A Whale of A Wheat Story From Kansas

Through the courtesy of Alvin Zenke, Broadlands, we publish herewith the following clipping which was taken from the Republic Booster, Republic, Kansas, and sent to him by his cousins:

If anyone tells you that "Nothing ever happens in Republic," tell them to go jump in the lake, or that they don't know what they are talking about. The past week or ten days has been a record breaker in wheat deliveries at our local elevator. Trucks lined up to the far ends of town both east and west, waiting their turn to be dumped, and still they came, from every locality in the county. Our local elevator manager "Norb" Habiger and his crew of workers have been on the job almost day and night, taking care of the crop of "Gold" that rolls in at all hours.

Wheat began coming in on June 23 when danger of floods threatened, increasing each day as the weather cleared and the combines really got underway. Up to Monday, approximately 240,000 bushels were handled daily, and Monday broke the record with a 26,000 bushel output. At the time of this writing there is the largest pile of wheat ever seen in Republic County, possibly in the state of Kansas, in fact there is a "mountain of wheat" piled on the ground.

During this time many cars, in fact every possible available car has gone out, and all elevator space is filled to capacity. 80,000 bushels of wheat piled on the ground, representing a "pile" of money.

Many people have driven into Republic just to see this enormous pile of wheat and it is indeed something worth seeing. Our local men deserve the highest commendation of the entire community for the fine way they have handled the wheat business. We all realize there is more or less risk connected with such an immense volume of wheat, but Hab did it last year and we have confidence enough in him to believe that he and the boys can do it again.

Township Committee For CROP Announced

The Ayers Township committee for CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program) has been set up as follows: Rev. P. E. Kerkhoff, Chairman; Rev. W. H. Loyd, George Dohme and Oscar Witt. This committee working under the Champaign County committee will promote the gathering of corn, soybeans or cash for relief in Europe and Asia.

CROP is the organization which last year managed the "Abraham Lincoln Food Train," and is endorsed by the Champaign County Farm Bureau, and the Illinois Agricultural Association. The program is sponsored by three church relief agencies: Catholic War Relief Service, The Church World Service (Protestant), and Lutheran World Relief, Inc.

Food is still desperately needed by the people of war-torn Europe and Asia. Hundreds of thousands of Europeans and Asians have less than half enough to eat. CROP is an effort to gather foodstuffs for these unfortunate people. Not less than twenty good-will trains are being organized in various states.

All contributions, whether of grain or of cash, may be credited to and distributed by whichever of the above church organizations each donor prefers and designates. It is anticipated that the response from this area will be most gratifying.

Edna Schumacher Is Bride of Dwight Allen

Beautiful in its simplicity was the afternoon candlelight wedding of Miss Edna Schumacher and Mr. Dwight Allen when they were united in marriage at three o'clock Sunday afternoon, Nov. 7, at the St. John's Evangelical & Reformed Church, Broadlands.

Reverend W. H. Loyd, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the impressive double ring ceremony.

Mrs. A. O. Struck presided at the piano playing a recital of bridal music as the guests arrived. Mrs. Alfred Zenke sang "Always" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony.

Palms banked the altar and on either side were tall bridal stands holding pink gladioli and white pompons, with candelabra bearing tall ivory candles in the background, making an attractive setting for the solemn occasion.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Schumacher, Broadlands, was a charming picture in her gown of taffeta and net, fashioned with a long torso, when she was given in marriage by her father. The sweetheart neckline of her gown was outlined in a pearl-beaded floral design, and the gown was finished with long, full sleeves. She wore a fingertip veil which fell from an orange blossom crown. Her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a floral bouquet of yellow mums.

Attending the bride was Mrs. Andrew Henson, who was attired in ice blue moire taffeta, fashioned on the lines of the bride's gown, with a round neckline and long fitted sleeves. On her head was a Juliet cap of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white mums.

Bert Allen of Oswego, attended his brother as best man. The ushers were Ralph Schumacher, brother of the bride, and Andrew Henson.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Schumacher was in a smartly styled afternoon dress of black with gray accessories, and her corsage was of pink carnations.

The ceremony was followed with a reception for relatives and close friends at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's table was appointed with a beautifully decorated wedding cake and candles. Mrs. Walter Schumacher of Broadlands poured coffee, and Mrs. R. B. Stephens of Aurora served the punch. Miss Edna Sitts of Aurora cut the wedding cake.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Allen left on a short wedding trip through the South. For going away, Mrs. Allen changed to a blue suit with a white blouse, and black accessories. To her suit she pinned a mum from her bridal bouquet.

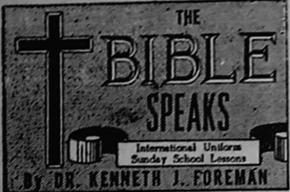

Mrs. Allen is a graduate of Longview High School and at present is employed as bookkeeper at the Henson Lumber Yard.

Mr. Allen also graduated from Longview High School, spent four years in the United States Army, and at present is employed at the Henson Lumber Yard.

The happy young couple will reside in the former Maxwell home on the northside, which they have furnished and in readiness for their occupancy.

Voices of God

Lesson for November 14, 1948

"WHAT became of our lost mules?" That is the kind of question which prophets once upon a time were expected to answer (1 Samuel 9:1-10). Some people still have this notion about prophets in the Bible, as if they had been gypsy fortune-tellers, tea-leaf readers or astrologers. They were nothing of the sort. It is not possible to open the Bible to the prophets and read history-in-advance, finding out when the next war is coming and when the end of the world is scheduled.

Dr. Foreman

If we could really use the prophets of the Bible in this way, then any reader of these books could write history accurately in advance; but no one has done this yet.

Hired Man and Aristocrat

THE genuine prophets, whose writings make up so much of the Bible, are something far loftier than mere fortune-tellers. They are authentic voices of God. Because of the way they spoke, the timeless truth of what they said, they are God's spokesmen to our own times as well as to their own, and to all times.

The Bible prophets were not "professionals." They had no churches to support them. No regular meetings were arranged for them. You never would have read in the Jerusalem Journal, if there had been such a newspaper, that the Rev. Dr. Isaiah would preach at the temple at 11 a. m. and there would be special music. Few ever knew when or where a prophet might speak.

No one knew beforehand where a prophet might come from. Amos, for example, was a hired man from a sheep-ranch. Micah was a small-town preacher. Isaiah was a highly cultured citizen of the capital, intimate with all the important people. Ezekiel was a trained priest, loving ritual and pageantry. Jeremiah was a lonely, hunted man, living often in jails. Daniel was a member of a king's council, wealthy and famous.

They were all kinds of men, these prophets, but one and all, they were God's voices, pleading, warning, teaching all who would hear.

Their Times and Ours

HUMAN nature is always much the same. One man alone, or one man with another man, or a man with a woman, or a man in a crowd—in the eighth century before Christ when Amos preached, or now in the 20th century after Christ, the same sort of situation brings out the same temptations, the same sins. The prophets often sound quite modern, but that is only because the human race is so old-fashioned.

The prophets looked about them and saw a world much like our own. They saw people spending more than they could afford; they saw wealthy women dressing in competition with one another while poorer women starved; they saw crowds of business men attending religious services on Sabbath mornings and spending the rest of the Sabbath figuring out how to cheat their customers on Monday.

The prophets lived in evil times and they brought the judgment of God to such times—then, now and always.

Sins of Society

IN AN American town there was a lynching one Saturday night. The next morning there were four sermons in the four little churches of the town; but not one of the preachers had a word to say about that lynching or any lynching or about the causes that produce such crimes.

The prophets never would have missed an opportunity like that. They were not afraid to speak out, even when they had the whole community against them.

What Does God Require?

IT IS easier to say "Don't!" than "Do." It is easier to criticize than to construct. But the prophets did not stop with warnings. They have given us a pattern for living, which Micah summed up in those matchless, inspired words: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Everything that is good, in public life or in private, is included in those 22 words.

Strikes In France

For many months the efforts of the French nation to get back on its economic feet have been hampered by the Communists, who control the General Confederation of Workers. Strike after strike has been fomented in key industries, with incalculable losses to workers and government alike.

Most disastrous of these strikes is the one now in progress, which is nation-wide and has paralyzed coal production for four weeks, causing a loss of more than 3,000,000 tons of coal which is desperately needed. To make matters worse, maintenance workers have been withdrawn from the mines, many of which have been flooded to such an extent that they will be out of production long after the strike is ended.

It was recently reported that more than 30,000 troops had been called out in an effort to prevent further sabotage and quell violent disorders, in which several persons have been killed and many injured. About 300,000 miners are idle and no end to the strike is in sight, although the workers and their families are suffering greatly from pay losses.

The long succession of strikes which has plagued France can be directly traced to the determination of the Communists to wreck the European Recovery Program (Marshall Plan) if possible. As is the case everywhere these French Communist leaders act under orders from Moscow. They have no regard for the welfare of the workers whom they deceive and mislead—their only objective being to create chaos, in the hope of eventually taking over the government.

What is going on in France and elsewhere should be an object lesson to the people of the United States, where there is too great a disposition to handle the Communists with kid gloves. Every Communist in this country is an actual or potential traitor, and should be dealt with accordingly.

Veto No. 28

Andrei Vishinski, Soviet representative in the U. N. Security Council, recently used the 28th Russian veto in that body to kill a compromise proposal for lifting the blockade of Berlin in return for concessions by the United States, Britain and France with respect to the German problem.

The compromise had been proposed by six neutral members of the Council—Argentina, Belgium, Canada, China, Colombia and Syria—and accepted by the American, British and French delegates, all of whom voted for the proposal. Only Russia and the Ukraine, which is an integral part of the Soviet Union, voted in opposition.

The resolution proposed that Russia and the Western Powers lift all restrictions on traffic with Berlin, and that at the same time the military governors of the four zones would begin negotiations for using Soviet currency only in the entire city. It also provided for further conferences to consider the whole German question.

John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs adviser, in an address before the political committee of the U. N. in Paris, has accused Russia of trying to subject the whole world to Communism. He urged the U. N. to spare no effort to check the Soviet threat and remove "the pall of fear which hangs over the world."

Dulles warned the Soviet bloc that "if there is continued violations of the Charter, world opinion will grow steadily more condemnatory, more resolute and more potent to restrain aggression." He also asked the U. N. "to focus on Russia the white glare of exposure."

How to Lose Out

The government lost $2,000,000 a day while running the nation's railroads in World War I. That's not hay! The government operators got rid of that money even though they found it necessary to jump freight rates 110 per cent! This sad experience gives you a real-life picture of what happens in America under government management of industry. Every time we try it in America, the nation as a whole is the loser.

Compare that record with the railroad management's record in World War II. This time we kept private operation and management. There was no increase in freight rates, and the railroads paid $4,000,000 a day to the federal government in taxes. This means that under private management our people were ahead at least $6,000,000 a day. That's over two billion dollars a year!

To Suffer Most

Not long ago 21 railroad unions came out with a proposal that the government take over the railroads permanently. Surely, somebody is terribly misguided or misinformed. If our union people will study the records of government management in this and other countries, they will make no such demands. Actually, the railroad unions themselves would be the groups to suffer most under government management.

Our workers have a huge stake in the American way. If private ownership of industry is worth saving, then we must do everything we can to stave off these tendencies toward Socialism and Communism.

Best Service, More Pay

Railroads in the United States and one Canadian line are the only railroads in the world that are not government owned or government controlled. Where do you have the best railroads and the best service? In America. Our railroads offer better service at lower cost than you'll find in any other nation in the world. This is true even though the pay envelope of the American railroad worker is far greater than that of railroad workers in other nations.

It would be much wiser for our unions to call for less government strangulation in the form of taxes, not for more control. It is quite possible for a slow strangling process to bring on complete government control of railroads. We must not permit that. Our workers must continue to receive the good wages and benefits that come from railroads controlled by the railroad industry, not by an agency of the government.

Experience, Not Folly

Operating expenses of railroads have soared during the past 30 years. Yet, the railroads under private ownership have increased their efficiency, to serve the public better at lower cost. Two things have resulted from this efficiency: higher wages and lower costs to the shipping and traveling public. Nobody would expect government managed railroads to do these things. And they wouldn't.

Under government operation there is no call for initiative. Competition is not allowed to play its part in keeping us on our toes. We have high standards of living in America simply because we have freedom to act and to look opportunities in the face. We invest savings and earnings, not tax money, for better tools and modernization. Our ways have paid off. A look at nations around us shows the folly of government ownership.

Play Safe and Call Veterinarian When Your Pet Is Sick

Prompt Advice by "Dog's Best Friend" Can Save Much Misery

The dog is "man's best friend" but the dog's best friend is his veterinarian and the best advice that can be given to the owner of a sick or injured dog is to "run, don't walk" to the veterinarian, states the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City. According to the Center, thousands of dogs live out their lives in misery or die needlessly because their misguided though well-meaning owners either ignore symptoms of disease in their pets or else through the use of home remedies and treatments, put off obtaining the advice of a veterinarian until it is too late. One of the commonest mistakes dog owners make is to attempt to worm a puppy at home. Some of the very sickest dogs veterinarians see are puppies which the owner has attempted to worm himself with drug-store remedies. Worm medicines are of necessity composed of toxic and potent drugs and are definitely unsafe in the hands of the average dog owner. Aside from the danger involved in home worm treatments, many dog owners do not realize that there is more than one type of worm with which a dog may be infested and that different remedies are required to be effective against the several types of worms.

Canine ear, eye and tooth troubles should receive prompt professional attention, too. Running or sore eyes, if unattended, can lead to ulceration and eventual blindness. Ear troubles which are usually indicated by the dog's continually shaking his head, scratching at the ear or showing unwillingness to have his head touched, can bring on deafness if not treated correctly. One of the most foolish things for a dog owner to do is to go probing in his pet's ears with an instrument, as the dog's eardrum is easily perforated. Dental troubles in dogs are fairly frequent. A decayed or ulcerated tooth can give a dog a good deal of pain and can cause toxemia and other illnesses. Having a veterinarian periodically remove the tartar from a dog's teeth and examine them with a view to the removal of any abscessed molars is good dog health insurance.

Digestive disorders in a dog is sometimes due to his overloading his stomach with indigestible rubbish, but any prolonged vomiting spells or violent bowel upsets should not be ignored, as these symptoms are often the danger signals of some serious ailment or may mean that the dog has swallowed some sharp object such as a splintered bone which has lodged in the intestines. Gastroenteritis, an inflammation of the mucous lining of the stomach and intestines, is a common illness in dogs and always manifests itself by a digestive upset. This is a dangerous disease that usually runs a rapid course and diagnosis and treatment by a veterinarian should be obtained without delay.

Delay may cost his life

Neglected or wrongly-treated canine skin conditions can cause the dog unceasing misery and leave permanent scars and bald patches in the coat.

Distemper is the most dreaded scourge of dogdom and no right minded dog owner should attempt to deal with this deadly virus disease without the aid of a veterinarian. High fever, listlessness, mattery eyes, loss of appetite, runny nose, and coughing are all symptomatic of distemper and should never be ignored or dismissed. By prompt dosage with a specific serum and the use of the newer antibiotics distemper can usually be licked. The dog-owner who suspects distemper and disregards the danger signals, thinking, "Maybe Fido will feel better tomorrow," is living in a fool's paradise—the chances are that Fido will be worse by tomorrow and a delay of 24 hours in the treatment of distemper can make the difference between a recovery and a sad end for Fido.

A shoulder strap is a piece of ribbon worn to keep an attraction from becoming a sensation.

Grandma, do you have to take all those different kinds of pills every day?

Yes, Judy. Yellow ones for my liver, pink ones for my stomach, black ones for my heart, orange ones for my nerves.

Well, Grandma, what are the red ones for—direct traffic?

The Methodist minister was exhorting the sinners to repent.

Come and join the Army of the Lord! he pleaded.

I've already joined over at the Baptist church, a member of the congregation replied.

Brother, the minister shot back, 'You didn't join the Army; that's the Navy.'

Fu Lung, who had just opened a laundry on one corner, gazed appreciatively at the signs on the business establishments on the other three corners.

On the bakery was a sign, reading: "We never close." Over the garage, the sign read: "We stay open all night;" and over the restaurant: "We never sleep."

The following morning over Fu Lung's laundry appeared the neat handprinted sign: "Me Wake Too."

During the December 7 fracas at Pearl Harbor, a sudden wave of enemy planes sent an Army Captain scurrying for safety.

Far from trees or sand dunes, he spied the only possible protection—the narrow air space beneath one of the camp buildings, which were all lifted on piles.

The Captain reached the building, threw himself flat, and squeezed underneath.

It seemed a long time before the roar of planes and the whomp of guns quieted. Finally he raised his head, to exchange stares with five G.I.'s, who had beaten him to the refuge.

Well, drawled the Captain, after a look around, don't any of you—ever tell me again you can't get under these buildings to police up.

Ram-Jet Aircraft
Future air transportation at supersonic speeds with simple ram-jet engines developing 25 horsepower per pound of weight was visualized before the Society of Automotive Engineers at its annual convention. While admitted that the new development has one serious handicap — it may be limited to military uses since flight at such terrific speeds is likely to be a one-way trip — the ram-jet is superior to the rocket for war purposes.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

To Dunk or Not To Dunk?

Dunking doughnuts is Sober Hopkins' favorite morning pastime ... and for a long time Ma Hopkins has been trying to break him of the habit. Feels it sets a bad example for the children.

So one morning she puts a heavy frosting of chocolate on the doughnuts ... figuring that will stop him. Sober thinks it over for a while and then: Dunk! Taste? Smile!! And Sober compliments the missus on the lovely mocha flavor!

I guess there'll always be two schools of thought: to dunk or not to dunk. But from where I sit, it's a matter of personal choice and taste—like some folks prefer beer to cider, ale to beer. And the less we criticize those differences of taste, the better.

In fact, Ma Hopkins got so curious about the flavor of chocolate-covered doughnuts dunked in coffee, that she tried it herself. Now— you've guessed it—she's a daily dunker, too!

SHORT STORY
Seventh Inning Stretch
By FERN AUBLE

THE stadium was filled to capacity for the opening game and a swelling chorus of voices filled the air. The sun was a brilliant ball in a sky of blue. But Johnny Longstreet sat hunched in the dugout, his huge hands hanging loosely between his knees. The banter of his teammates was a meaningless babel to him.

"I wonder how she is by now," he thought miserably. His blue eyes darkened in despair as he thought of the interminable afternoon before him. He groaned and glanced over at Corky Blanton.

It was too bad that Chuck Leighton had sprained an ankle. Doc said he'd be back in the lineup by next week, but next week was too late and Corky was depending on Johnny to pitch this opening game.

"How's it going, Johnny?" Corky dropped down on the bench beside him and laid a comforting hand on his knee.

"Gosh, Corky, I don't know. The Doc said she'd be all right, but I wish to Heaven I could be there with her." His knuckles whitened as he clenched his hands and Corky watched him with troubled eyes.

As Johnny took the mound for the top half of the first inning, a cheer rose from the stands. His heart warmed at the sound and some of the sag lifted from his shoulders. He looked at Windy Norton, who was catching, and nodded as he caught the signal. As he started his wind-up, a fleeting vision of Milly's scared little face crossed his mind. He knew when the ball left his hand, it was a stinker. Sure enough, Bill Lofton, the big Pirate shortstop, laid on it for a three-base hit. A groan went up from the crowd.

He got hold of himself and fanned the next three men up, leaving Bill Lofton stranded on third. As he faced the first man up in the second inning, Johnny's arm felt like lead.

"If I just knew how she was," he thought. "If I just knew she was all right."

He tried desperately to keep his mind on the game, to keep from thinking about Milly, but, in spite of himself, he failed miserably. He simply couldn't keep her out of his mind.

IT HAPPENED in the sixth inning. He walked the first man and the next batter up hit for a single, putting a man on first and third. A sacrifice hit brought in the first run of the game for the Pirates.

As the seventh inning came up, and the boys trotted out to their positions, Corky turned impatiently as someone tapped him on the shoulder. He took the note handed to him. His face spread into a huge grin and he ran out to the mound.

"Well," Johnny thought, "here's where I get yanked and I don't blame him. Any rookie pitcher could toss rings around me today."

Johnny's arm felt like lead.

But Corky simply handed Johnny the paper. Johnny read it and let out a whoop. The fans watched in bewilderment as they saw Johnny go into a dance. Then they saw his teammates come running in and cluster around him to break away with howls and back-thumpings.

Finally, everyone back in position, Johnny toed the mound and squinted at Windy, waiting for the signal. As it came, he gave a satisfied nod and started his wind-up. The ball whizzed over the plate and you could almost see the smoke trailing it. The next one was a beautiful slow ball that broke just right. Johnny grinned happily as the batter took a healthy swing at the next one and missed.

The Reds got two runs in the eighth, giving them a one-run lead over the Pirates and Johnny put them away one, two, three in the ninth. Not a very big lead, to be sure, but big enough, especially when you consider that Johnny hadn't really pitched much of a game before Corky'd brought him that little slip of paper at the beginning of the seventh.

Oh, yes, the note? Well, it really wasn't a very big message; that is, not very big in words. It merely said, "It's yours, darling. Two future major league ball players. See that you make them proud of their Daddy today." And it was signed "Milly."

Warns Hunters Against Danger of Rabbit Fever

The Illinois rabbit hunting season opens this week, and Dr. Roland R. Cross, state director of public health, warns sportsmen to take precautions against tularemia, or rabbit fever. Wild rabbits are said to be responsible for about 95 per cent of all cases of tularemia in human beings, although squirrels, skunks and field mice also carry the disease.

Dr. Cross pointed out that while infection is most likely to be incurred while skinning and dressing infected rabbits, it may also be contracted by eating undercooked infected meat, or by the bite of an infected flea or tick. He urged hunters and housewives to wear rubber gloves while skinning or dressing wild animals, particularly rabbits.

The restoration of Spring lake, in Tazewell county, as a place for fishing, hunting and recreation is being undertaken by the state department of conservation. As a step in this direction, Gov. DOGS, TOO, HAVE CALORY PROBLEMS

Dogs, no less than their owners, have to watch their calories, writes Dr. M. L. Morris in The Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association. To fill their energy requirements, they need an average daily intake of between 30 to 60 calories for each pound of body weight, depending on the composition and quality of the food and the breed. Growing dogs and dogs of active, nervous type require the highest volume of calories. To figure a dog's requirements, it should be borne in mind that the average dry dog food sold contains about 1,100 calories per pound, while one pound of canned dog food usually furnishes slightly less than 500 calories.—Gaines Dog Research Progress.
