At the Word of Command

Lesson for August 29, 1948

DO PEOPLE always do what they know is right? You would think so; but they don't. It is strange how many excuses people can think up to get out of doing what they know in their hearts they ought to do.

But not this man Ananias. He was a shining exception. There are three Ananias in the New Testament, and this one makes up for the other two. One of the others was a rascally priest and one was a famous liar; but this Ananias, another of the "unheralded" characters from the Bible, is famed for going when God said, "Go." We know nothing much else about him, but this is enough.

No Wonder He Hesitated

IT WAS just after the conversion of Saul. At the time of our story, nobody had ever heard of Paul, only of Saul as he was then called; and nobody heard anything good. He was a bitter, ruthless man. He had no use for Christians. Extermination was his only answer to the Christian challenge. The name of Saul brought terror.

On this day of our story Saul had been only three days a Christian. He had had nothing to eat all that time, and he was said to be blind. You may be sure that Christians stayed away from him. His Jerusalem cronies had no doubt given him up as crazy; but no Christian would go near him either. At this point our Ananias had a vision: The Lord told him to go to Saul and lay his hands on him in help and blessing. Naturally Ananias held back. This was a dangerous man, said he. But again the Lord in the vision said, "Go," and Ananias went.

Suppose Ananias had said "No"? That might have changed the whole course of Christian history. How? He could have thought of many an excuse. "Aren't there other men who can baptize Saul as well as I can? . . . This whole vision may be only a mistake . . ." And so forth. But not when it became clear to him that this was God's will, Ananias went, though he still did not like it.

How is it with you? When you know what you ought to do, what is the first thing you think of? How to do it, or how to get out of doing it?

Taking Orders From God

HOW CAN we tell when it is really God who commands us? Most Christians today are suspicious of visions, and well we may be. Too many crazy things have been done by people who saw "visions" for us to trust such experiences very far.

One way in which God's orders come to us is in the Word of God, particularly in the words of Christ. For example, take one of the hardest things Jesus ever said: "LOVE YOUR ENEMIES AND PRAY FOR THOSE WHO PERSECUTE YOU." That sounds tough. It is tough. But it is a command. Yet don't most of us leave that command in the closed Bible and act as if the words had never been said?

That brings up another question. Is it likely that Ananias became fond of Saul all at once? Hardly. Ananias could not have liked the man; there was then nothing about him to like. We know from Paul's own words that people generally were not attracted by his looks. Yet Ananias, who could not have liked Saul, much less been fond of him, went and called him "Brother" and gave him his start in the Christian life.

Do You Know a Saul?

NOT FAR from where you are sitting at this moment there may be someone like Saul. He is a Christian, but a new and (so far) poor one, maybe. Someone nobody believes in, someone you scarcely know. It may be a child out of some low-grade home; it may be an ex-drunkard (not so long over it) or an ex-convict even; perhaps someone who has actually done you a wrong.

But this person may be just where Saul was, needing a friend. God may already have touched his heart, all he needs now is the human touch of a Christian friend. Maybe you can't love him, can't even like him; but if he is a human soul God loves him. If you can help him, then you are his Ananias. You know what you ought to do. Will you do it?

Sidelights

Usually cows are considered dumb animals but Fred Church of Pueblo, Colo., won't agree. He believes that cows, as well as dogs, cats and pigeons, have homing instincts and can prove his point. He bought a milk cow from the Art Pooler ranch a few days ago, but didn't take its new calf. The cow soon broke loose and was found two days later eight miles away making for the Pooler ranch.

H. F. Rawls, an attorney of Nahunta, Ga., is a true Democrat (of one stripe or another) and couldn't take it when accused of being a Thomas E. Dewey supporter because the mustache he has been wearing since 1911 resembled that of the GOP standard bearer. So, the first casualty of the current campaign in Georgia was the mustache—he shaved it off.

Mrs. Grace Wiley, 64-year-old snake farm operator of Cypress, Cal., is dead as the result of having been bitten by one of her pets, an Indian cobra. Her will, probated Friday, revealed that her reptile collection was valued by zoologists at $3,000. The will had a clause in it prohibiting the sale of her pets to a sideshow or circus after her death. It is reported, however, that the Griffith Park zoo in Los Angeles is dickering for the lot.

Household Hints

For best flavor, and to prevent discoloration, thaw frozen fruits before opening the package.

Place an inverted glass over the salt shaker in rainy weather to prevent the salt from clogging.

Thumb tacks on the bottom of pictures will keep them out from the wall and prevent dust from collecting behind the frame.

The best fruits for canning are those that are tree-ripened. Unripe fruits are low in flavor and have a hard texture.

Lemon juice will bring out the flavor of many vegetables, such as asparagus, green beans and spinach.

Buttons on coats will stay on longer if you will sew a small button on the underside of the garment, at the same time you sew the button on the outside.

A wooden match stick dipped in ink is an excellent substitute for a pen in addressing parcels. It makes the writing bolder and clearer.

Mix cream cheese with chopped green peppers, prepared horse radish and a little mayonnaise for a delicious sandwich spread.

Evaporated milk may be successfully whipped if it is thoroughly chilled. Two tablespoons of lemon juice for each cup of milk may be added to stiffen the milk.

The new circular skirts are harder to hem than the gored skirts. It will help if the skirt is kept on a hanger for a day or two before hemming; this allows it to stretch during the hanging, and not after it is finished.

Smile Awhile

Life for some begins at 40, while others by that time have gone largely to waft.

Did your grandfather live to a green old age?

I should say so! He was swindled three times after he was 70.

Teacher—Do you know why the little chickens come out of the eggs?

Pupil—They know they'd get cooked if they stayed inside.

Hostess—This is Captain Banks who has just returned from the Arctic regions.

Pretty Guest—Oh, do come nearer the fire; you must be cold.

Waiter, there is no wishbone in this chicken.

It didn't need one, sir. That chicken lived such a contented life that it had nothing left to wish for.

A baker was on trial for selling cheese-cake without cheese in it.

But, your Honor, did you ever see marble cake with marble in it—or angel cake with angels in it?

The case was dismissed.

Two skeletons in a corner closet were griping about the heat,
the dust, and the boredom.

What are we staying here for anyhow? one of them asked.

Durned if I know, said the other. I'd leave here in a minute
if I just had the guts.

I'm all upset. The doctor said the only way to cure my rheumatism was to keep away from all dampness.

What's so tough about that?
You don't know how silly it makes me feel to sit in an empty bathtub and go over myself with a vacuum cleaner.

Two teachers were riding in a bus. "How many children have you?" asked one. "Oh, I have only 30," was the response.
"Well, I've got you beat, I have 32," said the first teacher.

An old Irish lady across the aisle became interested. "Sure, and I'll bet your husbands came from Ireland," she exclaimed.

RUHM'S PHOSPHATE

How Fine Is "85% Thru 300 Mesh?"

This is a term used to describe the fineness of a phosphate rock ground down to a point where 85% will wash through a copper screen woven so fine there are 300 openings to the inch, 90,000 openings to the square inch. This is so fine that the unaided eye is hardly able to distinguish the weave. This is so fine that to pass through this screen there must be approximately 27,000,000 particles of phosphate rock in one cubic inch of Ruhm's Phosphate Rock. This is finer than flour, finer than cement, finer by far than any other phosphate rock sold on a commercial basis.

SHORT STORY
That Smelly Old Pipe
By FRANCES DAVIDS

WITH the air of a deeply wounded man, Henry Little put on his coat and hat and stalked out of the house, slamming the door. He could take slurs on his person, but there was one thing on which he drew the line. He couldn't take insults to that faithful old companion, that sympathetic friend, that trusted comforter and unflinching cheerer-upper, his pipe.

Up to now Sarah's hints hadn't bothered him, but this morning she had ceased to hint. "How long," she had demanded tartly, "am I going to have to stand it?"

Henry's small, buttony brown eyes behind the pale plastic-rimmed spectacles were reading headlines with interest. "Bandit Holds Up Another Local Store." Well, well. The police still hadn't caught the fellow, and this was the third holdup he had pulled.

"... and when I saw that hole in the rug, I wanted to scream."
"What?" he asked guiltily, conscious that he had heard only part of Sarah's remarks.

"I said," she repeated exasperatedly, "I found a hole in the rug and ashes all over the sofa last night. Now, what are you going to do about it?"

"Me? Why, er—nothing, I guess," he said lamely.

"You certainly are," she cried angrily. She wagged a threatening finger. "I'm sick and tired of finding ashes all over the place. Now you get rid of that smelly old pipe, Henry Little, or I'll get rid of it for you!"

Reaching the store he unlocked the door and went in, put on his sweater and lit up his pipe. The brightly-labelled cans on the shelves, the fresh fruits and vegetables, the dairy products, the household items, all stood in their appointed places, like old friends. Today he would have to go through the stock and reprice some of the canned goods.

THE door opened and a stocky young man came in, dressed in a dark coat with the collar up about his ears and a slouch hat down over his eyes. Dressed rather warmly for such a day, Henry thought. "Yes, sir, what can I do for you?" he asked pleasantly.

"Quiet in here today, isn't it?" the man said.

"Very," Henry agreed.

"Then put up your hands, bud, and open up that cash register," the man snarled, leveling a gun at Henry.

Henry almost fainted with surprise and shock. His knees rattled against each other, and he was powerless to move. "Come on, hurry up," the man said brusquely. The roof of Henry's mouth was so dry and parched he thought he would choke. What should he do? He couldn't fight with the man, who was younger and stronger—and besides, there was that ominous gun pointed at him.

Sarah sniffed disapprovingly.

With this terrible predicament facing him, he somehow noted that on the shelf a little beyond the bandit a can of pineapple juice was balanced precariously on another can and almost looked like it was going to fall. Henry watched it hopefully, and a wild, crazy idea formed in his mind.

Crash! The can fell to the floor, startling the thief so that he made an instinctive half-turn, and as he did so, Henry pulled out the pipe from his pocket and stuck it in the man's back. "Now put your hands up," he said hoarsely, and with as much menace as he could muster. The gun fell to the ground with a thud and Henry dragged it over with his foot and picked it up. "Go out the door and into the store next door," he ordered, his hand trembling. In the barber shop next door he told the astounded barber to call the police. . . .

It was on the front page of the Evening Clarion:
"LOCAL MERCHANT FOILS BANDIT. USES PIPE AS GUN."
All evening long people kept calling and telephoning to congratulate Henry, and late that night he sank gratefully onto the sofa and took out his pipe. Sarah, who had just come in, sniffed disapprovingly. "Henry, L—" She stopped short.
"Let me light it for you, dear," she said sweetly.

Sister Kenny Triumphant, Saves Illinois Polio Clinic

Triumphant, Sister Kenny waved "V" for victory as she left Chicago airport for Minneapolis after a recent meeting with Gov. Green and officials of Illinois Division of Services for Crippled Children to avert threatened closing of Sister Kenny Polio Clinic in Centralia, Illinois. Major issue in controversy with Crippled Children Division was that unmodified Kennys-treatment was given exclusively at the clinic. Officials of Division waved the point and promised full approval when the pediatric service at the clinic was changed from that of a consultant to a full time pediatrician to assist other staff doctors. Parents of Illinois polio victims, who had benefited from Kennys's methods, backed the famous Australian nurse.
