Illinois State Capitol News

In an admonition directed to Illinois youth, Livingston E. Osborne, state director of conservation, pointed out that the shooting of song and insectivorous birds is a federal offense carrying a penalty up to $500 fine, six months imprisonment, or both. Robins, bluebirds, catbirds, martins, woodpeckers and similar species are protected by the law. Birds devour insects which are injurious to crops and garden plants, Osborne declared, and since they perform such a noble job it is only reasonable that it should be unlawful to kill them.

By placing 3037 disabled Illinois citizens in paying occupations during the twelve months ending last June 30, the state division of vocational rehabilitation made a new record, representing an almost 50% increase over the mark of 2,082 set during the preceding year, according to Frank G. Thompson, director of registration and education and chairman of the state board for vocational education.

As a result of this assistance, the persons thus placed built up their average yearly earnings from $743 to $1762. The cost to the State averaged $185 per person.

With the mailing of 60,000 checks in July, payment of the Illinois veterans' bonus is now more than two-thirds done, according to Admiral John Downes, director of the service recognition board.

As of the end of July, $233,000,000 bonus money has been paid out in 305,000 checks to Cook county veterans and 310,000 checks to veterans downstate. Approximately 250,000 claims remain to be paid, Downes said.

The board expects about 50,000 more claims to be filed before the June 30, 1949 deadline. The board also has some incomplete claims, payment of which is held up pending answers from veterans to correspondence from the board.

Ebed-Melech, The Ethiopian

Lesson for August 8, 1948

ARE you ready for a real story? Then turn to Jeremiah 38, and read on to verse 18 in the 39th chapter. This interesting story reveals a hero, Ebed-melech, by name, which means "the king's slave." This may have been his official title rather than his personal name. Anyway, he is the hero of our story, and a very admirable hero, indeed. He was a Negro, and Ethiopian eunuch, in charge of the king's chambers. Zedekiah, as the story reveals, held Ebed-melech in high esteem. He was, obviously, a most honorable man. How he had come to know Jeremiah, and to esteem him so highly, is a subject for profitable contemplation. The devotional reading, Matthew 25:31-46, offers final opinion on the value of Ebed-melech's ministry to Jeremiah. The golden text, "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men," Galatians 6:10.

JEREMIAH'S FRIEND

E-BED-MELECH was Jeremiah's friend. When he saw what the princes had done to Jeremiah, he went to the king and begged him to allow him to draw Jeremiah out of the mire in the dark dungeon. He knew that Jeremiah would soon die in this awful place, and Ebed-melech risked his life in making the request to rescue Jeremiah. The wonder is that the princes had not ordered Ebed-melech slain. Evidently, they recognized the hand of God.

Like as this Negro servant in the long ago served God by rendering kindness to a man of another race, so may we today serve God and civilization by good will and kindly service to all races.

FREEDOM THROUGH A SLAVE

THE story of Ebed-melech's kindness to Jeremiah lifts to ennobling example the act of a slave on behalf of freedom. The world's benefactors are those who understand freedom, and cast themselves in utter self-forgetfulness into the struggle for right against wrong.

What had Jeremiah done to receive such harsh treatment? He had delivered God's message to the people of Jerusalem, warning them that the city would be taken by the Chaldeans, and how they might escape destruction. Jeremiah was proclaiming freedom—not always a popular course. For this effort to help the people, he was thrown into the muddy dungeon. This servant of the king was the only man in Jerusalem who understood the purpose of Jeremiah.

A FRIEND INDEED

GRANTED permission from the king to rescue Jeremiah, Ebed-melech devised prompt methods of letting down old pieces of rope and rags, telling Jeremiah how to fasten them under his arms, and with the aid of thirty men drew him up from the mire, and brought him into the court of the prison.

And then God spoke words of great reward to Jeremiah on behalf of Ebed-melech. "But I will deliver thee in that day, saith the Lord; and thou shalt not be given into the hand of the men of whom thou art afraid. For I will surely deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall by the sword, but thy life shall be for a prey unto thee, because thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the Lord."

WHO SIDES WITH GOD

E-BED-MELECH'S noble ministry to Jeremiah lifts up a banner for every true follower of the Lord. Who sides with God must always win. That is the lesson of the lesson. We should never have known about this Negro, had he not cast his all on the side of God.

"Who sides with God must always win, No cause to him is lost."

Social People

It seems clear to me that God designed us to live in society—just as He has given the bees the honey; and as our social system could not subsist without the sense of justice and injustice, He has given us the power to acquire that sense.

Voltaire.

Our Creator would never have made such lovely days, and have given us the deep hearts to enjoy them, above and beyond all thought, unless we were meant to be immortal.—Hawthorne.

Christianity is not a theory or speculation, but a life and a living process.—Coleridge.

Our Plight In Berlin

By a series of cunning and diabolical moves, the Russians have maneuvered the United States and Western Europe into a desperate situation in Berlin, where we are obligated to supply food, fuel and other necessities of life to more than 2,000,000 Germans, besides supporting our own people in that city.

These moves began last April, when the Russians first issued orders for the control of rail and highway traffic between the western zones of Germany and Berlin. We protested, but obeyed Soviet orders, and restrictions were made more and more rigid, until now only air traffic is permitted. Even that is threatened with interference and harassment.

Inasmuch as we have submitted to the stoppage of rail and highway traffic, the Russians are encouraged to believe that we would also submit to them if they ordered air traffic to cease. In what appears to be a preliminary to such an order, they have signified their intentions to carry on aircraft maneuvers in the corridors we are now using.

In a hypocritical propaganda gesture, Russia recently signified a willingness to supply food to the western zones of Berlin, but only to Germans who could pay for it in Russian currency, presumably at whatever prices the Soviet government saw fit to charge.

To agree to this would amount to placing the Germans at the mercy of the Russians, which would mean slow starvation, as the plan is unworkable for a number of reasons that need not be enumerated here. The main reason is that the plan is not intended to work, but is proposed only as another pretext for hindering the Americans and British in their efforts to feed the Germans.

When the Russians first restricted rail and highway traffic last April, the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, after consulting with General Clay, decided to ignore the order and send a "test train" with an armored car and an armed guard, into Berlin. Our intelligence agents in Germany had advised that the Russians would not dare to interfere with the train. But President Truman vetoed the idea, and we have submitted to the Soviets ever since, although declaring repeatedly that we would stay in Berlin.

Now we may still have to force a show-down, with greater danger than would have attended the action proposed three months ago. It is a repetition of the old story—the more we give in, the more the Russians will encroach upon our rights.

Unfortunately, we are poorly prepared to maintain our rights by force at the present time. And force is the only argument to which the Russians are likely to pay any attention.

Rural Health Plan

The committee on rural medical service of American Medical association has established committees on rural medical service in 31 states. This widespread recognition of the importance of rural health problem is shared by the organized farm groups. The medical and farm groups are working in close harmony in each state. The placing of facilities under the program will affect rural areas in nearly every instance.

Sidelights

We find ourselves full of complaints as we suffer with the heat, but forget about our own discomfort when we watch some poor dog all wrapped up in his heavy fur coat, trying to find some escape from the sultry weather. And he has yet to complain—verbally.

A certain man tells the story that his wife went into the kitchen as the maid was packing up her things to go home for the night. She noticed the maid wrapping up several bones of the T-bone steaks they had for supper. Puzzled, she asked the reason as the bones, well stripped, were of no value. "Yes'um I know that," was the reply, "but they make my garbage look mighty classy."

A certain patient explained to his doctor how badly he felt. The doctor, after an examination, prescribed certain pills to be taken at bedtime and also advised that a small amount of whiskey be taken after each meal. Nearly a week passed when the doctor received a call from his patient, who complained that he felt no better. "Have you taken the medicine exactly as instructed," asked the doctor. "Well, I tell you, doctor, I may be a little behind with the pills, but I am at least six weeks ahead with the whiskey," was the weak reply.

Occasionally we hear of someone who has trapped or killed a bird that has been banded by the Washington Biological Survey in an effort to learn the migratory habits of that species. Formerly, the wording on the band was: "Wash. Biol. Surv." However because of a certain incident the wording on the band now reads: "Notify Fish and Wildlife Services, Washington, D. C." The reason for the change, although not given out officially, seems to be the result of a letter received from an irate taxpayer, who wrote: "Sirs: I shot one of your pet crows and followed instructions. I washed it, I biled it, and served it. It was terrible. Stop fooling the people."

One Smart Bird

The kiwi bird of New Zealand is a smart fellow. Knowing that worms come to the surface of the ground when it is raining, he imitates the sound of rain by stamping on the ground with his feet, thereby decoying up a meal.

Big Elephant Tusk

The average weight of an elephant's tusk is about 55 pounds, although some exceed 100 pounds.

Twin Waffle Baker

Among developments in electrical appliances is a twin waffle baker that makes two full-sized waffles at a time.

Through "Licensed Agencies for Relief in Asia," some 4,500,000 Japanese school children are now receiving daily supplementary food rations without which it is doubtful if they could continue their studies. About one-half of the food supplies thus used comes from the Protestant churches and church people of America through their agency, Church World Service. While the next harvest in Japan may somewhat relieve her food needs it is felt that American relief will still be needed for the children.

SHORT STORY
Waiting For Something
By TED M. RIDER

UNCLE JAN twisted in his wicker chair on the front porch when he heard Carol's heels clicking swiftly on the sidewalk. Bax Hammond towered one step behind her and was pretty mad because the thin scar on his cheek looked twisted under the blazing light of the street lamp.

Then the storm broke. "What's gotten into your niece, Jan? Yesterday, she insisted on buying her own ticket to the barn dance. Tonight, she paid her own way into the movies. Now, I ask you—"

Bax paused to settle his blue eyes indignantly on Carol's bowed red head, but she said in a very bored tone, "Girls are becoming pretty independent nowadays, aren't they, Uncle Jan?"

"Well, for the luvva Pete!" Bax gasped explosively. "We're engaged aren't we, Carol? And you'll be dependent on me for the rest of your life, won't you? Why, that's taken for granted, and that's the way I want it!"

"Oh, you do? Well, thanks for letting me know that, Mr. Boss Hammond. Now I'll tell you something. Here's your ring back."

She jerked the sparkling diamond from her finger and shoved it into the stunned young man's palm, then slammed through the screen door with a speed that made Uncle Jan blink.

"Bax, why didn't you and Carol get hitched right after your army discharge?"

"How could I marry her, then, Jan? I was stone broke and had to start my automobile agency on a flyer. And you know how things went. First, I couldn't get any stock. Then, my garage burned down and I had to start from scratch again. We're through!"

UNCLE JAN stopped his departure by quickly asking for a match. He had to untangle things some way. Why, Carol had always wanted to marry Bax. Even two years ago she'd come right out and asked if marriage wasn't a partnership where each person shared rain or shine as it came.

Bax hadn't wanted her when things were going bad for him, so she was wondering why he wanted her now when he was a success. After five long years of waiting, fear had replaced confidence, and her sudden desire to be independent was nothing but a cover-up to hide that fear. Maybe she was fearful that Bax just considered her another step up the ladder for himself, something to be bossed around because he was paying the bills. She wanted proof of his love.

Suddenly, he had an idea for a cure. It would be a pretty drastic one but it would show them how much they really cared for each other.

HE TURNED to the door and belatedly, "Did you say Carol won't marry you because of that bullet scar on your cheek, Bax?"

"Bax," Carol said, simply, "your scar stands for everything fine."

Well, that's something to think about."

In a second, the screen door flew open and Carol stood there, her hand on his shoulder and her heart in her eyes staring down at Bax's white strained face. He'd taken the remark seriously, and Uncle Jan felt suddenly frightened. If Carol didn't handle things right, now...

"Bax," she said, simply, "your scar stands for everything fine; for duty, loyalty, sacrifice—for everything fine I love in you."

Her hands rose to tremble on the muscles ridging his jaw grimly. Then, as he stiffened, she stood on tip-toe and kissed the scar.

When he still stood like a granite statue and Carol started to cry, Uncle Jan roared in high dudgeon, "You going to wait five more years to kiss her back, you dumb galoot? That's why she busted the engagement. When a guy makes a girl wait that long she wants something besides words to prove he loves her. Get it?"

Yes, it was only a half-pint.

Hey, shouted the passing motorist. Your house is on fire!

Ah knows it stranger, nodded the mountaineer.

Then why aren't you doing something about it?

Ah am, he answered. Ah'm prayin' fo' rain.

At last, groaned the elderly diner, total paralysis of the left leg! I've feared it for years.

Have you seen any mysterious strangers around here lately? asked the detective of a villager.

Yes, sir, replied the old man. There was a man 'ere with the circus last week, and 'e took a pair of rabbits out o' my whiskers!

The boy had shown such ignorance and mental obtuseness that the teacher was disheartened. She finally asked sarcastically:

Do you know whether George Washington was a soldier or a sailor?

He was a soldier, answered the urchin promptly.

How do you know that? she persisted.

'Cause I saw a picture of him crossing the Delaware, an' any sailor'd know enough not to stand up in the boat!

RUHM'S PHOSPHATE

How Fine Is "85% Thru 300 Mesh?"

This is a term used to describe the fineness of a phosphate rock ground down to a point where 85% will wash through a copper screen woven so fine there are 300 openings to the inch, 90,000 openings to the square inch. This is so fine that the unaided eye is hardly able to distinguish the weave. This is so fine that to pass through this screen there must be approximately 27,000,000 particles of phosphate rock in one cubic inch of Ruhm's Phosphate Rock. This is finer than flour, finer than cement, finer by far than any other phosphate rock sold on a commercial basis.

For summer sleeping comfort get an Electric Attic Fan

All during the day your house absorbs terrific heat from the blazing summer sun. Such accumulation of air makes your attic a veritable oven. This heat radiates down into your living and sleeping rooms. Remove that blanket of heat from your house with an attic fan that forces out the stale, hot air, pulls in the cool, refreshing night air. Get restful sleep the rest of the summer with an Attic Fan. It's hot weather comfort at low price, since an Attic Fan is economical to operate.
