SCRIPTURE: Mark 4:26-29; Luke 4:16-22; 17:20-21; Romans 14:17.

The Kingdom of God
Lesson for March 21, 1948

JESUS went back to his boyhood home in Nazareth, and on the Sabbath he went into the synagogue, "as was his custom."

Dr. Newton

They gave him the Book of Isaiah, from which he read a passage in the first chapter, adding, "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears," Luke 4:21. Jesus had come to let people know about God—to reveal the Father's perfect love for all men. He loved the Bible, and was constantly reading it, which in his day was the Old Testament only. And he loved the Sabbath day, which we now call the Lord's day. Beginning with his resurrection, the first day of the week has been observed as the Lord's day. And Jesus loved the appointed places of worship, and was always found in some synagogue on the Sabbath. Don't you wish you might have been in Nazareth that day when he stood up to read the Scripture?

WHAT HE CAME TO DO

JESUS, I repeat, came to reveal God to men, which is but another way of saying that he came to teach men about the Kingdom of God. Here we shall need to read Mark 4:26-29, and Romans 14:17.

"The Kingdom of God is as if a man should cast seed into the ground," said Jesus; and Paul, in Romans 14:17, says, "The Kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit."

Jesus, then, came to establish a kingdom within the hearts of men. It means the rule of God in human hearts. What he wills, we gladly do. It manifests itself in the daily life of the individual, in the home, in the school, in the church—everywhere.

"THY KINGDOM COME"

SO VITAL is this truth for the Christian that Jesus, in the pattern prayer, teaches us to say, "Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as in heaven."

If we live in the atmosphere of this prayer, we shall embody daily the fruits of the coming Kingdom of God. If we really "seek first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness," we lift the level of life wherever we stand and serve. This is precisely what Jesus did. "He went about doing good."

We help to answer the prayer, "Thy Kingdom come," when we do with all our might what our hands find to do—in the home, in the community, in the church.

KINGDOM OF GOD AMONG MEN

IT IS not enough to consider this truth in terms of some far-off dramatic event. It is a present force and factor in today's world.

One day the Pharisees asked Jesus when the Kingdom of God should come. He told them that it would not come with observation—that it is within the hearts of men.

What did he mean? I believe that he meant just this, that the Kingdom of God will and must manifest itself in the common affairs of everyday life. We may hinder its manifestation. We may retard its coming. On the other hand, we may make it manifest and hasten its spread to earth's remotest bounds.

How? By yielding ourselves to the rule and reign of God in every relationship of life. In race relations, in social service, in relief to the afflicted, in united effort for peace, in better housing, in better recreational facilities, in educational opportunities for all. The Kingdom of God is not an impractical theory, but a working principle, even as the heaven works in the loaf.

WHEN WILL IT COME?

THE Kingdom of God will come when redeemed hearts—everywhere enthrone God in their whole attitude and purpose. Then, and not until then.

Will it come? This is a stubborn question. From our viewpoint, it may seem doubtful; but Jesus declares that it will come. "I have overcome the world," he declares.

The one question for you and for me, What part shall I have in the coming of the Kingdom of God upon the earth? We each decide by our willingness or unwillingness to follow him.

Observe good faith and justice toward all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all. — George Washington's Farewell Address.

Synthetic Oil Plans

Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal recently told a Congressional committee that maximum needs for petroleum in a war emergency would be nearly double those of the last war. Even now we are using in peacetime more oil than was consumed for all purposes during World War II.

Many believe the only answer to this problem is the establishment of a large synthetic oil industry, which would call for an investment of $9,000,000,000 and be capable of producing 2,000,000 barrels of oil a day. This is about one-third of our present consumption.

Several experimental plants on a limited scale are already in operation or being built, both by private companies and by the government. While these small plants will not be sufficient to greatly increase the supply, it is hoped that the experience gained in their operation will be useful in developing improved processes suitable for production of synthetic oil in larger quantities and at lower cost in the future.

This happened in the case of synthetic rubber production just before and during the war, when an investment of $760,000,000 enabled the nation to become largely independent of natural rubber, whose supply was cut off by the Japanese.

Vast supplies of oil which the United States has hoped to get from the Arab countries of the Middle East are in danger of being cut off if the fighting in Palestine leads to a full-scale war in that area. Already the building of pipe lines, storage tanks and dock facilities by American companies has been seriously interfered with by the hostile Arabs, angered by the action of the United States in supporting the partition of Palestine, as now being undertaken by the United Nations.

Oil for American warships in the Mediterranean, the Far East and the Pacific now comes from the Arab countries. Most of the fuel oil for the British Navy, and about one-fourth of the oil for Western Europe comes from the same sources. If the present trouble had not arisen, it was planned to draw about 2,000,000 barrels a day from this area by 1951 for American use alone. Total production in the United States is now around 5,000,000 barrels a day.

It may seem, therefore, that the development of synthetic oil production in this country is likely to become of vital importance before long.

Poll of Four States

Results of a Gallup poll of four states on the relative strength of President Truman, Governor Dewey and Henry Wallace, showed Dewey ahead in three and tied with Truman in the fourth. Here are the figures.

New York—Dewey 44 per cent, Truman 41 per cent, Wallace 15 per cent.

Pennsylvania—Dewey 49, Truman 44, Wallace 7.

Illinois—Dewey 52, Truman 40, Wallace 8.

California—Dewey 44½, Truman 44½, Wallace 11.

These four states have a total of 135 electoral votes, or more than one-fourth of those cast by the entire 48 states. No Gallup poll on the relative strength of President Truman and Governor Dewey in the other states has been taken recently.

Dewey is considered the strongest among active Republican aspirants for the presidential nomination, but there is still the possibility of a deadlock in the convention.

On the Democratic side, in spite of the threatened revolt in the South, there is little doubt that President Truman will be nominated on the first ballot. His chances of election, however, are not particularly bright.

Why did you stop singing in the choir, Thomas?

Well, one Sunday I was sick and didn't sing, and a lot of people in the congregation asked if the organ had been fixed!

The children of a wealthy heiress have never seen a member of their family engaged in any household task. Recently the youngsters returned from a vacation in their Virginia home, where they visited a great deal with a farm family living near by.

Well, Cookie, the father asked one of the children, how did you like playing on a farm?

Oh, father, it was thrilling, the youngster replied, but I hate to tell you. They do a terrible thing there—they use their own grandmother for a cook!

Two rather rowdy young darkies, in whose minds shrilling police sirens were insolubly connected with great personal trouble and inconvenience, were walking along Pennsylvania Avenue, in Washington one morning when they became suddenly aware of a long black car bearing upon them, preceded by siren-sounding motorcycles in awesome number.

Who dat? stammered one of the Negroes.

Why, you wall-eyed ignoramus, rejoined the other, dat am de President ob de United States!

Yeah? said the first Negro. What he done?

Sidelights

In a suicide note found by investigators near the body of Albert Johnson, San Francisco, the workings of a thoughtful and competent brain were revealed: "Being of sound mind, I spent every cent I had before I died."

A most timely cartoon was the one showing the wife giving friend husband "down the country" and concluding her tirade with: "What good is it for me to skimp and slave, if you continue to squander money on income taxes?"

Her former employer hadn't seen Mammy in some time. Meeting her on the street, she asked: How many children do you have now, Mammy? Just fo', was the answer.

That's a nice family. How old are they?

Ah don't zactly know their ages, Ma'am, but one's a creeper, one's a lap child, one's a porch child and the other's a yard child was the clarifying reply.

The crying of 8-months-old James Steelman, Jr., son of a Navy veteran, paid off handsomely. Attracted to a trailer on exhibition in Philadelphia by the sounds of a crying baby, police went to investigate and found a homeless veteran, his wife and baby comfortably encamped within. The case attracted considerable attention and the manufacturer of the trailer, located in a mid-west city, heard about it. He contacted the Philadelphia police station, got more details and advised: "Give them the trailer—and for free!"

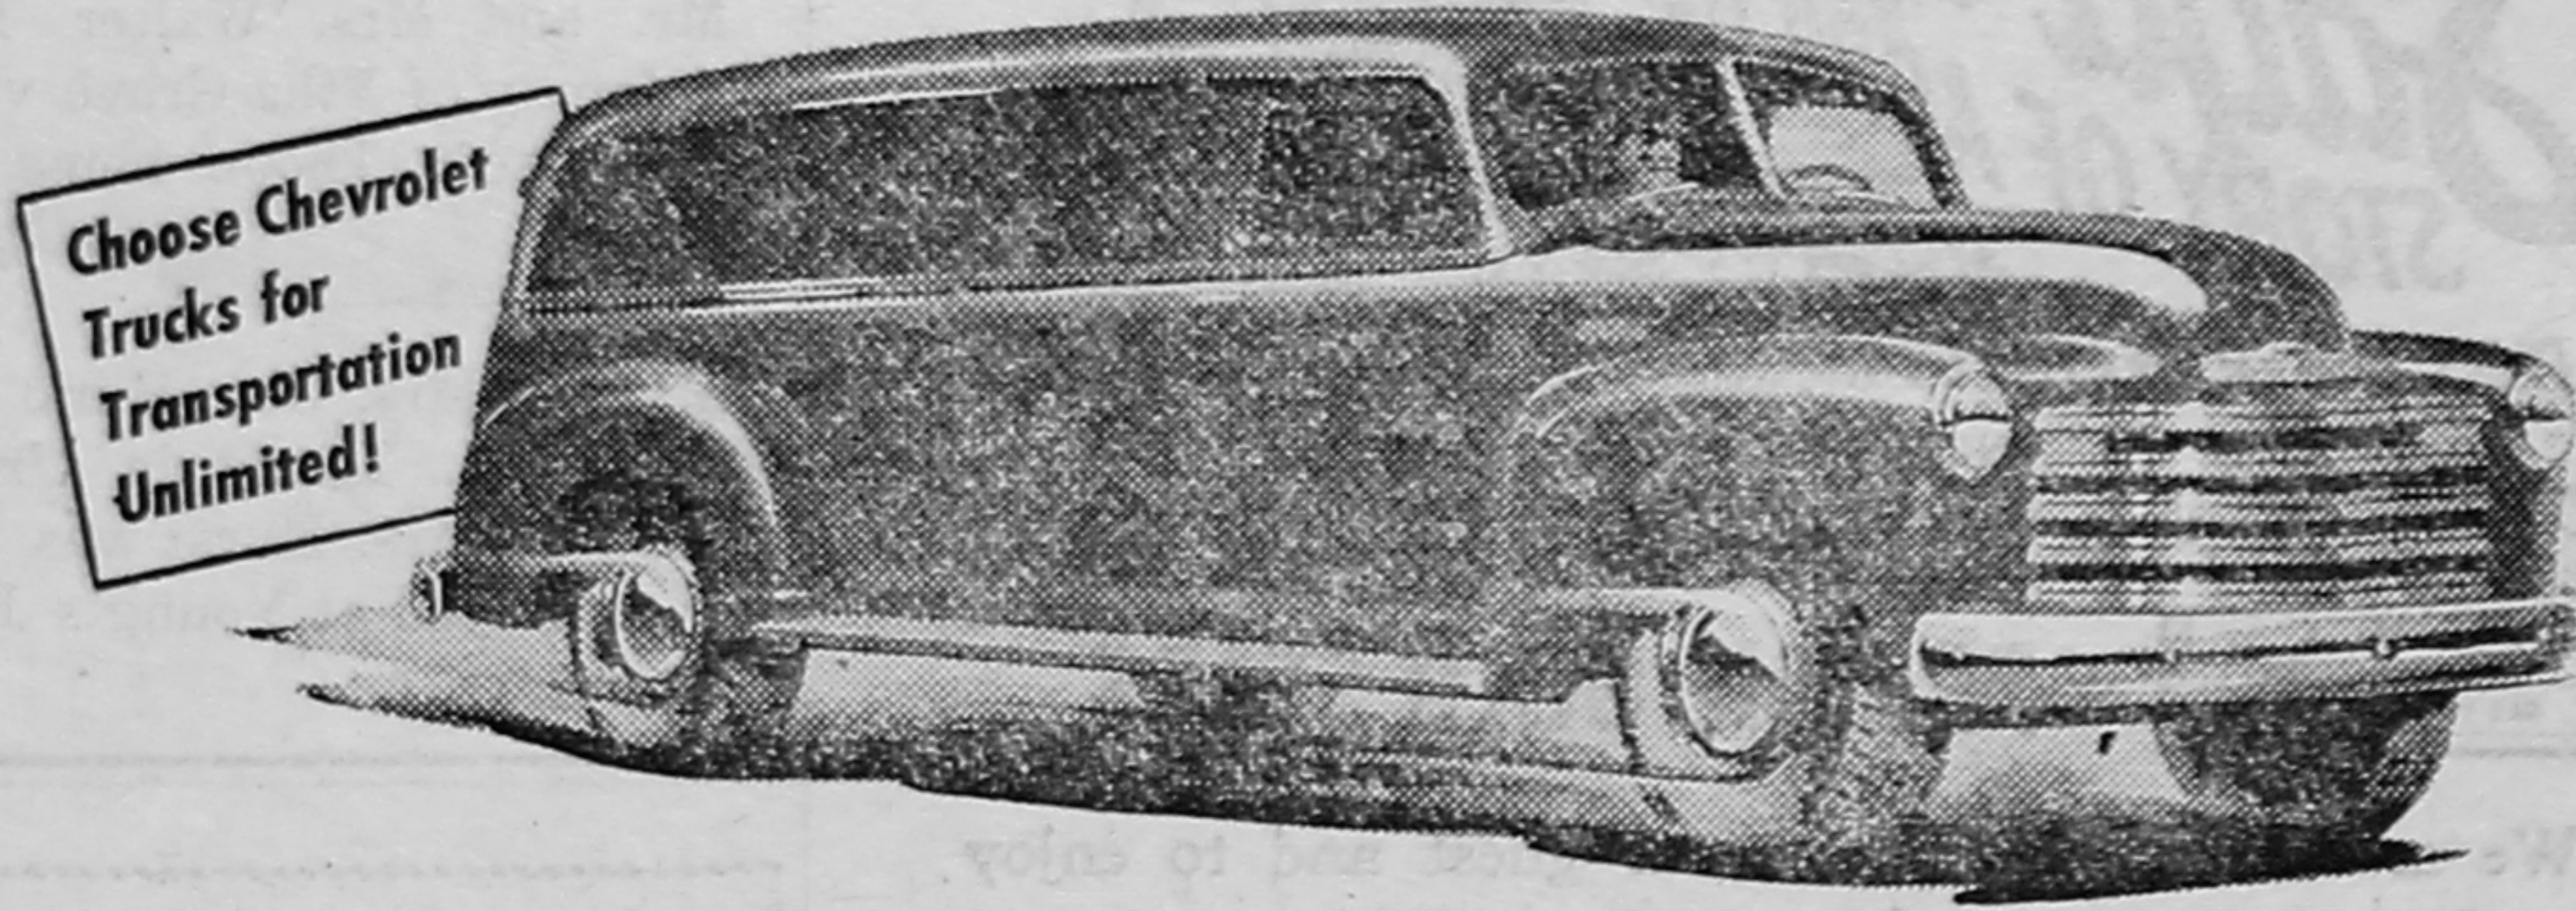

When the Germans were battering at the approaches to Stalingrad, we discussed the war in Russia with J. W. Johnson, superintendent of the city electricity department. Having spent a number of years in the vicinity of that city and knowing the Russian people far better than most of our acquaintances, we listened with interest to Mr. Johnson's remarks. However, when he said: "Mark my word, soon after the war is over, the Red Flag of Russia will fly over every capital in Europe except, possibly, England," we managed a weak and doubting smile. This prophecy is becoming dangerously true. How far-seeing Mr. Johnson was.

How to Keep 'Em Down On the Farm

The other day Pete Swanson's nephew, Bud, allowed as how he was fed up with farm and country life... and was going to the city where there was a lot more opportunity and excitement.

Some folks might have tried to stop him. But not Pete. He even advanced Bud carfare for the trip... figured that when he'd had a good look around, he'd come back where he belonged.

And what happened? After seven days of big-town bustle and excitement, Bud was back behind the wheel of a tractor, with color in his cheeks again. And he'd traded the night life of the city for a quiet glass of beer with Dad.

From where I sit, that's how it goes. Try to prevent some one from getting what he thinks he wants—and he'll go on wanting it. But give him his head, and he'll settle for the sensible thing—whether it's country life, or a temperate glass of beer!
