Faith: A Family Tradition Lesson for September 26, 1948

HERE IS a brief Bible quiz? What Christian man did Paul recommend to the Philippians as the one completely unselfish person he knew? When Paul sent his ideas to a "problem church," tions is the same: Timothy.

Saint Paul found so congenial, so at Will. reliable, so unselfish and effective a Christian, is a man worth our careful attention. We ask this question about him: What made him what he was?

Faith at Home

COME MEN have to leave home to find faith. But perhaps the hapfortunate, are those who cannot re- tributed by the President. member what it was not to have faith. It was the atmosphere they never in jest or anger.

Timothy grew up in such a home. When he became a mature, working Christian he had no wasted years to regret, no wild oats to pull sis it is important. up. The faith of his adult mind was not scarred by the acid remains of earlier doubt. Timothy's life was all of one piece. He was born to faith, he grew up in it.

Homes can do a great deal for the children who live in them. But nothing else - physical health, poise, culture, friends, ambition-nothing else is quite so valuable a gift or quite so lasting, as faith.

In later years faith may have to be pounded into a person or shocked into him; but in childhood faith is the weakness of her constitution- ed out of her head. it should be. Happy the Christian who does not have to turn his back on his childhood when he turns his face to Christ!

Book of Wisdom

66D ELIGION cannot be taught, It can only be caught," is an dom down on a bench and teach them into faith. If teaching religion were as simple as that, then every Sunday school could guarantee that every one of its graduates would become a saint. Nevertheless, religion can partly be taught, for in a book there may be crystallized the faith of many a generation. A book may concentrate and preserve the insight, the inspiration, the assurance of men and women who though dead yet speak.

living with many families of faith at the same time. Such a book is the Bible. And it was the Bible, or so much of it as had been written, the Old Testament, which was the one Book in Timothy's boyhood home. Through the Scriptures, the boy's mother taught her son not merely her own faith but that of many a generation before her time

In our own day, parents may feel that they come too far short of being saints, so they hesitate about urging their perhaps dimly-felt religion on their children. Yet in our Bible there is open to all fathers and mothers a means of placing their children in an atmosphere of intense faith.

Personal religious genius is rare; but even though you may be any thing but a genius, you still can bring to your child the treasures of the Bible, product of the highest inspiration and insight the world has known.

George started, paled. Couldn't let on to the old fool that after tonight he wouldn't be around, couldn't explain you don't want it by looking that after tonight he'd be a free man, a man of means, no longer a slave. Only thing you could call a bank teller, wasn't want it.

"It's-it's about 15 years," came from George's dry lips.

"No doubt the bank folks are pretty fond of you by this time," commented Tim. "They're mighty nice to me, too-from the president down."

"Yes, of course," chopped out mons. George, swinging away.

Only this time he would not be working overtime for his superiors. Just for himself.

Finally, he was stuffing big rolls of currency into a traveling bag. He hoped his luck would hold, that Henry, the night watchman, would doze in the back room, as usual.

His luck did hold. It held so well it was uncanny. Even his aged automobile ran perfectly till close to daybreak, when he abandoned it and hopped a fast freight for the reach a certain man highly skilled ning to answer a wrong number. in plastic surgery, a man who'd do anything for a price.

EORGE MADISON now became James Farnum. His hair was bleached white, his upper lip was smooth-shaven, his once good-looking nose was unpleasantly aquiline. Even his voice was higher pitched. He not only looked different, he felt different. He was rich.

In Alaska, he went into fur trading, became surprisingly prosperous. He remained a bachelor and avoided making close friends. Three years of this and he grew restless. He went to Chicago, then to New York and took in the best shows and night clubs. He ran into Ed & Ratchet, former clerk in the old

So he decided to return to Crosstown and take a look around. After all it was his home.

He put up at the Crosstown hotel with no questions asked. In the hotel lobby, on the streets and in the shops, he was treated like any stranger.

One day as he passed the bank, he saw old blind Tim sitting on his customary corner. Tim was selling a newspaper to a strange man. "Guess I'll drop a five spot in Tim's cup for luck," decided George. It gave him a warm feeling inside to be going toward old Tim again.

But as be paused before him, Tim leaped up and grabbed George's beautifully tailored sleeve. He cried, "George Madison! It's George Madison!"

"Let me go! I'm James Farexclaimed the terrified George, trying to pull away.

"What a break!" said the strange man, holding out handcuffs. "I've been looking for you a very long time! Thought you might blow back -they generally do!"

"Plain clothes, eh?" sneered George. "I'll prove you're wrong-I'll sue-I'll-"

"Can't fool me," piped up old Tim. "I get to know a man's footsteps after hearing 'em for 15 years!"

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Nicest Compliment I've Had

One of the nicest comments I've received about this column was from an editor in the Middle West I called on. And while I don't like to give myself orchids, I think it illustrates a point.

"Joe," he said, "it so happens I don't agree with everything you say, but I always like to run your column. Because it gets down to earth and talks about the right to disagree. And it only asks for tolerance towards the other person's point of view,"

He went on to explain, by way of illustration, that he never had happened to have a taste for ale or beer. But that when I spoke of the right to enjoy a moderate beverage like beer, well, he was right there with me!

And from where I sit, that's the important thing: not whether you share another person's tastes or point of view-but whether you recognize his right to exercise a free choice in a free land.

Veterans and non-veterans alike are an earnest lot. Almost to a man they have spent months seeking admission to colleges and universities up and down the country, and now that they are in, they intend to stay in.

Some report they wrote to dozens of colleges and universities but couldn't enroll. Others obtained permits to enter but couldn't find housing accommodations.

At the University's Galesburg Division, the students are finding ample housing, classroom space, and dining facilities to meet all needs. And they are showing their appreciation by their high academic
