Dicks-Blaase Wedding at Methodist Church

(Arthur Graphic-Clarion)

The Methodist church in Allerton was the scene of a lovely church wedding on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 29, when Miss Mary Joan Blaase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin H. Blaase, became the bride of Wallace L. Dicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth T. Dicks, in a double ring ceremony performed at 2:30 p. m. in the presence of three hundred guests. The Rev. Kenneth D. Plummer was the officiating clergyman. The church was decorated with white candelabra, baskets of white gladioli and huckleberry.

Music was by Mrs. Leo Krummel, who played nuptial selections on the organ and accompanied Gene Hoke, who sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly" before the ceremony, and "With This Ring I Thee Wed" after the vows were exchanged. Mrs. Krummel also played the wedding marches.

Miss Janece Blaase attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore peach taffeta, fashioned with a scalloped neckline, cap sleeves, tight bodice and full skirt. She wore a bonnet of braided matching taffeta and net, peach net mitts, and carried a colonial bouquet of talisman roses, with aqua lace and ribbons. Bridesmaids were Misses Lerae Galbreath, Laverne Jones, Margie Oye, and Mrs. Harold Anderson of Bloomington. They wore aqua taffeta made identically as the maid of honor's, with matching bonnets and mitts, and carried colonial bouquets of pink roses with peach lace and ribbons. Noel Dicks served his brother as best man and ushers were Darrell Dicks, another brother of the groom, Gordon Galbreath, Martin Stock, Jr., Melvin Dewitt of Broadlands, and Harold Anderson from Bloomington. The men wore white carnation boutonnières. The ring bearer was Marilyn Robinson, who carried the rings in a white Calla lily with white satin streamers, and the flower girl was Joan Fitzjarrald, who carried a basket of rose petals which she scattered in the path of the bride. Both little girls were charming in peach taffeta and matching mitts.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a wedding gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a scalloped neckline with seed pearl trim, fitted bodice, long sleeves ending in a point, full skirt and train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was secured by a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Blaase chose black crepe with lace trim, and white roses for her daughter's wedding, and the groom's mother wore beige with beige and brown accessories and pink roses.

Following the ceremony the bridal party received their guests in the rear of the church after which a reception was held in the church basement.

The newlyweds left later in the afternoon on a wedding trip. After September 6 they will be at home at 305 East Armory, Champaign. The groom will be a Junior in the School of Commerce at the University of Illinois and Mrs. Dicks will be secretary to Dr. Paul Burt of the Wesley Foundation. Both the

The Man for the Job

Lesson for September 12, 1948

HISTORY KNOWS some men only by their nicknames. Stalin is a nickname, so was Charlemagne. And so is Barnabas, one of the best of the early Christians. The apostles nicknamed him "Barnabas" and the name stuck, for it means "Son of Encouragement," and Barnabas' specialty was encouraging people who badly needed it.

Barnabas was not a brilliant man, perhaps not even a strong one, though he had an impressive "front." On a journey in the back districts the natives would take him for Zeus, king of all the gods. But it was not his looks that were important, it was his big heart.

When Saul was converted, there was an awkward situation when that young convert went back to Jerusalem. The little society of Christians there knew Saul for a tiger. They had suffered at his hands, they had seen their friends dragged off by his henchmen. So when Saul showed up among the very people he had terrified, when he not only showed up but claimed to be one of them, no wonder they were frightened.

All but Barnabas. Somehow or other shall we say it was God's Spirit in him? Barnabas was not afraid. He took Saul the Terrible by the hand, he introduced him to the church leaders, he told them his story, he sponsored Saul as we would say.

An Eye for God

AFTER THAT EXPERIENCE with Saul, Barnabas' friends came to think of him as a man who could probably see the good in any man or situation if there was any good to be seen. So when the headquarters church in old Jerusalem heard of a novel sort of church down in Antioch, they sent this "Son of Encouragement" down to see what went on. It was certainly no church on the Jerusalem pattern; was it a good one, or even a genuine church at all? Barnabas would know. And so he did.

Other men could see the large number of church members in Antioch; others could give you statistics about its rate of growth; others could tell you it was bi-racial, a daring experiment then as now. Some applauded, some raised their eyebrows.

But we read that Barnabas had eyes in his soul as well as in his head. What he saw, as he looked at that stirring new church with its new ways, was "the grace of God." All of us can see things on the surface, we can count noses, we can make reports for the papers. But seeing underneath, seeing the grace of God (or the need of it)—that is not so easy. Wanted for every church: A Barnabas!

Round Peg—Round Hole

WHEN BARNABAS had taken stock at Antioch he knew the place needed a man, and he knew the man for the place. Off he went across the Taurus mountains to Tarsus, where Saul was doing nothing particular, and he brought Saul to Tarsus and set him to work. Saul turned out to be, as Barnabas expected, the round peg for the round hole.

That team was a "natural"—but only Barnabas would have thought of it. Paul fitted in with the church, too. A tireless worker, he was just the man for that vital growing congregation. Getting the right people for the right jobs is still one of the big problems of the Christian church. Many a Sunday school class, for instance, now is withering on the stalk, only because the Sunday school superintendent has never found the right teacher.

The Hands of the Church

THE TIME came when Barnabas and Saul were sent out by that same Antioch church to be the first foreign missionaries ever deliberately sent out by any Christian church. The hands of the church were laid on them before they left.

To this day, when a man is set apart, by ordination, for a particular work in the Christian church, hands are laid upon his head. This is more than an antique ceremony, there is more than magic in it.

The laying on of hands may mean different things to different churches, but this at least it always means: The men so ordained are now the hands of the churches they represent.

Small Change In Polls

Since the middle of June, the national conventions have been held, spy investigations have been going on, a special session of Congress met for two weeks, and considerable campaigning has been done—yet during this period the relative standing of President Truman and Governor Dewey remains virtually unchanged, according to the Gallup polls.

The first nation-wide poll, taken in June, showed Dewey favored by 49 per cent of the voters; Truman favored by 38 per cent.

A second poll, taken during the latter part of July, gave Dewey 48 per cent; Truman 37 per cent. The third poll published the latter part of August, gave the same percentages as the second—Dewey 48, Truman 37 per cent.

In the interval between the first and third polls, President Truman made his extensive speaking trip to the West Coast and back, made his acceptance speech at Philadelphia, and held several press conferences, in all of which he vigorously attacked the record of the 80th Congress. He also criticized the Congressional investigations of alleged communists as a "red herring" intended to divert attention from GOP failures to pass requested legislation.

Republicans, in their turn, assailed the President's plea for price-fixing and rationing as impracticable, and denounced his refusal to allow executive agencies to give information concerning Communists to investigating committees of Congress.

If the polls have any significance, they show that neither side gained anything by the charges and counter-charges made. There is, however, an "undecided" vote—around 8 or 9 per cent of the total—that may yet be influenced one way or another as the campaign progresses.

In the nation-wide Gallup polls the first two gave Wallace 6 per cent and the last gave him 5 per cent. He will get no electoral votes, but in states where the election is close he may take enough popular votes from Truman to throw their electoral votes to Dewey.

A Gallup poll showing voter preferences in the individual states may be expected soon. When this is published, a better idea of the real situation can be gained, not only regarding the Presidency, but also with respect to the outcome of Senate races in states which elect Senators this year.

The Republicans feel certain of electing Dewey, but are worried about holding the Senate, in which they now have a very slim majority.

Century of Continuance Traffic at Niagara Falls

For 100 years there has been no interruption of traffic over the whirlpool bridge at Niagara Falls. For a full century nothing has marred the continuous flow of vehicles of all types and description and of all models from the ox cart to the streamlined automobile. But, recently, to mark the 100th anniversary of uninterrupted traffic, the traffic was stopped officially. Joe Hanley, lieutenant governor of New York, and Premier George Drew, of Ontario, met in the middle of the bridge to celebrate the occasion. After the ceremonies, traffic was resumed to continue uninterrupted for another century, it is hoped.

Sidelights

We've never been able to understand why women as pretty as those in the washing machine ads can't marry men who are able to hire the washing done.

The whole story of inflation seems well covered by the following: "If you can keep your head and calmly ponder... How silly spending drives the prices high... If you can save the cash you like to squander... And only buy the things you need to buy... If you can do your part to fight inflation... By simply being thrifty with yourself... You'll do a vital service to this nation... And furthermore—you'll benefit yourself."

Why is it that a man may be able to deliver an address that has everything—proper introduction of the subject, a careful build-up of interest and thorough command of the English language that makes it possible for him to hold you spellbound for an hour—but ask him for road directions in a community in which he has spent his entire life and he becomes so confused that he is unable to compose an intelligible sentence.

Illinois State Capitol News

Governor Dwight H. Green, in a proclamation designating Friday, Sept. 17, as Constitution Day, declared that the Constitution of the United States is a safeguard of our national independence and our individual freedom as American citizens. The occasion marks the 161st anniversary of the formal adoption of our Constitution.

The average of prices which Illinois farmers received for all farm products declined 2.4 per cent in the thirty day period preceding the mid-August report of the state and federal department of agriculture. Lower quotations on food and feed grains, soy beans, and meat animals more than offset an upturn in prices of dairy products, poultry and eggs.

Airplanes from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, equipped with two-way radios, will be used this fall to assist Illinois conservation officers in enforcing game laws. Whenever observers in the planes spot out-of-season hunters or other violators they will call cars, boats or field men to close in on the offenders.

The air-ground-water patrols will operate over the entire state prior to and during the duck season, which opens Oct. 29.

Gratifying progress in the continuing fight against tuberculosis is disclosed by a report from Dr. Roland R. Cross, state director of public health, which shows that the mortality from this disease in Illinois for 1947 was substantially lower than in any previous year. The death rate last year was 33.6 per 100,000 population, compared with 36.8 in 1946.

Dr. Cross predicts a further and more rapid decline in tuberculosis because of the stepped-up program to eradicate the disease. More than 350,000 persons had free chest x-rays given by the seven mobile x-ray units now being operated by the state.

Sugar in Corn
Plant breeders at Connecticut agricultural experiment station say they have a corn with nearly as much sugar in its stalk as sugar cane contains. The discovery was made when it was found that one of the inbreds used in corn breeding work tasted sweet.

Mathematics Marvel
Machine Is Planned
For Univ. of Illinois

If a thousand experts with electric adding machines were to work simultaneously for 40 years they could accomplish no more than a new electronic computer to be installed at the University of Illinois will be able to do in two weeks. The machine will be the first of its kind in the Middle West.

Able to do mathematical problems a thousand times faster than any standard electrically operated computing machine, it also will have an electronic "memory" to store away 1,024 numbers, each having as many as 13 digits, and to recall these numbers instantly. This memory feature is a key to future advances in calculating, and the University's scientists already have ideas for improving it.

The machine will be used by various departments of the University for the involved mathematics necessary to many fields of today's scientific research. It will be operated by a special crew under the Graduate College whose dean, Prof. Louis N. Ridenour, describes the instrument as "a revolutionary advance over existing calculators."

It is expected to answer questions which have baffled scientists in numerous fields for years, working out the answer to problems which no human mathematician has time to solve in a lifetime.

Detect Solvent Vapors

Improved apparatus for determining the vapor content of a gas, recently patented, can be used to test the air in factories or other closed spaces where solvent vapors may be present, and by fliers to determine whether the water vapor content in their cylinders of breathing oxygen is low enough so it will not turn into ice crystals and plug the breathing apparatus.

Dried Vegetable Waste

Dried vegetable waste makes excellent poultry feed and, according to University of Delaware, where quality control of the dried product has been maintained, is equal to or superior to alfalfa leaf meal. From chemical analysis and performance, it is concluded that vegetable waste is an excellent source of carotene, riboflavin and other water-soluble vitamins.

SHOOT STORY
Winter Evenings
By RUTH K. KENT

EVY liked winter evenings best because then she had time to do her fancy work. Before she married Bill her days were filled at the office and evenings she had to care for mamma . . . winter and summer. Now she had to sprinkle the lawn on summer evenings, but winter . . . last year she made that green needlepoint cushion she and Bill were so proud of. It was sacred to Evy . . . almost like a child.

This winter she was making seats for the dining room chairs, and they were coming along nicely until the Harpers moved in next door early in January. Kathy Harper was tall but she seemed dainty beside Evy's five feet. Kathy could twist her indulgent husband, Curt, around her finger. And her eyes often wandered across the fence after that first day she came over and gushed, "That gorgeous Wedgwood! You wouldn't sell it?"

Evy wouldn't. But the Italian pottery bowl and the tiny flowered picture frame and the blue pitcher found their way to Kathy's living room. Everything seemed to look better in Kathy's living room.

Kathy raved about the needlepoint cushion. Afterwards Bill said, "I'm surprised she didn't get it, too."

Then Kathy started bringing over Curt. "Let's have some bridge," she suggested.

One evening Kathy said, "Let's play for money."

Evy glanced at Bill, but he didn't move.

"Quarter a corner," Curt said. Bill got that defensive look. "You'll have to work for it."

Bill was an accurate player, but Kathy had a way of taking all the tricks the way she took everything else. Mostly with her chatter. Bill couldn't concentrate. Kathy had a way of putting when she lost. That made Evy secretly afraid that Bill was letting her win.

So the needlepoint lay rolled in the sewing basket. "I'll work on it next week," Evy would vow.

But next week was always the same. Except that Curt Harper sort of faded out. Sometimes Evy and Bill would want to go to a movie. Kathy invited herself along and sat on the other side of Bill.

Mamma always said to Evy, "If you'd get mad once in a while, people wouldn't push you around." Evy was getting mad.

One evening when she was out making coffee she heard Kathy in the living room coaxing Bill for something. She'd lost her dollar . . . probably trying to coax it back. Kathy's laughter tolled a knell in Evy's heart.

Evy hurried in. Kathy cried, "Don't you dare, Bill . . ." and reached for Evy's needlepoint cushion, ready to plop it on Bill's head.

Kathy started bringing over her indulgent Curt.

"You put that pillow back," Evy shouted, "Don't you dare touch it." Bill took the pillow gently. "Ah, ah . . . no touch."

Evy slammed down the tray. "Nobody touches that pillow. Least of all you, Kathy Harper. That's one thing to keep your hands off."

They stared at her. Evy realized she'd been screaming.

"I don't want coffee," Kathy said, "I have to go."

"Too bad," Bill said. "Give me my pen."

She threw Bill's fountain pen at him. "Take it, stingy," she said. The door slammed.

Evy crumpled to a chair. "I . . . got so mad . . ."

"You sure did," Bill reached for a cookie. "She won't be back."

Evy started to cry. Maybe Bill'd go calling on Kathy now. "How could I?"

Bill's eyes narrowed. "She was pawing your pillow."

"I don't care for myself," Evy cried, "But now you can't play bridge."

Bill scratched his head. "I thought you couldn't live without her. You mean . . . ye gods . . . I was doing it for you." He fingered his pen. "Well, she didn't get everything from us."

Evy smiled. Kathy didn't get anything, really. She laid her head on Bill's arm. "I'm going to finish that needlepoint now."

Smile Awhile

A cowpuncher ordered a steak at a restaurant. The waiter brot it in rare—very rare. The cowpuncher looked at it and demanded that it be returned to the kitchen and cooked.

It is cooked, snapped the waiter.

Cooked—nothing, replied the cowpuncher. I have seen cows hurt worse than that and get well.

Auto Examiner—Do you know what it means if a driver puts out a hand?

Applicant—Well, if it's a woman, it means she is going to turn right or left, shake the ashes off her cigarette, or reverse or stop, or she's pointing to a hat store, or admiring her ring, or—

Examiner—Yeah, and if it's a man?

Applicant—Why he's usually waving at a woman.

Down in a small Southern town a Negro with a badly slashed face entered a doctor's office.

Hello, Sam, the doctor greeted him. Got cut up again, I see.

Yes, sah! was the doleful rejoinder. I done got carved up wid a razor, Doc!

Sam, demanded the doctor, laying out his bandages and medical supplies, why don't you keep out of bad company?

Doc, I sho' would like to, Sam moaned, but I ain't got nuff monee to git me a divorce!

The other day an extremely stout woman attired in a rather roomy pair of slacks passed by the Farmers' Market in Birmingham.

She was moving at a surprisingly fast pace, and the strange spectacle she presented from the rear seemed to excite the risibilities of an old farmer standing nearby.

Catching the eye of another spectator, he observed with a chuckle:

"Bud, I never thought I'd live to see a sight like that—looks like two little boys a' fightin' under a blanket."

A red-faced man was struggling to change a tire, while a woman looked on. The kind hearted motorist drew up behind the stalled car, dismounted, and said, Pardon me, but can I be of any assistance?

The man laid down his tire tool and, taking the new arrival by the arm, he walked him out of earshot of the woman.

You certainly can help me, friend, he replied thankfully. My wife here has very decided views as to how this job should be done. If you will just talk to her and divert her attention until I get this tire changed, I shall be eternally grateful.

Household Hints

For best results cook frozen meat at a low temperature.

If the ticking of your alarm clock is too noisy, set it on a blotter or piece of felt.

To take the excess electricity out of a taffeta dress, try steaming it in the bathroom.

Use cold water first on egg stains. Hot water may set the stain.

Three ounces of peroxide in two gallons of water will change yellowing woolens back to their original whiteness.

The handiest way to remove paint splatters from tile is to wipe them away with a cloth dipped in nail polish remover.

The patent leather covering on heels can be prevented from cracking if you coat it with colorless nail polish.

When you hang slacks out to dry turn them inside out and pin them to the line by the pockets. This will keep them from getting out of shape.

This will help keep mosquitoes away from your bed if one gets into your room at night: five drops of camphor on a lump of sugar placed on your nightstand.

Blame for Smoking

The sense of smell probably is responsible for the original idea of smoking. According to Encyclopaedia Britannica, this sense was much keener in primitive man, and along with the pleasure he derived from aroma, he probably also experienced a sense of mystery at the sight of the smoke rising up into the air.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

One Great American Trait

I always think it does a newspaper editor good to get out from behind his desk and see how folks in other parts of America look, and think, and act.

And that's what I've been doing these past weeks, touring the country from Michigan to Texas, California to Maine. It's a mighty encouraging experience. Not only because of the different points of view you run into—but because of the tolerance which reconciles those different points of view.

I mean the tolerance of a Pennsylvania farmer for the habits of his city cousin; the tolerance of folks who vote one way towards those who vote another; the tolerance of those who prefer spring water towards those who enjoy a moderate beverage like beer.

From where I sit, it's that great American trait of tolerance—respect for individual tastes and liberties—that makes this country strong. Let's never lose it!
