Illinois State Capitol News

More than 18,000 Illinois high school students, members of the Future Homemakers of America, are celebrating Nov. 2 to Nov. 8 as National Future Homemakers week. Friendship tours and special school and radio programs are features of the occasion.

In a proclamation stating that "this anniversary is widely accepted as a time for patriotic remembrance," Governor Green declared Armistice Day, Nov. 11, a holiday in Illinois, and requested patriotic organizations, and citizens generally, to join in the traditional observance of the anniversary of the ending of World War I hostilities.

Fewer cattle are being fed for market in Illinois this fall than in the autumn of 1946, according to state and federal departments of agriculture. A much smaller corn crop, high prices for corn, hay and other feeder cattle, have brought about the decrease.

Because of the size of the investment involved in carrying on cattle feeding this fall, farmers and stockmen have used extreme care in the selection of feeding stock, giving preference to smooth steers that can if necessary be marketed after only a short stay in the feed lots.

The modern methods employed by Illinois state hospitals in caring for the mentally ill were studied recently by Gov. Oscar Rennebohm of Wisconsin, and a group of legislators and welfare officials from that state. Gov. Dwight H. Green and a number of other Illinois officials met the Wisconsin governor and his party at Kankakee state hospital, and accompanied them on a visit to Manteno state hospital.

More than 6,000 mentally ill persons are cared for and treated at Manteno without the use of mechanical or other restraints. Restraints were abolished in Illinois state mental hospitals more than thirty years ago, but are still used in Wisconsin institutions.

Thirteen Horse Shows are on the eight day schedule of this event—every evening and on five afternoons.

SCRIPTURE: I Peter: Daniel 1. DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 24.

A Call to Right Living
Lesson for November 9, 1947

SUNDAY'S lesson is based on the First Epistle of Peter and the first chapter of Daniel. It is a temperance lesson. It is suggested that we read the 24th Psalm, in which we find this question, Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? And the answer, He that hath clean hands and a pure heart.

Dr. Newton

Psalm gives us a dramatic concept of what it means to face God in the right attitude of life.

How to Grow Strong

OUR doctors tell us how to grow strong, sound bodies. We are to eat the right food, sleep regularly, breathe deeply, etc., etc. Daniel did all of these things, and something more—"Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's wine which he drank; therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself," Daniel 1:8.

Daniel was challenged by the prince of the eunuchs. He predicted that Daniel and his companions would become pale and weak if they refrained from eating the king's meat and drinking the king's wine.

Finally he agreed for them to refrain from meat and wine for ten days, and at the end of the ten days, behold, Daniel and his companions appeared fairer and fatter than those who had eaten intemperately.

Every Youth Must Choose

AS DANIEL chose to grow strong through temperate habits of eating and drinking, so must every youth choose between right living and lustful living. We have laws against drunkenness, for example, but legislation alone cannot produce a generation of temperate young men and women. Each boy and each girl must choose for himself and herself between temperance and intemperance.

And this lesson sets out the ways by which such choices can be made and sustained. I find a helpful word in I Corinthians 10: 31: "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink or whatsoever you do, do all to the glory of God."

As we make the choice between drunkenness and sobriety, let us remember that we are choosing between God and Satan—between the example of honorable parents and the example of people who have desecrated every sanctity. This lesson is a call to right living.

Disciplined Lives

WHICH calls into mind a word that we have not always treated fairly. I am thinking of the word "discipline." Too often we have regarded this word as something very austere, when, as a matter of fact, it is one of the really fine words of our language. It means "one taught." It is the word which with slight difference in spelling gives us "disciple."

The immediate followers of Jesus were called disciples. They were young men, gathered up from the everyday pursuits of life. Most of them were fishermen—men who faced hardships every night as they confronted wind and wave. And yet these rough and tumble fishermen became "the taught" ones of Jesus. They yielded to his discipline. They were pupils in the school of Christ.

That is what this lesson is aiming at—to enlist many, many pupils in the school of Christ.

The Test of Time

MAKE this test in your community, whether you live in the city or in the country. Look at the lives of the men and women about you, and draw your own conclusions regarding the worth of temperate living. Study the lives of the drunkards against the lives of the men and women who have refrained from strong drink. Study the lives of the gamblers and see if they have really won.

I appeal to the verdict of history—the test of time. Not only in the case of Daniel, but in the lives of the men and women in every community in America is daily borne out the truth of Sunday's lesson—that God giveth us richly all things to enjoy, but we must use his gifts with disciplined minds.

Petrillo's Edict

America's music czar, James Caesar Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, has issued a new edict, which if carried to its logical conclusion would prevent the people of the United States from hearing any music whatever, except that played by live musicians. He has served notice that members of his union will not be permitted to make phonograph records after December 31.

If Petrillo has his way, only records made before that date will be allowed to exist, and he declares that the union's executive board has voted to stop once and for all, the making of recordings and transcriptions.

It is said that record-making companies have had an inkling of this action for some time, and that they are busy making as many records as possible before the deadline set by the czar. Many millions of records will be available for a long time to come and individual owners of phonographs will not be greatly affected while the old ones last.

The effect of this decision on the radio and motion picture industries remains to be seen, but if the ruling is to be applied to them it would be a disastrous blow to these great industries, as well as to the public.

What steps may be taken to meet this threat of 225,000 union musicians to deprive the people of the United States of inexpensive entertainment are not yet known, but eventually some means will doubtless be found to preserve this privilege, which the whole nation now enjoys.

De Gaulle's Victory

General Charles de Gaulle of France, who for the past six months, has been organizing his new anti-Communist political party, which he calls the Rally of the French people, won a remarkable victory in recent municipal elections, polling approximately 40 per cent of the total vote.

This was the largest percentage polled by any party in the election, in which the Communists ran second with about 30 per cent, and the Socialists third with less than 20 per cent, and minor parties polling the remainder, according to incomplete returns.

In the last previous election the Communists led with about the same percentage they polled in this election, but they did not obtain control, as all the other parties were anti-Communist. Premier Paul Ramadier is a Socialist, and his office was not affected by the recent election, which was only for municipal officers.

De Gaulle's RFP is a right-wing party, more strongly anti-Communist than either of the others, and it drew much support from the Socialists. His candidates were elected in most of the larger cities, including Paris, and in a large majority of the smaller towns.

This election was highly significant, even though no national offices were involved, and apparently removes any possibility that France will go Communist at any time in the near future.

General De Gaulle, who resigned as head of the provisional government in January, 1946, took little part in politics until last April, when he began to organize his new party in a speech at Strasbourg, in which he called on the people to rally under one banner for the rebirth of France.

The unexpectedly large vote polled by his new party indicates that he still has the confidence of a substantial element of the people, and that he may again emerge as the strong man of France. His integrity and patriotism are unquestioned, and his country needs him in this period of stress and uncertainty.

Sidelights

If you can't take criticism, take care not to deserve it.

A sensible girl is one who is more sensible than she looks because a sensible girl has more sense than to look sensible. To put it another way . . . but let's skip it.

Inflation is with us. Some point to one reason and some another. But definite proof that inflation has arrived comes with the announcement that laboratory fees have been increased by the College of the City of New York because the price of dead cats has gone up from $3 to $6 each.

We hear the remark continuously that present high prices are further evidence that history always repeats itself. It is said that after each war this country has experienced a period of spiraling prices. To which one old-timer remarked: "Yep, it's true, but every time history repeats itself, prices go higher and higher."

It must have been one of those GI houses we hear so much about. Anyway, a few days ago when friend hubby came home, the little wife said: I just overheard the best news about the house we are building. One of the carpenters told another that the whole thing was being built with green lumber. Isn't that grand? Now we won't have to buy all that green paint.

Maybe it is true, as someone has said that the trouble today is that: "everybody wants to talk, few want to think, and nobody wants to listen." If every individual had a heart big enough that would allow him to think without malice or prejudice and was willing to make all his contributions, whether in money or efforts, willingly and wisely, there is no doubt but that much of the world's ills would be cured in short order.

Household Hints

Warm water is best to dampen garments for ironing as it penetrates the fabric quicker.

Discarded silken articles cut into tiny pieces provide a good filling for cushions.

Some spots on wallpaper can be removed with a clean blotting paper and a hot iron.

Baked apples will keep their shape more satisfactorily if placed in a buttered muffin tin when baking.

Glass cooking utensils should be thoroughly dry on the outside to prevent cracking while heating.

A sprinkler top on the bluing bottle will aid in regulating the amount of bluing that goes into water for the laundry.

When arranging a room for a convalescent, look it over from the bed—not the door—to make sure the view is encouraging.

When shopping for drapery material, take a sample of the wallpaper along, in order to secure a better match or blending of colors.

When storing your electric fan for the winter, wrap it carefully in paper to protect the motor from dust. Store in a cool, dry place too avoid injury to the rubber cord and to prevent rusting.

When wrapping a cake for mailing used waxed paper and place in a box surrounded with popcorn. This will protect the cake and the recipient can eat both the cake and the packing.

In a statement to "the church people in the United States" and especially those who purchase foodstuffs for their households, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America urges voluntary reduction in the consumption of certain foods so that more may be shipped to the needy of Europe. The Council urges that church people "consider measures by which eating habits may be readjusted and consumption reduced in cereal grains, meat and fats—give the money saved for foreign relief and for medicines for the saving of lives during the winter—that each household, industry, store, and place of public assembly conserve coal by promotion of a campaign for efficient firing and the maintenance of reasonable temperatures." It also urges that church people write government officials regarding American sharing with suffering peoples.

Chalk is a soft white rock of the earth. A notable deposit of it is a ledge that can be followed from Austin, Tex., southward into Mexico for a distance of 600 miles. It averages about 600 feet in thickness.

Pony Express Charges
The Pony Express, inaugurated in the spring of 1860, first charged $5.00 for each letter of one-half ounce or less.

Trees of the States
Nearly 4,500 species of trees and plants are native to Alabama—a greater variety than is produced throughout all Europe. Kansas produces about 90 per cent of all apple seedlings grown in the United States. Idaho has the largest stand of white pine timber in the United States. The largest white pine lumber mill in the world is in northern Idaho.

Speed of Pony Express
The fastest trip made by the famous Pony Express between St. Joseph, Mo., and the Pacific Coast was 7 days and 17 hours, when Lincoln's first inaugural address was carried, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The regular schedule was 10 days, about 24 days faster than the schedule of Butterfield's Overland stage line traveling on the Southern route.

Shall America Follow?

Among all the postwar nations, no countries have so quickly restored their productivity without damage to standards of living as have Canada and the United States. These two countries have restored productivity to the 1940-41 level, and in many industries have surpassed this level. It is no coincidence that a recent New York Times 22-nation survey showed that except in Canada and the United States, the trend is toward government management of industry.

Countries that are exchanging their freedoms for government controls are not making good postwar records. In general, they are the countries that are crying the loudest for help from outside. Those nations which desire to turn everything over to the government for complete control and management are the very countries that are slipping backward. Still, the trend is in that very direction, toward government management.

Public Must Decide

Shall America ultimately follow this trend? In my opinion, the public in this country has not yet decided that issue. There are some voices crying loudly for government management. Even our Attorney General points his finger at American industry and accuses it of being responsible for high prices. Political maneuvers may please critical people and get votes, but in making industry unpopular the way is paved for replacing our free enterprise system.

As an educator, I favor that system which will provide the highest standards of living for the masses of the American people. If government management of our industries would provide higher wages, more productivity and greater purchasing power for each dollar spent, then certainly I would be in favor of it. Actually, our system of private enterprise has put America far ahead of other nations that have tried anything else.

Act With Wisdom

There are other dividends offered by the American Way. We have freedoms. We can work at what we please, where we choose. We can speak our minds, assemble in groups as we care to. These freedoms and other liberties we did not have under the control of despotic and dictatorial governments in previous centuries. Why, ever, should we want to follow a trend that leads us backward toward new despotism and loss of personal freedoms? The experience of England should make us pause and think seriously. Those freedom-loving people have not found government management an asset. Their coal production has been extremely disappointing under government management. Rationing has become more and more severe. Burdens of the people have become more and more heavy. Today, the very future of England is threatened by strict government regulation and management of industry.

In this dark hour, Englishmen should study their own history. They will find that whenever their individual freedoms were greatest, it was then their prosperity was the most genuine. If we in America think soberly and act in our best interests, we will act with wisdom to preserve the fundamental patterns of our economy: the right of private ownership of property and the freest possible exercise of private management of our entire economy.

Uncle Sam Says

SAVE NOW AND SAVE YOUR FUTURE BUY U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Your Uncle Sam is indebted to a newspaper editorial for pointing out one of the most vital qualities of United States Savings Bonds. Under the caption INDESTRUCTIBLE BONDS, this editorial declares: "A resident of the suburbs reported the disappearance of $12,000 in cash and $7,000 in United States Savings Bonds from his home. If he should never see the cash or bonds again, he would be out $12,000 not $19,000. For the bonds will be of no value to the thief, and on application will be reissued to the owner. The misfortune that befell the suburbanite is a timely reminder that surplus cash can be put to work with security, and with assured availability to the owner in time of need, by using it for the purchase of United States Savings Bonds."

Smile Awhile

The good old days were those when Uncle Sam lived within his income — and without most of ours.

When a man has a birthday he takes a day off; but when a woman has a birthday she takes a year off.

She—You deceived me before our marriage. You told me you were well off.

He—I was, but I didn't know it.

Judge, in traffic court—I'll let you off with a fine this time, but another day I'll send you to jail.

Driver—Sort of a weather fore-caster, eh, Judge?

Judge—What do you mean?

Driver—Fine today—cooler to-morrow.

The irate prosecutor whirled on the defendant—Madam, he shouted, trying to prove a vital point, "while you were taking your dog for a walk, did you stop any place?"

Sir, she answered quietly, "Did you ever take a dog for a walk?"

Teacher to history student—You want to know why you did not pass in your history test? Well, your answer to the question, "Why did the pioneers go into the wilderness" was interesting from the standpoint of sanitation, but it was still incorrect.

A colored lad was, strangely enough, strolling through a cemetery, reading the inscriptions on the tombstones. He came to one which read: "Not dead but Sleeping."

Scratching his head, the little dark chap remarked: "He sure ain't foolin' nobody but hisself!"

Rastus—Pahson, suh, Ah wants you all to pray for me! Ah's in a bad way, suh.

Pastor: Well, Rastus, what's wrong with you?

Rastus—Ah's got a floatin' kidney, suh!

Pastor—But, Rastus, I can't pray for physical things like that; I only pray for spiritual things.

Rastus—You all can't pray for a floating kidney? Den how come you all prayed last Sunday for the loose livahs?

A farmer took a pig to town and sold it. With the proceeds he bought a suit, hat, and shoes, and then he tucked the bundle under the seat and said: 'Giddap, Oriole, let's get home and surprise my wife.' On his way home he stopped at the river, took off all his old clothes and threw them in and they sank. Then he looked under the seat for his new outfit. It was gone. So he got in the buggy and said, "Giddap, Oriole, we'll surprise her anyway."

Raise A Puppy, Then Baby, Couples Told

Raising of a puppy is the finest sort of preparation for the rearing of a baby, workers of the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City, believe.

They point to the finding of Lawrence K. Frank, a recognized authority on child care who himself has raised six children and many puppies, and who states that an understanding of the fact that babies are "human puppies" can be of enormous help to parents in dealing with the problems and vicissitudes of raising a family.

Both puppies and babies, when new-born, are dependent, helpless and demanding, he points out. They require frequent feedings and much sleep, and crave petting and affection. When hungry, hurt or uncomfortable they whimper or cry. Like the puppy, the baby will acquire politeness, emotional balance and self-discipline or will become a petulant and discordant individual depending on the manner in which he has been treated while small, he states.

Contour Farming
Contour farming is being increasingly recommended as a soil-saving measure. It slows down runoff, conserves moisture and reduces losses of topsoil and plant food, including nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. But contour farming alone cannot control erosion and increase crop yields. It should be a part of a well-rounded soil management program in which all the measures used reinforce each other. A soil-building system of soil treatment and crop rotation including deeprooted legumes is recommended. For more sloping land, terracing should be used, along with contour farming.

Square Biscuits, Yet!

I see by a neighboring paper, that the round biscuit is on the way out. Yes, sir, home-management specialists have found that the square biscuit lends itself to assembly-line production and easy storage better than those customary ovals.

Well, we're all for progress, but that's one new idea we just don't cotton to. A round biscuit, spread nicely amidst with snappy country cheese, looks like a biscuit! And accompanied by a mellow glass of beer, it's a combination that you can't improve on!

So at the risk of being called old-fashioned, I'm voting for round biscuits, that fit a hungry man's mouth like no square imitation ever will . . . and for American beer served in the good old-fashioned way, in tall, cool mugs or ordinary glasses, with frosty sides and bubbles winking at the brim!

Think I'll step out to the kitchen for a snack right now!

About 11 per cent of all children tested in first grade are in need of glasses. The percentage increases to 36 per cent by time children reach ten years of age. It has also been found that of school children making normal progress, 15 per cent have inefficient vision, and of those making unsatisfactory progress, 85 per cent have inefficient vision. A recent government survey indicates that myopia increases about 600 per cent between the first and fifth grades.

Discovery of Nickel
Although used in natural alloys even in ancient times, nickel was unknown as an element until 1751, when its discovery came about in the following way: Miners in Saxony, several years before, had attempted to smelt some newly-discovered ores which had the appearance of copper ore. But the metal they obtained was not copper—it was a white metal so hard and tough it could not be hammered into useful articles, and so was useless to them. Believing Old Nick had cast a spell over their ores, the superstitious miners called the metal "Kupfer-Nickel," meaning "Old Nick's Copper."

Speed Turpentine Mill
A new continuous-process still for converting pine gum to turpentine and rosin, now in operation at Lake City, Fla., represents the fulfillment of long-cherished hopes of naval stores operators. For 150 years or more, turpentine and rosin have been produced in batch stills, and continuous operation was only a dream. The new still, of small commercial size, is the result of three years of intensive research by naval stores scientists of the bureau of agricultural and industrial chemistry. It is both faster and cheaper than batch stills, one of which is being operated side by side with the new continuous still for the purpose of comparing results. The new type uses less than two-thirds as much steam as the conventional still and requires only half as much labor to operate. The rosin produced is as good, if not better, and of more uniform quality.
