time.

Fairfield Community Dinner

The Fairfield annual community dinner will be held at the Fairfield church, Sunday, Sept. 28, at 12 o'clock noon. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Bring well-filled baskets and own table service.—Committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cooper entertained a number of relatives and friends at a 6 o'clock dinner Monday in honor of the latter's mother, Mrs. Jay Payne. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Jay Payne and Russell Payne of Allerton; Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Forrest of Homer; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Dicks, Sara Sue and Tom; and Paul Mohr.

Rev. Busekros to Be Pastor At Champaign

(Champaign News-Gazette) Reverend Edward H. Busekros will report here Nov. 1 as pastor of St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed church at Fourth street and University avenue.

He will come here from the Peace Ev. and Reformed church near Kewanee, where he has been for two years. Prior to going to Kewanee, he was pastor for seven years at the First English Ev. and Reformed church in Chicago, one of the denomination's largest. He also served parishes at Chicago Heights, Moline and Broadlands, and did special work in Iowa. He was in Broadlands for two years and left there about 18 years ago.

Rev. Busekros is 46 years old, is married and has two children, a son, George, 19, who expects to go into the ministry, and a daughter, Marilyn, 13.

Mrs. Busekros is the daughter of Reverend Paul Repke, and has been teaching voice classes in five Kewanee schools.

After his graduation from Elmhurst, Rev. Busekros played professional football and coached professional basketball.

B. H. Thode Sr., Marks 88th Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Smith entertained relatives at a six o'clock dinner, Sunday, in honor of B. H. Thode sr., who marked his 88th birthday, and Max Thode, who marked his 28th birthday.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Max Thode, Tuscola; Mr. and Mrs. Barney Thode and Carol Ann, and Mrs. Mary Louise Thompson, Urbana; Oscar, Ray and Fritz Thode.

Missionary Society Meets With Mrs. Fuller Freeman

The Fairfield Missionary society met at the home of Mrs. Fuller Freeman on Wednesday afternoon, with twelve members present.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Jas. Church.

Mrs. Freeman was in charge of devotions. Her scripture reading was the tenth chapter of Mark, followed by a paper on Christian Service.

Mrs. Church then gave the Missionary lesson, which was a very interesting discussion of Evangelism in Many Lands.

During the social hour the hostess served chicken sandwiches, vegetable salad, coffee and candies.

The October meeting will be with Miss Effie Thayer and Mrs. Lola Wulf.

First Fall Meeting of The Men's Fellowship

The first meeting of the Men's Fellowship of Broadlands and Longview will be held on Friday night, Sept. 26, at the Longview Methodist Church. Supper will be served at 7:00 CST. The speaker will be Dr. Claude Temple of Charleston. Dr. Temple is well known here as a former pastor and is now serving one of the best churches in the Illinois Conference. The entertainment will be given by a male quartet from Monticello. All men of the community are invited to attend.

Saddle Club Meets At O. P. Witt Home

The Douglas County Saddle club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Witt on Sunday, September 14, bringing 40 head of horses. The day's festivities were started with a ride at 10:00 a. m., 28 horses and riders participating.

Upon arriving back at the farm, a dinner was served picnic style on the lawn by the following committee: Mr. and Mrs. Witt, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Church, Mr. and Mrs. Deane Krukewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mohr and Howard jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul McDonald. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Johnson are also members of the committee but were not present.

After all had partaken of the food, games and contests on horseback were held, ribbons going to the best girl or boy rider, English pleasure horse, western pleasure, and stock. The potato, cob and water race were mostly enjoyed by all present and created quite a laugh and cheer from the crowd.

Fifteen members of the Rainbow Riding club of Mattoon were guests and participated in all the events.

One hundred and thirty-five members and visitors of the club ate dinner, and about fifty came for the afternoon. Guests came from Champaign, Urbana, Tuscola, Homer, Allerton, Pesotum, Newman, Mattoon, Arcola, Villa Grove, Longview, Sidney and Philo.

Mrs. Eva Walker Hostess to WSCS

The W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church met Thursday of last week at the home of Mrs. Eva Walker, with Mrs. Ida Messman as assistant hostess. Ten members were present.

Mrs. Addie Freeman led the devotions based on the scripture, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make ye free."

Mrs. Valeria Loyd had the lesson, her subject being "The Child and His Education Today." This was very interesting because it gave a number of schools supported by Methodist churches, among them were the Vashti Home, at Thomasville, Ga.; Navajo Mission school, at Farmington, New Mexico; and Holding Institute, at Lorena, Tex.

Mrs. Edith Woolverton had charge of the business, during which Mrs. Gladys Walker, treasurer, reported that the recent chicken supper netted the society $176.90.

Refreshments of apple pie ala-mode, coffee, candy and nuts were served.

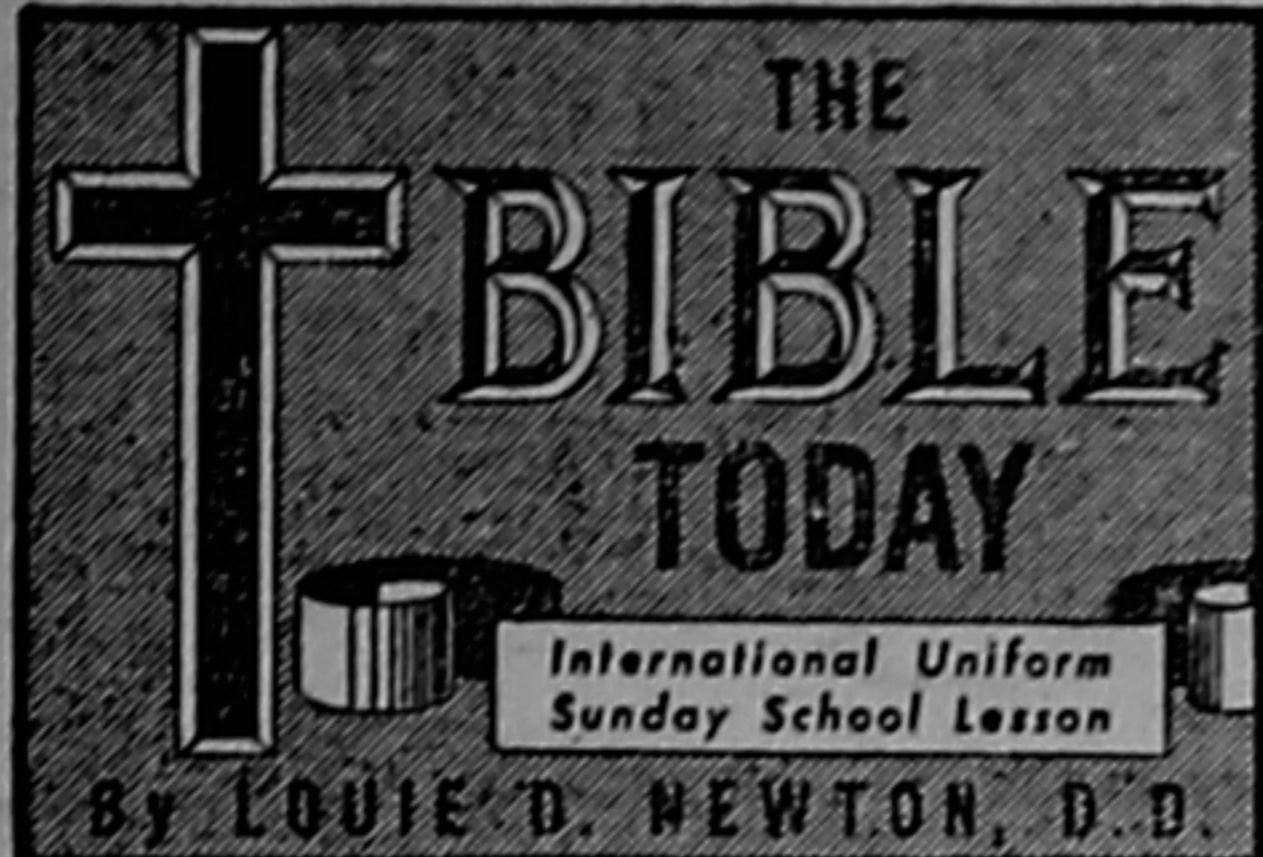

The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maude Anderson, with Mrs. Margaret Anderson assisting.

Guidance From Proverbs

Lesson for September 21, 1947

OUR study of Sunday's lesson centers about the idea of goodness, which is a rather trite-sounding theme, but very vital, I assure you, and quite interesting. The Scripture passages are all found in Proverbs, save one, and that from the very practical preacher of the New Testament, James, chapter 4, verse 17.

Dr. Newton

Perhaps you will find the passages from Proverbs as helpful and interesting as I did. It will require but two minutes to read them—Proverbs 3:5-7; 4:23; 6:16-19; 9:10; 14:34; 15:1; 16:18; 21:3; 22:1; 27:1, 2; 28:1; 29:18. And after you have devoted two minutes to the reading of these passages, you will have something to think about for the rest of the day, the week, all your life.

One Man's Experience

A VERY successful business man in Atlanta, a shoe manufacturer, was telling me his life story one day as we fished together at Homosassa, Fla. Finally, he said:

"Do you know the passage in the Bible that has meant most to me as a rule and guide for my faith and practice?"

I wondered what he would say. And then he quoted from Proverbs 3:5-7.

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths. Be not wise in thine own eyes; fear the Lord, and depart from evil."

The Essence of Goodness

WHAT is goodness? We talk about good men and bad men, good times and bad times, good luck and bad luck. Just what is goodness?

Jesus himself once said to a young man:

"There is none good but One, that is, God." Mark 10:18.

Goodness then, permit me to suggest, is what happens when God lives in us. We can never know goodness apart from God, try as we may. The essence of goodness, therefore, is found in that heart, in that life, that sincerely prays, "Thy will be done."

The Essence of Badness

GUIDANCE from these great Proverbs identifies the things that we are to shun as well as the things we are to do—the essence of badness as well as the essence of goodness. Here are the seven things that God hates—the seven qualities of heart that constitute the essence of badness:

"Haughty eyes, a lying tongue, hands that shed innocent blood, a heart that deliberately plans wickedness, feet which are swift in running to mischief, a false witness who utters lies, and one who sows discord among brethren."

Analyze these seven qualities of heart, and you have the explanation of the woes of the world. Many clever modern books toy with these deadly sins, trying to make them seem good, but no amount of decoration can atone for the heart that consistently entertains these cancers of hell.

The Individual and Society

I LIKE the impact of these Proverbs. They begin with the individual. They fruit in society. Individuals who "trust in the Lord with all thine heart," will "exalt a nation." It is not enough to put better food in peoples' stomachs, better clothes on their bodies, better roofs over their heads. These are essential as expressing the better life; but you have got to give people something to live for as well as something to live on.

Good business depends upon good business men. Good international relations depend upon good nations. Good race relations depend upon good races.

We have been greatly enheartened by the establishment of United Nations as a world idea and ideal. Will it succeed? The answer is found not in dollars and bullets, but in hearts that always "trust in the Lord."

"Except the Lord build the house, They labor in vain that build it; Except the Lord keep the city, The watchman waketh but in vain." —Psalm 127:1

Green of Illinois

Out of the west came a statement last week which testifies forcefully to the fact of Governor Dwight H. Green's swift yet measured growth to a statesman of national prominence. Leonard Lyons, columnist, writing from Hollywood, reported in his column of Aug. 13, as follows:

"At the Bohemian Grove week end, Herbert Hoover discussed the list of governors and said that Governor Green of Illinois would make the best presidential candidate."

Aroused by this statement from an ex-president, and assigned by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to "look over" the Illinois governor, editorial writer Irving Dilliard was among those present on Governor's Day at the Illinois State Fair.

Governor Green's emergence as a prospective candidate for national office hasn't had any of the earmarks of a deliberate "boom," a fact which makes his position one of even greater significance. He has received acclaim, not through organization drumbeating, but through the very record of his achievements as chief executive of one of the nation's richest states.

Operating within the budget, sparing the people on several fronts from heavy increases in taxation, and sponsoring progressive action in conservation, public welfare, roads, aviation and other fields of government, Governor Green has brought Illinois forcefully through war and into peace.

Eminent as a state executive, Governor Green may be called upon to shoulder even greater responsibilities in the future. Illinois is proud of its chief.—Illinois State Journal.

Legion's Strong Stand

In resolutions adopted at its 29th national convention in New York, which ended recently, the American Legion again took a strong and patriotic stand for national defense and Americanism generally, and declared relentless war on Communism.

It demanded that the United States should not disclose secrets of atomic energy to any other country; that it refuse to give any such secrets to international control, and that it refuse to agree to any restrictions on present or future production of atomic weapons.

In taking this firm position with respect to atomic weapons, the Legion showed a realization of the futility of attempting to reach an agreement with the Soviet Union that would be anything more effective than a scrap of paper.

The Legion urged that Communists in the United States be barred from public office, from public school faculties and employment, and that they be deprived of protection of the bill of rights in sedition trials. This also shows that the Legion recognizes Communists for what they are—the worst enemies of the nation.

During the coming year the Legion proposes to carry out the most intensive anti-Communist program it has ever adopted, which will include the distribution of more than 120,000,000 pieces of literature, going into some 10 million homes each month, according to Paul H. Griffith, retiring national commander, who said:

"The American Legion always fostered a faith in our country and in our form of government. We believe every citizen should be equipped with the proofs of the superiority of our democratic system. Our vulnerability lies only in ignorance. Our campaign will give them the truth and the facts to support the truth.

"We hope that our monthly messages will impress themselves so firmly in the minds of all individuals receiving them that these individuals will spring to the defense of their heritage against every subversive effort to destroy freedom."

The need for such a campaign of education as is proposed by the Legion is evident to all who are aware of the extent to which Communists and their sympathizers have infiltrated nearly every phase of American life, including the government itself.

Sidelights

A committee recently was appointed by a magazine to study the question of how best to hold a wife, and a selected group of husbands was written to. Apparently the appalling rate of divorces since the war was the reason for the study. The only reply received to this important question was from a certain penitentiary. It stated briefly: "I found the best way to hold a wife was around the neck, but it should not be overdone. Please note change of address."

Generally speaking those who attend patriotic addresses are patriotic and do not require stimulating words to make them good citizens and so it is with church services and other gatherings—the ones that should be reached are not there. An army chaplain, aware of this fact, appeared before a gathering of soldiers.

"The subject of my sermon today is Liars. How many of you have read the 69th chapter of Mathew?" was his opening remark. Nearly every soldier in the congregation held up his hand. "You are the men I want to preach to," said the chaplain, "there is no such chapter."

Accuracy of time is most important—especially in the Army. At a certain army post on the edge of a western town, they fire a cannon each afternoon at 6 o'clock. The soldier, whose job it is to mark this hour at the end of the day, is proud of his accuracy and advised an interested questioner that he checked his time with the clock of a jeweler two blocks away. A day or so later, this questioner was in the jeweler's shop. He asked him about the clock he had in that it kept perfect time. "We have a perfect check on it. Every evening at exactly 6 o'clock, they fire a cannon over at the Fort and this clock is always on the dot."

SHORT STORY
Music So Sweet
By JAMES CROWLEY

HE NOTICED it now as they walked across the green grass that threw back the sunlight like tiny, jutting points of isinglass. And it hurt him to notice it—hurt him as if it were a physical wound.

"Bea, it's foolish!" he said. He said it low, but his voice seemed to possess a quality that carried it far beyond the green hill.

"Maybe it is," she said. "I can feel it, too, when I'm home." She gave a slight lift of her slender shoulders. "It seems that the atmosphere just closes around me. Sometimes I've found myself breathless, as if I were tired."

"Maybe if your father felt any different," he suggested.

"Yes," she said thoughtfully. "Father could help. But when he's not working, he sits by the window, as he's sitting now, gazing out at the trees and the birds and not seeing them. Yes, Father could help, all right."

"Have you played any music, since—"

"No," and she looked up at him, the sun painting a soft halo round her coppery hair. "Neither of us has touched anything since Mother died."

She looked away. Eight months. Yet it seemed like yesterday when she used to sit at the piano, touching those ivory keys with her white slender fingers—

3-Minute Fiction

He thought a moment, and he wondered if this feeling could be real, like stone is real, or if it could be lifted, like a film, and the unchanged real shown beneath.

"Let's go back," he said. "I'm going home, and you're going with me."

She looked at him. Her blue eyes shone sadly. "Earnie, I can't."

He took her hand gently. "We'll come back," he said. "Don't worry."

He stopped the car in front of his home. "I'll be right back," he said.

He went in, came out with a large, curved, black case, and started back to her house.

IN FRONT of her house again, they got out, and he took the big, black case out of the car. She led the way to the door. He crossed slowly through the kitchen, then stepped into the living room, and stopped. From his chair across the room, near the wide window where he always sat, Bea's father smiled.

"I brought my guitar," Earnie said.

The older man removed his pipe, blew out smoke that formed a blue film before him. As if to hide the expression on his face, thought Earnie.

"You did?" he said. "It's been a long time." "Yes," Earnie said. "It has. You don't mind, do you?" The older man shook his head. "No.

They stopped a moment, both looking grimly into the clearance.

I don't mind. Go ahead."

"Bea—the piano, will you, please," he said.

She struck the keys. A soft, resonant sound splashed out, like cool water that sprinkled around the quiet room. He struck the guitar strings. The smooth, whispering notes blended with the piano's.

She started to play, and he leaped in with the chords, and music, for the first time in so long, drifted in sweet, lovely strains through the house, atomizing the air with its fragrance, air that had long been stagnant and dry.

Earnie heard a soft sound behind him and caught a glimpse of Bea's father's back as he strode slowly out of the room. A tight knot suddenly formed inside him, and he turned back and looked at Bea.

She didn't see his gaze. Her eyes, her mind, were absorbed in the music.

And then, from the other room came a high, thin, sustaining note. The silvery, mellifluous strains of a violin.

The two near the piano turned, and they watched him enter the room, his elbow held high, pulling the bow across the strings, while he watched it with his eyes, as if music was something you should see and he was seeing it—and smiling at the same time.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Yes, I'm Guilty!

Folks sometimes criticize us small-town editors for the way we often play up "little things" ahead of big... human, local news in place of world events.

I can't deny it. Read the Clarion and you'll learn about the Martins' golden wedding anniversary... about the community sing down by the river... the husking bee at Sober Hoskins', where neighbors helped husk the corn, and later drank sparkling beer together.

"Little things?" Maybe. But from where I sit, they add up to the bigger things we call America: The friendliness of small towns... the helping hand... the respect for one another's rights. And above all the love of fellowship and freedom—whether it's freedom to speak one's mind or choose between a glass of beer or buttermilk.

I figure that if everybody looks after the "little things," maybe the bigger things will take care of themselves.

SHORT STORY

Spikes In the Dust

By VINCENT LUNNY

JERRY BELL gobbled up a bad-hopping grounder and tossed the ball to second base for a force play, ending an inning in the Hawks' practice game.

"That's the old pepper!" shouted Phil Weston, second baseman. "You'll be in the lineup regularly with me yet."

Bell and Weston had played together for four years in the minors, being nurtured carefully for their big league debut.

Weston made the team easily; the Hawks had not started Bell yet in a league contest. A wild Irishman named Pat O'Toole clung to the shortstop position.

Starting the next inning of the intra-club game, the Irishman went to short and it was Bell's turn to bat. He hit the first pitch solidly into right field. The next man up got a piece of the ball. A slow roller! A double play ball. Bell left first with the crack of the bat. O'Toole, covering second, leaped to take the high throw as Bell bore down.

The ball crashed into O'Toole's temple and spikes glinted in the afternoon sun. When the dust subsided, there was Bell with his leg hooked around the bag—safe!

The Irishman didn't move. He lay inert. Teammates carried O'Toole from the field and later an ambulance took him to the hospital. The trainer said he had concussion and a severed artery in the leg.

Joe Amble, brawny catcher, strode up to Bell.

"You miserable rat! You spiked him on purpose!" he rasped.

"You're crazy. Why would I do that?"

"To get into the game, of course."

THE Hawks, on a road trip, took series from the Braves, Dodgers and Giants. Now they were back at home facing the mighty Cards.

In a tight ball game the score was tied, starting the last half of the ninth. Bell's thoughts were jumbled as he sat on the bench awaiting his turn to bat. His mates hadn't spoken to him since the spiking, and with the continued silence a little knot grew in his stomach.

Weston led off the last half of the ninth with a clean single and Amble sacrificed, pushing the tying run to second. Bell started toward the plate.

"Where do you think you're going?" Selkirk signalled him to the bench.

"Please, lemme take my cut," he pleaded.

Selkirk ignored him. "Aw, let the kid hit." The voice came from the door at the back of the dugout. O'Toole was standing there, his head swathed in bandages.

"They just let me out of the hospital," he explained. "As a favor, skipper, let the kid hit."

The next pitch had to be good. It was . . . and Bell connected.

Selkirk's eyes twinkled. "Okay, Bell, take your cut."

THE shortstop sauntered to the plate and waited for the pitch. He worked the count to three and one.

The next pitch had to be good. It was . . . and Bell connected. A wallop to center field, scoring Weston standing up.

O'Toole led the parade to the dressing room. The big Irishman went up to Bell.

"Nice going, kid," he said.

"I thought you two guys were cutting each other's throats?" said Weston.

"We've never . . ."

The Irishman interrupted Bell. "Didn't you guys know that Bell came to visit me in the hospital after the spiking? Well, he gave me a blood transfusion which probably saved my life."

Amble's eyes flashed. "The least he could do after deliberately spiking you."

"Deliberately? Is that what you guys think?" Several players nodded. O'Toole paused. "It was a pure accident. The ball hit me on the temple. As a matter of fact it carried off the thumb of my glove. I fell into Bell's spikes."
